Subject Heading: SUPPORTING THE PRESIDENT

The Media exerts a powerful impression on the minds of the public and so is the MW Jewish News influencing its readers with its barrage of Bush-bashing OP-ED reproduction of articles from Rabbi Weiss to Letti Cottin Pogrebin.

As a ranking member of "Americans for Peace Now", Letti Cottin Pogrebin can hardly be expected to mourn the present state of the economy. Only extensive unemployment can politically serve the objectives of radical factions. Economic turmoils have destroyed free societies in the past, by establishing Dictatorships and Centralized Governments.

The only things Bush was not blamed for is the present world peace, the demise of the Soviet Union and the end of the Cold War, all attributable to the governments of the past 12 years.

Weapons factories are now standing empty or partly empty across America. Three civilian jobs are lost for every single soldier discharged. Yet, inspite of bank failures, the real estate crash, over-leveraging of major companies and buyers of foreign cars aiding the decline of the once dominant automobile industry, there are over one hundred million Americans gainfully employed providing the goods for two hundred fifty million consumers and for the rest of the World.

As a part of the peace dividend, and the world-wide conditions, the correction was inevitable and even Clinton and Perot advocate further belt tightening. Had it not been for the head-on collision with reductions in arms spending, indicators might have born out a reasonable return to normality. Re-employment can not be corrected overnight. The era of austerity needs to be dealt with patience for some time to come. No justification for bashing the President.

While Americans of the Jewish Faith have enjoyed their share of prosperity during the past 12 years, sparing recognition and exposure was given in the MW Jewish News to the achievements of the Republican government and its positive influence on the well-being of Israel. More than 110 Jewish Delegates (3%) took part in the Convention in Houston, where the Republican platform included the strongest plank on U.S.-Israel relations ever written by any party. Buchanan carried as little weight in Houston as the KKK, which in past years was the backbone to democratic voting in the tightly controlled deep South.

Where were the liberals when the democratic party bought the minority votes by keeping them on the poverty payroll? The Reagan and Bush administration promoted more minorities and women to high positions than democrats in all their prior years. To name President Bush an anti-semite and to display the "Bush Burning" caricature is outright wrong and embarrassing, certainly not helping the Jewish cause.

This opinion letter would grow too lengthy with more favorable reasons for a vote for Bush. Some of the facts on the subject dear to readers of the MV Jewish News are:

- During the past 12 years, the subject of Refusniks was brought up at every high-level meeting, resulting in Russia's release of a number, and mostly prominent, Jewish Refusniks.
- The demise of the Soviet Union as a direct result of America's powerful economic and military strength, exploded into the exodus of hundreds of thousands of Russian Jews to assure Israel's future growth.
- The rescue of African Jews made possible by the intervention and support from the White House.
- The reversal of the poisonous U.N. Resolution declaring that Zionism is Racism, thanks to the strong intervention and pressure by George Bush and Jim Baker.
- Bush and Baker's success and policy in keeping Israel out of the recent Mideast War. An occupation of Iraq - politically unsustainable at home - would have been untenable, raising the danger of an Arab Holy War by the Fundamentalists for years to come, detrimental to Israel's well being and existence. By entering and concluding the war as conducted, the Bush policy punctured the Arab solidarity in the region.
- Israel is better off today than before, economically and militarily, thanks to the evenhandedness of the Bush Government. It is a dilution to think that military strength alone can guarantee Israel's security. The day for Israel to destroy a nuclear facility in a neighboring Arab State is a thing of the past. Only a negotiated peace backed by American friendship with firmness on both sides can bear fruit. There are no two men with more creditability and experience with Arab States and Israel than Bush and Baker.
- The venerable Yitzhak Shamir did not hit it off personally with the President but then one does not welcome Mr. Baker, on each visit. with news on new settlements in the Westbank. Shamir's inflexibility and lack of diplomacy resulted in the election of Prime Minister Rabin, a vote of confidence for Bush.

-The intent of granting Israel the $12 million loan guaranty was never abandoned but promptly awarded to the victorious Rabin as anticipated.

-Under the auspices of President Bush, the untiring efforts and trips by Mr. Jim Baker resulted in the miracle of the Century: the unbelievable feat of bringing Israelis and Arabs to the negotiating table. There is no other solution than a peaceful solution. In this vein, Prime Minister Rabin is now pursuing the policy of diplomacy and negotiations with the assurance of understanding and assistance from President Bush.

-Today, Israel has many friends in the World, if only for exchange of goods and technical information. It is thanks to the help from Mr. Bush with personal calls that major countries extended recognitions. Next on the list is the boycott of Jewish firms in the United States by Arab Countries. This subject too, has long been on the agenda by this administration.

If these and many more realities are viewed with fairness, one can only look in amusement or with disgust at the political distortions and mud slinging, which are at an all-time high. One cannot deny Mr. Bush's high marks for principles, conviction, knowledge and fairness towards Israel.

As loyal Americans of the Jewish Faith, our determination is based on the preference of system and its relations with Israel. With Mr. Bush in office for the next four years, the interests of Israel are best served. The United States relies on Israel as much as Israel depends on us. The Bush/Baker team have the creditability and expertise to pursue this course. Governor Clinton is an unknown factor in this arena. Such dialogue takes years to establish.

As to Mr. Clinton's economic plan, it has been proven that State intervention in economics and bigger bureaucracies have failed. It does not stimulate private investments nor create productive jobs. During the resulting stagnation, monies spent by politicians continue to expand the scope of power and perpetuate government. So called reforms that attempt to take benefits away from successful interests usually get stuck in the further centralized hierarchy. A vote for Bush or Clinton is not only a vote for the man but a vote for a system, under which the voter chooses to live.

There were times prior to Republican Administrations, when our soldiers shunned their uniforms before going to town. Our flag was being desecrated. Americans travelling abroad were unpopular and the Dollar was not accepted. Hopefully, this history will never repeat itself.

Personal views and interests differ and readers may not agree with what was said and unsaid. A reply, however, is essential to counter the distortions which have become so flagrant throughout the media and to recognize the factual circumstances which were self-servingly ignored.

Dear Mr. Baker

Thought this would be of interest to you —

Dear Secretary Baker:

You are an attentive and thoughtful listener, and I thank you for the time you gave me and my colleagues from the textile industry last Friday. I am, and I believe my colleagues share the feeling, an enthusiastic supporter of NAFTA. I do so for at least four reasons:

- First, NAFTA provides access to expanding markets, notably Mexico; and this will help American industry.
- Second, NAFTA will serve as a model for a western hemisphere free trade agreement which, in all likelihood, will occur faster than any of us might envision at this point.
- Third, the high social costs in Europe (we operate a plant in Battice, Belgium, and understand what social costs really mean!) when combined with the incredible investment necessary to stabilize the former Soviet Union, will lead to an insular market significantly larger in size than we now envision for North America. Our exports to Europe will become increasingly difficult as a result.
- Finally, no one understands better than the Japanese that markets are more important than territory. At least two lessons of our lifetime have been that taking territory away from the other guy makes them angry and retaliatory, while methodically penetrating his markets creates wealth mostly for the penetrator. Thus, I think it unlikely that the United States is going to develop consequential trade on the Pacific Rim, a market dominated by the Japanese and, increasingly, by the Koreans.

The Honorable James A. Baker, III

Thus, my hope that the Uruguay Round Dunkel Draft interfaces in a manner with the NAFTA Agreement that reinforces for the Western Hemisphere the benefits of NAFTA. Economic history, I think, would support the view that these matters evolve nationally, regionally, and then globally, rather than in one step from national to global. Inherent difficulties in negotiating these trade agreements suggest that nationalism is alive and well!

I recognize that negotiating a satisfactory trade agreement is about as difficult as moving a cemetery; yet I hasten to add that, in terms of national economic priorities, I believe the NAFTA should be the priority agreement and all other trade agreements accommodate themselves to that.

Again, my thanks to you.

Sincerely,

Walter Y. Elisha

Dear Jim,

On Saturday, October 3, I had the pleasure of acting as a Presidential surrogate in a debate held for several hundred students from New Jersey. The debate was held in McCosh 10, at Princeton, the very room where I took my last examination as an undergraduate, Modern European History, given by Buzzer Hall, forty years' ago.

The Clinton camp was ably represented by Madeleine Kunin, the former Democratic Governor of Vermont.

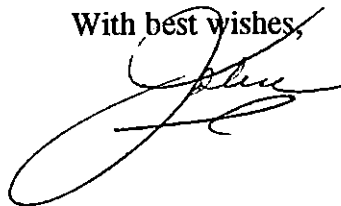

The debate went well and the students responded well to my candor and straight talk on the issues. A student with the last question asked the Governor why Bill Clinton had not observed the effects of a failed socialist experiment in Britain, while at Oxford. She defended his Oxford period and then inexplicably launched a flowing paean for the universal health system in the U.K. Opportunities like that don't come along every day. I felt almost guilty dispatching her with a grim description of the National Health Service, including long queues for surgery and other ghastly bureaucratic barriers to decent care. I have spent too much time over the years in Britain not to have gotten that right. Furthermore, I allowed that no doubt Clinton was less observant then, due to his preoccupation with evading the draft. She was not amused. We walked away with the Gold.

Despite the polls, I think we have a horse race. My sense, however, is that the President still needs to persuade voters that he understands the plight of the unemployed and is determined to help them now.

He should dedicate himself and pledge to bring in a "Brains Trust," if you will, of the best minds in America to help solve our pressing economic and other problems. This might dispell the impression, in some quarters, that he has surrounded himself with a league of subordinates less than stellar.

I look forward to more surrogate work and, hopefully, we will win. You are too young to begin your memoirs. Good luck.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I very much appreciate your inviting our leadership group from the Conference of Presidents to meet with you last week. I found the meeting to be very informative and am pleased that we had the opportunity to express our sincerest thanks to you, the administration, and all those involved in the Peace Conference.

Obviously, the Peace Conference is a major breakthrough in the Middle East and, in my judgment, will help not only Israel but the entire world. I sincerely believe that you have played a pivotal role in bringing us to this point in the Peace Conference.

Over these last four years, I have had the opportunity to meet with you on more than one occasion, and am always impressed with your commitment to your work, and your desire to maintain the values that are so important to all of us as Americans.

I wish you ongoing success in your work.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Your made a Van Dongen very happy Sunday night in St. Louis -- my daughter Marisa, who is a freshman at Washington University and was a volunteer with the Bush-Quayle advance team for the debate -- when you autographed her program. Thank you so much for your continued courtesies to all of us.

It appeared to me that the first question of Sunday's debate afforded a great opportunity to define clearly for the American public what will happen if Bill Clinton rather than George Bush is elected. As a result, I have drafted a re-election endorsement letter of the President and the Vice President, which conveys my thinking. The letter, a copy of which is enclosed, will be sent to all of our members as soon as its language is cleared by our Chairman.

Thanks, again, for spending a moment with Marisa.

Best regards,

Dear :

Election Day, 1992, looms large.

As we begin to reflect seriously on who should receive our votes on November 3rd to be our President and Vice President, as concerned citizens and as businessmen and women, we must weigh many factors. We must weigh our vision of what we seek for ourselves, our families and our businesses for the next four years. We must weigh matters of character, trust and experience. We must weigh the fact that the world is still a dangerous place, requiring our leaders to have the requisite skills to keep us secure and at peace.

As we weigh all of the relevant factors, the Wholesaler-Distributor Political Action Committee (WDPAC) remains steadfast in our January endorsement of George Bush and Dan Quayle.

On economic grounds, which is WDPAC's essential guideline for our support of candidates, the case is compelling:

- Governor Clinton has consistently stated that he will raise taxes on the "wealthy" -- those whose personal incomes exceed $200,000 -- in order to be able to increase spending on a wide array of new Federal programs. His mathematics, however, do not work. In order to secure sufficient revenue to pay for his proposed new programs, that $200,000 threshold will have to be lowered significantly, causing tax increases for many unsuspecting, lower income Americans. (A special caveat is certainly in order for those businesses which are Subchapter S corporations and pay taxes at the "individual" rate level -- hang on to your wallets!)
- For those of us who believe it is imperative that our product liability laws be reformed, let us remember that Governor Clinton does not concur with our point of view. As a result, he has been strongly endorsed by the trial lawyers, the key opponents of product liability reform.
- While it is essential that escalating costs be controlled, to do so Governor Clinton would radically alter our Nation's healthcare system. His mandated program of universal health insurance coverage will dramatically increase government spending; cause increased unemployment, especially among smaller businesses which will be unable to pay for health insurance for all their employees; and could significantly affect the quality of healthcare in this country as the Federal Government becomes more directly involved in controlling the delivery system.

