OCTOBER 29, 1992

THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES
THE WHITE HOUSE

Copy for Hon. James Baker

SIR:

I admire your motivation, your goals, your fighting spirit.
and your RESOLVE TO WIN.

YOU WILL WIN IF YOU STRIKE ANNOUNCING A NEW ERA :

NEW FOUR YEARS ----
teamwork of PEOPLE, GOVERNMENT AND CONGRESS.

My letter of August 28 to David Carney, copy enclosed, contains a draft of a 50 seconds announcement.

I also enclose an actual hand held RESPONSE KEY INPUT unit, WHICH COULD BE USED AT NEXT EVENT. I have manufactured thousands of them, at my own risk, for a potential use in your Campaign. Software, computers, cards, professional assistance and myself are waiting for just ONE CAN DO person with a VISION and time to call me, at any hour day or night.

After your inspiring address to the Presidential Roundtable on October 9, 1991 I had the privilege of personally pledging to you my full time volunteer work for your victory in 1992.
You looked me straight in the eye and said ED CORWIN I NEED YOU IN NEW YORK.

In 1991 I worked intensively, successfully helping JAN OLSZEWSKI, to develop the democracy in Poland. He became Prime Minister.

Since only FOUR DAYS are left I took the liberty of sending copies of this letter to many fine men on Campaign who did not have the time to return my calls and missed the great weapon. It still could help if someone will call me.

Admiringly and respectfully

Edward J. Corwin

CITIZENS RESPONSE®

Mass Participation Feedback

August 28, 1992

Dear Mr. Carney:

On Labor Day as Citizens will be entering the kick-off event the ushers (and posters) will ask everyone to pick up an envelope containing a letter from the Chairman of the event, an actual Citizens Response Input Key, and Citizens Response Record Card.

The President may start a new era of communication urging everyone in the audience to respond and be counted in.

George Bush may say:

"I am strongly interested in citizens' views. I seek people and listen, read letters, study polls. But only a limited number of individuals can be heard from.

When elected I intend to encourage the development of an All-American mass participation, and creating means of counting-in credibly and rapidly millions of voices responding to emerging issues.

If people will support my positions, this will be a mandate for vigorous, non-partisan actions. However I shall review any reservations, supply further facts and recommendations, then ask the public to consider the additional information, to discuss the options with friends and to enter the one on one change of previous attitudes.

Today's technology can make practical a confidential on-going ALL-AMERICAN PARTICIPATION DIALOGUE a powerful weapon to improve the present conditions, fight crime, terrorism and to shape the future of our Nation."

Citizens responses will provide actual profiles of attitudes of active citizens in Congressional Districts. This will be most useful for Campaign strategists to target the campaign.

CITIZENS RESPONSE®

Mass Participation Feedback

July 31, 1992

Dear ~~Mr.~~ Kaufman:

You delayed going home to return my call and to direct me to call David Carney. This proved to me that you envision the implications of Citizens Response in this campaign.

I immediately FedExed to Mr. Carney the material he requested. He promptly forwarded it to Mr. Jim Wray, the Convention Chairman. Wray's aides, in spite of my dogged follow up, could not locate the letter.

With only two weeks before Convention I know Wray's priorities are staggering. He did not answer my repeated messages. Time is running out. I am afraid Houston is losing an opportunity of a great scoup.

Nevertheless, at my own risk and expense, I am preparing keys and cards for delegates. I also lined up mark reading equipment and an expert technician. But there is only a slim chance that Houston strategists will call me and then write a theme of electronic dialogue (issues, questions and answers).

The system uses a slim hand-held input response key (enclosed). No cables, no staffers will be on Convention floors. Technology is easy to use, practical and affordable. It was field tested last year in Poland on successive conventions attended by nationwide delegates of Citizens Committees.

I am preparing a six minutes video outlining how citizens will generate mass participation, bringing in the apathetic and disillusioned voters, by offering them a secret dialogue with leadership.

There is still time to prepare for New York state and California door bell ringers and to organizers of rallyes and campaign stops. The Citizens Response Mass Participation Feedback:

THE EDGE OF VICTORY!

There is still time to invigorate the campaign and you having faith in me is encouraging.

Sincerely,

Edward Corwin

Dear Mr. Corwin:

The Vice President has asked me to respond to the letter he received while attending the New York State Conservative Convention, as I handle his campaign affairs.

The Citizens Response System sounds fascinating. Vice President Bush is impressed with the concept and has requested that I pass your letter on to the respective Directors of Communication for Reagan-Bush '84, and for the Republican National Committee. While it may be too late to implement your plan in time for the upcoming debates, the system has wide range implications for the future.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if I can be of further assistance. Thank you for writing and on behalf of the Vice President, please accept our best wishes.

Sincerely,

Ronald C. Kaufman

July 5, 1992

Dear Mr. ~~Carney~~

Ron Kaufman called me July 1st late in the evening and asked me to call you. He remembered my pledge to work full time for 1992 election. I declared it personally to George Bush after his inspiring address in October 1991 at the occasion of Presidential Round Table closing session in Corcoran Gallery. George Bush looked me straight in the eye and said "Edward Corwin I need you in New York".

I called you immediately and left a message. I want to thank you for your prompt response. I tried to reach you, a few times next day. Your very courteous staffer suggested best time to catch you on the phone will be Monday July 6. This I will do. In addition, I am writing this letter to get communication rolling.

All of us are aware of the possibility of a deadlocked election. There is obvious danger of the House voting along party loyalties. Without going into details we can test at the convention in Houston, my ready to go, system. This will demonstrate to all delegates how their grass-roots volunteers could use in turn "Citizens Response" to recruit supporters and volunteers. Ron Kaufman wrote to me that President was impressed with my brief presentation to him. Mr. Kaufman found my concept "sounds fascinating" and "the system has wide range implications for the future". At the directive of George Bush, Mr. Kaufman contacted political directors of the National Republican Committee and the campaign.

I admire George Bush for his ideals expressed in his inaugural address. I strongly believe that in next four years he will be able to lead our nation in building the new world order.

Sincerely,

Edward J. Corwin

Inside of this jacket is a Citizens Response Key with a Citizens Response Card and a soft lead pencil inserted in the base.

To ESTABLISH AN UNQUESTIONABLE MANDATE for AGENDA FOR AMERICAN RENEWAL and thus assure the REELECTION OF GEORGE BUSH --- speak-up and be counted in, by marking the Response Card in a manner which will make it a valid input for rapid, accurate and honest data processing. While maintaining privacy the system allows each participant to verify that his response was entered and counted correctly thus insuring the credibility of results and conclusions.

The input at this event is simplified. Since each participant will receive just one card there is no need of marking the key number and validation slots. Mark first in row Q (thru a slot in the pink key card) a "1", indicating this is response to Questionnaire number 1.

Then on line A respond to CHALLENGING THE WORLD: A STRATEGIC GLOBAL ECONOMIC AND TRADE POLICY - mark thru slot "9" for very strong support, use digits "8" thru "2" to show lesser degree of support, mark a "1" if you object or a "0" if you have no opinion on this issue.

Mark only one digit in each row.

In row B mark likewise your support for PREPARING OUR CHILDREN FOR THE 21st CENTURY

in row C mark your support for SHARPENING BUSINESS COMPETITIVE EDGE ENCOURAGING ENTREPRENEURIAL CAPITALISM

In row D mark your support for PROMOTING ECONOMIC SECURITY FOR WORKING PEOPLE

In row E support theme LEAVING NO ONE BEHIND ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY FOR EVERY AMERICAN

In row F support the action of "RIGHTSIZING" GOVERNMENT

In row G MARK WITH A "9 " I AM VOTING FOR BUSH, or with a "7" voting for Clinton, or with a "5" voting for Perot, or with a "3" undecided.

or with a "1" i will not vote at all.

In row H mark the first digit of your zip code

In row I " " second " " " " "

In row J " " third " " " " "

Leave row S unmarked.

BE SURE TO RETURN to the VOLUNTEER the entire response set.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

DEFINITIONS

On this Airbill, we, our and us refer to Federal Express Corporation, its employees and agents. You and your refer to the sender, its employees and agents.

AGREEMENT TO TERMS

By giving us your package to deliver, you agree to all the terms on this Airbill and in our current Service Guide, which is available on request. If there is a conflict between the current Service Guide and this Airbill, the Service Guide will control. No one is authorized to alter or modify the terms of our Agreement.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR PACKAGING AND COMPLETING AIRBILL

You are responsible for adequately packaging your goods and for properly filling out this Airbill. Omission of the number of packages and weight per package from this Airbill will result in a billing based on our best estimate of the number of packages received from you and an estimated "default" weight per package, as determined and periodically adjusted by us.

AIR TRANSPORTATION TAX INCLUDED

Our basic rate includes a federal tax required by Internal Revenue Code Section 4271 on the air transportation portion of this service.

LIMITATIONS ON OUR LIABILITY AND LIABILITIES NOT ASSUMED

Our liability for loss or damage to your package is limited to your actual damages or $100, whichever is less, unless you pay for and declare a higher authorized value. We do not provide cargo liability insurance, but you may pay an additional charge for each additional $100 of declared value. If you declare a higher value and pay the additional charge, our liability will be the lesser of your declared value or the actual value of your package.

In any event we will not be liable for any damages, whether direct, incidental, special or consequential in excess of the declared value of a shipment, whether or not Federal Express had knowledge that such damages might be incurred including, but not limited to, loss of income or profits.

We won't be liable for your acts or omissions, including but not limited to improper or insufficient packing, securing, marking or addressing, or for the acts or omissions of the recipient or anyone else with an interest in the package. Also, we won't be liable, if you or the recipient violates any of the terms of our agreement. We won't be liable for loss of or damage to shipments of prohibited items.

We won't be liable for loss, damage or delay caused by events we cannot control, including but not limited to acts of God, perils of the air, weather conditions, acts of public enemies, war, strikes, civil commotions, or acts or omissions of public authorities (including customs and quarantine officials) with actual or apparent authority.

DECLARED VALUE LIMITS

The highest declared value we allow for FedEx Letter and FedEx Pak shipments is $500. For other shipments, the highest declared value we allow is $25,000 unless your package contains items of "extraordinary value," in which case the highest declared value we allow is $500. Items of "extraordinary value," include artwork, jewelry, furs, precious metals, negotiable instruments, and other items listed in our current Service Guide.

If you send more than one package on this Airbill, you may fill in the total declared value for all packages, not to exceed the $100, $500 or $25,000 per package limit described above. (Example: 5 packages can have a total declared value of up to $125,000.)

If more than one package is shipped on this Airbill, our liability for loss or damage will be limited to the actual value of the package(s) lost or damaged (not to exceed the lesser of the total declared value or the per package limits described above). You have the responsibility of proving the actual loss or damage.

FILING A CLAIM

ALL CLAIMS MUST BE MADE BY YOU IN WRITING. You must notify us of your claim within strict time limits. See current Service Guide.

We'll consider your claim filed if you call and notify our Customer Service Department at 800-238-5355 and notify us in writing as soon as possible.

Within 90 days after you notify us of your claim, you must send us all relevant information about it. We are not obligated to act on any claim until you have paid all transportation charges, and you may not deduct the amount of your claim from those charges.

If the recipient accepts your package without noting any damage on the delivery record, we will assume that the package was delivered in good condition. In order for us to process your claim, you must, to the extent possible, make the original shipping cartons and packing available for inspection.

RIGHT TO INSPECT

We may, at our option, open and inspect your packages prior to or after you give them to us to deliver.

NO C.O.D. SERVICES

NO C.O.D. SERVICES ON THIS AIRBILL. If C.O.D. Service is required, please use a Federal Express C.O.D. airbill for this purpose.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR PAYMENT

Even if you give us different payment instructions, you will always be primarily responsible for all delivery costs, as well as any cost we may incur in either returning your package to you or warehousing it pending disposition.

RIGHT OF REJECTION

We reserve the right to reject a shipment at any time, when such shipment would be likely to cause damage or delay to other shipments, equipment or personnel, or if the transportation of which is prohibited by law or is in violation of any rules contained in this Airbill or our current Service Guide.

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

In the event of untimely delivery, Federal Express will at your request and with some limitations, refund or credit all transportation charges. See current Service Guide for further information.

SUBJ: PERSONAL CONCERNS RELATING TO THE UPCOMING ELECTION

Dear Mr. Baker,

1. I hope that you will have time to review this information. I regret that it has taken me this long to forward it. Nevertheless, I hope and pray that it isn't too late.

2. In order to expedite the transfer of information, I have faxed most (if not all) of the applicable documents. I am sending the hard copies via express postal (2 day delivery); I'll mail it tomorrow (30 Oct 92).

3. I can be reached at home at: (904) 456-1732. My work phone number is: DSN: 922-2460/3644. If I'm not home, please leave a message at my work number (open 24 hrs/day).

4. If requested, I'll provide personal references that can attest to the validity of all information contained herein.

Very respectfully,

William A. Randall Jr.

P.S.: I have an issue (on one of the "big 3" media networks) with SERIOUS implications, that may have been swept under the rug. If you can help me retrieve certain footage from this particular broadcast from nearly 2 years ago, it will vindicate them (I believe not), or, expose the "cover-up" (likely).

From: William A. Randall Jr.

To: The President of the United States of America

SUBJ: OVERVIEW OF VARIOUS CONCERNS

1. Introduction: Mr. President, I am a native-born, Black American citizen, a registered Democrat (...but that will change), and am currently on Active duty in the United States Navy. I know that election day is nearly upon us, and, somehow, I hope and pray that you will be able to review the information that follows (with sufficient time to use it) prior to November 3rd.

2. Verification of Information: Any and all statements can be verified and substantiated (in writing), upon request. Notwithstanding, in order to expedite the process, the following Naval Officer (currently serving in the Pentagon) can attest to the authenticity and validity of my enclosures:

...She happens to be my sister!

LCDR Alice RANDALL Flanders
CNO The Pentagon
N635C (Rm 5D773)
Washington, D.C. 20350-2000
Ph. #: (DSN: 225-8200; Fax: DSN: 225-3876)

3. TOPICS:a. William (Bill) Clinton:

1) On the "privileged few"...

a) Issue: Gov. Clinton stated (on or about 21 Oct 92) that, the current Administration's policies benefit the "privileged few, and give the rest of us the shaft".

b) Discussion: First of all, who are "the rest of US"? Like you, Mr. President, I know that we (as a nation) are going through a GLOBAL recession. As a matter of fact, Bill Clinton (while speaking to a group at the Wharton School of Business) on 18 Apr 92 stated that we're in a "tough global economy".

2) On appointing a homosexual in his administration...

- a) Issue: Gov. Clinton (specifically) vowed to appoint a homosexual to his administration.
- b) Discussion: I could point out many factors, especially the bias and distortion in various media in promoting this "alternate lifestyle". Suffice it to say that if Gov. Clinton is not aware that homosexuality is WRONG, and that individuals caught up in its deceptive web need compassion and prayer, then it should be no surprise that he'd sell-out to win the favor and support of the financially powerful (and influential) GAY RIGHTS groups.
- c) Remarks: There is a difference between hiring someone that you later found out to be a homosexual, and pledging to seek the services of someone known live and promote this behavior. Oddly enough, he often ends his speeches by asking "may God bless..."

3) On Gov. Clinton's remarks business initiatives in Arkansas...

- a) Issue: On 24 Jun 92, Gov. Clinton actually admitted that various corporations collectively asked the state's legislature to increase their taxes 1.5%, and put the generated revenues in a trust fund to be used SPECIFICALLY for educating the work force of Arkansas.
- b) Discussion: Was Gov. Clinton boasting? I believe it's pathetic for the business leaders to have to come and ask for such a deal. Is the Arkansas school system THAT BAD, Governor?
- c) Remarks: Don't ask Gov. Clinton about it; he probably didn't mean what he said (and boasted about).

4) On Gov. Clinton's criticism of "Read my lips"...

- a) Issue: During the debates, Gov. Clinton stated that your mistake was made by saying "read my lips" and making a promise to begin with. Yet he (Gov. Clinton) himself said "Read My Plan ... I'LL NOT RAISE TAXES ON THE MIDDLE CLASS"
- b) Discussion: I haven't heard the media resurface this one, and I'm not surprised.
- c) Remarks: Interestingly enough, Gov. Clinton admitted that "I want to produce more millionaires like Bush and Reagan (did)". (I believe this statement by Gov. Clinton was made on 21 Aug 92)

5) On Gov. Clinton's criticism of the unemployment rate...

- a) Issue: Gov. Clinton continues to beat the drum that too many Americans are unemployed.
- b) Discussion: The high school dropout rate is 28%; many veterans are attempting to enter the work force; automation has taken many factory jobs; Defense contractors and military bases are closing across the nation. Despite all of this, our inflation is lower than most of the world AND the economy continues to show growth.
- c) Remarks: Yes, this nation still has many problems (and the jobless rate is a major one). But all branches of government must be involved in the working of solutions and continued recovery. There is no need for doom and gloom...

b. H. "Ross" PEROT:

1) On his claim that he belongs to his "volunteers" alone...

- a) Issue: Whose interests will he actually represent, if elected?
- b) Discussion: If Mr. Perot actually belonged to his volunteers, then why did he drop out of the race in July 1992 without their being consulted? Furthermore, are the personal affairs of his family "all it takes to shake him up that much"?
- c) Remarks: What if he had the responsibility as Commander in Chief (as the ultimate decision-maker) with many OTHER sons and daughters' lives at stake? Furthermore, how will he perform as president, if, as admitted during the debate, he has "very little tolerance for non-performance"? Does this mean that he isn't patient when dealing with others? Will he exercise the same "diplomacy" when dealing with other heads of state?

c. Other Concerns:

1) On Erving "Magic" Johnson's resignation...

a) Issue: Why did he resign?

b) Discussion: President Bush, you should be commended for making an appointment such as this. He ("Magic") is well known and quite popular. Furthermore, HE HAS THE AIDS VIRUS! If anyone had a "GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY" and squandered it--- look no further. I mean, he was ONLY appointed by the President of the U.S.A. If he believed that beauracracy stood in the way, why didn't he do all he could to have the concerns addressed to the White House (appointed staff, and the President). My question is: Why not open the dialogue with the Executive branch, discuss problems and concerns, explore all options, and be willing to cooperate! I'm dissappointed in his lack of resolve in "going the last mile" in getting more meaningful government involvement.

2) On Desert Storm...

a) Issue: Enclosed is a front page of the "Financial Times Europe" on Aug 09, 1990. The issue is: The entire world needed someone to take the lead. ...President Bush DID!

b) Discussion: I don't think that many in the news media circle have been able to remember that you literally united the world in the midst of turmoil. All military was SOBERED to the possibility of actually going to war. Reservists were recalled from ALL 50 STATES! The nation prayed, and prayed some more. Then you, Mr. President, looked into the camera, with all the resolve of F.D.R, Lincoln and Churchill... and told the people of America that "we're gonna bring our troops back home". Well, you did.

c) President Bush, you have already set yourself apart as a true world leader. History was redirected by your leadership and resolve.

3) On personal discipline in finances...

- a) Issue: Many Americans feel that they can't make ends meet...
- b) Discussion: In many instances, it is wanting too much, too soon. Many that have been given student loans have not paid them back

[REDACTED] We as a nation must exercise more discipline in our finances. It isn't just how much you make (and I know that you want all Americans to improve their standard of living), rather, it is what you do with what you earn that often makes the difference. We (Americans) spend over $1,200 for every $1,000 [REDACTED] No wonder we complain that government hasn't done enough. We need to look in the mirror and see the main culprit.

- c) Remarks: Of course, there are those who are unemployed, are homeless and single parents (the strength of the family ties into these). John Kennedy said (as I'm sure you're familiar): "Ask NOT what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country. ...With a good conscience, our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love. Asking His blessing, and His help, but knowing that here on earth, God's work must truly be our own."

4) On David Duke's bid for Governor of Louisiana...

- a) Issue: (professing) REPUBLICAN David Duke makes a strong bid for Governor of Louisiana.
- b) Discussion: I am a native Louisianian (raised in New Orleans). I marvel that anyone would criticize your straightforward denunciation of David Duke's legitimacy as a candidate. I feel that your remarks were sincere (i.e: you didn't add rhetoric, or give a shred of credibility to Duke supporters), and it wasn't partisan!

- c) Remarks: Did anyone notice that you (in essence) supported a Democrat running for Governor. You didn't play "party politics". (Note: It's true in this instance, as well as in your support of Clarence Thomas as the best qualified MAN for the job, as well as many other actions that have taken place under your Administration).

4. CONCLUSION:

I am honored to be an American! I pray that you are re-elected. My wife and I have already voted (absentee), and we're confident that we'll see you serve

FOUR MORE YEARS!

Very respectfully,

William A. Randall Jr.

Dear Mr. President:

1. I am in the Navy, and previously served on COMSIXTHFLT Staff (Mar 89-Mar 92), embarked in the USS Belknap (CG 26), Gaeta, Italy. Before I get into other details, allow me to make you smile:

a. I was the Staff Meteorologist assigned to the Admiral when you came for the Summit with Mr. Gorbachev in Malta.

3) I gave an extended to long-range forecast prior to departing on leave (the enclosed message outlines the scenario). Against my recommendation, the Staff Oceanographer (then LCDR) Warrenfeitz opted to decline additional/backup meteorological support. Well, you know what happened. Many others notified me (upon my return) that you had to "grant a PARDON to the weatherman". Also, I have a commemorative ball cap (from Malta, DEC 89), and will send it in the next few weeks).

2. Thank you, sir... for your steadfast, visionary leadership. May the Lord bless and keep you, your wife, family and staff.

Very respectfully,

William A. Randall Jr.

Iraqi annex Kuwait • US forces arrive in Saudi Arabia • Armada of naval forces continues to grow

Bush pledges to defend Gulf allies

By Peter Riddell in Washington and Tony Walker in Cairo

PRESIDENT George Bush yesterday pledged that the US would defend Saudi Arabia and other Gulf allies from Iraqi aggression. He spoke as the first American airborne forces and combat aircraft started arriving in the desert kingdom in the biggest US defence build-up since the Vietnam war.

In London, Mr. Douglas Hurd, the UK Foreign Secretary, said Britain would send naval and air forces to join a multinational effort to defend Saudi Arabia and other threatened states.

Iraq, in a statement by the ruling Revolutionary Command Council broadcast on Baghdad television, declared "a comprehensive and eternal" alliance between Iraq and Kuwait, the effective annexation of the tiny Gulf state which was overruled by President Saddam Hussein's army last Thursday. A request for the member puppet government installed in Kuwait by Iraq had been broadcast earlier.

In a nationally televised address to rally the American people in support of his policy, President Bush promised that US forces had not been sent to initiate hostilities. They had gone to Saudi Arabia in a defensive capacity and their mission was not to drive Iraq out.

The rapid build-up of US ground and air forces, reinforced by a growing armada of naval forces from the US and other western allies such as Britain and France, is intended to deter further aggression by Iraq.

President Bush said he expected the UN-agreed sanctions to bite fairly soon, if forces out of Kuwait. They hoped, would be accomplished by the comprehensive economic sanctions adopted by the United Nations Security Council.

In Washington, the Pentagon refused to give the precise numbers of the US forces sent to Saudi Arabia, but General Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said that US fighters had already taken up positions and that a combat-ready brigade of troops would have arrived by last night.

Privately, US officials said the initial contingent would comprise 50,000 troops and 160 aircraft, 50 of which were understood to be F-16s.

The US forces are equipped with tanks and protective clothing to deal with the threat of chemical weapons being used by Iraq. This follows intelligence reports that stocks of such weapons might be being moved near the Saudi border by the Iraqis.

Mr. Bush's speech was seen as a warning to Iraq that the US would defend its allies. He said the US would not allow Iraq to threaten the security of the Gulf.

Americans and Britons prepare to flee

By Mark Nicholson in Dubai and a correspondent in Bahrain

HUNDREDS of US and British citizens prepared to flee the Gulf states in a panic over the possibility of a full-scale invasion of Kuwait by Iraq.

The following is a partial list of the names of those who have fled the Gulf states in a panic over the possibility of a full-scale invasion of Kuwait by Iraq.

DAY'S EVENTS

• Iraq television broadcasts a statement saying the country has merged with Kuwait.

• President Bush calls on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait immediately and unconditionally.

• No one should doubt US determination to fight aggression in the Gulf, he says. Action is purely defensive, and to drive Iraq from Kuwait.

• Damascus says King Fahd and leaders of Syria, Egypt, Algeria, Morocco, Jordan, Libya, Yemen and Tunisia have agreed to attend a summit, probably in Cairo on Thursday.

• US troops, part of the biggest American military campaign since Vietnam, start landing in Saudi Arabia. US aircraft carrier Eisenhower moves through Suez Canal into Red Sea.

• US calls for talks with allies on strategic oil stocks, and for oil companies not to profit; asks other oil-producing countries to replace embargoed oil.

• UK decides to send troops (mainly naval and air force) to join the multinational force. France reluctant to join task force.

• Iraqi oil exports are reported to have come to a standstill, with oil terminal storage tanks full.

• Libya's to increase hut insurance premiums sharply. World tanker market is reported to be at a virtual standstill.

• Oil price falls in volatile trading in Europe, dollar regains some strength.

• Wall St times, European stock markets generally mixed, with London closing up 1.7 points, some recovery in Far East markets.

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY

UNITED STATES SIXTH FLEET FLEET POST OFFICE
NEW YORK 09501-6002

14 March 1991

Dear Wendy,

As Operation DESERT STORM draws to a conclusion, I'd like to let you know how very proud I am of Bill's contribution to the war effort. It was a conflict which, if poorly handled, could have been a great scar on our country's fiber. The results speak for themselves.

Although the Sixth Fleet seldom made the headlines, we played an important supporting role. It was Sixth Fleet ships that were integral to the buildup of naval forces in the Red Sea and Persian Gulf operational areas. At the same time, it fell on the shoulders of the smallest, hardest-working fleet staff in the Navy to organize and direct the defense of the Mediterranean theater and prevent the extension of the war beyond the borders of Iraq and Kuwait. The Suez Canal stayed open for the first time during a Middle East war and Libya's Khaddafi stayed in his tent.

The world's attention has been and will continue to be on the spectacular success of our allied forces in liberating Kuwait, and rightly so. My attention, however, is on Bill and the rest of my staff.

When the world reflects on the heroes of Operation DESERT STORM, my thoughts will be on the unsung heroes of COMSIXTHFLT. God bless you and your family.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM A. OWENS

Department of Energy
Washington, D.C. 20461

JUN 27 1978

Mr. William A. Randall, Jr.
VP-23 NAS
Brunswick, Maine 04011

Dear Mr. Randall:

Thank you for your letter of March 6, 1978, to President Carter suggesting a new approach to increasing carpool participation.

The Department of Energy (DOE) agrees with you that more needs to be done to reduce energy consumption in the transportation sector. The National Energy Plan (NEP) announced by President Carter on April 20, 1977, included a number of measures for conserving fuel in all economic sectors, including transportation. The thrust of the NEP is to change the economics of energy use to encourage business and consumers to use less energy in carrying out their activities. Any revenues generated by the proposed taxes which would affect the price of transportation fuels are to be rebated directly to individuals to alleviate personal hardship and to maintain a healthy economy.

solution!

At this time, DOE does not plan to conduct any demonstration projects. However, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration (UMTA) recently completed a related study entitled, "Feasibility Study of Shared-Ride Auto Transit." It was cautiously favorable on commuter operations similar to your proposed US-A-POOL program. However, questions are raised over personal security, reliability and social acceptability as well as legal and regulatory problems at Federal, State and local levels. For more information on UMTA's role you may contact: Mr. Paul Fish, Office of Service and Methods Demonstrations, UMD20, Urban Mass Transportation Administration, Washington, D.C. 20590, telephone number: 202-426-4984.

We appreciate your interest in energy conservation.

Sincerely,

Sydney D. Berwager

A Proclamation

For a Day of National Humiliation
Fasting and Prayer

Whereas, the Senate of the United States, devoutly recognizing the Supreme Authority and Just Government of Almighty God, in all the affairs of men and of nations, has, by a resolution, requested the President to designate and set apart a day for National prayer and humiliation.

And whereas it is the duty of nations, as well as of men, to own their dependence upon the overruling power of God, to confess their sins and transgressions, in humble sorrow, yet with assured hope that genuine repentance will lead to mercy and pardon; and to recognize the sublime truth, announced in the Holy Scriptures and proven by all history, that those nations only are blessed whose God is the Lord.

And, inasmuch as we know that, by His divine law, nations, like individuals, are subjected to punishments and chastisements in this world, may we not justly fear that the awful calamity of civil war, which now desolates the land, may be but a punishment inflicted upon us for our presumptuous sins, to the needful end of our national reformation as a whole People? We have been the recipients of the choicest bounties of Heaven. We have been preserved, these many years, in peace and prosperity. We have grown in numbers, wealth, and power as no other nation has ever grown. But we have forgotten God. We have forgotten the gracious hand which preserved us in peace, and multiplied and enriched and strengthened us; and we have vainly imagined, in the deceitfulness of our hearts, that all these blessings were produced by some superior wisdom and virtue of our own. Intoxicated with unbroken success, we have become too self-sufficient to feel the necessity of redeeming and preserving grace, too proud to pray to the God that made us! It behooves us, then, to humble ourselves before the offended Power, to confess our national sins, and to pray for demerit and forgiveness.

Now, therefore, in compliance with the request, and fully concurring in the views of the Senate,
I do, by this my proclamation, designate and set apart Thursday, the 30th day of April, 1863, as a day of national humiliation, fasting, and prayer. And I do hereby request all the People to abstain on that day from their ordinary secular pursuits, and to unite, at their several places of public worship and their respective homes, in keeping the day holy to the Lord, and devoted to the humble discharge of the religious duties proper to that solemn occasion.

All this being done, in sincerity and truth, let us then rest humbly in the hope authorized by the Divine teachings, that the united cry of the Nation will be heard on high, and answered with blessings, no less than the pardon of our national sins, and restoration of our now divided and suffering country, to its former happy condition of unity and peace.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand, and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this thirtieth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-seventh.

A Plan for President Bush — for William Baker, Chief of Staff.

NNN

Under present circumstances the President does not have a remote chance of being re-elected. The present barn-storming, flag-waving, hand-touching tour will not get him one new vote. Well, perhaps thirteen. Hope I'm wrong.

He needs a bomb-plasting event to gain the attention and renewed respect of untold millions of American people.

Some of what is mentioned below has been said or proposed before, often wisely, not really understood or taken seriously by the American people. What is needed is a cohesive package that starts now to improve our dreadful economic situation — and in five years have the basic problems wiped out.

Lets face it: a true super-power has a sound, solid economic base; we are damn far from it.

The Plan — Phase I

1) The number one priority: the DEFICIT — begin now, get it under control:

a) Propose a National Lottery or Sweepstake or some other palatable name — whose sole purpose is to practically eradicate this 4 trillion monster.

4) 60% to Gov. for this single purpose, IN TRUST, not commingled in general fund.

40% to ticket buyers, with participation.
Somewhat along following lines -

First - 10 Million (Maximum)

Second - 5 "

Third - 1 "

Fourth - 5 hundred thousand.

Fifth - 50 Thousand

This, is, immediately above, taxable at a flat 10% and not included in income of winners.

Of course you are going to need an actuary and experts in lotteries to work out details.

Of course too, you are going to hear yowls and howls to high heaven — quote, "that's a hell of a way to run a Railroad". The answer is simple: we have already run the damn thing off the tracks — damaging everything in its path and it is still running.

Americans are not afraid to take chances — in fact, many of us are here because our ancestors took a chance. We still do. Consider please. —

1. The Stock Markets and that "Pit" in Chicago — possibly the biggest gamble of them all.

- 2- Bingo, church sponsored
- 3- Dog racing
- 4- Horse racing
- 5- Gambling on Indian Reservations
- 6- Las Vegas and Atlantic City
- 7- State lotteries: in some 26 states
- 8- Mail order attempted inducements:

- 9- Mississippi ^{River} Boat Gambling
- 10- Betting on sports events.

There are possibly others I don't think of;
certainly starting a new small business is a gamble.
I have been through that ring.

Two ^{or more} aspects will be needed to get this plough-horse on the road: as part of the bill -

Any diversion of funds, any skimming, any embezzlement, irrevocably proved, will incur mandatory prison sentence of 10 years ~~and~~ and restitution of funds; no plea-bargaining, no appeal, no parole ~~is~~.

Bill subject to review at end of five years — in fact shall become null and void at that time unless renewed thru proper channels.

Pant and parcel to bill shall be a strong provision to really balance budget. The Federal Gov. is the biggest industry in this magnificent land. How in hell beautiful blue ~~hell~~^{hells} can we continue to grossly spend more than we take in? Aside from dangerous economic and population consequences, what an example we have set for our people and the rest of the ^{world} — if, in our present condition.