The Wholesaler-Distributor Political Action Committee is the political action arm of the National Association of Wholesaler-Distributors.

- Mandated parental leave will be enacted early in a Clinton Administration, as the Governor has already stated publicly several times. Can striker replacement and other anti-business mandates be far behind?
- For those of us who support a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution and line item veto powers for the President, Governor Clinton is not your man. He opposes them.
- Finally, we must remember that two bodies govern in Washington -- the President and the Congress. Match Bill Clinton up with a Democratically-controlled Congress and you get the same liberal leadership who Bill Clinton has kept hidden in the closet throughout this campaign, but who will emerge in January with all of the current checks and balances on them removed. If Governor Clinton is elected, we will simply empower the very same stale, anti-business Congressional leadership which has been in office for too long -- C'mon term limits! -- and negate the ability of the new individuals all of us are trying to send to Congress to bring about essential change. Ironically, if Americans vote for Governor Clinton, who claims to want change above all else, what we will actually get is Clinton-Mitchell, Clinton-Metzenbaum, Clinton-Gephardt, Clinton-Waxman and, yes, Clinton-Kennedy!

Given all of the above, as you and your management team cast your votes on November 3rd, we hope you will concur with us at WDPAC and vote to re-elect George Bush and Dan Quayle.

Thank you.

NO NEED TO DEPRIVE OUR NEEDY
TO REDUCE OUR DEFICIT

By Jeno F. Paulucci
Founder and Chairman
LUIGINO'S, INC.

As one listens to all the economists...reads their articles...as one listens to President Bush and Governor Clinton on the campaign trail...all we hear are conflicting ideas -- some impractical and some worse -- of how to solve the deficit.

Perhaps the economists and the candidates are too young to remember the Korean War. We had a president then by the name of Harry S Truman who was a businessman. He had brains and cast iron guts and the courage to put them both to work. Since both candidates claim to be cast in the Truman tradition, maybe its time they adopted some of his ideas.

This one in particular. To ensure against the United States building up a large deficit to finance the Korean War, President Truman and his cabinet and Treasury Department came up with a tax that nobody liked, yet it produced the desired results -- no big deficit because of the Korean War.

How did President Truman accomplish this miracle? Very simply. He devised an "excess profits tax" for all corporate and partnership businesses and individual enterprises based on a reasonable return on investment.

If a business had $10 million invested and the return on investment allowed was, say, 20 per cent pre-tax, that company was entitled to earn $2,000,000 pre-tax at the regular corporate tax rate. Anything over that return on investment, for which regular tax rates were paid, was subject to the "excess profits tax" of 90 per cent. I'm not sure of the exact figures, but it's close.

-2- Jeno F. Paulucci: EXCESS PROFITS TAX

Actually, this excess profits tax of 90 per cent over a 20 to 25 per cent return on investment will accelerate new investments in factories and the like, creating more jobs -- so it is a progressive tax, not a regressive tax for business.

As I recall it, there also was an "excess profits tax" on any income -- salaries included -- over a certain amount per individual pre-tax. The normal tax rate applied up to a certain limit; anything over the limit was taxed at 90 per cent.

Therefore, it seems to me...with all of our Congressional geniuses, all our economists and all the candidates, including President Bush and Governor Clinton... that someone ought to realize by now that the citizens of the United States, somewhere along the line, have got to "bite the bullet."

We can't just whittle away at it by cutting entitlements here, boosting a tax a little there, finding some new tax for the very wealthy 2 per cent...all this just amounts to a spit in the ocean.

I would strongly recommend that either candidate embrace that which is absolutely necessary to reduce our deficit through a position the American public would respect, and that is: Honesty to the point of saying: "What worked for Harry Truman during the Korean War also could work now to reduce considerably -- if not eliminate -- our four-trillion-dollar-plus deficit. It worked before; let it work again now." If those who ignore history are condemned to repeat it, why can't we use history to profit from what works?

An "excess profits tax" similar to that of the Truman era should be instituted, in my opinion, for at least two years. Part of that tax package should provide that in the third and ensuing years the capital gains tax would be reduced and there would not be an increase in taxes on corporations and individuals because we have eliminated most...if not all...of the deficit.

Then, with defense spending down and a lower tax rate in the third year and beyond, our dollar would have stability. Investments would be made and we would be pursuing prosperity, rather than wallowing in this quagmire of continuing recession.

-3- Jeno F. Paulucci; EXCESS PROFITS TAX

To those of you reading this who feel that it is radical; you're absolutely right. It affects me, too. I am a businessman who started several international food companies. I'm ready to take my medicine, take some short-term reduction in profits to assure that my new company has a country in which to grow that is not paralyzed by debt.

Because when you are looking at a four-trillion-dollar deficit that is increasing by X billions every year...and no one has an answer or the guts to call for what is needed...then it's about time to recall the success Harry Truman had by implementing an excess profits tax. Sure there must be certain safeguards for all. But we all must belly up and help pay off our debt and, at the same time, take care of our poor, take care of our homeless, take care of our aged. And we must get rid of this "go-to-hell" attitude toward these citizens of our great country that we see so much of today. We're so scared of this pile of money we all owe that we sidestep the action necessary to reduce or eliminate the four-trillion-dollar deficit which has mortgaged the future of our children and their children.

Is there anyone out there on the campaign trail who has the intestinal fortitude and the brains that goes with it to embrace such a program?

If not now, we'll all have to face an even larger deficit later on this country's monetary system--our dollar and our economy--will go like Brazil's economy -- with the dollar shrinking in value under runaway inflation. And then we will be wondering what the hell happened.

Let's wake up before it's too late.

Jeno F. Paulucci

P.S. Just think what an excess profits tax on just the sports and entertainment and corporate moguls would bring in if it were on all income over $1,000,000 a year...which seems more than plenty to get by on.

FOCAL POINT - USE NEW YORK STATE AS A CASE STUDY OF WHAT THE UNITED STATES WILL BECOME UNDER CLINTON AND A DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

A. MARIO CUOMO - THE GOLDEN MOUTH AND "FAIR-HAired" HERO OF THE CONVENTION HAS NOT BEEN HELD ACCOUNTABLE FOR THE DISASTEROUS STATE OF
THE ECONOMY BROUGHT ON UNDER THE ? YEARS OF DEMOCRAT CONTROL.

This is a complete double standard by the entire media - not to hold him accountable while constantly referring to everything gone wrong (including the weather) during the last 12 years as Reagan-Bush's fault and failed trickle-down economics.

B. Democratic legislature (Assembly) & Republican (Senate)

The record of spending and taxing is unparalleled in any state. Huge increases in every facet of government brought on with Cuomo's liberal programs. We have trickle down regulation in a torrent, "one-time" fees and surcharges to meet budget crisis year after year.
Slight-of-hand tricks to increase revenue. The whole pattern of tricks can be used by the Congress because they are snuck in under cover of night and in disguise. A great many apply directly to the non-voting segment of our economy - business. But business does vote - WITH THEIR FEET - and then goes our job base in the biggest exodus and failure rate in the country.
Just picture the U.S. job ~~picture~~ market after our factories pull out of even the Sun belt and go further South or overseas.

C. Schools. By far the highest cost per student and still most city schools are a disaster and all schools have major budget problems. Don't be fooled by the hype given Rochester schools - look at the true results after huge raises were won by the union and money pumped in like water. Money made it worse and more irresponsible.

Death Penalty - against the will of the people and both houses of Legislature for Cuomo's entire tenure, he made his veto stick. Violent crime and murder are top shelf in this state. Rochester is now working on its second world class serial killer with the first serving 250-to-life for between 11 & 17 murders.

Abortion - Cuomo has it both ways. As a Catholic he is against it pure and simple, as a Democrat, the woman has control of her body.

Summary - don't let Cuomo escape the scrutiny given Dukakis and his Massachusetts Miracle - Disaster. It is the same as our situation in New York and the same as our United States if Clinton and the Democrats gain exclusive control.

PUT GOOD PEOPLE ON IT AND DEVELOP THE CASE -

IT IS YOUR LAST CHANCE.

Dear Secretary Martin,

The longer you have been in public service the more impressed I have become with your efforts. My admiration has deepened during the presidential campaign. Your tough but fair style is in keeping with the best American political traditions. You have defended the Bush Administration's record with vigor and intelligence. I urge you to continue the fight for innovative and effective solutions for today's problems, and for the reelection of President George Bush.

Because I share your concerns and values, I am submitting for your consideration three ideas that may be of some use to the campaign. Many of my friends and peers in the Department of Psychology of the University of Illinois believe them to be pertinent and I have been urged to present them to someone in the Bush Administration. They concern three areas: job growth, quality of the management team, and foreign policy. The job growth issue needs further evidence, evidence that I believe exists, but which I can not obtain easily. I have, however, no doubt that this information is at your fingertips.

If you find these ideas to be as thought provoking as my colleagues do, please pass them on to the campaign. Thanks so much for taking the time to read this letter and consider these ideas.

Respectfully and Sincerely,

Timothy P. Buckley

Mr. Clinton's Record on Job Creation

Where have all those "high paying" jobs in Arkansas come from?

First, I suggest that some of the job growth will prove to be in government positions funded by Gov. Clinton's higher taxes.

Second, and even more important, I suggest that a good many of these jobs will have come from other states.

Other states with higher wages.

Other states which are friendly to union labor.

Other states with higher safety standards.

Other states with higher environmental standards.

Other states with civil rights legislation.

This is not job creation. This is job theft. In fact, it is quite similar to what he accuses others of doing. That is, moving high paying jobs from the US to foreign countries where standards and wages are lower.

President Bush might:

name a factory from Illinois that has moved to Arkansas

name another that moved from Ohio

name another that moved from Michigan tell how many workers were displaced tell what the before and after pay scales were

(The states named are suggestions based on how important these states will be to the reelection effort.)

Make it clear that there is nothing special going on in Arkansas. Nothing special outside of mass pollution, higher taxes, lower wages, and an unsafe workplace. Is that what we want the rest of America to be like?

I think not.

Quality of the Management Team

How about a five minute commercial featuring different people in the Bush Administration? They can talk about themselves and about their particular accomplishments. I think that when people realize that these quality individuals (many of them minorities or women) will be thrown out of work, it will give voters cause to pause and think. It will also allow the President to bring up his many accomplishments again, but through a very different vehicle. We have some great people in our Administration. They should be brought to the fore one more time.

Concerns regarding Clinton's Foreign Policy

1. In his letter to the ROTC colonel (12/2/69), Mr. Clinton mentioned his disdain for both the Viet Nam and Korean wars.
2. We also know that he equivocated in his support of the Gulf War.
3. What were his positions on Panama, Grenada, and Libya? Given his political perspective vis a vis the military, it seems likely that he was against all of these operations. There may even be documentation (speeches, etc.) to that effect.

If this is true, then Mr. Clinton has not agreed with United States military policy for the past forty years. There are few Americans who echo this position. That should be made clear to the electorate.

His positions with regard to these military operations raise three types of questions. First, does he understand the important place that a strong military occupies in our overall foreign policy? Second, as Commander-in-Chief will he be able to make the successful tactical decisions regarding a military that he has long shown a loathing towards? Third, will it decrease the world stability that we have fought so long to achieve if we have a president who has consistently displayed an unwillingness to confront aggression? Will the taking of Americans as hostages once again become a common threat?

Dear Mr. Baker:

Out of desperation to see Mr. Bush win, and recognizing that times are bleak, and with all the negative feelings and innuendoes surrounding the campaign, In despair, I have attached an idea for an advertisement that concentrates on the Bush Positive instead of the negative, seen all over.

I'm not an ad man, nor do I have the tools of the trade, but rather I'm a Program Manager on the F-16 KFP program and one of the lucky people to have a job.. as long as the F-16 keeps coming off of the line at Fort Worth.

President Bush has my vote and my wives, but only by a thin edge and only because of values and the right to life.

Unfortunately we seem to be in the minority, because although people may be concerned about values and life, the almighty dollar comes first, and the sounds made by the other party are sounds of money jingling in pockets again.

President Bush has accomplished a lot in four years -- true or false! If its true, one would never know it, if its false then maybe that is why he's doing poorly.

If its true, which I believe it is, then lets say so. My idea for the ad is very simple. Show many photos of events in the USA over the last 4 years events which conveniently have be forgotten, accompanied by film clips of important events abroad with important statesmen... ALL POSITIVE EVENTS...

Follow the ad with another - the next 4 years - positive -and ending with people believing, including me - that we will have money jingling in our pockets again.

If I don't see this ad or one similar on T.V, I hope its because there is not enough time left.... and not because there are not enough positive things to talk about.