I should think deficits should arise only in case of dire emergencies — unavoidable war, huge earthquakes, devastation by destiny in the form of volcanic action, hurricanes, tornados, enormous floods and fires, and some contamination.

The biggest problem you will face is getting this thru the House and the Senate. It can be done. You are going to have a lot of new persons there, many of whom will be acquainted with the slipshod spending habits of these two legislative bodies (if they don't they should not be there) Not ONE of the candidates has proposed a definitive plan to get this mind-boggling incubus off our backs. Supply side Economics, Trickle-Down Economics might do it in a 1000 years if the Earth remains intact; TAXES? It's the dirtiest word in the English language. Cost-cutting? yes, to some extent but won't make much of a dent in a debt of over 4 Trillion dollars.

There is more to come to swell that debt: possibly several hundred DANKS, Question? To what extent is the Federal Gov. responsible for what I call ~~quasi~~ Quasi-Gov. agencies? — Fannie Mae, Freddy Mae, Sally Mae and all the other MAES and possible agencies that do not come to mind.

The Plan — Phase II

- 1) Reinstall the Invest Tax credit.
- 2) Accelerated ~~tax~~ ~~depreciation~~ depreciation.
- 3) Repeal Capital Gains Tax as it now stands; if compromise^{NEEDED}, go back to the 25% capital gain that served us reasonably well for so long. I personally am against any such Tax.

4) Sorely needed by the President — LINE ITEM VETO. Why compel him or her (when the time comes)^{to} kill a good bill simply because some junk has been added thereto?

5) Of course there are other problems in this most complex time — both here and abroad. We must be constantly aware of those 15 to 30 thousand nuclear war heads in Russia, in areas once a part of Russia — and mindful of those countries working constantly to achieve nuclear ability, gas, germ, viral weaponry.

I do not necessarily equate high intelligence, education, shrewdness with sound judgement, which seems to carry an innate characteristic. Perot has it to some extent — ie, until he gets 'blocked' and then becomes manipulative. Clinton is learned, has good advice and is smooth as a wax-polished apple. Bush has it, plus multi-faceted experience — all so sorely needed in these fragmented times. Bush needs both visionary and practical persons around him — men of integrity, not afraid to speak out.

The National Debt is a National Disgrace — Like unto a national disease. You have found a cure that can begin to work very soon. Certainly there will be some ^{side} effects — ~~but~~ ^{but} can be controllable.

Psychologically and practically the impact will be enormous. People and business can begin to plan ahead with certainty. RE-NEWED confidence is contagious. You will see increased activity in practically all parts of the business world — with ^{great} job opportunities. And, you will see increased ^{spending} by the general public. Such plan will also have good impact on foreign nations.

Without question, you will wash out the doubtful, dour atmosphere that absorbs most of this country now.

Certainly these are other problems the President has to handle — or, unhandle, if wisdom points the way: the incapable poor and homeless (not forgetting some of these homeless are wanderers by inclination and choice) health and medical care, insurance, our decimating environment, pollution, racial discrimination, over-all polarization, drugs, crime, education — and God knows how many others.

Certainly President Bush is going to need help — not only from the best minds in his appointments, from Congress, from Governors, from state and local officials and from the people of this country.

Right now, I respectfully suggest he cease Clinton bashing; that he return to Washington, go on prime time and reiterate a cohesive ~~and~~ overall plan that will cover what he proposes for the short term and the long haul — in simple terms, in detail that can be understood by the millions who will listen to him.

You must know I am not for a 'Gambling' President. The lottery is simply a pill to cure a disabling disease. The pill taking stops when cure is achieved.

For immediate emergencies and/or operations, a reduction in waste (why would the Pentagon need 30 years of size 12 blouses) Peter Grace would be the man for that job; a 4 to 5 year moratorium on all but essential space flights; similar hold on Super-Collider, get our military and hardware out of England, Europe and Japan; moratorium on Peace Corp.; eliminate costly franking privilege and other 'Perks' of the Congress, including once-a-

WEEK home to visit the folks, subdue office staffing both in Washington and on home turf, ETC, ETC.

If any of this has MERIT in your judgement, please feel free to use it — but I do not wish to be identified in any way. I am close to 85 years in my time frame and no longer run the hon hurdles. Chronologically, some impairment, ontologically I am still here to some extent, but I must avoid harassment of any sort — such as constant phone calls, piles of objectionable letters, trash dumped in patio etc. I also need to protect my wife and family.

I wish you well — and hope you will stay with President Bush. You deserve the thanks of this nation.

Sincerely,

V. clamentis

Scrap my infomercial idea. Run the "Infidelity Ad" SAP. There will be a great controversy. The media will make this the main story until Tuesday. The President will take some heat and lose a few votes, to the tune of maybe 1%. It will drop Clinton by 3% to 5%. It is a net gain of 2 to 4 points that could make the difference between victory of defeat. This commercial should be run at all hours to cater to the woman voter.

1988

Here, the candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination, in 1987; and (right) in 1958, with his mother and father after the senior Senator Gore's victory in Tennessee's Democratic primary

ALBERT GORE, JR.:

"Even I was surprised at the speed with which I decided to run for Congress. I hung up the phone and got down on the floor and started doing push-ups for the race"

First, as always in this telegenic age, consider the looks: a jaw that could jut from Rushmore; steady eyes under a brow that remains smooth even in the tussle of campaign debate; a strong, manly frame. In Tennessee talk, Albert Gore, Jr., is flat-out handsome. Not sexy, take-your-breath-away handsome, but commandingly, intelligently, Presidentially handsome.

Then, there is the voice. Self-confident, above all. Without regional accent except for the stressing of an occasional syllable—like somebody, or accident—which gives away a rural, Southern background, but doesn't materially detract from the message. The message itself arrives on alternating tonal scales, as if someone were turning the volume of a radio up and down. There is a gentle folksy sound for self-deprecating humor and then a noisy BOOM, almost frightening, for thundering against the possibility of an America in decline, lacking leadership. "It's time we steered by the stars," he says in that part of his stump speech where he all but orders the suffering environment and our educational and health-care systems to hold on until he is able to take charge. "Politics is about change and [about] the future," he says, subtly reminding his audience that he, a forty-year-old Democrat from the New South who espouses a conservative foreign policy backed by military strength, a determined civil-rights agenda, and a domestic policy concerned with the vulnerable and needy, may represent both.

Finally, there is the style. The well-cut suit, the crisp shirt, the de rigueur candidate's red tie, all of it encasing the body of a natural athlete. The image is all but perfect; in fact, Gore is all but too perfect, a cardboard cut-out of a candidate, the very image of reserved, predictable respectability.

So much for appearances. Now, his background: son and namesake of an influential United States senator and scion of an old political family, which should appeal to those who revere roots; formative years spent living in the nation's capital; a Harvard education with some graduate work in divinity school later on, to satisfy intellectuals and idealists; and even a bit of law school, to appease the world of commerce. The combination produces an image of confidence, coolness, comfort, and conformity. It seems the essence of the Establishment.

But wait. This ambitious professional politician, elected to the House for four terms, and then (Continued on page 56) to the Senate in 1984, has been overwhelmingly successful at collecting votes among unsophisticated dirt farmers, Appalachian poor, and piney-woods backwater folks in Tennessee. At the same time that Ronald Reagan carried the state by 60 percent, Gore attracted 61 percent of the vote. Something else must lurk behind his superficially untouchable image, something that reaches out to ordinary people and, beyond them, to the disadvantaged.

And there is. For in the 'fifties, citified Gore was something of a Tom Sawyer, growing up in a town too small to make most maps, sloshing manure out of pig parlors before dawn—a country boy imbued with the values of people who sweat for a living and pray on Sunday for their immortal souls.

"I grew up in both Washington and Carthage," he says, "spending half of every year in each place. But it was easy to choose which was really home, mainly because the choice was between the top floor of a hotel port and strength when I'd say, 'Aw, c'mon, don't talk that way.'"

Gore often speaks admiringly of his mother, "one of the first two women to graduate from Vanderbilt Law School in the 'thirties, a pioneer." But it's when speaking of his father that cracks shoot through the glassy reserve. "He was a real hero—he had guts. Tennessee is the Volunteer State, and to lead Congressional opposition to the Vietnam War was tough—the family knew what the implications would be for his reelection. Then he opposed Haynesworth and Carswell, Nixon's nominees to the Supreme Court—battles he fought for the sheer joy of doing the right thing. When Nixon and Agnew made him their Number One target in the 1970 election, he lost, but he went down fighting."

The loyal son gives the impression that he would gladly rewrite history to redress the perceived wrong of his father's defeat. Perhaps that is exactly what he has accomplished by snatching the Senate seat back for the family. And before his election, he literally had done battle for his father, enlisting in 1969, to serve in Vietnam, even though and a 250-acre farm with horses and canoes and wide open spaces. It was in Tennessee that I developed an appreciation for strong family ties and hard physical labor—getting up long before the sun, working a couple of hours until breakfast, working till lunch, then after dinner helping a neighbor take up hay."

Anyone living in the South at that time, when schools, bathrooms, buses, and lunch counters were still segregated, will attest to the divisiveness spawned in communities—indeed, within families by the developing racial confrontation. Again, Gore credits his small-town upbringing for allowing him to escape the bitterness. "Carthage is situated in a hilly area where the slave economy never took hold. A liberal tradition grew up there that was strengthened during the New Deal."

At a time when fire hoses and dogs began backing down the black population, Senator Albert Gore, Sr., the candidate's father, was one of only three senators in the region who refused to sign the Southern Manifesto after the Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka decision in 1954. "When things were changing," the son remembers, "you encountered literally thousands of conversations when you had to decide what your personal reaction was going to be when somebody used the word nigger, or expressed a view that was hateful and out-of-date. I had it easier because of the way Carthage was. We were sort of proud that we had a good, progressive town. That made it easier to find sup-passionate in his opposition to the war.

He offers two explanations: "If my draft board had been in Washington or in Boston, where I was in school, it might have been an abstract dilemma; and I would have more than likely done what so many of my classmates did, that is, find some legal way to get out of it. The system was so unfair. Those who had some privilege—education or whatever—could find a way out. But my draft board was in Carthage; and it was no secret who was on the board, and no secret that if I didn't go, one of my friends would go in my place. I couldn't see myself attending his going-away party, then walking down Main Street as if nothing had happened. The second factor was that my father was in a tough race. Ironically, the best way I could oppose the war was by going to it, thereby marginally strengthening his hand, so I volunteered."

Gore appears to be a product of both good genes and good luck. His parents must have instilled a propensity for diligence in their son, for Gore hauled in academic and athletic honors from a young age. "I've always been committed to excellence," he says. "I believe in the old saying 'The harder I work, the luckier I get.'"

But the young Gore wasn't interested in politics. Watergate, the war, and his father's defeat had turned initial enthusiasm into disgust. Married to his one and only sweetheart, whom he met at a high-school graduation party and dated all through college, he returned (Continued on page 62) to Tennessee after the war and started divinity school. "Because of the soul-searching I had gone through over the decision to serve," he explains, "I wanted a structured opportunity to explore the deeper questions in my life." Soon, however, his questions became more pragmatic, and he enrolled at Vanderbilt Law School, concurrently working full-time as a reporter for the Nashville Tennessean. Again, luck intervened. "By that time, my coverage of government as a reporter had begun to rekindle an interest in politics, but even I was surprised at the speed with which I decided to run for Congress. I got a telephone call one day that said the Congressman in my area was going to retire. I hung up the phone and told my wife, Tipper, 'I'm going to run.' And got down on the floor and started doing push-ups for the race."

Enter Mary Elizabeth Aitcheson, "Tipper": perfect wife for the perfect candidate. Pretty, as a cheerleader or homecoming queen is pretty, she terms her marriage a "modern-traditional" one. In this permissive age, it is admittedly rare to find a pair who have no romantic history other than each other. But she appears genuinely surprised at the suggestion that she and Al might have lived together during part of their long courtship. "You have to understand," she says, forgetting that the 'sixties were the glory years of flower children and free love, "I was raised by my mother and grandmother in a different era—not like the sexual revolution we've seen."

Tipper Gore's continuing combat with certain outward manifestations of the sexual revolution are the reason that she was better known to many before the '88 campaign than her husband. If her husband does make it to the White House, this is one First Lady who will not leave it to press secretaries to decide her causes: she sets her own agenda. Though she serves on the Board of the National Mental Health Association and is founding chair of Families for the Homeless, she has attracted the most attention as a founder of the Parents' Music Resource Center, an organization that has succeeded in having "parental advisory labels" affixed to record albums with "explicit lyrics." When a Sunday-school teacher look-alike reels off those pornographic and sexually violent lines, absent the hard rock and heavy metal background, their repugnance is laid bare. She made her point nationally in a book entitled Raising PG Kids in an X-Rated Society and struck a societal nerve. When Al Gore walks into campaign rallies now, fans hand him her book to autograph, while some hold signs with slogans like "Grandmas for Tipper." Though some have construed her efforts as censorship and have warned her husband that the book might hurt his chances, "He never told me not to do it," she claims. "I think that speaks to our relationship and his courage as a politician."

The marriage, which is now in its nineteenth year, has produced four children and appears marked by an active mutual respect. When asked to outline her husband's finest qualities, she lists "his intelligence and ability to analyze problems in a cool way and bring disparate interests together for a consensus. He does not lose his temper. I'm not just saying this because it's politic—but we have very few disagreements."

But some call him wooden rather than cool. Even his friend and New York campaign manager Congressman Tom Downey urges him to loosen up "and be hilarious as you are in the Senate gym." There may be a flip bit of truth in the saying under his caricature in his school yearbook: "People who have no weaknesses are terrible."

And clearly, Gore's age is a mixed blessing. On the one hand, he is running against history—the country has never elected a President so young. On the other, his youth could appeal to those yearning for an energetic, activist Presidency: tough enough to handle the Russians, caring enough to house the homeless. Gore claims he can manage both.

If, however, the Presidency is too high a reach too soon, his obvious physical attractiveness, competent Congressional service, and moderate Southern background make him the second choice of many who dream up winning combinations. Now, he prefers to discount a Vice Presidential nod. "I might very well turn it down," he said recently. "Indeed, I probably would." By August, however, that staunch determination could be history.

In either slot, Gore could prove to be a potent vote-getter. FINALLY A DEMOCRAT YOU CAN VOTE FOR, his campaign slogan reads, a blatant appeal to Southerners and Democratic conservatives who voted Republican in four out of the last five national elections, having given up on the kind of get-tough policy that approves of American ships patrolling the Persian Gulf and the deployment of the MX missile, while at home "borrows $500 million dollars every twenty-four hours" to service our staggering national debt. His strong suit will be everything scientific, from ozone layers and toxic chemicals to organ transplants, information gathered by conducting sixty-eight Congressional hearings. His acknowledged specialty, advanced weapons systems and arms control, may be unmatched by any other candidate; the country could find it comforting to advance toward the twenty-first century with a technocrat conducting nuclear negotiations. And if the electorate can get past the all-too-perfect image to the duality in Gore's nature—that city-country, East-ern-Southern, liberal-conservative combination—it may respond favorably.

Dear Mr. Baker;

I got to know President Bush personally when he was a Director of Texasgulf, and at the tennis club at Kennebunkport. I became an active supporter when he first ran for President. Like most people, probably including yourself, I am deeply troubled by the present campaign. There is a failure to communicate.

You are telling people why they shouldn't vote for Gov. Clinton, but not really telling people why they should vote for President Bush. Here's a suggestion that will handle the economic issue without comparing complicated economic plans, at the same time putting some teeth into "Trust me - not him"

The Basic Concept:

In his first term, President Bush focused on defeating communism and winning the cold war. His second term will focus on improving our economic well-being. Don't you think he will be successful in this as well?

Expansion:

During President Bush's first term there was one overwhelming world problem: the threat of nuclear war. This threat affected all of our lives, the terrible destruction of hydrogen warheads was in the back of everyone's mind.

President Bush won the cold war to a large extent by forcing the USSR to try to match our technological achievements in military hardware. Although many liberal Democrats fought against the defense budgets, President Bush persisted. Soon the USSR was spending such a large percentage of their Gross National Product on the military that the civilian population grew unhappy.

President Bush's successful prosecution of the Gulf War made it clear even to the USSR military, that they could not compete, and the cold war was concluded. However, we paid and are paying a heavy economic price for this successful strategy, but it is worth it to have our children grow up without the threat of global warfare hanging over them.