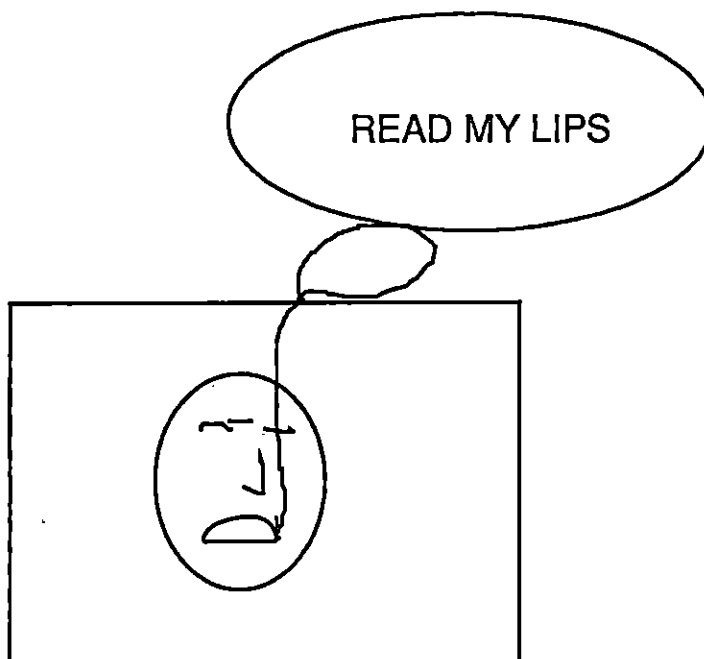

Sincerely,

Larry P. Jones

Dear Mr. Baker,

"A WINNING CAMPAIGN SUGGESTION"

Utilize the unedited C-SPAN taping of the opening of the House Of Representatives, September, 1991. Reveal the Democratic Party economic betrayal of the American worker via the deceitful actions of its representatives (Cephardt, Foley, & co.) in congress. Let their own words portray what they did to purposefully delay any honest attempt by Republican representatives, and President Bush, to address the domestic needs of America's citizens.

The C-SPAN tape is not only free of media comment, it is the undeniable recording of fact as it occurred. It obviously precludes any subsequent effort to "Revise and Extend" remarks in the Congressional Record. It accurately depicts the planned deceit of Democrats to use the rules of The House to circumvent the Laws of our land to frustrate any initiative by The President, all in an effort to gain the Presidency in '92. The democrats wasted an entire year of opportunity by embarking on a tactic of deceit. Many thousands remain economically distressed, unnecessarily, due to the democratic party's obsession with winning the White House.

Newt Gingrich did a masterful job of describing the Democratic duplicity during that opening session. Although he was obviously outnumbered and lost the battle that day, his words can be used today to aid in winning the greater effort to get the support of the American people in helping themselves to attend to the domestic agenda. If necessary, that taping can be used in comparison with this year's opening session to show the extent to which the Democratic party will go to dupe the public.

Once revealed as deceptive and untrustworthy, by their own words and deeds, this Democratic play can be tied PERMANENTLY to the participants in the tape - and by extension, the entire democratic membership of that body, as well as The Senate (Mitchell, & Co.) and the Democratic Leadership Council (Clinton/Gore).

This would eliminate the perception of an incumbent who is merely whining and turn the discussion to one of fact and concerted DEMOCRATIC DECEIPT. This can be used to take the issue of the economy away from the democrats...since they purposely extended American workers' hardships for POLITICAL GAIN. This can also be used to "CLEAR THE HOUSE"!!!!!!!!!!!!

This concept can be tied to ANY/ALL issues and ANY/all participants in the campaign...To:Trust; Domestic Matters; the congressional vote on the GULF WAR; CONGRESS ignoring the then JUST COMPLETED BUDGET AGREEMENT (LAW), invoking House Rules to bypass the law and forward bills designed to make the President look bad as he imposed vetoes compelled by law.; the backlog of Federal Judiciary Appointment confirmations (while citizens suffer under an overburdened and slow judicial calendar); AND SO FORTH!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

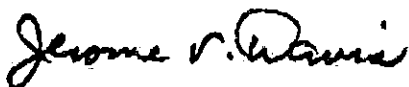

No one in the Democratic Party can run away from this, or hide from this. This will bring before the American public all those Democratic representatives who have been keeping a low profile since the POST OFFICE and CHECK KITING SCANDALS subsided.

I have numerous additional facets and tie-ins to suggest for this concept (Eg. I can suggest how to tie this in to the consistent Democratic rebuff of the President's CAPITAL GAINS INITIATIVE ; making it a Mom & Pop issue...showing how the opposition has consistently hurt the parent and grandparent generation by falsely portraying this as a gift to the rich. I am a parent. I am not rich but I can successfully describe how My wife and I , and our children would benefit from the President's initiative.)

I am ready and eager to consult with you on this matter. I can even suggest when, where and how to strategically insert this concept into the campaign. Please contact me so that we may meet to further discuss and develop this concept.

With a sincere interest to be of assistance, I remain...

Yours Truly,

Miracle In Iceland

By ALAN D. FREEMAN

While I was getting dressed Tuesday morning, September 30, I was watching the morning news. It mentioned that Shevardnadze would be holding a news conference, at the Soviet mission later that morning. We get the UPI daybook, which lists events for the day, and I did not recall anything about such a news conference when I picked up the Tuesday daybook the preceding evening.

When I arrived at our office I asked our reporter, David Frankel, to call the Soviet mission to find out what was happening. After 10 minutes of attempted calls he came back to me and said, "I don't understand it — the line is always busy. When they do answer, all they do is hang up when I ask, 'Could you tell me what is happening?'"

I then personally called the Soviet mission. When the operator answered, she responded point. The press conference probably started and they pointed to perhaps 50 photographers, sound men and other people outside of the police line, waiting. However, some of these were what we call "stake out."

They were not admitted earlier either, they were just waiting for photos or ambient sound when people would come out of the press conference. However, we gave the police officer in charge our business cards and asked for him to get Anatoly Chubiyakof. David went back with the rest of the other reporters in line. A couple of minutes later, we heard a man coming out of the Soviet mission yelling, "Freeman, Frankel, where are you?" The police were pleasantly surprised and admitted us into the press conference. It was at that press conference that Shevardnadze announced that Iceland mini-summit at our host's house, we unpacked as much as we could and took the same taxi back to attend these two events. Dave Frankel went to cover Jerry Goodman while I went to cover the Russians. We both got there late in fact, the Russian meeting was already over and I saw Sam Zievs in the hallway of the Saga Hotel conducting interviews with reporters.

When he saw me he said, "Oh, there is my friend from America," and gave me a warm handshake and greeting and said he would be with me soon with an interview. When I interviewed him I asked him basically the same question I asked him Geneva — the treatment of Soviet Jews, the religious freedom, etc. They were the same questions because when I had the three-hour dinner with him in Geneva we did not use a tape recorder. This time David Frankel taped him and Alexander York before sundown, that would be fine. If not, I should really look into praying and fasting in Iceland. Those comments were instrumental in a decision that I would later make that directly affected Michael Shirman.

About 3 PM on Sunday, the Russians announced that Gorbachev's press conference had been moved to 7 PM because Gorbachev and Reagan were still meeting. I then decided that I would give my Gorbachev press credential to Alex Domeck, our photographer, and my White House credential to David Frankel. David at one time was active in a synagogue. He became alienated from Judaism because of a situation involving the education of his disabled child — David did not have the financial wherewithall to pay for his child's education. The rabbi of that synagogue denied the continuance of David's son and daughter's

Campaign '92: The Presidency Fall 1992 Video Teach-In

This video Teach-In discussion program is scheduled to be conducted in 350,000 churches & synagogues throughout the United States, reaching seventy million people during October 28 - November 2 right before the November 3rd election.

The video program is sent free on video cassette to the churches and synagogues upon request with the estimated number of the expected attendance. During the scheduled Teach-In, the church or synagogue is asked to have each person attending complete an evaluation form with comments on the editorial content of the program as well as the commercial content with the person's name, signature, address and phone number.

The minister, priest or rabbi is then asked to return these forms to ENS to be eligible for the many door prizes. The names of the individuals are kept private by ENS. The rabbi, priest or minister also gives a total attendance number on their personal evaluation form. The forms are stored by ENS and are available for inspection. A sampling of these viewers is available for verification of the number of people attending the teach-ins. The winners of the many national door prizes are selected from a drawing by high public officials - Governors, Senators, etc. The door prizes include vacations, cars, computers, year's supply of food etc. and will help insure a well attended Teach-In.

The need for this type program is critical. It is difficult for voters to make intelligent voting decisions based on sound bites and name calling; each candidate on identical issues says he is right and the other is wrong. Each has statistics and achievement records justifying his own position.

Our program will objectively analyze the issues and arguments in a non-partisan manner. We will use distinguished journalists and academia such as: David Broder/ Washington Post, Jack Nelson/ LA Times, Johnathan Sanders/ CBS News Moscow and many others, to comment as well as to edit and help us produce an objective and informative program.

Do the Reagan and Bush administrations deserve credit for the collapse of the Soviet Union?

Is congress the reason for the failure of the Bush administration to get the economy moving again? /

Is the poor US economy due to the Bush administration or is it part of the world wide recession that is not the fault of the United States. What is causing the world wide economic recession?

Governor Clinton believes the economic recovery must be catalyzed by government initiative, spending & investment while President Bush believes the initiative should be by private enterprise, tax credits and easing of regulations. Ross Perot believes there must be systemic change in government and the elimination of the deficit for a real economic recovery to take place. Who is right?

Can you really blame the economy on the president, or on the congress? Should not our corporate executives take the blame? Is American business leadership good or bad? Should both business and government be blamed for the poor economy?

Is Ross Perot correct in saying that our government must change radically and that the special interests own it and that our elected officials are not responsive to the people?

Are we heading toward a possible environmental disaster as portrayed in Democratic Vice Presidential candidate Al Gore's book "Earth in the Balance"? Is the Bush/Quayle administration putting jobs ahead of the environment?

Ross Perot claims that his plan can save $754 billion over five years and in the fifth year we will have a budget surplus of $10 billion. Is his plan workable?

Can Governor Clinton with no personal business experience revive the American economy?

Does a president with personal business experience such as President Bush or Ross Perot have a better chance of doing it?

Are the voters who support Ross Perot mainly because of his business success and the fact that he is a self made billionaire correct in concluding that these achievements will make him better equipped to restore our economy?

Dear Mr. Baker,

Per the advice of New Jersey Congressman Rinaldo's office, I am sending the attached letter/memorandum to you instead of the President.

I have summarized some points that I think, if handled properly in the next ☒ few weeks, may help to re-elect President Bush and gain a Republican Congress.

Please review the attached, either personally or by your staff, to see if any of the ideas have sufficient merit to mention in the upcoming President's debates and/or personal appearances.

Very truly yours,

Richard J. Knopf

Date: October 6, 1992

Dear President Bush,

I am a college graduate [ M.I.T. (BSEE-'50) - N.J.I.T. (MSEE-'58) ], U.S. Army Signal Corp Veteran (1952-1954), with over 40 year's work experience as an Electrical Engineer. Since my "retirement", 5/1/85, at age 57, I have developed a successful "sole proprietorship" business as an engineering consultant.

Because I believe you and my (Republican) party are on the wrong track if you want to be re-elected, and if you want to have a Republican Congress after this coming election, I have been writing a memo to you which describes in detail the present cash-flow problems of the low-to-middle income class American taxpayer/voter.

Since completing this memo will take too long a time to do either you or low income taxpayers much good, I have summarized some points that I think, if handled properly in the next few weeks, will swing a lot of low-to-middle income voters to you and the Republican Party. These points are prioritized in Attachment 1.

Since the average voter is a pretty "savvy" individual, rather than promise something he/she knows the government can't afford, or something (like building roads and bridges) that would take years to "trickle" down to his/her financial/employment level, I urge you to help all American voters by either acting now, or promising to act after election, to push Congress to react as soon as possible on the schedule of priorities as listed in Attachment 1. ✓

As you can see from the incompleated memo I was writing (also attached), I have defined the "hardest-hit" class of American taxpayer as that family making an "Adjusted Gross Income" less than $40,000-$50,000 / year. To me, this represents most of the older, retired voters living on a fixed/limited income, most of the middle income taxpayers/wage earners whose income is more or less fixed &/or limited, and all of the chronically unemployed, unemployable, and generally poor who have long been decimated by increased cost(s) of living beyond their capacity to furnish even a minimum satisfactory existence.