45 more nations have embraced democracy since President Bush took office. World trade barriers have been reduced. And as a leader in technology and the most efficient producer in the world, the United States of America will benefit greatly from world trade with other democracies.

Comparison

This is a difficult election. Many of us are suffering economic difficulties. We disagree with some of President Bush's stands, and Governor Clinton makes an impressive appearance. How can we decide which candidate will do best?

The only way we can guess what will happen in the future is to look at the past. Look at each man's record of accomplishment, and also try to judge his character in times of adversity to estimate what he might do in the future.

Although Governor Clinton has made some improvements in his home state of Arkansas during his 12 years, his state still ranks from 45 to 50th in most categories of measurement compared to all the other states in the union.

After 12 years under Gov. Clinton, his state is 47th in per capita income, 48th in percent of people living in poverty, 50th in teacher pay, 50th in per capita spending on police, 48th in all-over environmental quality and 50th in child death rates.

There are some areas that have smaller numbers - Arkansas has the second highest youth unemployment rate in America, and no civil rights laws. State debt has doubled, and government management was rated 41st worst. And to produce all these achievements, Gov. Clinton has given the citizens of Arkansas the 17th highest tax burden in our nation.

There are questions raised about Gov. Clinton's character and the many variations of truth that he has espoused. Contrast that with President Bush's character. He has admitted his one major error on raising taxes. Gov. Clinton has admitted nothing and puts a spin on everything.

Summary

Most economists agree that the economy has bottomed out, and things will improve. Gov. Clinton wants to make massive "investments" that will come out of the taxpayer's pockets. This approach in Arkansas produced high taxes and meager improvements in the economy. But President Bush's concepts of free enterprise opportunity and world trade will lead to accelerated and lasting growth.

Gov. Clinton wants change. But from his record it seems that the changes he wants are more spending, bigger government, and more taxes. He does not want to change the way government works - unlike President Bush, he is against term limits.

In fact, in spite of all his talk, Gov. Clinton can't make much of a change. He has too much baggage. He is the figurehead and the representative of the entrenched Democratic Congress. They don't want term limits, or changes in the way government works. Democrats in Congress have seniority. They just want more of the same.

In his first term, President Bush focused on defeating communism and winning the cold war. His second term will be dedicated to improving our economic well-being.

Based on Clinton's record in Arkansas, and Bush's record in the world, don't you think that George Bush will do more for you in the next four years? How can you vote against the man who fulfilled the 50-year old dream from World War One to "Make the World Safe for Democracy" and who created "peace in our time"?

Bush produces. Clinton promises.

Last suggestion

A half hour TV shortly before election day, touted as the all-or-nothing time as to why you should vote for George Bush (this shows guts and will get an audience of the undecided). Base it on the "Agenda for American Renewal", keep it simple and use lots of visual aids.

Dear Mr. Baker & Co.:

If you people lose this election it will be because the President hasn't made most of the arguments and points that he could have made in his own defense and against Gov. Clinton.

In the first place, the economy is nowhere near as bad as the media has constantly portrayed it. See the enclosed report. Secondly, ~~why~~ blame the President when companies streamline their staffs to become more efficient and be able to stay in business. I've lost four jobs in my long career but never once thought to blame the current President. How could he help it?

And why no mention of such things as Clinton's taking $2.6 million from the Trial Lawyers Assn. - meaning that there will be no tax reform in the next four years. And Clinton's promise to the union leaders to support all their bills to control government employees, and to wipe out all Right to Work laws with one stroke of the pen. 75% of the population supports Right to Work and there are 500,000 members of the Natl. Right to Work Committee, like me, who have given money to it for many years. Why overlook them?

After hearing "60 Minutes" last night I believe Pres. Bush could win much support if he got real fired up over Perot's insinuation that the Republicans would sabotage his daughter's resignation, and strongly attack him on this insulting and ridiculous charge. The country has never seen him show righteous anger and would delight in it. It's his one chance to win this election, as most people would empathize with him, but probably no one will suggest such action to him.

Sincerely,

ALAN REYNOLDS

An economist questions Clinton's economic plans

BILL CLINTON has been chided for his slippery lack of truthfulness when it comes to the draft. But a more pervasive and dangerous disregard for the truth is on display almost every time he opens his mouth to talk about the economy.

Let's take the debates. In the first debate, Clinton said we are suffering "the first decline in industrial production, ever."

What? The country has never before had a recession?

There is nothing wrong with making a mistake in the heat of debate. But we might have expected some impolite person, somewhere, to ask the governor what on earth he meant to say. Instead, the anchor on one network noted that Clinton had displayed his "mastery of facts."

Industrial production has risen by 2.1 percent since May 1991, and manufacturing alone (excluding mining and utilities) by 2.8 percent. Meanwhile, industrial production over the past year has fallen by 2.5 percent in Germany and by 7.6 percent in Japan.

Over the past year, the U.S. economy has grown faster than the economies of Japan, Germany, Canada or Britain (the first two of those last four, presumably, being Clinton's models).

U.S. exports have doubled in real terms in only six years, and now exceed $620 billion a year. What does Clinton have to say about this? He worries that we can't compete, and proposes emulating foreign basket cases — "an American version of what works in other countries." We don't really need an American version of Europe's 10 percent unemployment, or Japan's stock market collapse.

Were it not for defense cuts, the U.S. would have eral and state governments lost, too — they saw lower revenues. Bush wants to fix that inhumane and destructive 1986 policy mistake; Clinton opposes change.

In the debates, Clinton and Al Gore alternate between asserting that the economy is in the worst shape "in 50 years" and saying it's in the worst shape "since the Great Depression."

Those are not the same thing. While these candidates may be too young to remember that Herbert Hoover was not the president in 1942, they are not too young to remember the stagflationary mess of 1973-75, or 1980-82.

In the first of those contractions, real GDP fell by 4.3 percent and unemployment reached 9 percent. In the second, real GDP fell by 2.8 percent and unemployment hit 10.8 percent. Inflation and interest rates were well above 10 percent both times.

In the 1990-91 recession, real output fell by 2.2 percent, unemployment peaked at 7.8 percent,

83 percent of all full-time workers have employer-financed medical care coverage and inflation and interest rates have been quite low.

When it came to the vice presidential debate, the TV truth squads jumped on Dan Quayle, claiming it a lie that Clinton proposes $150 billion in new taxes, since he supposedly intends to re-

U.S. would have reported an economic growth rate of 2.3 percent over the past five quarters, rather than 1.6 percent. Yet Clinton proposes to cut defense deeper and faster. How will that help?

Then there is this matter of wages. In the first debate, Clinton said U.S. wages have slipped to 13th in the world.

Really? Who are those dozen richer countries anyway? All these figures show is that high German interest rates pushed European exchange rates up. That did indeed make European wages look high when converted to dollars, but it also makes European prices look even higher. The real purchasing power of foreign wages is a great deal lower than implied by converting them into dollars.

CLINTON SAID on Monday night that "most people are working harder for less money than they were earning 10 years ago, and they're paying higher taxes."

Is that true? A good way to find out is to add capital gains, government transfers and health benefits to the median income of full-time workers, then subtract federal income and Social Security taxes. The year 1982 was a recession trough, so let's start with President Carter's last year, 1980. Then adjust for inflation using the current consumer price index, improved in 1983.

The result? Real, after-tax median income for full-time workers rose to $27,593 in 1989 from $24,950 in 1980, before slipping back to $26,679 in 1991. Half of all full-time workers in 1991 were still 7 percent ahead of where they were in 1980, after taxes, and many in the bottom half also had gains. Income and wealth rose further in 1992.

Much of the relative income weakness in the past few years was in capital gains — particularly among the middle class, where the capital gains tax rate rose most sharply.

For those in the middle three-fifths of the income distribution, average capital gains had been around $3,500 a year from 1983 to 1986, but immediately sank to $1,200 from 1987 to 1991, after the higher rates went into effect. Fed-turn $106 billion to favored corporations and the "middle class."

The argument here is that if the Internal Revenue Service can squeeze a few thousand more from Dr. Smith each year, but also share some of the loot with those who vote correctly, then Dr. Smith really has nothing to complain about.

Clinton even promised that the wealthy will get some back in the form of investment tax credits to corporations that buy machines to replace workers. Some campaign contributors will get rich off that, to be sure, but not those industrious two-earner families whose marginal tax rate is to jump by 16 percent.

Actually, the vice president's claim that Clinton plans to raise taxes by $150 billion really does deserve to be criticized, since there's no way Clinton can raise even a third of that sum from rich folks and foreign companies.

But that means he has no idea how to finance all his pork-barrel "infrastructure" schemes; nor can he afford those undefined "middle class tax cuts." Clinton has already switched from vague promises of tax relief to the middle class to promising he won't raise their taxes: "Read my plan."

Instead, he can simply redefine "middle class" downward, in ways that catch more fish.

In the rush to "change," everything seems to be a "crisis." To define a health care crisis, Gore claimed that "40 million" Americans "who work full-time" do not have health insurance.

THE LATEST Monthly Labor Review shows that 83 percent of all full-time workers have employer-financed medical care coverage. The remaining 17 percent don't even add up to 15 million.

But the 17 percent figure is also misleading. Millions of full-time workers are self-employed individuals (often affluent), so it makes no sense even to ask if they have an "employer-financed" medical plan.

The Clinton-Gore team has been running TV ads ridiculing the president for saying he's not sure we're in a recession.

Yet the U.S. economy is now in the sixth consecutive quarter of a positive growth. This is quite definitely not a recession by anybody's definition — much less the worst one since 1942 or the only time industrial production ever fell. That little fact, like so many, doesn't seem to stop Clinton.

Letter to JIM BAKER - CHIEF OF STAFF
THE WHITE HOUSE

Dear Jim: I've written this letter to various anti-Bush publications and I hope it helps a little.

I expect President Bush to come on the air next Sunday and report that as of today there are more Americans employed than under any Democratic president in history. 118 million!!

I also expect him to say that the economy is moving slowly but surely upward and that he expects it to continue. He expects that the new legislature will work together rather than apart for the good of America whether it be Democratic or Republican.

Furthermore he will say that the great majority of Americans are better off than 12 years ago under Jimmy Carter and better off for the four years the opponents like to point at. If every American will check his own records he will have to agree. If they agree then they must vote for Mr. Bush instead of Clinton.

I also expect Mr. Bush to say, that after all this you still want to vote him out of office he will decide three days after the election that if it is clear that he is beaten, he will resign from office and have Dan Quayle sworn in as president to complete his term.

And, you the editor or editors know that you are better off today why don't you come out publicly admit and declare in favor of Bush.

Charlie Coy-a registered Democrat who can't vote for Slick Willie or Inspector Perot.

Dear Mr. Baker:

As you know this past August the President addressed the Knights of Columbus 110th Annual Convention in New York City. The Convention issue of our magazine Columbia has arrived this week in over one million Catholic households throughout the United States. You will see that the President's address is reprinted on pages 14-16.

May I ask you to again convey to the President our sincere gratitude for his participation in our meeting and for all that he has done to preserve and foster family values in American life.

With kindest regards,

500 Years of Faith

110th annual meeting reflects on gift of faith and its challenges

by Tim S. Hickey

PERHAPS no other city in the world embodies the state of humankind in the last decade of the 20th century more than New York City does. It is grand testimony to what we can achieve, but it also begs the question at every turn, at what cost?

It is a city of contrasts — richest of the rich and poorest of the poor...well-heeled and welfareless...God-fearing and godless. Towering skyscrapers push ever-upward and pierce the clouds in a futile attempt to grab the heavens. Subways snake along near-netherworldly passageways ferrying passengers from one earthbound duty to the next. A woman with shopping bags emblazoned with the crests of commerce from Fifth Avenue's most expensive boutiques stands alongside another woman whose shopping cart is filled with her life's possessions. In the city that never sleeps, Times Square's light-up-the-night billboards throw shadows on people sleeping in doorways.

Into this scene came Knights of Columbus from across North America, Central America, the Caribbean, and the Philippines, to celebrate the 110th year of the Order's existence.

They came to give living witness to 500 years of Catholicism in the New World and rededicate themselves to carrying the Cross of Evangelization forward into the year 2000 and beyond. They came to listen and learn from Mother Teresa of Calcutta, whose presence at the Supreme Council meeting to accept the first Knights of Columbus Gaudium et Spes (Joy and Hope) Award for service to God and humankind, threw the disparities between what man has wrought and what he has not into even greater contrast.

If one theme dominated the proceedings of Aug. 4-6, 1992, it was this: The Knights of Columbus is needed today, perhaps more than at any time previous in its history, to be a refuge for Catholic men and their families, to promote service to the Church, to uphold family values and fight abortion, and to strengthen the communities and countries where the Order is located. Speaker after speaker stressed that message.

Supreme Knight Virgil C. Dechant did so in his annual report when he described the spirit that animates Mother Teresa — that spirit of selfless service — as the same “spirit animating us as Knights, the vision directing our participation in the new evangelization of our times.”

President George Bush, who spoke vigorously in defense of the life of unborn children, of family values, prayer in school and parental choice in education in his address to the convention on Aug. 5, said the “principles for which you stand” are worth defending.

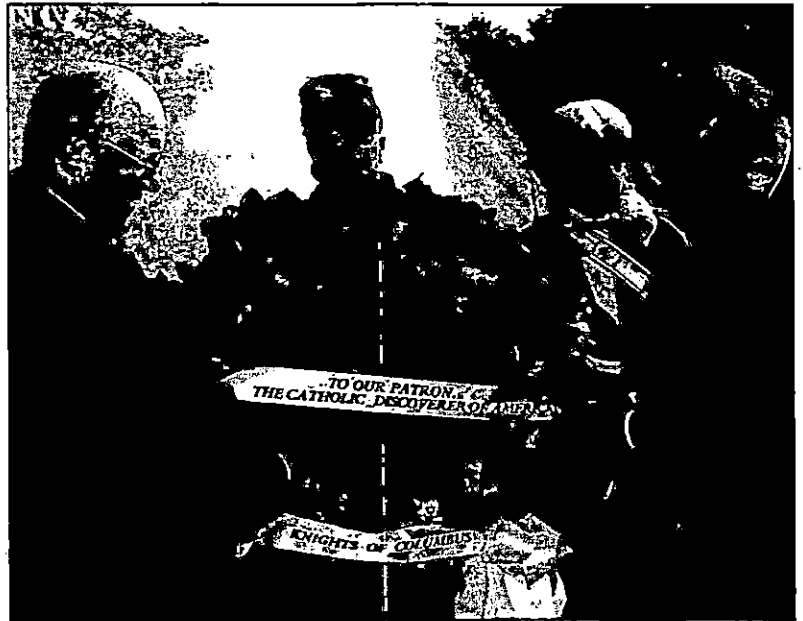

Similarly, U.S. Attorney General William P. Barr, in a sobering assessment of what has happened to a nation that has fallen victim to the “continuing erosion of traditional moral values,” described the Order, of which he is a member, as “living testament to the immeasurable good that can come from a firm and active faith in God, an adherence to timeless Judeo-Christian values, and a desire to practice and promote these principles in our own lives as well as those of our families and communities.”

None put it as succinctly, perhaps, as Archbishop Edward A. McCarthy of Miami, chairman of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops' V Centenary Committee, who simply asked: “Unless the Knights of Columbus is on fire, will others feel their heat?”

To fan the flames even higher and spark anew the fire of evangelization and service, the Knights of Columbus met in its 110th year under the banner, “500 Years of Faith.” The convention theme paid tribute first to Christopher Columbus — the “Christ bearer” — and to the Quincentennial of his historic voyage of 1492. A wreath-laying ceremony at Columbus Circle on Sunday Aug. 2, prior to the convention's official start, set the tone for the week's proceedings.

Bishop Thomas V. Daily of Brooklyn, N.Y., supreme chaplain, led a crowd of approximately 350 people in a short prayer that asked that the same spirit of faith and devotion that guided Columbus on his journey guide the Order as it met in convention. In his brief remarks at the base of the 75-foot granite shaft capped by a 14-foot statue of the Admiral of the Ocean Sea, Supreme Knight Dechant remembered Columbus' “visions of faith, of freedom and of courage” and said his accomplishments were the “continuing challenge to which the Knights of Columbus must rise.” A Fourth Degree honor guard flanked the statue of Columbus as the floral wreath was put in a place of honor near the monument.