Significantly, as covered in the incomplete memo, the real solution to personal tax survival for the lower income taxpayer is to replace most local municipal taxes with broader-based Federal and State taxation. This is why I recommend that first priority (of Attachment 1) be the elimination of education and county financing from the municipal taxes paid by the homeowner.

Also significant is the fact that once the educational and county tax "monkey" is taken off the back of the homeowner/renter, he/she will not only have a better cash-flow situation, but will also be more amenable to a less costly broad-based tax such as an increased tax on gasoline and/or an increase of Federal/State income or general sales taxes.

Please note that with the exception of Priority 1, Priority Items 2 through 4 represent no initial cost outlay by the government, and Priority 5 may, in the future, be more cost effective than present Federal and State financing, leading to even lower Federal and State expenditures.

I am sorry the enclosed details are relatively brief; however I do feel the info enclosed could help to re-elect you and get you a Republican Congress. Should you require further documentation to support details of the attached memo, I have backup data which I will gladly supply on request.

Yours very truly,

Richard J. Knopf, P.E.

Notes:

1. Cost of Priority/Item 1 has been estimated as $75 billion / year.

This estimate is based on paying $3000. / year / student for 25,000,000 students in grades K - 12. More or less students or a higher/lower cost / student would, of course, change the total cost.

Looking at the above from the standpoint of teachers involved: for 20 students per class, teaching 25 million students would require 1,250,000 teachers, the cost of which, at an average annual salary of $30,000./year/teacher, amounts to $37.5 billion/year.

- Considering overhead ( building maintenance, administrative costs, Superintendents, Principals, etc. ) could equal teacher's salaries, total cost of Priority/Item 1, using this method of calculating, also comes to $75 billion per year.

(Interestingly, federal income taxes on $75 billion dollars, at 15%, equal $11.125 billion dollars - return to the Federal Government.)

(Similarly, F.I.C.A. "taxes" on $75 billion dollars, at 15.3%, equal $11.475 billion dollars - adding up to a total return to the Federal Government of $22.6 billion dollars.)

(Net cost to the Government is $52.4 billion dollars!)

A Good Planet Is Hard To Find

Mission for Earth...
A Global Strategy For Clean Air

SGI International
La Jolla, California

The Vision...

SGI International is dedicated to increasing the efficiency of power production while protecting the environment.

SGI's Coal Refining Technologies produce Clean Coal and high-value oils from raw, low-grade coal. This technology is called the LFC (Liquids From Coal) Process.

In 1989, to commercialize the LFC Process, SGI joined with Shell Mining Company in a 50/50 venture: the Tek-Kol partnership. Tek-Kol owns and licenses the LFC Process; SGI is Tek-Kol's exclusive licensing contractor. (Shell Mining is a subsidiary of Shell Oil Company.)

The first LFC Process Plant is located in Gillette, Wyoming, under license to ENCOAL Corporation, a subsidiary of Shell Mining Company. The U.S. Department of Energy funded one-half of the plant costs. Other sites for large-scale LFC Plants are being evaluated worldwide.

International in scope, SGI is a dynamic energy technology company offering coal resource development using the LFC Process, advanced computer modeling, and control technologies.

The LFC Process...

The proprietary LFC Control System for LFC Coal Refineries utilizes rapid coal analysis methods and high speed computers to produce Clean Fuels.

The results -- increased power plant efficiency plus significant reduction of pollutants such as sulfur emissions, which are major components of acid rain.

Another remarkable feature: the LFC Plant generates no waste water or toxic solid waste, eliminating the expensive and sensitive problems of waste disposal.

The LFC Process presents an economic opportunity for both coal producers and energy users.

Global Significance...

The Worldwide Need...

In Asia, emerging economies must meet the challenge of finding affordable fuel in the face of dwindling oil supplies. In Europe, acid rain destroys forests and priceless sculpture. In America, imported oil is the single largest component of the U.S. trade deficit.

Everywhere the pressure to clean up the environment is forcing business and governments to seek solutions.

The Response...

Our LFC Process Technology produces Clean Fuels that have higher heating value, lower sulfur content, and higher energy density than the raw coal. This means:

- More efficient power plants
- Reduced pollutant emissions
- Lower transportation costs

The liquid product is similar to a No.6 fuel oil used for powering plants and industrial boilers. It also can be used "as is" in other ways -- for transportation fuels, or for feedstock in the production of speciality chemicals currently derived from petroleum crude.

By-product gases from the process are recycled to fuel the LFC Refinery itself, thereby increasing efficiency and further decreasing emissions.

Environment and Cost...

Coal will continue to be the world's primary source of energy; cleaner coals will help preserve our environment.

New Clean Air regulations in the U.S. require a dramatic reduction in harmful emissions beginning in 1995. 111 electric utility generating plants will be affected, and by the year 2000 all major power plants must comply.

Scrubbers and other pollution control equipment are expensive and capture emissions only after coal has been burned, resulting in another set of problems -- waste products.

SGL's Technologies provide end users with a simple and economical solution: Clean Coals.

Worldwide use of the LFC Process will provide protection for our planet's sensitive environment.

Why the World Is Wary of Clinton's Team

If American voters elect Bill Clinton president Nov. 3, they will be voting for an as-yet-unchosen Clinton team that in January will take control of history's most massive, expensive and powerful government. On second thought, strike that word "control." It will manipulate a $1.5 trillion government enterprise, but it is highly unlikely that it will control it.

Given the U.S.'s capacity for both good and harm by mere virtue of its size, it is not surprising that non-Americans are wondering what they can expect from a Clinton government. Opinion polls around the globe reflect trepidation about that prospect. The concerns are justified, not just because no one really knows whom Mr. Clinton will pick for key spots, but also because of what is known about some of the people he might choose. That a Clinton meanwhile contributing some of his own.

Indeed, Mr. Clinton has made no secret of his intent to spend more money and levy more taxes. If Mr. Bush is a Keynesian who thinks economies are "stimulated" by taking from producers and giving to non-producers, Mr. Clinton and his advisers are super-Keynesians. It is ironic that Mr. Clinton is leading in the pre-election polls in a country where other polls show that the voters have had it up to here with a Washington that he proposes to make latter still. Such is the level of discontent.

The Clinton administration will almost certainly be more protectionist than the Bush administration, the Democrat's recent lip service to the North American Free Trade Agreement notwithstanding. Some of his closest advisers espouse "managed trade," which is the world's latest euphemism for throwing up barriers to commerce. House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, assuming that he is re-elected and that the Democrats retain control of the House — both of which are likely — will have more luck whispering protectionist sweet nothings in the ear of a member of his own party than he has had with George Bush. Rep. Gephardt and friends have provided America's presidency with powerful weapons for starting and waging trade wars, and one day one of them will go off and kill a lot of American jobs. When some of Mr. Clinton's advisers say they are "pro-business," they mean that they are in favor of shielding American business from competition, which means they are anti-consumer.

Most of Mr. Clinton's advisers are unknown outside the Washington hot-house, with the possible exception of the prolific author Robert Reich, who has reduced economic analysis to the level of dream interpretation. Most are well within the mainstream of American politics. But that is not the same place as the mainstream of American attitudes toward politics. Those views are by and large skeptical of government's ability to manage all the things it tries to run.

Robert Shapiro and Roger Altman, both tipped for high economic posts, are simply conventional liberals, with nothing more radical in their kit bags than the usual tax-and-spend formulas that Democrats have used for winning elections for eons. Mr. Shapiro also doesn't mind a little soak-the-rich rhetoric now and then.

But the range of mind-sets also includes Al Gore's radical environmentalism — which if implemented could heap further unnecessary burdens on the overloaded U.S. economy. Then there are the even more radical views of Derek Shearer, late of the People's Republic of Santa Monica. Mr. Shearer might be a bit too wild for a policy job, but it is remarkable that Mr.

of American politics that essentially believes in addressing all problems by employing the spending and police powers of government.

It is useful to keep in mind that while there are new administrations with new faces in American politics, there is nothing much new under the sun in the various ways political leaders choose to run governments. The range is from government by plebiscite, a la Switzerland, to absolute control over everything by a single small political class, a la the former Soviet Union.

Reaganomics, or supply-side economics, was nothing more than classical economics. When the world of work was simpler, classical economists knew from direct observation that people had to produce if they wanted to consume. Ronald Reagan, who went to a small Midwestern college untouched by Keynesian fashion, studied common-sense economics and hence knew that it was good economic policy for government to reduce burdens of taxation and regulation and hence give people more freedom to invest and produce. George Bush never quite grasped that lesson and hence believed, along with a lot of Democrats, that government's only job is to stimulate demand. He has paid dearly for it.

The Clinton team will follow those same lights, gratifying itself, Congress and the federal bureaucracy by dipping still further into all aspects of American life. It will not stimulate an economy afflicted by all manner of burdens on production and inhibitions to investment. That failure will tempt the "pro-business" Clinton team to put up new barriers to competition to try to protect industries that government has helped sicken. That won't work either. That is why a lot of people around the world are anxious over the future of the world's largest military power and political economy.

A Clinton government most likely will work even harder at doing all the things the Bush government has done wrong.

Clinton has a close counselor from the far left at a time when socialism is collapsing around the world. For what it's worth, Mr. Shearer claims he is not a socialist — not really.

American politics is, of course, a rich melange of political tendencies. By his own lights, Mr. Clinton is a middle-of-the-roader, just as Jimmy Carter professed to be when he came out of Georgia to the White House. The problem is that a fresh administration will move in a direction dictated by the attitudes toward government of the group of people a president selects to run that government. Mr. Clinton will draw his appointees — and there will be some 2,000 of them eventually to posts of some importance — from that wing

Global View

government has anything to offer a world economy that is coughing and sputtering from assorted ills is highly doubtful.

Interestingly, a Clinton government will have some similarities to the one that sits in Washington now, one that in several ways has made a significant contribution to the world's economic malaise. The only difference will be that a Clinton government most likely will work even harder at doing all the things the Bush government has done wrong. The Bush government's largest problem has been its inability or unwillingness to curb the manic output of the huge Capitol Hill machine that produces 400-page laws and redistributes the nation's cash. Judging from Mr. Clinton's statements and those of his closest advisers, he will try even less hard than Mr. Bush has tried to curb those excesses.

The Outlook

Healthier Signals From a Sick Economy

NEW YORK

Frustration over this recession-like recovery obscures a development that should benefit the winner of next month's presidential election: In crucial ways, today's economy is far healthier—leaner and meaner, if you will—than the one that Ronald Reagan handed George Bush.

When President Bush took office in 1989, most forecasters believed—correctly, as things turned out—that the economy, expanding since the fall of 1982, had grown dangerously vulnerable to a recession. Reliable long-range indicators had begun to fall, also suggesting a slump was on the way.

Other developments were troubling as well. Inventories were growing faster than sales. Corporate profits and productivity were dropping. A huge trade deficit persisted. Swiftly mounting debt weighed on consumers and businesses. Inflation and interest rates were on the rise.

Today's economy, for all its undeniable difficulties, seems largely free of such troubling trends. Across the spectrum—from inventories to trade to the debt burden—encouraging patterns are emerging. Moreover, as feeble as the recovery may be, it appears likely to continue, and most forecasters look for a gradual pickup in its pace as 1993 unfolds.

The economy's leaner condition is apparent in data, adjusted for inflation, that express retail, wholesale and factory inventories in terms of monthly sales. When President Bush took office, this inventory-sales ratio was 1.51, appreciably higher than of late. Moreover, the ratio was climbing; it reached 1.53 in the spring of 1989, up from 1.49 just before the 1988 election.

In the past year or so, in contrast, the ratio has fallen. The latest reading of 1.40 is down from 1.42 last spring and 1.47 near the end of last year. With inventories so lean, businesses appear remarkably well equipped to cope with the economy's persistent sluggishness. By the same token, any pickup in demand could bring a significant increase in factory activity.

Vital to a company's health, of course, is its ability to make a profit and improve its productivity. When Mr. Bush became president, both barometers were dropping. Corporations' after-tax profits fell from nearly $170 billion annually at the end of 1986 to a rate of only $152 billion in the summer of 1989. The hourly output of workers in non-farm businesses also was declining.

Today's picture is strikingly different. After months of painful belt-tightening, most companies report rising profits. At $233 billion annually, the rate of after-tax profits has climbed some $25 billion in just six months. Productivity has also been rising.

The ability of U.S. companies to compete in world markets has improved markedly in the past four years. This can be seen in America's trade performance. In 1988, the U.S. trade in goods and services with other nations was in deficit to the tune of nearly $192 billion. Last year, this deficit was only $11.7 billion, down steeply from $57.5 billion in 1990 and $75.5 billion in 1989.

A major factor in the improvement is the increasingly competitive pay of U.S. workers, which in turn partly reflects the dollar's reduced foreign-exchange value.

During Mr. Bush's White House years, the average hourly pay of U.S. factory workers has risen from $14.31 to a recent reading of $15.45. But Labor Department studies show far sharper increases in the period in comparable pay rates abroad. At $13.54, the Italian pay level was lower than the U.S. rate when Mr. Bush took office; it recently stood at $17.18, or $1.73 higher than the U.S. average. Pay levels in 11 nations now exceed the U.S. rate. That's up from seven near the end of the Reagan years.

Debt, much of it piled up during Mr. Reagan's presidency, continues to inhibit economic activity in the U.S. But the burden has begun to diminish, as many businesses and individuals have managed to reduce what they owe.

When Mr. Bush became president, total private debt amounted to nearly 130% of the nation's gross domestic product and the percentage was increasing rapidly, up from about 100% at the start of the 1980s. But now this percentage is falling; recent estimates put it at about 125%. Meanwhile, delinquency rates on consumer loans, on the rise through much of the 1980s, are edging down and interest payments consume less of corporate cash flow—earnings plus depreciation—than at any time in nearly a decade.

Any assessment of the economy's health should also take inflation and interest rates into account. When Mr. Bush took office, inflation was accelerating. In early 1988, the consumer price index was climbing at an annual rate of 3.7%; by election-time, the increase was 4.0%, and in February 1989 it reached 5.9%. Recently, by comparison, consumer prices have been rising about 3% annually, which is a slower rate than early in the year. Military outlays, a particularly inflationary sort of government spending, were increasing four years ago; now they are declining.

Similarly, interest rates were high and rising in the fall of 1989. For instance, the federal-funds rate that banks charge one another averaged 8.35% in November 1988, up from less than 7% early that year, and it reached nearly 10% in March 1989. Now the rate is close to 3%, down from more than 4% early in the year.

To be sure, spurring the recovery will remain a stiff challenge for the winner of next month's election. But he will not encounter many of the worrisome trends that faced Mr. Bush four years ago.

—ALFRED L. MALABRE JR.

The LNCVDL project will produce both a low sulfur liquid substance for Number 6 fuel oil and a clean solid with the quality of premium coal. This multi-product facility could be an economically competitive venture far sooner than a plant that produces a single product.

Dear Sir,

In last night's Pres. debates, I noticed some fatigue and don't care attitude in the President as well as Clinton.

I must tell you that people see this kind of attitude and therefore, I recommend that the President should keep going as before as there are people out there who needs to be reassured that things will be better if given a chance to served again without reelection. The President should remember that the annals of history will show him as the President who did not give up so easily. If after trying his best and he loses, it is alright. But if he wins, he will surprise everybody and will become a believer like me.

Regards and good luck.

Confirming my telephone conversation, below are several points which could be very helpful in the re-election effort.

1. During the Bush, Reagan, Quayle years the U.S. had one of, if not the, longest and strongest peacetime economic expansions in history.
2. The expansion ended near the time when the special treatment of capital gains ended. Bush warned of the dangers of this move and has consistently asked reinstatement.
3. The collapse of real estate and savings and loans was associated with the changes in tax rules which made real estate investment undesirable. (Note too that savings and loan deregulation had roots in legislation from Democratic Representative Fernand St.Germaine and others.)
4. See Investor's Business Daily of Thursday July 16, 1992, for good review of effect of Clinton plan. Highlights include:
  - Cost to business could be 2/3 year's after-tax profits.
  - Health plan could cost business $40 bil/year, lose 1 mil. jobs.
  - 12 to 26% of small businesses could fold.
  - Training could cost small business $10 bil/year, 70,000 jobs.
  - "High income" is mostly small business owners, family farmers.
  - "High income" includes job-creating investments.

The normal economic adjustment period has been aggravated by the change in capital gains and real estate taxation. We need to return to the policies that had been working, together with the Bush enhancements, rather than further frustrate recovery by adding new impediments.

ECONOMIC POLICY, DEFICIT/EMPLOYMENT

Gentlemen:

I want to applaud your strategy by forwarding this information away from the political, bureaucratic, media-focused arena of Washington D.C. to resolve the problems which face our nation.

I want to extend a sincere "thank you" to the people who were involved and stayed with this project. In particular, four special people, District Director Mr. Gary Booth, who offered me the assistance of his staff, Mrs. Hires, Regional Commissioner R. C. Voskuil, and his staff assistant Ms. Chris Rohan, and the reference librarians of the public library system in Plano, Texas which enabled me to do the necessary research.

Without their input, helpfulness, the openness of sharing information, what I am about to present would not have been made possible.

I will summarize as briefly as possible, nine months of research, approximately 5,000 hours working on this problem over the last nine years.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION WHICH ESTABLISHED OUR GOVERNMENT FOUNDATION:

In 1642, people left England for America to escape taxation. Ironworks was the main industry at the time. In 1775, a United Congress representative approached the man who made the Hopewell furnace, and wanted to commission this man to make cannons and cannon balls to fight England. The man expressed concern about payment. This established the nucleus of the Department of Defense and Department of the Treasury, in that order.

In 1776, the Declaration of Independence was created, and the Constitution became our doctrine, the foundation of the Federal Government, which we use today, 224 years later.

The Constitution, a masterpiece is an 18th century document. We are on the edge of the 21st. century. The time is here to insert new technology into today's world.

HOW CAN WE MAKE THE TRANSITION IN THE NEXT EIGHT YEARS?

America will apply the newest technology entered into the marketplace in 1947, when the President made the first televised speech to America regarding not eating meat on certain days.

Computer Science Technology has already drastically affected our lives in every aspect. Just look around you. This technology, is in every market of the workplace, from law enforcement, medicine, communication, air travel, science research, in every area we use except the federal government.

Gentlemen, this is where we get to the bottom line. Your campaign has emphasized "change". The time is right to implement this program. In the next few days before the election, I suggest some serious communication with the voting public. The public is saturated with issues, rhetoric, programs, and scandals within the government.

The underlying problem is simply this ... When is the government going to do their part for the people who have subsidize the government. The people have paid with their taxes from wages, taxes for everything purchased, taxes for the space we occupy?

We are unable to return to England as in 1642 to escape taxes. So lets get busy and resolve this problem.

HOW ARE WE GOING TO RESOLVE THE DEFICIT?

Very simply. We are going to start within the federal government offices, agencies, and departments implementing accountability. The general public is unaware of the enormous complexity of the internal workings of this federal government structure.

The federal government has so many loopholes, oversights, financial exposures, administrative procedural errors, etc. which has been generated over the last 224 years. The changing of times, different presidents, policys, different parties in offices, and so on, has resulted in these financials exposures.

An effective way is to give the American people accountability is to have every office, agency, and department with a finance budget have an year-end closing, be reviewed by an unbiased accounting firm in a centralized federal government. The regulatory commissions have served their usefulness.

I was impressed with the Department of Defense. The U.S. Corps of Engineers, originated in 1824, is one of few departments that still adheres to establish guidelines. Established guidelines should be universal throughout the entire federal government and not for a select few agencies.

I was dismayed with the Department of the Treasury. The Internal Revenue Service Agency is crucial in bringing private/public sector monies into the government agency. Excessive legislation has encumbered the overall efficiency of this vital department. There is no feasible reason why this agency with a 7 Billion dollar operating fund should be using 20 year old hardware mainframes to track the work, software program updated three years ago to patch-up the operation and so on.

When is the Department of the Treasury going to implement the Defense Revenue Department for the other half of the country doing federal government work which has been absent for the last 27 years?

These two areas alone have caused tremendous cashflow exposures which have contributed greatly to the deficit.

The federal government needs a standardized policy throughout the entire structure. The standard policy needs to be universal, so as time passes, presidents, policies, and parties in the executive office come and go, the internal network of our existence is not hampered or affected from being an efficient operation.

HOW CAN THIS BE ACHIEVED?

Again, not to be repetitive, Computer Science Technology. As there are specialized areas of Law, the same holds true to this technology. I am an Administrative Financial Analyst. Degreed in Computer Science in 1966, I went to work for IBM till 1982. This technology is a positive force and has so many avenues for us to pursue and has no barriers, boundaries, limitations, prejudices, no partialities, and no political party preferences.

I will tell you how we got to this point. If you were to put a color to your former profession, what would it be? Key is reasonable doubt is defined as the gray area.

Computer Science is a defined science. The area encompassed in this dimension is either black or white. When combined makes the color grey. These two areas are compatible components.

The overview of the government kept bringing me back to common denominators like a mathematical equation. You need to put the information into the right sequence. The information matched with events in history represents the "time element".

Time can not be owned, possessed, altered, repeated, and substantiates documents and details in our history which provides a reliable audit trail.

There was a crucial component eluding me, ever present, but always evasive, until I got a visual aid. Use a scale of justice, put all the legislation passed by Congress on one side of the scale.

What is happening? Isn't the scale off-balanced? The reason is the missing component. The missing component is the compatible counterpart not implemented within the Government to provide a perfect balance. The terms "Law and Order", "Checks and Balance", and so on must be present to provide an equal balance. It is a definite and must be present to have the cycle work.

The component accountability within the government has to be corrected by the altering of administrative procedures.

The beauty of this action is, the legislation is presently in the books and already law. You do not need the consent of Congress to start reducing the deficit, which will now provide money for cut programs and provide employment.

The current revenue base of the federal government is substantial to meet the needs of our nation. Eliminating financial exposures and liabilities is the first phase to closing the deficit.

Refocusing the internal direction of the federal government is imperative to stabilize the nation's financial foundation.

An example we can all relate to: The Social Security Administration founded in 1913.

The design function was to pay monies into this special trust fund during your working years until retirement. This fund would augment your savings after retirement at age 65.

In 1953, with controls in place in the federal government, this special trust fund was removed from its original safety area and placed in the Department of Health and Human Services.

In 1948, right after WW II, there was 4.8 billion dollars in reserve within the federal government. So we do know the system was working until then.

The altered state of the Social Security Administration Fund was even referenced in the debate Sunday in regard to the change which has occurred to the nation over the last 50 years. This transfer occurred exactly 49 years ago.

Doesn't restoring the Social Security Administration Fund to its original special trust fund, seem like a reasonable request? It is an administrative procedure and will provide a positive incentive to the public who has worked for, and looked forward to in their twilight years. Why deny them this well earned right? This is only one valid issue in my reseach, which will ultimately effect us all one day.

Dear Mr. Baker:

On behalf of Sears, Roebuck and Co., I want to express our strong support for the Administration's efforts to successfully conclude a GATT agreement as soon as possible.

This multilateral trade-liberalization agreement would quickly invigorate both the U.S. and world economies. According to trade experts, the U.S. stands to gain anywhere from $35 to $100 billion a year from liberalized international trade.

On the issue of textiles and apparel trade, we support complete integration into the GATT and the end of the Multifiber Arrangement in 10 years. The current system of global import quotas is anti-competitive, costly to administer and serves to impose substantial hidden taxes on our consumers.

Again, we support your efforts toward a GATT agreement.

Sincerely,

"Talk is cheap. Time is short. Deeds are precious. The time to act is NOW." --Ross Perot

Dear Jim,

Since he was not able to discuss them within a political context, Mark Barnes had suggested that I call you related to Safe Haven--my proposals to break the cycles of gangs, drugs and welfare in America ONCE AND FOR ALL while actually saving money in the process. The fact that I sent you this information back in March and still nothing has happened speaks volumes about the problems in this campaign. Pages 10-12 of my 6/13/92 letter to Elaine Johnson at SAMHSA tell this story from the perspective of Perot. For an overview of how Safe Haven could be used by George Bush even now, however, I recommend to you my America's Future speech in my 3/1/92 letter to Marna Schnabel.

BUSH CAN STILL WIN. But it will take leadership, vision and fast work by you and the Committee. I have talked briefly with the Perot people about these issues and they have expressed some interest in using them. Out of loyalty to President Bush and the Republican Party, however, I offer Safe Haven to you one last time. Please call me if you are interested in this material so that we can talk about integrating them in a dramatic enough way to make a difference. You have everything to gain and nothing to lose. Simply put, it's now or never. If I haven't heard back from you or Marna by Saturday, I will assume that you are not serious about these issues and act accordingly. It is my sincere hope, however, that we can finally put together "that vision thing" while there is still time to act.

Best wishes,

Thanks you for your letter yesterday. Jim Pinkerton has still not called to back. You right want to succeed the "interview with Perot" & answer's of interview with Linda Leland than heren. If you, Bush & following want to act accordingly to Mark Barnes you have the authority to act to authorize Safe Haven demonstration. You already have the waivers for Safe Haven from Illinois with your own law.