Supreme Knight Dechant sounded the themes of Columbus' faith and his vision in the introduction to his annual report. “We honor Columbus as the providentially chosen architect of a new stage, still under way, in the work of preaching the Gospel to all nations, in response to Christ's command. ... Let no one suppose that, in celebrating the half-a-millennium of evangelization inaugurated by Columbus' first voyage, the Knights of Columbus look only to the past. From our patron's example we draw inspiration to respond to the challenge of the future: to participate to the full in that ‘new evangelization’ of the contemporary world...”

As evidence of the Order's continuing response to the needs of the Church and society, the supreme knight described several of the Order's accomplishments during 1991:

- Knights of Columbus contributed more than 42 million hours of service and more than $95 million to charitable causes in 1991.

- As of June 30, 1992, membership stood at an all-time high of 1,525,426 and councils numbered 9,969.

- Insurance in force as of Aug. 1, 1992 was $21.3 billion, and the Order received a AAA (Superior) rating from Standard & Poor's and A++ (Superior) rating from A.M. Best for its insurance operations.

Supreme Chaplain Bishop Thomas V. Daily of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Supreme Knight Virgil C. Dechant place a floral wreath in tribute to “The Catholic Discoverer of the Americas” at the Christopher Columbus monument at Columbus Circle in New York.

- Pope John Paul II received $2 million in earnings from the Order's Vicarius Christi Fund for his personal charities.

- Nearly 300,000 persons to date have participated in Quincentenary Cross of Evangelization prayer programs using the cross provided by the Order to 217 dioceses. The prayer program is being sponsored jointly with the U.S. Catholic bishops.

For the Knights of Columbus, Supreme Knight

Dechant said, the 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyage of discovery and faith-bringing is an opportunity for a "renewal of churchly and personal service to humankind...and an exploration of all the values that unite and uplift us that the world is in so much need of today." In concluding his remarks, he encouraged every member to "be the best Knight that you can be," and to share the benefits of membership with others. "Let us, one and all, here and now, rededicate ourselves to the Order, and, through the Order, to: 'One Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and father, of all, who is over all, and through all, and in all.'"

Service to the Church and humankind was best exemplified in the person of Mother Teresa of Calcutta. In brief remarks at St. Patrick's Cathedral following the opening Mass of the convention and again at the presentation of the Gaudium et Spes Award prior to the States Dinner on Tuesday evening, Mother Teresa called upon everyone to show their love for Jesus by serving the poorest of the poor. "What a beautiful opportunity," she said, "to be 24 hours with Jesus in the poorest of the poor."

"This is my prayer for you," Mother Teresa told a rapt audience assembled for the award ceremony, "that you grow in holiness, to want that love for another, and by sharing this love with all you know."

If by her presence and her example Mother Teresa gave those in attendance an example of a life committed to Christ and his Gospel message of service, Cardinal John O'Connor of New York gave the Knights of Columbus an opportunity to be of even greater service to the innocent victims of abortion. Speaking at the opening Mass, Cardinal O'Connor asked the Knights of Columbus to build and maintain a tomb of the unborn child in at least one Catholic cemetery in every diocese, with the ordinary's permission. He made this request after visiting the Tomb of the Unborn Child at the Franciscan University of Steubenville, Ohio, and seeing students stop for prayers there.

Supreme Knight Dechant and the board of directors responded favorably to the cardinal's request, and delegates to the convention ratified their assent in a resolution before the close of the convention. Several other resolutions were also passed during the convention: a Crusade for Life resolution that voiced opposition to abortion on demand; a Family Life resolution that came out against physician-assisted suicide and for measures to promote Church teachings to strengthen the family; a resolution condemning the "proliferation of exploitative treatments of sex and violence in the media"; and a reaffirmation of the Order's longstanding commitment to Catholic schools, Catholic education and the rights of parents to choose Catholic schools without undue penalty from the government.

In his major address before the convention, President Bush sounded many of the same themes. The flag-waving crowd of more than 2,000 people interrupted the president's speech several times and applauded appreciatively when he committed himself to stand firm against abortion, to overhaul the nation's welfare system, and to promote parental choice in education. And in references to the upcoming presidential election, he urged Knights and their families to look beyond the rhetoric of the political slogans and "determine who has the courage to stand up for changes that are morally right for America."

U.S. Attorney General William P. Barr, who is a member of Edward Douglass White Council 2743 in Arlington, Va., echoed the president's themes in his major convention address. He expressed pride in his membership in the Knights of Columbus and urged his brother Knights to be more aggressive in their battle against the "moral upheaval" facing society today. He also called the "stain of abortion" a moral catastrophe.

The presence of so many Church and world leaders demonstrated the important role that the Knights of Columbus plays in today's society. In addition to Mother Teresa, President Bush, and Attorney General Barr, the Order welcomed Cardinal William Baum, major penitentiary of the Apostolic Penitentiary; Cardinal Edouard Gagnon of Alberta, Canada, president of the Pontifical Committee for Eucharistic Congresses; Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston; Cardinal James Hickey of Washington; Archbishop Agostino Cacciavillan, papal pro-nuncio to the United States; and U.S. Ambassador to the Holy See Thomas P. Melady. More than 150 members of the hierarchy and clergy were also in attendance.

Convention greetings from Canadian Prime Minister Brian P. Mulroney and Philippines President Fidel Ramos, among others, were read to the convention. In his greeting, Prime Minister Mulroney commended the Knights of Columbus for its generosity. "Through deed and spirit, you have added greatly to the quality of life for men, women and children in communities throughout North America. ... Your contribution to society is a testament to your sense of humanity and your adherence to the teachings of your faith."

President Ramos thanked the Knights of Columbus for the "significant contributions and donations to the victims of the Mt. Pinatubo eruption." "For us Filipinos, we are fortunate in having very active Knights of Columbus councils, whose various endeavors and humanitarian projects have benefited us all," he wrote.

In his address to the Knights of Columbus, Cardinal Law, a member of Brighton (Mass.) Council 121, said the history of humankind was at a "pivotal moment, and it would be unthinkable that we should fail to seize the opportunity, the responsibility that is ours in a way that is fitting for men and women who image God."

He described a world where 30 million babies are aborted each year, where there is a net increase of 5,000 refugees a day and where thousands of Somalian children die because the food in their country is blocked by selfishness and insensitivity from reaching them. "My brother Knights and ladies," he said, "it's time for vision, for world vision, for a vision that is inspired by faith, that says God is God, and that every human being is sacred."

A real sense of living history was conveyed by the attendance of Cristobal Colon, Duke of Veragua, and his wife. The Duke of Veragua, the 20th direct descendant of Christopher Columbus, took part in all convention activities along with his wife, Isabel, the Marquis of Taurisano. During the Wednesday morning business session he was made an honorary member of the Knights of Columbus, joining only two other laymen known to have been honored previously — King Albert of Belgium and the Knights' long-time representative in Rome, Count Enrico Galeazzi. In accepting his honorary membership, Colon recalled his ancestor's deep spirituality and that of Father Michael J. McGivney, the Order's founder.

"Father McGivney, when choosing the name, knew too well that Columbus was not only the man who brought Christ to America...but also

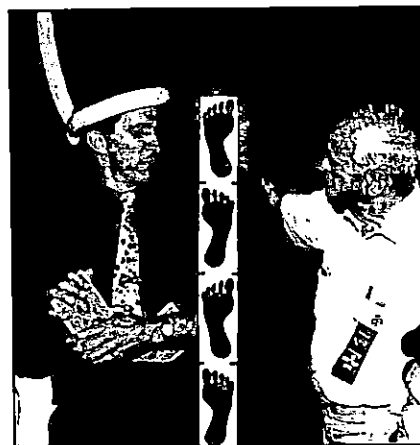

East Side, West Side Knights get a taste of the Big Apple

EAST Side, West Side, the whole of New York magically appeared in the Broadway Ballroom at the Marriott Marquis on Times Square Aug. 3, as the New York State Council hosted a "Big Apple Extravaganza" for those attending the 110th annual Supreme Council meeting.

Decorated to resemble typical New York street scenes, the ballroom gave conventioners a feel for the "sidewalks of New York," complete with street vendors hawking watches and other wares, street performers and three-card monte players for the entertainment of strolling Knights and their families. Meanwhile, center stage, a band, costumed performers, singers and dancers enthralled the crowd with a Broadway review.

Even in the midst of the gala festivities, as conventioners enjoyed the show, greeted old friends and made new ones, topping the bill of this production was charity. Throughout the eve-the very religious man whose unbreakable and immense willpower was put to the service of mankind as Father McGivney himself wanted us all to serve," Colon said.

The Duke of Veragua and his wife acknowledge the applause of the congregation after being introduced at the convention's opening Mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral.

If the presence of a direct descendant of Christopher Columbus helped the Order connect more closely with its past, the presence of the Quincentennial Essay Contest winners — Paola Chavez, 17, of Surrey, B.C., and Cristina Blanco, 13, of Bronxville, N.Y. — demonstrated that the meaning of Columbus' voyage is being kept alive for the next generation. They read their winning essays describing Columbus as a role model for today's youth and comparing Columbus with former Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev for their vision and determination. Supreme Knight Dechant presented each essayist with a bust of Columbus and a certificate. The winners, along with their parents, were guests of the board of directors at the Supreme Council meeting.

Before the gavel dropped on Thursday afternoon bringing an end to the 110th annual meeting, Bishop Daily took to the podium for his closing remarks. "What a gift the 110th convention has been," he told his brother Knights.

And a gift it truly was. But who was giving and who was receiving? Let those in attendance reflect on Mother Teresa's call to all for greater holiness; on President Bush and Attorney General Barr's call for the Knights to help lead a moral renewal of the country; on Cardinal O'Connor's call to memorialize the millions of innocent unborn children and help bring an end to abortion; and on Supreme Knight Dechant's call for members to rededicate themselves to the principles of Columbianism, then decide for themselves. And then share their decision with their brother Knights, their families, and their neighbors. □ ning (and throughout the convention) the New York State Council was selling special convention photo badges. Proceeds from the sale of these souvenirs were to be donated to various shelters for homeless people in New York City.

By Wednesday night, the vast room was converted to a Quincentennial theme for the Grand Ball. On the backdrop behind the orchestra were huge replicas of the Nina and Pinta, two of the three ships used by Columbus on his first voyage to the New World. In the center of the dance floor on a pedestal was a nearly life-size figure of Columbus. At one point, to everyone's surprise, Columbus began to move and talk, quoting membership and fraternal statistics of the last year and stating his pride in the Order that chose him as its patron.

When the time came for the grand march, the supreme knight, supreme officers, members of the board, state deputies, and Cristobal Colon, the 20th generation descendent of Columbus, with their wives entered the ballroom by walking across a replica of the Brooklyn Bridge. When all had entered, a large cake topped with a replica of the Santa Maria, flagship of Columbus, was wheeled out. After the ceremonial cutting of the cake, a hull-shaped net above the festive scene opened and 5,000 balloons cascaded onto the dance floor. And, as dancers began battling the balloons back and forth and popping them, the result was almost like an indoor fireworks display. □

President reiterates support for family values, life

by Jim Skowronski

PRESIDENT George Bush told delegates to the Knights of Columbus' 110th annual meeting in New York City that his presidency will stand fast for family values, moral leadership and life.

Nearly 3,000 delegates, family members and guests of the Order crowded into the Broadway Ballroom of the Marriott Marquis Aug. 5 to hear what was described as one of Bush's finest speeches of the year, one that outlined his goal to renew America through promotion of fundamental values such as responsibility and initiative.

The audience interrupted Bush more than a dozen times with applause and twice with standing ovations. Supreme Knight Virgil C. Dechant's introduction of the president, pointing out that seven times Bush had vetoed anti-life legislation, was itself interrupted by applause six times.

"His unwavering commitment to the unborn and his promotion of traditional family values demonstrates to us his deep understanding that family life is to be nurtured, that family life is to be honored, and that family life is to be defended," Dechant said.

The biggest ovation for Bush came as he reiterated his stand in support of life. "There's a national tragedy — more than a half a million abortions in this country every year," the president said. "And we know — we know there's got to be a better way — human alternatives like adoptions and abstinence. Seven times I've ignored the polls and acted on what I believe is fundamental principle and vetoed, as Virgil very generously pointed out, abortion legislation. And I promise you again today — no matter the political price — and they tell me in this year that it's enormous — I am going to do what I think is right. I am going to stand on my conscience and let my conscience be my guide when it comes to life.

"Here's something else that bothers me. In some places a 13-year-old girl cannot get her ears pierced without parental permission — without bringing her mother and her father along. But some believe that the same girl should be able to get an abortion without parental consent. And I think most Americans believe this idea is crazy, and I'm going to fight to see that that doesn't happen," Bush said.

"This year, as in Columbus' time, we hear a lot about change," Bush said. "And sure, change is natural. But maybe a better word for the United States of America is renewal, because the changes we need must be based on principles that never change.

"I think my parents were like yours. They brought me up to understand that our fundamental moral standards were established by almighty God. They taught me that if you have something for yourself, you should give half to a friend. They taught me to take the blame when things go wrong and share the credit when things go right. These ideas were supported by society.

“And all around us we see evidence that America’s moral compass has gone awry. ... As a nation we face enormous challenges in education, crime, drugs. And yet each of them come back to the challenge of pointing our moral compass in the right direction.”

“Only recently — His Eminence [Cardinal John O’Connor of New York] and I were talking about, not in this detail, but talking about this subject just a few minutes ago — only recently in America have we seen the rise of legal theories and practices that reject our Judeo-Christian tradition. Cardinal O’Connor eloquently describes this as ‘an invasion of values.’ It’s a deeply disturbing trend — and it is diametrically opposed to my idea of the kind of change that’s good for our great country.”

“I look at this office that you’ve entrusted me with as a lot of things,” Bush said, “as more than of them come back to the challenge of pointing our moral compass in the right direction.

“And so I believe that a central issue of this election year should be, who do you trust to renew America’s moral purpose? Who do you trust to fight for the ideas that will help rebuild our families and restore our fundamental values?

“I believe — and I’ve tried hard on this — I believe I’ve earned your trust, and I’m committed to fighting for ideas that help repair this great nation’s moral fiber,” Bush said.

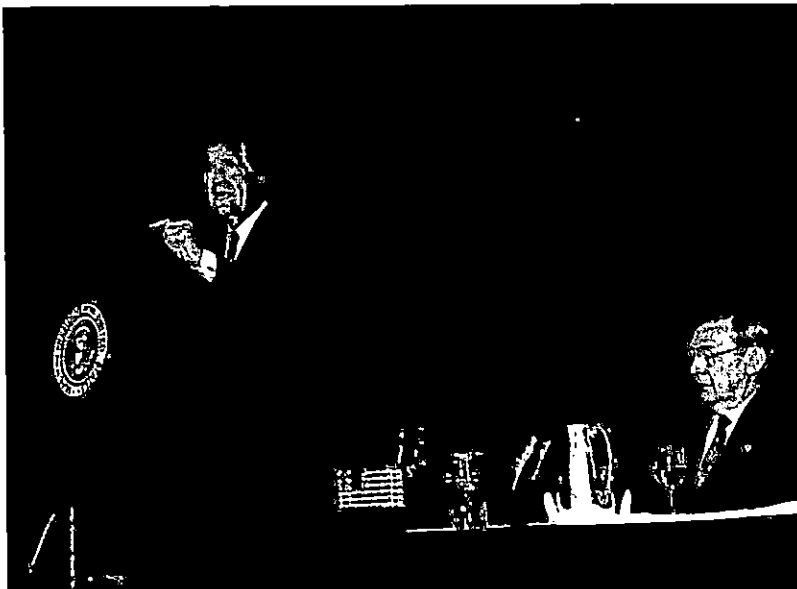

“Welfare is one example. We all know that our welfare system has literally destroyed the concept of personal responsibility tearing families apart, with no incentives for people to work and save and improve.

“I want something different. I have fought for a new welfare system that says yes to human potential. And today, as we speak, we are granting waivers to states so they can change welfare rules, encourage families not to fall apart, not to live apart, but to stick together,” Bush said. “States are saying to recipients either you get training or you don’t get a check. Some states are even going so far as to make a very tough call of saying to parents, if you can’t afford another child, don’t expect the taxpayer to pick up the added cost.

“Now these are tough choices. These are very tough choices, but they’re all intended by the states to promote responsibility.”

“Our reforms may sound tough,” Bush said, “but not as tough as a lifetime of despondency and despair, a lifetime that strips every recipient of his or her dignity. Let’s give people hope. Let’s give them opportunity.

“Let’s take a look at education. We know that to renew America, we literally must renew our schools. I happen to believe that competition can be the greatest force for change in our schools in an entire century. ... Right now if you want an alternative to public schools you have to pay twice, first for tuition and again through taxes. A couple of weeks ago I was in Philadelphia, hosted by Cardinal [Anthony J.] Bevilacqua. And a group of parents told me: ‘We want our kids to go to Catholic school, but we just can’t afford it.’ So my solution is something called the GI Bill for Kids. Like the original GI Bill, my new approach offers scholarships or vouchers for students to take to any qualified school — not only public schools, but Bible schools, yeshivas, Catholic parish schools. And when it comes to schools, I say let the parents managing the economy, more even than being commander in chief. I stake my claim to a simple belief: The president should try to set the moral tone for this nation.

“And all around us we see evidence that America’s moral compass has gone awry. We seem to be moving away from the enduring idea of taking responsibility for our actions.”

“As a nation we face enormous challenges in education, crime, drugs,” Bush said. “And yet each

"It's time to get back to some basic American values. And so I am going to defend the principles for which you stand so firm."

no more and our kids no longer go to bed at night worrying about that dreadful specter of nuclear war.

"But while the Soviet bear is no more, there are still plenty of wolves in the woods," Bush said. "And when we faced our first big challenge after the Cold War, we didn't shrink. We stood up to Saddam's aggression and expelled him from Kuwait. We protected the people of Israel and Saudi Arabia. And now we've brought age-old adversaries to the peace table for the first time. His Holiness Pope John Paul has spent many days and nights at work and in prayer for peace in the Middle East. And as long as I am president, I assure you I will do everything I can to bring about that peace that so many pray for."

"We didn't stand together to see courageous moral values rise in Russia, only to be ignored here at home," Bush said. "We did not sacrifice so that personal responsibility could triumph in totalitarian regimes only to become passe here in this great nation."

"It's time to get back to some basic American values," Bush said. "And so I am going to defend the principles for which you stand so firm. We will keep our sights on what is good in America. We will keep our focus on the potential in our families and most of all, in our young people, our kids. We'll keep a reliable compass. We will put our ship of state in finest sailing trim. And as this nation has so many times before, we will sail on to shining new horizons." □ choose — public, private or religious," Bush said.

"Some think it's OK to hand out condoms in schools," Bush said, "but oppose amending our Constitution to allow our kids to put their hands together to say a prayer. I disagree. I call again on the Congress to pass a constitutional amendment restoring voluntary prayer to our classrooms."

"The Senate opens its meetings with a prayer. The House of Representatives opens its meetings with a prayer. Nobody doubts that they both need it. Let's allow the faith of our fathers back in those schools."

"These issues, they all come up in an election year," Bush said. "They'll be part of campaigns this fall all across the country. And today I make the same appeal to you that I'll make to every voter. Look beneath the rhetoric. Take a look at the ideas to determine who has the courage to stand up for the changes that are morally right for America."

"And do I believe that America needs a leader willing to do what's right," Bush said, "not merely what is politically popular at the moment. And nowhere is it more clear than in the decisions a president must make every day to build real peace, to establish freedom and democracy — not the mere absence of war."

"Over four decades our servicemen trained — our taxpayers paid $4 trillion — to keep our defenses strong. And as a consequence, the Iron Curtain is

I've been trying to to you by phone, mail & telegram that might save your ass - otherwise, you're dead!

I knew if I kept this hat long enough it'd end up on TV.

Not all Rhodes affiliated Scholars from Georgetown are for Bill Clinton. I played basketball for Georgetown and was lucky enough to be nominated for a Rhodes Scholarship and I'm an independent voter but I support George Bush.

One big reason is that, contrary to what many people believe, he's a hell of a good listener. I wrote him a letter with an idea on conservation, got a call from his campaign team and he's here hunting today.

I heard him listen last night to Ed and Joy Hall, who used to make their living commercial fishing and guiding on Lake Senachwine when it was 8-10 feet deep. That was before siltation caused by farm-land runoff reduced that to 1-1/2 feet. He knows it was a legendary gathering place for a great variety of migratory waterfowl. He also listened intently to what Bruce Clay, our Assistant Director of Conservation had to say about a variety of important conservation issues. Bruce hunted with us today and is one of the best hunters and storytellers I've ever met, as well as a nationally recognized voice on Conservation issues.

As a result of this listening expedition and his concern for jobs, conservation and wildlife, we're very close to the formulation of a plan which rescues a dying lake and returns it to a fishing, hunting, boating and recreational paradise.

Now the President vows to create a Conservation Task Force to travel around the country on a specially built train and use specially designed equipment to transport this rich organic silt back to the farms where it belongs. They'll follow the weather areas across the country dealing with all sorts of regional drainage problems and creating thousands of job opportunities as they go.

I came from a farming family around Amboy, Illinois. My uncle Doc Morrissey had rich land next to the Green River. He kept a team of horses just to work it up each spring. I heard him lament many times how much rich topsoil washed into the river each year.

I saw an article in Time Magazine (June of 92) which said some Midwestern farms have lost half their topsoil. In Vicksburg, Mississippi they have an old saying that if you stand on the bridge for an hour, another Iowa farm goes by.

Now, you ask, what kind of a sportsman is George Bush. I'd seen pictures of him quail hunting and standing in the surf and fishing out East. He also wants to learn how to fly fish and might come to Montana with me next summer, if Saddam Hussein will let him, on a learning and fishing trip like those I've taken for years with my kids and friends.

As a hunter, George Bush is a good enough shot to have fought in Desert Storm, in addition to having engineered it. Probably his experience as a fighter pilot in WWII had something to do with his ability to lead ducks.

But there were times he didn't shoot--said he just loves to be out in the wilderness and watch the wild animals and working dogs. He forgot to watch one expert dog do his work today tho. Sassafras is a legendary food thief and figured that retrieving the President's first duck wasn't enough to get him on TV--he had to ensure his place in history by stealing the President's sandwich also.

And, speaking of sandwiches, the President thought so much of the sausages that Cas Prbysz grilled us for lunch--he wants to hire him as a White House chef.

Now, non-hunters and city folks uninterested in saving and improving our nation's wetlands and ecological balance, might say why else vote for George Bush. What does this new world order mean to us?

Well, to me, it means that the $25,000 bomb shelter I had built into my new house three years ago can now be used to store the homemade wine made by Ed Rozinski, one of our guides today.

And, for the young folks who have, or are considering having families, it means that their schools won't have radiation monitoring kits, as 15,000 high schools had in 1960, and that "Duck & Cover" films telling them how to act during a nuclear assault won't be on their grade school curriculum, as they once were.

Today, those of us who like to fish and hunt and boat and swim and provide nesting and feeding areas for all kinds of wildlife have seen another example of the kind of creative leadership that goes into George Bush's Agenda for a New and Better America. Hopefully, people who hope to have a decent farm to leave to their kids will also see the wisdom of, and participate in, this unique recycling.

I, for one, am proud to have a President who listens, and to have spent time with him and see how he gathers information, meets challenges and solves problems.

I'm happy to trust the next four years of my future to a great President and feel confident this is just one of the many ways America will be better off by him having been our President.

Resume may be longer than usual, but it reflects a lifetime of success and achievement, covering 3 careers. Please take time to read it. There may be a specific point or two which has a direct bearing on an important business situation you are in, or of which you have proximate knowledge.

GOALS & AVAILABILITY

Achiever with proven, multi-career track record wants to provide help/re-focusing, especially to small businesses, with problems/opportunities in management, marketing their products, finances, structuring, starting a new company and management/ownership transition. Have been successful in consulting role with companies ranging from giant package goods marketers to small family-owned firms. Can also provide assistance in personal investments, and setting up and managing qualified pension/profit sharing plans. Can deal effectively with wide spectrum of socio-economic levels, from "river rats" to bank presidents. Good sense of humor. Not afraid to get hands dirty. Intensive worker. Detail-oriented. Able to analyze, simplify and get to heart of a problem. Good risk taker.

EMPLOYMENT HISTORY

1991-92 K & K Enterprises - Vice-President--a company specializing in residential construction and Real Estate. Main duties have been to find land for development, crystallize partnership agreements and work with development partners and sub-contractors.

1977-90 Ted Sharpenter, Inc. - President with voting trust control of family-owned companies. Allowed re-structuring basic business, plus started 2 new companies.

1970 - Bought land, designed and built warehouse, plus add-on's in 78, 81 and 84. Optimum distribution facility in terms of layout and access to main roads and railroad.

Started trucking company in 1979. Got ICC authority. Set up and managed back-haul schedule so never ran a truck anywhere empty. Company was profitable--plus being captive hauler for main business. Bought and "spec'd" equipment and supervised maintenance, including 1 fleet "stretch". Original Peterbilt had 1,700,000 miles on it, and was still running well, when company liquidated. Managed profit sharing plan which averaged 12-15% per year return.

Started aluminum recycling business in 1981. Became second largest Heileman recycler in Chicago area. Achieved near break-even in profitability and created considerable goodwill. Purchased line of "popular-priced" products (9-10 brands) and integrated them into our premium brands division, with distribution pattern unique to industry.

As President of 56-year exclusive distributor of G. Heileman Brewing products (Old Style, etc.), had personal day-to-day, "hands-on" responsibility for: sales--specializing in draft and new customers; coordinated over 100 customer "special events" per year; finances (biggest customer of Aurora National Bank); union negotiations; computer purchases and special programming; inventory control and rotation; promotions, pricing and advertising; handled contests; outdoor sign program; POS purchasing, inventory control and placement; delivery fleet purchasing and maintenance; and building supervision.

Personally created specialized computer programs which provided unique track of our competitive position in terms of draft knobs, outdoor signs and all inside POS. Created another program which allowed route balancing/restructuring.

Company achieved several unparalleled marketing statistics in industry:

1. On draft, with no discount programs, in over 75% of customers handling draft.
2. Had over 50% of the total industry outdoor lighted signs in our territory.
3. In 1987, won landmark Supreme Court case validating our unique discount program.

As President of local distributor group, led negotiations where, in one year, men voted out both Teamsters Health & Welfare and Pension programs. Alternatives we created were better short and long term for men, plus resulted in significant employer savings.

Created extensive program of charitable contributions within our marketing territory. Personally oversaw yearly disbursement of thousands of dollars to grade schools in support of their athletic programs, plus yearly awards to outstanding student-athlete graduates.

Each year wrote 90%+ of 1,000-page (longhand)/291-page (typed) marketing plan. In "spare time", managed building partnership, 2 trusts, 3 qualified profit-sharing plans and family investment partnership of Real Estate and Oil and Gas investments.

Resume for Background

1972-1977 Atlanta-LaSalle Capital Corporation - Vice-President--one of America's best known Venture Capital companies--subsidiary of Atlanta LaSalle Corporation.

President George Bush
The White House

Dear Mr. President:

How would you like 1.5+ million votes and do a good deed too? The attached document explains the background of the hydroelectric project in Czechoslovakia. The diversion of the Danube is scheduled for the 2nd of November. If you make the cancellation of the ill-conceived communist project a campaign issue, you are guaranteed the votes of 1.5 million Hungarian-Americans plus a few million environmentalists. The situation is urgent.

Sincerely,

Kalman Toth

HELP US SAVE THE BLUE DANUBE

Slovak Government to Open Gabčíkovo Dam on November 7 Massive Environmental Damage Predicted

Ignoring international protest and the pleas of its own citizens, the Slovak government is about to complete construction of a giant, Communist-era dam project which will reroute the Danube River and cause irreparable human and environmental damage. Vladimír Mečiar, Czechoslovakia's neo-Communist Prime Minister, has announced that the final phase of the Gabčíkovo Hydroelectric Plant will go into effect on November 7, permanently diverting the flow of the Danube River.

Three huge dams, a 65-foot concrete canal and a chain of 4 construction sites mar the landscape along a 120-mile stretch of the Danube, which also constitutes the Czechoslovak-Hungarian border. At stake is a unique and fragile ecosystem, the existence of 56 villages, and the water supply of millions. Although the project has received little attention in the United States, the magazine of the National Audubon Society (July-August 1992) refers to it as "a sort of giant storm sewer." A March 1992 article in Condé Nast Traveler called it "the monster that will drink the Danube."

Ill-Conceived Communist-Era Monstrosity

Audubon Magazine, July-August 1992

Privately financed by Austrian bankers, construction has been underway on both sides of the Danube since 1977, when the Gabčíkovo-Nagymaros River Barrage System began — under Soviet pressure — as a joint undertaking of the Communist regimes in Czechoslovakia and Hungary. Rising domestic and international protest forced the Hungarian government, in late 1989, to halt construction of the project sites on Hungarian territory. Earlier this year, the new, democratic parliament of Hungary renounced the 1977 agreement altogether and called for European Community mediation. Recently, Austria also renounced official involvement in the scheme.

With the two countries' withdrawal, the gargantuan Gabčíkovo Dam project will supply less than three percent of Czechoslovakia's electrical-energy needs. Offering minuscule benefits, "the Gabčíkovo dam could play the role of Communism's final act of environmental destruction." (Condé Nast Traveler, March 1992)

Violations of International Obligations

"The Austrians and Czechoslovaks are poised to set a barbaric precedent, in which a major international border river is hijacked in complete disregard of international law."
Leonard Sklar, International Rivers Network.

In an attempt to create fast-flow water pressure from a slow-flowing part of the Danube, engineers have constructed a reservoir to accumulate and divert the river from its natural bed into a massive canal, raised 65 feet off the ground and larger than the Suez Canal. The canal carries the water 16 miles downstream to hydroelectric turbines at the Slovak city of Gabčíkovo.

Since the now abandoned, original reservoir was on Hungarian territory, the Slovak government unilaterally went ahead and built yet another reservoir on Slovak territory — at Čunovo — to force the ill-conceived project into operation, with or without international cooperation.

Slovakia, headed by ultra-nationalist Premier Mečiar, has refused to suspend construction even long enough for a proposed international team of experts to investigate the project under European Community auspices. This unilateral diversion will have serious political ramifications as well: international treaties establish the Danube as the border between Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Diverting the river therefore, violates not only those treaties but also the territorial integrity of Hungary.

Environmental Disaster: Cities Under Water?

"As the Gabčíkovo power plant rises, all around it dies. . . Already the earthmovers have wiped out forests, lakes and wetlands."

Conde Nast Traveler, March 1992

The reservoir is to be operated like a toilet. While being filled, it will stop the flow of the Danube and the reservoir itself will become a stagnant open sewer, poisoning the water supplies of approximately 5 million people. By causing the river's flow to stagnate, the dam will diminish the river's natural filtration capacity — which will be further disturbed by dredging. This intervention will destroy the countryside: approximately 50 small islands and 47 square miles of forests will be flooded, irreparably altering the region.

When discharged to produce electricity, the dam will create a giant flood wave, reversing the flow of the Danube's tributaries and destroying "the habitat of 200 species of birds, 55 species of fish, plus deer, river otter and beaver." (Audobon Magazine, July-August, 1992) All in all, the World Wildlife Fund estimates 50,000 acres will be lost. Numerous ancient Celtic and Hungarian gravesites were already destroyed during the construction period. Further, "the damming of the Danube has become a weapon against ethnic Hungarians in Slovakia: A canal will isolate the Magyar [Hungarian] towns and ultimately destroy them all." (Conde Nast Traveler, March 1992).

The threat of massive flooding in the event of earthquake is a distinct possibility in this geologically unstable zone. Yet, incredibly, no seismological surveys were conducted to determine the extent of risk. Outside experts believe that earthquake damage to the dam could result in massive flooding of Hungary's capital city, Budapest. In addition, the rise in ground water levels would erode the foundations of the Danubian city of Esztergom, birthplace 1,000 years ago of Hungary's first king and seat of the Catholic Church in Hungary since 1198 AD. A similar fate would befall two other centuries-old Hungarian cities downstream, Győr and Komárom.

JOIN THE PROTEST

TO STOP THE WHOLE DAM THING!

Today, despite the collapse of Communism in Eastern Europe, the government of Slovakia still shows little respect for democracy. It has disregarded petitions from 81 mayors of the region: it has rejected the request for a public referendum. Last summer, Slovak authorities used tear gas to break up a demonstration by several hundred international environmental activists.

But concerned citizens and organizations around the world are fighting back. This week, groups from Slovakia, Hungary and Austria are marching by the thousands to the Cunovo reservoir site, inspired by Martin Luther King's peace march on Selma, Alabama. There is hope — and a precedent for change in nearby Austria. Several years ago public opinion in that country — culminating in a 40,000-strong demonstration — prevented the operation of a similar hydroelectric plant already completed at Hainburg, Austria.