Safe Haven--"That Vision Thing"

Dear Myrna,

Back in 1961, President Kennedy captured the imagination of the Country with the vision of putting an American on the moon by the end of the decade. Even had he lived, JFK would not have been in office at the time of perhaps his greatest achievement. Yet by having a vision of the future, the resources of a nation were galvanized. A challenge was made and a goal--unprecedented in the history of Mankind--was achieved. This is the power of "that vision thing."

What New Hampshire and South Dakota have shown perhaps more than anything else is that voters are still worried about our future and uncertain as to where we are going. To move beyond slogans to the actual accomplishment of goals, we need not only vision, but a credible plan of action that people can understand and believe in. Offering Americans a concrete plan for achieving the Kinder and Gentler Society with NO NEW TAXES is precisely what Safe Haven is designed to accomplish. In so doing, I genuinely believe that not only can President Bush win reelection in November but, equally important, he can help in setting the challenge for America of achieving "A Gang-Free, Drug-Free, Full Employment Economy in America by the Year 2000." Such is a goal worthy of us all.

Because there is so little time between now and Super-Tuesday, I have enclosed a rough draft of what a Safe Haven-oriented Bush Campaign might look like. Central to this campaign would be to quickly establish several interrelated central themes in a speech which can also call for legislative action by a given date similar to President Bush's State of the Union address. The difference here is that rather than "gimmicks" President Bush would focus on a series of programs that can truly accomplish the goals enumerated in '88. Table 1, for instance [1, p. 26], summarizes how by reducing teen pregnancy and gang crime by even 10% we could actually save several billion dollars even while increasing spending in areas such as child care and after-school programs. By reinvesting some of these savings into even further expanding prevention-oriented programs, we would get a significant multiplier effect with even greater savings (both financial and human) in future years. Now that Peggy Noonan is back on board, I think that you and she could do a lot to articulate such a vision and see it become a reality.

The fact that Safe Haven programs would actually save money would help to make President Bush's No New Taxes pledge again both credible and prudent. Because the message of Safe Haven is one of inclusion not exclusion, we could reach out to Pat Buchanan's supporters and win them over with ideas rather than negative advertising. The issue of welfare reform, for instance, was a major appeal of the Duke campaign. But rather than "Willie Hortoning" the issue, we can "Martin Luther King" it instead by drawing the fundamental distinction between the old Liberal Entitlement Ethic (rights without responsibilities) of the past and a true Empowerment Ethic of Rights AND Responsibilities. The logical extensions of such Empowerment, a Community Service Corps and Resident Management Corporations, would be win-win solutions to the problems of gangs, drugs and chronic welfare that bring people together rather than drawing them apart. Again, where better for Safe Haven to start than in the Land of Lincoln with the Party of Lincoln?

While I have described the details of Safe Haven at some length in the materials I have sent you, the bottom line is that Safe Haven offers you and President Bush a means of not only accomplishing your stated goals, but achieving a true Republican mandate for change in '92. If after reviewing the enclosed materials you and Jim Pinkerton are serious about pursuing these ideas, then I would be glad to follow up on our Tuesday conversation with a meeting in person at your convenience. My strong advice, however, is that if you are serious, then the sooner we move forward on these matters the better.

While the Democrats at present are still in disarray, the longer confrontation goes on within the Republican ranks, the more difficult it will be to heal the wounds in time for November. I genuinely believe that Safe Haven offers President Bush an ideal means not only of reconciling the differences among ourselves, but reaching out broadly to Americans of all races, ages, creeds and religions with a message of hope and vision. We would not be shooting for the moon so to speak. But we would be taking the first important steps to building a Safe Haven here on Earth with Liberty and Justice for ALL. What better way to greet the Twenty-First Century! President Bush and you all would be true American heroes. I look forward to discussing these matters with you further on Tuesday.

AMERICA'S FUTURE

My Fellow Americans,

I wish to speak to you today about a very serious issue that is facing the nation--that is, America's future and the future of our children. As you know, there are those who have criticized me for not spelling out in more detail our Domestic Agenda for America and how we plan on moving this Country forward towards the Twenty-First Century. It is this vision of our future that I wish to speak to you about today.

There are many problems facing this Country which we must overcome if we are to remain not only leaders of the Free World, but examples for others to follow. Since the height of America's economic power following World War II, there has been a steady erosion of our "domestic power" as measured in such simple terms as the safety of our streets, the absence of drugs or even the educational achievements of our children. This erosion in the social fabric of this Country must be stopped and fundamentally reversed if we as a nation are to be as free from the tyranny of illiteracy, drugs and welfare as we are free from threats from abroad. If we are to remain competitive in an increasingly global market, then our educational system and social values must again be second to none. This is the challenge that now faces us all.

Since my days of service during WWII, I have thought long and hard as to what has been at the root of our growing social problems here in America. From that war against Fascism up through—and including last year's Desert Storm, Americans have shown time and again that they can rise to the challenge of fighting and overcoming tyranny abroad. With the collapse of Communism, more and more we have seen people around the World rising up and calling out for freedom. There are the beginnings of a New World Order that promotes Peace and Prosperity and a growing respect for Democracy and Human Rights around our increasingly interconnected and interdependent global village. And yet here at home there are those who seem not only to have been left behind, but who seem through drugs or illiteracy or simply despair to have stopped trying all together. We must make our society one that works for everyone if it is truly to be a model for the world. So what is it that has changed in America over the past fifty years that has lead to these growing epidemics of drugs, illiteracy and welfare?

The answer that I have come up with over and over again is that what has changed very subtly and slowly over the years has been our values as a nation or at least among the Liberal policy makers in the Congress. More and more since WWII, we have moved away from the old Work Ethic that built this Country and made it strong to a Liberal Entitlement Ethic that rightly emphasized individual rights, but all too often neglected the concept of individual RESPONSIBILITIES. It has been this Liberal Entitlement Ethic of rights without responsibilities that I feel has been at the root of many of the fundamental social problems that we see today.

Perhaps the most glaring example of this Liberal Entitlement Ethic has been in the absolute failure of our present welfare system to do anything more than condemn many of our society's most needy individuals, including children, to an often multi-generational cycle of chronic hopelessness and helplessness. The time has come to break this welfare cycle in America ONCE AND FOR ALL.

Back in 1932 in his first inaugural address, Franklin Roosevelt likened welfare to a narcotic. It is as if for the past sixty years we had slowly been giving more and more heroin to drug addicts and then somehow wondering why things were getting worse instead of better. Unless and until we fundamentally break this cycle of learned helplessness and dependency we are only harming the very people we have wished to help. Again, however, the answer to these problems can be found in our history and past traditional values as a people.

When welfare was first introduced during the Great Depression, much of the aid came in the form of the old Civilian Conservation Corps and Work Projects of America--the CCC and WPA. In these programs government was helping by giving people a Hand Not a Handout--by giving a Job Not a Subsidy. The time has come to return to such a policy that restores the dignity of recipients and gives people both the means and the incentive to seek a better life for themselves, their families and their communities.

In the next few weeks, I will be introducing to Congress proposed legislation to fundamentally reform our welfare system. At the core of these reforms will be a proposal for the establishment of a National Community Service Corps--or CSC--in all 50 States and territories of the Country. Much as with the original CCC and WPA, the Community Service Corps as part of a larger program called Safe Haven will give individuals the opportunity to participate in various self-help programs to be set up in their own communities and to be run primarily by community members for community members. By everybody working, even the most chronically unemployed of the past would go from being part of the problem to part of the solution. Thus CSC participants would ultimately be helping not only themselves, but their families and communities as well as the taxpayers of America.

The Safe Haven Community Service Corps programs would run the gamut of activities from Community Policing and Resident Patrols, to Day Care, tutoring and After-School Programs to Community Clean-Up and Meals-on-Wheels for the Elderly to name but a few. Another important aspect of these programs is that, where possible, efforts will be made to coordinate CSC activities through local Resident Management groups at public housing sites around the Country. [Camera shot of HUD Secretary Kemp.] To the greatest extent possible, control of these programs would remain at the local level, thus fostering a sense of true individual and community empowerment.

American heroes like Irene Johnson, Bertha Gilkey, Mildred Hailey and the Reverend Robert Blount--all leaders in Resident Management programs across the nation--have shown that when you give communities the power and resources, they can come up with the programs that will work best for them. [Have camera shot of these individuals in the audience with Secretary Kemp.] And the simple truth of the matter is that these programs end up saving the taxpayers of America money by reducing crime, teen pregnancies and welfare. [Camera back to President Bush looking forceful, hitting fist into open hand.]

Combining Resident Management with Community Service Corps would bring even greater cost savings in the future. If Safe Haven and CSC can reduce gang crime and teen pregnancy by even 10%, for instance, then we could actually save several billion dollars even while increasing spending in areas such as child care and after-school programs. By reinvesting some of these savings into even further expanding prevention-oriented programs including high quality day care and after-school programs, we would get a significant multiplier effect with even greater savings (both financial and human) in future years. These Safe Haven programs would go far towards improving the educational standards of our schools and the safety of our neighborhoods. Most importantly, we would show by the glow of a Thousand Points of Light that the traditional American values of neighbors helping neighbors are alive and well and growing once again at the very time when we need them the most.

I therefore come today to ask you, the American people, for your help in achieving what is both a most necessary and noble goal--the breaking of the cycles of welfare, gangs and drugs in America ONCE AND FOR ALL. In 1961, President Kennedy challenged the nation to put an American on the moon by the end of the decade. The challenge was made and a goal--unprecedented in history--was achieved. So too, now, I am asking for your help to achieve a Gang-Free, Drug-Free, Full-Employment Economy in America by the Year 2000. Through the implementation of Safe Haven and the Community Service Corps, these goals are more than obtainable--they are essential for the future economic and social well-being of this Country.

In years gone by when welfare reform was proposed, the Liberal Democratic Congress would block such efforts calling them heartless and uncaring. But there is nothing compassionate about spending billions of dollars a year to perpetuate a system that clearly does not work. Again, a system that "gives" rights, but takes away responsibilities does not empower people, it enslaves them by destroying both the will and the means for people to better themselves. With Safe Haven and Community Service Corps we wish to free people to help better themselves, their families and their communities. What grander tradition could the Party of Lincoln have than to lead this fight for genuine empowerment--with Liberty and Justice for ALL. The time has come for the American electorate, YOU, to make a choice and let your voice be heard.

Last year with the Persian Gulf War looming, I compromised with the Democrats on the issue of taxes rather than risking a protracted fight with Congress when American and other lives could have been at stake. I am not proud of this compromise, but at the time, it was making the best of a bad situation. What I can say for certain is that, if there had been a Republican majority in the Congress, then for sure there would have been No New Taxes. (Slowly enunciate each word--as originally done with "Read My Lips.")

You know, the Bible teaches us the value of Redemption and being born again. When this is something more than words, it represents a value that we call all endorse and live by. As individuals and as a Nation, it is time to learn from our past mistakes and work together to make sure that the failed Liberal Entitlement policies are corrected ONCE AND FOR ALL.

If the increased taxes during the past four years should teach us all one lesson, it is that as long as there is a Liberal Democratic majority in the Congress, then the risk remains that taxes will rise and the tired old Liberal spend and spend policies of the past will simply continue on as before. Democrats may say that they "will only tax the rich," but you have only to look at their actions of last year to see how real the threat of their trying to increase your taxes remains. Voting for my opponent in November will NOT change this threat. But voting the Liberal Democrats out of office in November will.

Across the seas the spectre of Communism now is receding. Old ideologies are being tested and replaced where found wanting. Freedom and Democracy are flames growing brightly and on the rise throughout the world. So, too, in the United States, the failed Liberal Entitlement Ethic of the past must be replaced with an Ethic of true Empowerment that combines Rights AND Responsibilities. Far from being punitive, Safe Haven and the Community Service Corps offer the real possibility of a true American Renaissance as we greet the new Century.

If in future years an individual of any age, sex, race or creed could walk down any street in America and feel safe, then we would be starting to do our jobs. If they could go into any school and see enthusiastic learning and questioning minds; into any business and find drug-free, productive workers; into any home and find love and safety, then we would be moving towards the Twenty-First Century with a renewed vision of ourselves and our society. In so doing, a new era would truly have been achieved.

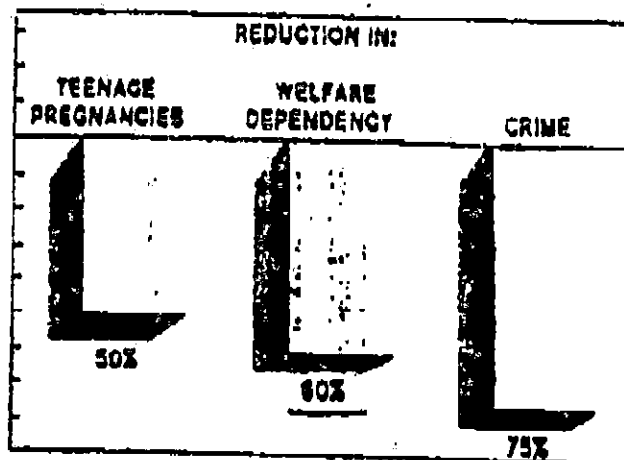

I ask for your help both now and in November to see this dream of the shining city upon the hill become a reality. As we set our goals and look to the future we have only eight years to go and not a second to lose. Thank you for your support. God bless you and God Bless America.

Elaine Johnson, PhD

Summary

Secretary Sullivan has emphasized the need for fundamental welfare reform if we are to have "any real hope for changing the pattern of current social problems such as teen-age pregnancy, school drop out and drug use." Michele Applegate contends that such fundamental reform is "beyond the scope" of OSAP and ADAMHA. Either Secretary Sullivan doesn't mean what he says or lower-level bureaucrats don't understand what he means. Something has to change. If management at all levels of HHS cannot implement the accurate VISION of their own Secretary, then it will be proven to be ineffective and useless. Bureaucrats who accept Dr. Applegate's "tunnel vision" of words without results have no business being in Washington. If HHS can't set their own house in order, then it will be up to the voters to do this in November.

Dear Dr. Johnson,

While I faxed a copy of my letter to you of 6/8/92 to Michele Applegate on 6/11/92, it is not at all apparent that she read it before sending me her letter of 6/12/92. If Michele did read my 6/8/92 letter to you before responding then, at the very least, she didn't understand a word of what I wrote. If ever there was a time when you and Secretary Sullivan needed to demonstrate LEADERSHIP in your Departments, it is now. How you two handle this situation will speak volumes as to how truly serious you and this Administration are about truly breaking with cycles of drugs, gangs and welfare in America ONCE AND FOR ALL.

Because of the seriousness of the issues involved and the clear, fundamental lack of understanding of Safe Haven shown by Drs. Applegate and Bernick, I will yet once again respond detail by detail to the issues raised in Michele's letter. Let me assure you that it is no more fun for me to write these letters than it is for you to have to read them. But if Dr. Applegate's letter truly reflects the level of understanding of these problems by the Administration of ADAMHA and HHS, then she and others sharing similar attitudes have no business being anywhere within a hundred miles of Washington. It is for this reason that I wish to be particularly clear as to what it is that Safe Haven proposes to do. Before rejecting Safe Haven, it would certainly help if you and others at ADAMHA first understand what it is that I am proposing. For this reason I also strongly encourage you to actually read my previous correspondence regarding Safe Haven in order to gain further insight into the issues that I summarize below.

1. "Beyond the Scope"

When Dr. Applegate states that Safe Haven-Illinois is "beyond the scope of the OSAP Community Partnership Study Program," (CPSP) she is raising the most central and outrageous argument of her entire letter. The CPSP-RFA explicitly states that

The goal of the Community Partnership Study Program is to achieve and document measurable reductions in alcohol and other drug abuse incidence, prevalence, and related consequences such as alcohol and other drug related health problems, mental disorders and comorbidity, crimes, deaths and injuries among all age and ethnic groups within a community.

--OSAP Community Partnership Study Program RFA, p. 4.

If ADAMHA is serious about trying to accomplish this goal then, again, they would be well advised to listen to the admonitions of Secretary Sullivan when he says

We must not deceive ourselves. No matter how well designed or reformed, government programs will have little lasting effect unless fundamental actions necessary to end the current cycle of Welfare dependency are taken by those trapped in Welfare. Any real hope for changing the pattern of current social problems such as teen age pregnancy, school drop out and drug use requires individuals to take responsibility for themselves.--Louis Sullivan, MD, National Press Club, May 5, 1992.

I have now repeated Secretary Sullivan's remarks four times in four different letters and it still seems that bureaucrats at ADAMHA just "don't get it." Either Secretary Sullivan doesn't mean what he says or narrow-minded, cultural-elitist bureaucrats don't understand what he means. According to her letter, Dr. Applegate is the "Associate Administrator for Extramural Programs." As best I can understand bureaucracies, it is not Dr. Applegate's place to set ADAMHA policy--it is yours and Dr. Sullivan's. Dr. Sullivan has already made his position clear. I await with interest your own interpretation of the "scope" of ADAMHA's mission. Hopefully, this mission will have something to do with actually accomplishing the maximum possible results at the minimum possible costs. Such is the goal of Safe Haven.

2. Local Partnerships

Again, it is very hard to believe that Dr. Applegate actually read either my Safe Haven-Illinois proposal, my 6/8/92 letter to you or my Safe Haven-Illinois Demonstrations Sites proposal to the Illinois legislature when she so fundamentally misses the point of what I am saying. Specifically, Safe Haven works precisely by integrating and coordinating the activities of organizations and agencies working at all levels of our State-Community (Figure 1). Figure 2 reflecting "One-Stop Case Management" is a direct extension of the original "Client-Centered Comprehensive Mental Health System" originally proposed by HHS in 1987.

While these services are provided and run at the "local" level, the coordination of these "traditional" services and non-traditional programs such as Community Service Corps (CSC) would be impossible were it not for the cooperation of the various involved State agencies who either directly run or subcontract the service provision at the local levels. Thus, as should have been abundantly obvious, it is not a matter of "local" or "State" levels of activity, but the integration of these various levels that gives Safe Haven its greatest strengths.

3. Local Control--RMCs and POCCIPs

As would again be obvious to anyone actually reading our Safe Haven-Illinois proposal carefully, a great deal of emphasis is made on fostering the local Empowerment that can come from a fully-operational Resident Management Corporation (RMC) and other forms of local autonomous government. It is no accident that two of our "local" community members are the presidents of the Lathrop Homes RMC (Judy Williams) and Local Advisory Council (LAC, Jerome Price), respectively. Judy also chairs the Lathrop Homes Interagency Network which is a consortium of all the Social Service and related agencies working at their site (Figure 3). Similarly, Leonard Bols, as Chairman of the Grundy County Board, and Dick Kruse, as the Administrative Agent for the Education Service Network, serve comparable local coordinating roles in Grundy County (Figure 4).

As illustrated in Figures 3 and 4, while there are numerous other "local government officials, law enforcement officials, local businesses, health treatment facilities and other community organizations" that would be involved in both the Lathrop Homes and Grundy County sites, we limited our Letters of Designation to twelve important, but representative, examples from each level precisely in order to emphasize the multi-level nature of our Community. Again, if you want more letters, tell us and we will supply them. If you want different Letters of Designation, write them and we will have them signed. Whether Dr. Applegate wishes to acknowledge it or not, Safe Haven is not only committed to working with the local community, we are committed to achieving significant results including the prevention of drug abuse.

Through the use of Safe Haven "One-Stop Case Management" (Figure 2), not only would traditional Social Services be coordinated on the local level, they would also be integrated with other important activities such as work and, where necessary, probation/parole supervision. By integrating traditional Social Services with both work and ongoing support/education groups (EAP-type programs), we would not only talk about change, we would implement the necessary structure and incentives (both individual and community-wide) to ensure that such positive change was both ongoing and permanent in its nature.

Not only does Safe Haven thus help to accomplish true individual, familial and Community Empowerment, through the use of Prevention-Oriented County/Community Incentive Plans (POCCIPs) there would be a major financial basis on which to see these local programs grow and flourish. As noted in Figure 5, even the "traditional" RMC at Kenilworth-Parkside in Washington, DC was able to reduce teen pregnancy, welfare dependency and crime by 50, 60 and 75%, respectively. It was projected that over a 10-year period this would result in a savings of $5.7 million at this one site alone. Through the use of the Community Service Corps (CSC), Safe Haven would give even greater cost-savings precisely by having an even greater impact on the reduction of drugs, gangs, welfare and teen pregnancy in the Community.

As discussed in Safe Haven-Illinois (p. 32) and in our previously sent legislative proposals, POCCIPs would allow Counties and/or Communities in Illinois to get direct block grants for the social service tax dollars (including drug treatment, Public Aid and law enforcement) spent in their area. While local communities would get no more than the block grant amounts, any money that they could save through the reduction of crime, drugs, teen pregnancy and welfare, they would get to keep and spend however they wished (eg, reduce taxes, expand social services, etc). Thus, not only would local leaders such as Judy Williams and Jerome Price at Lathrop Homes or Jerry Weller, Leonard Bols and Dick Krase in Grundy County have the practical means for accomplishing their goals (Safe Haven CSC) they would have the financial incentives and local autonomy to do exactly this. Safe Haven would put the principles of Free Enterprise and Democracy to work, not just in special zones, but all across America.

4. Single vs. Multiple Communities

Again, since I cover the rationale and strengths of our program design at length in my 6/8/92 letter to you, I get the distinct impression that Dr. Applegate didn't even read this letter in preparing her response to me. The OSAP RFA explicitly states that

The Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, Section 2051, amended Section 508(b)(10) of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 290aa-6(b)(10), as amended) authorizes the Office for Substance Abuse Prevention (OSAP) to provide assistance to communities to develop comprehensive long-term strategies for the prevention of substance abuse and to evaluate the success of different community approaches for the prevention of substance abuse....The Office for Substance Abuse Prevention considers it essential that multiple and key organizations and groups of the community be involved in the development and implementation of comprehensive programs to prevent drug use and alcohol abuse within the community. Therefore, this grant program has been initiated to help communities develop partnerships for the purpose of creating and implementing comprehensive prevention programs. This program is designed to improve, change and introduce innovations in the prevention approaches of the community by utilizing the existing resources and potential of the community in an optimal manner.--OSAP CPSP RFA, pp. 2-3.

Dr. Applegate tries to argue (presumably with a straight face) that

The residents of the State of Illinois are not "served by the same group of service organizations" as described in this RFA, and do not meet the focus and requirements of the RFA for a local community partnership.

As I discuss in Section 1 above and in my 6/8/92 letter to you, it is absolutely ludicrous to believe that the Illinois Department of Public Aid (IDPA), Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS), Department of Alcohol and Substance Abuse (DASA), Department of Employment Security (DES) and many others either directly or indirectly are not "key organizations" and/or have no important role to play in drug elimination in local communities. Once again, Dr. Applegate is fundamentally missing the point about Secretary Sullivan's warnings.

5. Perot-ettes: A Critical Example

To emphasize this important point of VISION and LEADERSHIP, I will give one critical example of the interrelatedness of these agencies and their essential role in either breaking of the cycles of drugs, gangs and welfare in Illinois (and America) ONCE AND FOR ALL or seeing these problems grow ever worse. To make this example more interesting and concrete, imagine it being explained to the American people over a two-hour period on a morning talk show by a kind, elderly gentleman from Texas. He speaks with a great deal of enthusiasm and conviction and with a no-nonsense, get-the-job-done sense of commitment and urgency.

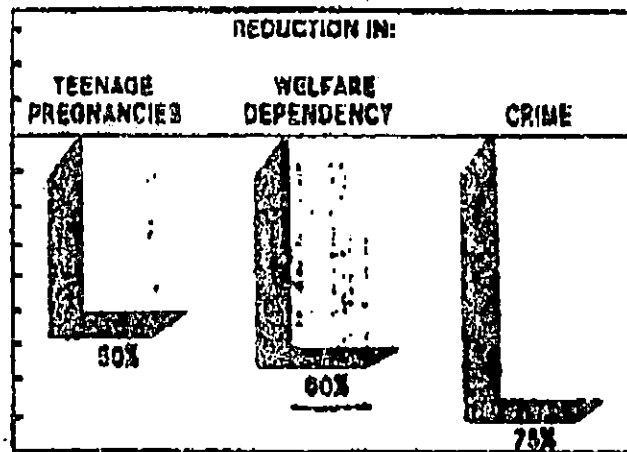

"Now let me tell you a story about welfare and real reform and how those bureaucrats in Washington sit up there and keep anything new and creative from getting done. Out in Illinois their General Assistance program is called Transitional Assistance (TA). If you are deemed to be "able-bodied," then you are cut off from TA and are told to "fend for yourself." If you are a drug-addict, a chronic alcoholic, a criminal or are illiterate, however, then they tell you that you can stay on welfare for as long as you want. You're not required to work. You may or may not be "required" to go for treatment or to classes. But chances are if you don't go, then nothing is going to happen.