In the case of Gabčíkovo, what started as grassroots level resistance has grown into a worldwide protest movement. The Sierra Club, Global 200, Environmental Defense Fund, National Audubon Society, Friends of the Earth and International Rivers Network have joined the fight. The European Parliament has intervened. But further pressure is needed to overcome the forces of corporate greed and bureaucratic stubbornness.

HOW CAN YOU HELP?

- ☒ Join us on Saturday, October 24 at 1:30-3:00 pm in front of the United Nations (Dag Hammarskjöld Plaza, 47th Street and First Avenue) for a peaceful demonstration to call the attention of world leaders to the impending destruction.
- ☒ Write to the President, your Senators and U.S. Representative. Ask

Once in operation, the Gabčíkovo dam system will

- dry up 19 miles of riverbed
- destroy the fragile water system that sustains the region's fishing and agricultural economy
- destroy 56 predominantly Hungarian-inhabited fishing villages and farm communities
- endanger the drinking-water supply of millions by undermining the river's natural filtration capacity
- eliminate the wetland and forest habitats of protected plant and animal life
- cause catastrophic flood damage in case of earthquake — a risk entirely ignored by the project's planners them to withhold U.S. recognition of the new state of Slovakia after January 1, 1993 until its government terminates this environmental nightmare. Call upon your elected legislators to notify Slovakia's government of their concerns and their intention to condition Most Favored Nation status and other trade and political benefits upon full guarantees for environmental rights, human rights and the rights of national minorities — including 750,000 ethnic Hungarians, whose condition has deteriorated significantly under Slovakia's nationalist Mečiar regime.

The monstrous plan to reroute the Danube is fast becoming reality — unless international public opinion intervenes in time.

- ☒ Make a contribution to help SAVE THE BLUE DANUBE. Alerted by the longstanding efforts of the Foundation to Protect the Hungarian Environment (84 Old North Stamford Road, Stamford, CT 06905), environmental and Hungarian-American organizations nationwide stand united and firm in their opposition to the Gabčíkovo project. The Hungarian Human Rights Foundation, a New York-based organization formed 16 years ago, is part of the struggle. CONFLICT OVER DAM THREATENS PRAGUE

Czechoslovakia's Government Says It Might Resign Over Deadlocked Project

Special to The New York Times

PRAGUE, Oct. 27 — Czechoslovakia's Government threatened today to resign over its inability to influence the conflict around the diversion of the Danube River.

The Slovak Republic, which will become an independent country on Jan. 1, opposes calls by Prime Minister Jan Strasky to suspend the damming of the river. In operations begun on Saturday, the river is being dammed with boulders to divert it to the huge Gabčíkovo hydroelectric plant on Slovak soil.

The federal Government met Monday night to discuss complaints by Hungary over the diversion of the river, but could reach no agreement. Hungary asserts that the river's diversion at a point where it forms the border between the two countries violates international law.

The five Cabinet ministers from the Czech side, including Mr. Strasky, called for an immediate halt to the river's diversion. They want to allow time for a European Community Commission to be sent to the area to study Hungarian assertions that the project could pollute the region's large underground supply of drinking water.

Crisis Before Division

But the five Slovak ministers opposed the idea. Slovakia, which will assume full control of the hydroelectric dam on Jan. 1, is eager for economic reasons to begin producing electricity quickly.

One Czech member of the federal Cabinet quoted the Slovak Foreign Minister, Milan Kňažko, as saying: "You can make any decision you want. Slovakia will dam the Danube anyway."

The Czechoslovak Prime Minister, Mr. Strasky, said "the question of the resignation of the Government" will be discussed after the return later this week of the Prime Ministers of the Czech and Slovak republics, who are currently on a trip to London.

The crisis comes a little more than two months before the federal Government is set to go out of existence as the 74-year-old country splits into two independent states. A resignation of the federal Government would leave the country rudderless, as the two republics rush to finish preparations for their separation.

Subject: RIGHT TO WORK

Last night on ABC with Sam Donaldson, Clinton said that he would sign Congressional bill to abolish Right to Work laws in those states where such laws exist. this is especially critical to status of Federal , state and local government employees where unions would have a lock on public policy. National media needs to know that these states, including Arkansa, oppose such a move. the general public also opposes such a move if they understand it. Another example of true Democratic lore and tradition and truly unacceptable public policy.

RE: Closing Hours of Election - A Theme

DATE: October 30, 1992

NRN

I am a strong supporter of George Bush and I am confident that he will win on November 3.

On the Metro this morning I thought of a possible position you may want to take in these closing hours. Halloween is the theme and "unmasking" Bill Clinton is the idea. Essentially the position goes like this:

"It is somewhat ironic that this election falls a stone's throw from Halloween. America has witnessed one of the great political costume acts of recent memory. Bill Clinton calls himself a moderate Democrat but lets pull back the mask. Proposed tax increases. Soft on crime. Environmental extremism. The list goes on and on. Don't be fooled America. If Clinton gets elected it will only be a matter a time before he pulls off his mask and reveals who he truly is - a tax and spend liberal of the Dukakis, Mondale, Carter heritage. With an economy slowly rebounding we simply can not afford the price of higher taxes and government spending. Democrats on both ends of Pennsylvania Ave will result on a trick being played on America's hard working middle class. There will be no treats under a Clinton administration."

Finally, I want to applaud you for the recent themes developed at the Ace Hardware Convention in Colorado. The liberal versus conservative vision of how government works that Bush provided should be pounded into the public and media for the next 100 hours. I do not believe there is any stronger evidence of the strength of this message than the fact that even the demagogic writers at the Washington Post gave a very positive review. It is a message that resonates with the American public.

Just some thoughts. I wish you all the best on November 3.

SUBJECT: RE-ELECTION @1992

DATE: 30 OCTOBER, 1992

Dear Jim;

Vice-President Quayle seems to have had a very good, very positive influence on the State of Arizona during the 24-hour period he spent here. Our "Traditional Think Tank," "NOVUS ORDO SECLORUM," conducted a purposefully histrionic survey of nearly one-hundred "average appearing" people in such common public gathering places such as super-markets, drug-stores and home-improvement businesses. We asked three questions: (1) Did you know that the Vice-president was in Phoenix today?; (2) Have you decided on who you are going to vote for for president yet? and (3) Do you really care who is sitting in that chair reserved for "The COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, THE PRESIDENT-OF-THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA?"

Not too surprisingly, the answer to question number one was just under 75%. Question number two was not even close: Six people, including several husband-wife splits, said Perot. Of the remainder, about sixty responded "BUSH," remarking that Quayle was "hands-down" over Stockdale, and believed Gore to be a "Clinton puppet;" about thirty said Clinton, with the remainder Moreau, etc. Question three was 90% "yes," BUSH!!!!

With "RR" "staging" at 23:00hrs, V-I-C-T-O-R-Y!
SUGGESTION: between now & then, let GB TELL THEM WHAT MAKES THEM COMFORTABLE! REMEMBER MACHIAVELLI!!! GOD BLESS!!

We did not take positively

In our opinion, if we do the outcome slant on an interview is going to be, either pass on it, or lose 2 to 3 points!

BEST BET:

Find a matter of "NATIONAL

strongly request UN Security Council

THIS IS SERIOUS!!

I have sent this information to Jack Kemp, Jim Baker & President Bush in hopes that one of you will read this in time to take action (if you deem this desirable) before this election! I want NO CREDIT of any kind for this -- in fact I would appreciate it if you would ignore me! In short, I am a life-long Republican and I feel that the LIBERAL AGENDA would be devastating to America!

There must have been MANY discussions regarding the Defense Buildup -- and it seems reasonable that there was at least ONE meeting such as described in the following pages! Please tell the American People the whole truth in understandable terms, such as is suggested here.

HERE'S TO FOUR MORE YEARS ( I HOPE )

OVERVIEW

The American People give equal credit to the Democrats and Republicans for the end of the Cold War and the end of Communism in the USSR. This is not true -- if Democrats were in the White House, there would probably STILL be a USSR and there would be no "Peace Dividend" that the Democrats speak of. PLEASE READ THE FOLLOWING -- WHAT CAN YOU LOOSE?

EVEN AT THIS LATE DATE

IF PRESIDENT BUSH WOULD SAY THE FOLLOWING TO THE AMERICAN VOTER
-- HE WOULD HAVE A LANDSLIDE VICTORY THIS NOVEMBER 3RD!!

President Bush (or someone picked for the job) should say:

About 10 year's ago President Reagan had a meeting in the oval office which was so secret that only 5 (use any # that is accurate) people in the world knew about it. President Bush was one of these people. The ideas discussed at this meeting had each been discussed in detail for many months before the meeting, itself!

In the past 10 years, no one who was not in the initial meeting except (give a name if applicable) has been told about this meeting and what was discussed! It was the HIGHEST SECURITY MATTER in the history of the United States if not the world! This is why I have not mentioned this to you before. I mention this now because my advisors (Name these people if you want to) have convinced me that this matter does not endanger either the National Security of the United States or the peace of the world at this time. If I thought that the Democratic Party could lead this nation out of our present problems and continue with our policy of PEACE THROUGH STRENGTH, I would not even mention the decision that was reached in 19-- at this meeting. But because my advisors have convinced me that I might NOT be able to continue with this plan in the next 4 years without revealing the decisions of this meeting to you - I would like to inform you, the American People and the rest of the world, of the most successful plan of action ever undertaken by the leaders of a nation.

Without exception, all participants of the meeting believed in the United States Of America and in the Free Enterprise economy which is one of the major reasons that our nation has been so successful! We were confident that America could out-produce any nation on earth! In particular, we were confident that the United States could out-produce Communism where Entrepreneurship & Profit were bad words, where it was almost impossible for an employee to work harder than others and get ahead!

I don't have the time at present to tell you of all the considerations discussed but I want to tell you of the decision that was made and what the expected results of that decision were.

We felt that the United States could invest (--%) of our gross national product in building a deterrent to war that was stronger than the world has ever seen. If we did this as a nation, the USSR would try and keep up with us. WE FELT THAT THEY COULD NOT DO THIS WITHOUT BANKRUPTING THEIR COUNTRY AS LONG AS THEY PERSISTED IN THE DOMINATION OF THEIR PEOPLE UNDER COMMUNISM. To keep up with the United States, the USSR would have to invest approximately (--%) of their gross national product into this same project. Because of the influence of the military on the leaders of the USSR and their basic distrust of the free world, we were confident that the USSR would try to keep up with the United States in defense.

I'm sure everyone can understand why we couldn't tell the former Soviet Union that we were taking this action (or the leaders of the USSR might have attacked the United States rather than fading into oblivion). Also, we couldn't tell the leaders of congress or the information could have been leaked!

BECAUSE OF OUR ACTION - OUR NUMBER ONE ADVERSARY WAS REMOVED WITHOUT THE LOSS OF ONE LIFE!

We compared this ACTION with the possible loss of life and distruction in the United States with a world war - which was then a definite possibility, the tremendous cost of the Cold War, the evil influence of Communism in other countries around the world and the loss of life in Third World Countries where IF opposition was offered against a communism take-over, the USSR would imposing their will by force against them -- Examples are Poland & Afghanistan in the not too distant past! These are but a few of the expected advantages of our secret agenda. Others discussed and anticipated were:

1. Democracy & Freedom within the old Soviet Union.
(or the possible formation of smaller states founded on democracy & freedom)
2. Money budgeted for Defense could be invested in other projects at home.
3. The fall of the Berlin Wall & the end of the Cold War.
4. (MORE POINTS CAN BE GIVEN - AS NEEDED)

ALL OF THESE RESULTS HAVE BEEN REALIZED ALREADY !!

There was only ONE possible "DOWN-SIDE" to the course of action that we took. Near the end of the this program, the United States could have a "slight recession." This could be minimized and perhaps not happen at all if our Nation would reduce defense spending gradually and allow the American people and American industry to change- over to non-defense related production, perhaps a period of three or four years. This change should not happen ALL AT ONCE OR TOO QUICKLY!! Our program planned this change to take two to four years. I told congress that this change-over should take more time, but I did not get the cooperation of Democrats in congress and the defense budget was cut so drastically that many of our major Defense contracts had to be cancelled and we had to make other unwanted cuts in the budget that we sent to Congress. Just ask California Defense workers if this drastic cut was advisable at this time - They will tell you!

I need your help on November 3rd if I am to finish my agenda. In the next four years, I am confident that our economy will rebound, fewer people will die from communicable diseases and our health coverage will improve tremendously without a socialistic scheme suggested by the other party!!

I don't have to tell you that I am not the best debator in the world!! If that's what you want in a President, then you have other choices on November 3rd. But, if you want a proven leader that has an agenda for America and the experience to lead the greatest country in the world into the future - then I ask for your vote!

MESSAGE:

Mr. Baker:

Juck Sheehan asked that I fax you the following draft of an ad that he is having placed in The Johnstown Tribune-Democrat on Sunday, November 1, 1992, at his own expense.

Mary I. Diehl

The Johnstown Corporation is a basic steel producer. Our October orders are the best for one month in our company's eight year history. The economy IS picking up. Our primary market is the U.S. steel industry. But we are getting orders from Canada and Mexico.

George Bush has negotiated the North American Free Trade Agreement with Canada and Mexico. I predict that it will go down in history as an epochal economy building achievement. It means jobs in Johnstown, Pa.

Governor Clinton, if elected, will bow to the trade protectionists and scuttle that agreement. Moreover, he is 'in the pocket' of the trial lawyers who are the largest single contributors to his campaign. Why? Because George Bush's proposal to dramatically lower all of our insurance costs by reigning in the plaintiff bar is a threat to their multi-million dollar incomes. That single Bush proposal would do more for our economic performance than all the infrastructure that Bill Clinton proposes to build.

Our economy now is beginning to percolate again. Inflation is quite low, the stock market is high, and interest rates are low - the Prime rate at 6% is where it was when President Ford yielded the White House to Jimmy Carter who raised it to 21%. Already, with the bond market anticipating a Clinton victory, long bond interest rates are up 1/2% in two weeks. Think about it.

Clinton brags that he will raise your taxes and substantially increase federal government spending. Don't let that happen. No one can TRUST Bill Clinton.

Annoy the Media

RE-ELECT GEORGE BUSH

NRN

Do you want to see Dan Rather cry? Then vote for George Bush. Have you, in any campaign, seen anything like the television and newspaper bias evident in this one or in any Presidential campaign?

Did you know that the economy has been growing -- albeit slowly -- for 18 months? And that the three months through September '92 growth of our economy was a respectable 2.7%? Do you believe Governor Bill Clinton when he says that the Bush four years are the worst for the economy since the great depression? You shouldn't. The worst recent performance was when another small state southern governor -- another tax and spend Liberal Democrat -- was president, Jimmy Carter. Do you remember that interest rates rose under Carter to 21%? That inflation was 13%? That the recession Carter created -- 1981 -- had unemployment at 12%? Do you want to CHANGE to that kind of performance again?

The Truth About Clinton

Remember Massachusetts Governor Mike Dukakis who ran for President on a 'Massachusetts Miracle' platform? After he was defeated, the nation discovered that the 'Massachusetts Miracle' was a MIRAGE. That state had severe economic problems now being solved by Republican Governor Weld.

Governor Clinton's Arkansas administration is hiding a health care crisis while the linchpin of his campaign is better health care at lower costs. Arkansas' health care program is running a $120 million deficit this year. But they are waiting until after the election to confront that problem. Bill Clinton is a fraud just like Mike Dukakis.

Here is what his hometown newspaper -- the largest in his state (the Little Rock Arkansas Democrat-Gazette) said about Clinton on October 28: "There is something almost inhuman in his smoother responses that sends a shiver up the spine ... it is not the compromises he has made .... he has no great principals to compromise."

Bill Clinton has been Governor of Arkansas for twelve years. He told the people when he last ran for Governor that he would serve out his term and not run for President in 1992. Can anyone trust this man? What did he accomplish in twelve years? (Or 10-1/2 -- he's been running for President full-time for 18 months.) But what difference does that make? The Arkansas Legislature meets for six weeks every other year! How much experience in governing does one get in a tiny state like Arkansas? As Ross Perot said, it would be like going from managing the corner grocery to running the great Walmart Company.

YOU CAN'T TRUST CLINTON TO TELL THE TRUTH ABOUT HIS ARKANSAS RECORD.