"If you're a drug addict or alcoholic then, at the beginning of each month when you get your welfare check, without any effective controls you start spending your check on alcohol and drugs. Within a short time you have used up your money, so you're evicted. Now you're homeless. If you live with a mate and any children you have sired, statistically you are more likely to be abusing them than to be supporting them financially. In fact, if anything, they are more likely to be supporting you. And all of this is ultimately being funded by your tax dollars. It's goofy."

"Now if somebody came up with a program to find those people on welfare and those people without jobs a chance to earn a salary instead of being given a subsidy, you or I would probably think that was a pretty good idea. If you said to alcoholics, drug addicts and criminals, we will help you straighten out your lives, but you've got to work for what you get, again you or I would probably understand this and say that this is what teaches people the values and habits that they need in order to get along in society, let alone live an independent life without robbing or abusing others. You or I would probably say that having a job rather than a subsidy makes people more free, not less. But you or I are not bureaucrats in Washington. There, goofiness is a way of life and doing business.

"In point of fact, such a program as I just described was proposed to HHS and to President Bush. Dr. Kimball Ladien, a psychiatrist in Chicago, has been working for years to develop a program he calls Safe Haven. Safe Haven aims to break the cycles of drugs, gangs and welfare in America ONCE AND FOR ALL while actually saving a ton of money in the process. Through the development of a Community Service Corps, just like with the old CCC and WPA we would guarantee people JOBS NOT SUBSIDIES. We would give people A HAND NOT A HANDOUT.

"Safe Haven Community Service Corps jobs could be whatever the needs of that community determined them to be. They could be anything from Resident Patrols, to Day Care to tutoring and After-School programs to Community Clean-up to Elderly Homecare and Meals-on-Wheels to name but a few. And where possible, opportunities would be created in the private sector to hire people in apprenticeship and other work programs. By having all adults contributing to society and all children in school developing to the maximum of their potential, we would have a society that practices good solid preventive medicine and reaps the benefits of it--just as the good doctor intended.

"Now as I said Dr. Ladien spent years developing Safe Haven. He was going to have the program start in a few places, then let it expand to cover more and more of the State as it proved its ability to put people to work, to stop gangs and drugs, and improve the quality of life for all members of the community. The local people wanted it, the local social service agencies wanted it, local Government officials wanted it, State agencies--even the Governor's office all wanted Safe Haven and wrote letters to Washington in support of it. Dr. Ladien even showed how if Safe Haven could reduce gang crime, drugs and teen pregnancy in Illinois by even 10%, the State would be saving over $400 million annually. On a National level, Safe Haven could save several billion dollars even while greatly expanding the availability of high-quality, affordable day care and after-school programs for ALL American families and communities who would want them.

"So what did the bureaucrats in Washington do with Dr. Ladien's Safe Haven proposals? I don't have to tell you--you know already. Because you know what Washington bureaucrats do. They take your money. They work with their small special interest groups, making sure to take care of themselves. But when it comes to the American people and really solving the problems we elected them to solve--forget it.

"Bureaucrats at HHS, in an agency called ADAMHA, decided that Safe Haven was "beyond the scope" of their Department. Now these folks at ADAMHA are accountable to Dr. Louis Sullivan at HHS. Secretary Sullivan is directly accountable to the President. The President says he supports welfare reform. Secretary Sullivan says he supports welfare reform. But, when it comes right down to it, either the President and the Secretary of HHS don't mean what they say or they can't get their own policies implemented by their own agencies. Either they are lacking in VISION or LEADERSHIP or both.

"Whatever the problem is, however, one thing is clear--they aren't getting the job done. The problems are only getting worse. If we want a Government that works, that gets the job done, then you, the owners of America, have to vote in new management. If we need to "nuke" Washington and start over with new people, then that's what we'll do. Whatever it takes, we'll get the job done. We'll break the cycles of gangs, drugs and welfare in America and finally create a society with true LIBERTY AND JUSTICE FOR ALL."

6. Conclusions

My main conclusion is that chances are you'll never even see this letter let alone read it. That's the way bureaucracies work. If you do ever read this letter, then your choices are very simple. Your boss, Louis Sullivan, has made his position on welfare reform very clear--he's for it and thinks that it is essential to genuinely accomplishing your mission. Michele Applegate, however, writes that such fundamental reform is "beyond the scope" of ADAMHA and OSAP. If you agree with Dr. Applegate, then write me a letter to that effect and we'll take the matter to the American voters. If you agree with Secretary Sullivan, however, then the time to act on this matter is NOW.

Figure 6, still unsubmitted, represents the political cartoon that would follow up on a Perot speech and summarize the growing frustration of the American voters, including myself, with the inability of this Administration, including HHS and ADAMHA to do anything beyond shuffling papers and wasting money. If you and others at ADAMHA and HHS truly believe that Safe Haven is "beyond the scope" of your mission, then it will be right for Ross to simply "nuke" Washington and start over with a new team and a clear mandate. If you're going to help, then do it now.

In my Safe Haven-Illinois proposal, I cite the "Citizen's Criterion" (p. 37) for ultimately judging the true cost-effectiveness of any proposals before you. It goes like this.

If an individual of any age, sex, race or creed can walk down any street in America and feel safe, then we are starting to do our jobs. If they can go into any school and see enthusiastic learning and questioning minds, into any business and find drug-free, productive workers, into any home and find love and safety, then we would be moving towards the Twenty-First Century with a renewed vision of ourselves and our Society. This is the test by which ultimately to judge Safe Haven or any other program.

I stand by our Safe Haven-Illinois proposal and all that we seek to accomplish. I am formally appealing Dr. Applegate's ruling and urgently requesting your personal attention to this matter while there is still time to make a difference. Let your actions speak for themselves. Given the extreme seriousness of these issues, the courtesy of a formal and rapid reply is requested.

Sincerely,

Kimball Ladien, MD

Dear Mr. Rick:

We recently received your correspondence in which you attached a copy of my letter of September 14, 1992 inquiring whether we had specifically answered your inquiry concerning the potential violation of constitutional rights.

The United States Attorney's Office which is a part of the Department of Justice does not have the jurisdiction to remedy all violations of constitutional rights occurring to United States citizens.

It is only the limited jurisdiction of the violation of civil rights often amounting to racial discrimination or abuses of power by law enforcement agencies against prisoners. These matters are then investigated by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C. ascertains whether a civil rights violation exists. Hence, the allegations within your correspondence do not tend to express a basis for the jurisdiction of the United States Attorney's Office.

If we have missed something, please let us know.

Very truly yours,

Dear Ms Akers:

How many violations of constitutional rights must take place before the governing body's of Bullhead City, Arizona Mohave County Attorney, and State Attorney General Grant Woods will answer my questions.

How many willful abuses and incidents of misconduct by a public servant must occur before they are finally held accountable.

Will you please take action to address the Federal Crimes of misprision of felony and the obstruction of justice.

This matter entails issues of fact concerning contracts, franchises, qualified electors, ballots of no choice, and refusing to answer letters of demand. Also, please check into the suing of 12 people for circulating a non-partisan petition to end the taxation of citizens without a vote.

Please stop the injustices here in Bullhead City and restore our rights as citizens, especially the right to vote and have a voice in our local government. The pre-emption of the Constitution must not be tolerated for this nation to survive and remain free.

Respectfully:

Roy Rick

Dear Mr. Baker,

We watched the debates from San Diego, Ca. last night & thought the President was good. (we are all voting for him). We are the average working people & we talk to the same type people. We are very afraid that Gov. Clinton will be elected. To a person we agreed upon several things after the debate I'd like to share our thoughts with you for both the Pres & Vice Pres. debates.

Simple & Plain

1. Be passionate & very explicit in what you say. Talk directly to the American people. Be relaxed & confident in the status of Pres & Vice Pres. Smile but leave jokes to Perot. Relate facts on Clinton's proposal but leave all neg. remarks to Clinton & Gore. It will stir to our President & Vice President.

2. Just saying things like misery index doesn't get it, most people don't know what it is. Explain! i.e. When you add 13% inflation & 13.7 national unemp. as it was in 79 under a Democratic Pres. you get the highest misery index in 20 yrs!

3. Same with mentioning my "American Renewal Plan", all people get is there is a plan so-o-o Clinton has a plan too! We realize it's hard to tell people anything in one or two minutes but they have to cut to a very few sentences. Also everytime possible need to address A. Either something already thru Congress or in plan. B. Exactly what (major) it does & C. What Clinton's plan does. As an example; Healthcare. 6 sentences or less!
 A. What's thru Congress or in the plan to control costs? Our (Rep) major fact.
 B. "Our (Rep) plan offers <sup>that</sup> middle to lower income families & self employed people to afford ins. by private industry."
 C. "This" plan puts everything in governments hands increasing government by _____ at a cost of _____. "They" neglect to Tell you the American people that in Countries like Canada that has similar plans their people wait 3 mo. or more on a list for heart surgery.!

These are examples, but we think its very important that each question possible focus on major good things on prev. 4 yrs or plan, future (with Bush) + future (with Clinton).

Also final statements we'd like to suggest emphases 1. Strong economic agenda move us Now into sustainable recovery with less government interference in our life

2. Strong agenda to reduce the national deficit by — 70 in the next 4 yrs.

3. Strong agenda to remain the worlds #1 superpower).

4 "We" offer change that really offers you the American people the best + brightest future!

5. Trust you to not be swayed by media or "experts" about your future. We've listened to you.

Mr. Baker thank you so much + good luck.

Sincerely,

The Honorable James Baker III
Chief of Staff/White House

WRN

Dear James Baker III:

Please reference my previous correspondence from August 27, 1992 through the present.

I am requesting that your office act on my behalf and obtain a fair and reasonable settlement with the CIA. In return I will release the CIA of any future claims, etc. Presumably there will be some sort of Secrecy Agreement. I trust your office to work out the details which I will sign. I need the settlement by the end of this month.

I want the CIA to agree to not interfere with my future employment and opportunities related to my creative abilities. As an example, on June 27, 1991 I met with Father Winters at Georgetown University to discuss my teaching a class on ethics in the School of Foreign Service. He seemed very positive about doing this, and would work me into his program. Just before the school year started last September 1991 I called him, he abruptly wanted to get off the phone as if there was something wrong. Someone got to him. I have made another proposal to Father O'Donovan, the school President, and Patrick Heelan, the Executive Vice President, that would allow me to teach a creative writing class in philosophy that would help students learn more about God and his moral and ethical principles. I gave them several samples of what I had in mind. Enclosed is one of those essays. Several essays have already been sent to the New Yorker magazine for their hopeful publication. I don't want this stopped nor another story I have written for Walt Disney. The common theme is faith in God and the moral doctrine I have learned through reading the Scriptures. I say this because of the many times I was typing at Kinko's in Georgetown, someone would come up and pound on the window at me. Or if I was at a park writing the obvious surveillance to see what I was doing. I want this stopped. Writing was the only communication not interfered with.

Nor do I want the friends around me harassed. I isolated myself from friends because of concern what was around me would happen to them. I documented these instances which you have.

So that everyone understands where I am coming from. I was relentless in my pursuit, because of my faith in God, that somehow He would prevail over everything I thought was so wrong. That he would perform a miracle for me, for his Glory, as I felt our Constitution was Divinely Inspired. I could not resolve what I saw because of my faith in the Almighty. My tragedy was that my daughter was torn away from me in my quest.

"The Dream"

It must have been just before dawn, as that was the time of day the others always came. But I'm still trying to separate the dream from reality because the dream was what I wanted reality to be. Somehow my heart could not face the reality of my existence, but the dream made me understand there was another side to life, and it allowed me to continue my quest.

So that you will understand the spiritual strength and hope I found in the dream, I'm going to share it with you in the hope you will feel what part of my soul knows.

I was in a meadow at the time; the meadow was like the grass in Kansas. It was summer because the grass was light brown, and the wind blew the grass like the wind blew the sand across the desert, shaping the mounds of sand that had no vanity. For the sand was there to exist with time and not for self gratification. Then instead of a human being that watched the meadow sway; I suddenly became part of the meadow. And when I became part of the meadow, at once I also became part of the sand in the desert. My feelings and emotions that were once human had become an imagination of the past. Those granules of sand were now me; and now I could feel the wind of God blow across my existence, that had no real existence except to serve my father in heaven. I had no knowledge of wanting nor needing to be something to ingratiate me.

What I had was the most powerful love, that I could not feel or receive when I was a human being, because my existence had become my father's.

Suddenly as quickly as I had gone into the meadow, the wind of God came with unimaginable power and my dream was swept away.

That morning I awoke with the morning sun in my face, in my left hand that I use to write were the sands of the desert. No matter what swells in the ocean I would confront in life; it was made easy for me to continue because the sands of the desert would always be in my left hand.