The truth is, after 12 years of Governor Clinton, Arkansas ranks...

Economy

- 50th in median family income, as of 1989 (Census Bureau);
- 50th in average hourly earnings for production workers in manufacturing (Census Bureau);
- 49th worst in working climate (Southern Labor Institute);
- 48th in disposable personal income (1991 State & Metropolitan Area Data Book);
- 47th in percentage of people living in poverty (1990 Census);
- 47th in per capita income (Arkansas Gazette, 4/24/92); and,
- 44th in tax fairness (The Development Report Card for the States).

Environment

- 50th in government action to protect the environment (Institute for Southern Studies, The Green Index);
- 48th in overall environmental quality (Institute for Southern Studies, The Green Index);
- 41st in percent of clean rivers and streams (Institute for Southern Studies, The Green Index); and,
- 41st in per capita ozone depleting emissions (Institute for Southern Studies, The Green Index).

Education

- 50th in college graduation rates (1990 census);
- 48th in high school graduation rates (1990 census);
- 49th in per capita education spending (National Education Association); and,
- 46th in teacher pay (State and Metropolitan Area Data Book 1992).

Crime

- 50th in per capita spending on police (Sourcebook of Criminal Justice statistics-1991);
- 50th in per capita justice system spending (Sourcebook of Criminal Justice statistics-1991); and,
- 48th in per capita spending on corrections (Sourcebook of Criminal Justice statistics-1991).

Children

- 49th in child death rates (Center for Study of Social Policy);
- 47th in teen violent deaths (Center for Study of Social Policy);
- 45th in low-weight babies (Census Bureau: Statistical Abstract of the U.S. 1991);
- 45th in single teen births (Center for Study of Social Policy); and,
- 41st in percent of two parent families (Center for Study of Social Policy).

The truth is...Bill Clinton has failed Arkansas.
The truth is...Bill Clinton can't be trusted!

Dear Mr. Baker,

Thank you for the outstanding job you have done serving our country as Secretary of State and your continuing service to the President. I am a business student in the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. I have a compelling idea for you to consider for domestic policy during the next presidential administration.

Because I am a military veteran and fear the waste of a significant portion of our current military human resources, I propose converting one-third to one-half of this special pool of talents into a domestic job corp.

I feel my proposal is responsive to our society's needs and is more practical than creating a Job Corps from scratch; briefly, this program offers a range of benefits:

- * Appreciation of highly motivated, trained people, dedicated to serving our country, whose future is uncertain if assimilated into the private sector.
- * Offering young or unemployed people an opportunity for public service, disciplined training, job experience, and future educational benefits.
- * Directing this mission-oriented group to respond to the needs of crumbling infrastructure, low income housing, inner city improvements, disaster relief, and environmental accidents.
- * Reassigning partial commands, whole or partial military installations, and use the same organizational structure and uniforms with different insignia.
- * Utilizing (at least initially) the recruiting, training, compensation, and logistical systems that are already in place.

I have spent many hours discussing these ideas with my family, friends, other students and faculty members in the Business School, all of whom see their merit. Thank you in advance for your comments and for your continuing service to our country.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Baker:

In the light of Mr. Clintons' comments yesterday that Oil and Gas executives have endorsed him, you may be interested in the preliminary results of our recent reader survey to 3,000 natural gas executives and operating personnel. With a 30% return, the results favor President Bush by over 50%; Clinton with 12%; Perot with .01% and "neither" receiving the remainder 37% of the votes received.

We are also conducting one on behalf of the governmental readers of BETTER ROADS Magazine, published for over 60 years. This is showing a range of 60/40 or better in favor of President Bush.

If you would like any additional information don't hesitate to have someone call.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

DEFINITIONS

On this Airbill, we, our and us refer to Federal Express Corporation, its employees and agents. You and your refer to the sender, its employees and agents.

AGREEMENT TO TERMS

By giving us your package to deliver, you agree to all the terms on this Airbill and in our current Service Guide, which is available on request. If there is a conflict between the current Service Guide and this Airbill, the Service Guide will control. No one is authorized to alter or modify the terms of our Agreement.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR PACKAGING AND COMPLETING AIRBILL

You are responsible for adequately packaging your goods and for properly filling out this Airbill. Omission of the number of packages and weight per package from this Airbill will result in a billing based on our best estimate of the number of packages received from you and an estimated "default" weight per package, as determined and periodically adjusted by us.

AIR TRANSPORTATION TAX INCLUDED

Our basic rate includes a federal tax included by Internal Revenue Code Section 4271 on the air transportation portion of this service.

LIMITATIONS ON OUR LIABILITY AND LIABILITIES NOT ASSUMED

Our liability for loss or damage to your package is limited to your actual damages or $100 whichever is less, unless you pay for and declare a higher authorized value. We do not provide cargo liability insurance, but you may pay an additional charge for each additional $100 of declared value. If you declare a higher value and pay the additional charge, our liability will be the lesser of your declared value or the actual value of your package.

In any event we will not be liable for any damages, whether direct, incidental, special or consequential in excess of the declared value of a shipment, whether or not Federal Express had knowledge that such damages might be incurred including, but not limited to, loss of income or profits.

We won't be liable for your acts or omissions, including but not limited to improper or insufficient packing, securing, marking or addressing, or for the acts or omissions of the recipient or anyone else with an interest in the package. Also, we won't be liable, if you or the recipient violates any of the terms of our agreement. We won't be liable for loss of or damage to shipments of prohibited items.

We won't be liable for loss, damage or delay caused by events we cannot control, including but not limited to acts of God, perils of the air, weather conditions, acts of public enemies, war, strikes, civil commotions, or acts or omissions of public authorities (including customs and quarantine officials) with actual or apparent authority.

DECLARED VALUE LIMITS

The highest declared value we allow for FedEx Letter and FedEx Pak shipments is $500. For other shipments, the highest declared value we allow is $25,000 unless your package contains items of "extraordinary value," in which case the highest declared value we allow is $500. Items of "extraordinary value," include artwork, jewelry, furs, precious metals, negotiable instruments, and other items listed in our current Service Guide.

If you send more than one package on this Airbill, you may fill in the total declared value for all packages, not to exceed the $100, $500 or $25,000 per package limit described above. (Example: 5 packages can have a total declared value of up to $125,000.)

If more than one package is shipped on this airbill, our liability for loss or damage will be limited to the actual value of the package(s) lost or damaged (not to exceed the lesser of the total declared value or the per package limits described above). You have the responsibility of proving the actual loss or damage.

FILING A CLAIM

ALL CLAIMS MUST BE MADE BY YOU IN WRITING. You must notify us of your claim within strict time limits. See current Service Guide.

We'll consider your claim filed if you call and notify our Customer Service Department at 800-238-5355 and notify us in writing as soon as possible.

Within 90 days after you notify us of your claim, you must send us all relevant information about it. We are not obligated to act on any claim until you have paid all transportation charges, and you may not deduct the amount of your claim from those charges.

If the recipient accepts your package without noting any damage on the delivery record, we will assume that the package was delivered in good condition. In order for us to process your claim, you must, to the extent possible, make the original shipping cartons and packing available for inspection.

RIGHT TO INSPECT

We may, at our option, open and inspect your packages prior to or after you give them to us to deliver.

NO C.O.D. SERVICES

RESPONSIBILITY FOR PAYMENT

Even if you give us different payment instructions, you will always be primarily responsible for all delivery costs, as well as any cost we may incur in either returning your package to you or warehousing it pending disposition.

RIGHT OF REJECTION

We reserve the right to reject a shipment at any time, when such shipment would be likely to cause damage or delay to other shipments, equipment or personnel, or if the transportation of which is prohibited by law or is in violation of any rules contained in this Airbill or our current Service Guide.

MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

In the event of untimely delivery, Federal Express will at your request and with some limitations, refund or credit all transportation charges. See current Service Guide for further information.

President George Bush
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20500

NRN

Dear President Bush:

Yesterday, Secretary Jack Kemp released news from HUD that is potentially devastating to the Residential Housing Markets.

Secretary Kemp's misguided interpretation of the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA), exposes buyers of single family homes to additional loan closing costs as they negotiate loans to purchase a home. I urge you to rescind his action immediately.

Contrary to previous indications and draft regulations, HUD's announcement yesterday can only mean that HUD has caved in to special interest groups that do not have the consumers best interests in mind.

Making homes more affordable should be one of your administrations national housing priorities. This change of direction by HUD will likely increase fees paid by borrowers to obtain home financing and increase the complexity of completing home mortgage transactions. The consumer is confused enough as it is by the complexities of a home purchase transaction. They do not need more confusion at a higher cost.

The likely outcome of this outrageous change in direction will be to increase the costs of loan transactions to the borrower, increasing the affordability crisis for consumers who want to participate in the American Dream of owning a home.

Previously, HUD had announced in Congressional testimony that caps on referral fees, full disclosure at the time of service and open access to any Computerized Loan Origination (CLO's) system by any lender were appropriate. Now in a complete reversal, HUD has authorized the payment of fees to real estate staff in CLO's, allows CLO's to be dedicated to one lender and allows for the payment of fees for business referrals among providers of settlement services. These proposed regulations reverse the previous Administration position and I find that reversal unacceptable.

I urge you to use your executive privilege to act responsibly to reverse this HUD decision before any irreverable damage is done to the homebuying/financing process.

Sincerely,

Charles E. Reed
Senior Vice President

PERSONAL & CONFIDENTIAL

SECRETARY LYN MARTIN, WALL ST. WEEK:
LET ME PUT IT THIS WAY: THE PRESIDENT SHOULD HUG AND GIVE THIS LADY A KISS ON THE CHEEK- AND THEN GIVE HER MORE TO DO.
OR, IF ROSS PEROT HAD HER AS V.P. THEY COULD WIN 10-15 STATES.

SYNTHESIS AND PERSPECTIVE. SHE COMMUNICATED IN AS COMPREHENSIVE, BALANCED, ELOQUENT AND CREDIBLE MANNER ALL THAT I AM THINKING AND HOPING THE PRESIDENT WOULD GET ACROSS. A+ JOB. THIS TALENTED, BRIGHT PERSON COULD BECOME THE MARLENE DEITRICH OF THE BELTWAY. MORE MARTIN PLEASE. (NOTE: WHERE IS THE KEMP-REACH TO INNER CITIES AND BLUE COLLAR WORKERS?)

THE PRESIDENT, LKL/CNM. NET IMPRESSION, BRIGHTER AND MORE COMMITTED THAN THOUGHT; HYPER-COMPETITIVE, MORE FACILE IN HANDLING THE REAL HARD BALL QUESTIONS. COMBATIVE, PERHAPS TOO COMBATIVE, ALBEIT GENTEEL IN MANNER. SURELY WHAT I WAS HOPING FOR, ECONOMIC PERSPECTIVE, WAS OVERPOWERED BY "POWER GAMES" ISSUES- A BIT SCARY SIR.

NET HARDLINE EVALUATION: THE BUSH MESSAGE IS GETTING THRU; THE CLINTONS ARE NOT PREPARED FOR THE MEAN-SPIRITED PERSONALIZATION ON THE ONE HAND- WHICH CARRIES THE RISK OF NEGATIVE REACTION- AND THE FUNDAMENTAL, FACTUAL EMPHASIS ON ECONOMIC PERSPECTIVE.

THE CLINTON ECONOMIC PLANNERS, SHAPIRO & SPERLING, HAVE NO COUNTER FOR THE TACTIC OF PUTTING OUR SITUATION IN PERSPECTIVE, BECAUSE THEIR IS NONE. THEY HAVE, UNTIL A WEEK AGO, BEEN ABLE TO AVOID COUNTRY COMPARISONS AND TO PLACE THE EMPHASIS ON OUR PROBLEMS AS THOUGH WE WERE AN INSULAR ECONOMY.

WHEN LYN MARTIN APPEARED WITH SHAPIRO AND MADE THE POINT OF PERSPECTIVE, A SLY GRIN, FOLLOWED BY POL-SPEAK ENSUED FROM SHAPIRO. THEY CAN'T COUNTER REALITY, ONLY TRY TO SUBLIMATE IT.

END-GAME: THE PRESIDENT SHOULD TIE CLINTON TO THE DANGER OF A DEMO CONGRESS AND PRESIDENCY; MORE ABOUT FAILED DEMO LEADERSHIP PLUS THE POTENTIAL CARTER-CREW OF N.Y./WALL ST. GUYS; ROGER ALTMAN, ROBERT RUBIN, FELIX ROHATYN: CLINTON WILL TRY TO LINK THE PRESIDENT WITH "CAUSES" FROM THE REAGAN ADMINISTRATION, AND "EFFECTS" FROM THIS ONE. THE PROBLEM FOR THE PRESIDENT IS THAT HE CANNOT ACKNOWLEDGE CRITICISM OF THE PRIOR ADMINISTRATION.

THERE IS NOW A BALANCED FOUNDATION FOR THE "BUSH-IMPRESSION"; WE NEED TO SEE A PRESIDENT FOR ALL THE PEOPLE IN THE LAST FEW DAYS, DRIVEN NOT BY HIS PERSONAL NEEDS, BUT IN THE INTERESTS OF THE COUNTRY.

MOST RESPECTFULLY,

FRANK C. BURGER

The Honorable James A. Baker, III
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Jim:

We are happy to tell you that excellent reports keep coming in. Our total has now reached $9,403,601 which represents giving from 61,962 federal employees in our community. That is a sensational $4,380,677 in one week.

As we predicted, Department of Defense organizations had another outstanding week. The campaign at the Department of the Army has gone over the million-dollar mark with the Navy and Marine Corps employees in close pursuit at $991,000.

Also coming on strong are the campaigns at FDIC, GAO, GSA, and the Department of Agriculture.

Individual giving, so far, has been very generous. It is happening all over the government as you can see in the enclosed report. Federal employees are indeed continuing their strong tradition of caring.

Please try to include an update of your campaign status at your senior staff meeting. Your interest and visible support mean a lot to your CFC team and to the success of the campaign. We still have a long way to go, and with your help, we know we will do it.

Sincerely,

Pat

Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Jim:

As you know, I am doing all I can to insure the President's re-election. I think his message is finally getting through to the American people. The country will be headed for dismal times if Clinton misleadingly gets elected.

I am forwarding to your attention a proposed program by a stalwart patriot, Fred Jonkers, an associate of my thinktank. He is a Bush man, and has some good ideas to explain what we should be doing in the next ten days. It needs a little work, but I believe it has sound principles which the campaign or administration may be able to use.

Keep up the good work!

Cordially,

Ray S. Cline

P.S. I enclose an extra copy for the President.

Proposed program for:

President George Bush should create an initiative to deal with
"National and Global Goals"

Adapting our institutions to the demands of the coming century, the only superpower is responsible for peace on earth and the well being of mankind.

The President will connect with the hopes and fears of the people. He will answer the demand that something is done; he will bring not just change, but a form of fulfillment of the free system.

Through this program the President could yet make himself one of the great deciding figures of the century. The President has nothing to lose and everything to gain!

"This system" no longer seems to work! If there is anybody who is aware of this it is the President of the United States. There are a hundred fanatic Special Interest Groups to rile the public into Adversary Anger. Above all there is a Congress grid-locked in an Adversary party struggle, unable to produce the needed wise and decisive actions in the interest of all.

As long as members of Congress have to raise money for their re-election by favoring special interests, democracy will fail to provide governance in the interests of all.

I have heard Democratic Presidential candidates call loudly and insistently for change, without specifying what that change would be. I heard it in 1980 and today we hear it again. I have so far not joined this form of empty demagoguery.

What we are facing today is the need of and dire responsibility for the updating of our system of democratic institution and economic controls; they will have to be updated from those conceived two hundred years ago for a small isolated island nation living outside of the mainstream of world events, to what we are today -- a nation with the responsibility for the maintenance of peace on earth and the well being of mankind. As a Providence-given duty we have been thrust into the role of our Brother's keeper; as a Christian nation we have no choice but to accept that duty.

The economy of course, our most immediate concern, center around the economy. In fact, we need a plan to make American number one again, in industrial growth and innovation!

Already as part of my near term Agenda, I have mentioned a drastic reduction in the capital gains tax. If that would make the rich richer, so be it -- at the least for the time being! I also mentioned a drastic investment tax credit for corporations.

The NAFTA legislation to create a Common Market between Canada, Mexico, and the United States is now before the Congress. An intensified trade exchange between the United States and Mexico could immensely benefit both nations, but only if for every labor intensive job exported to Mexico, we create a high-tech job here. High tech jobs, however, require a large investment and we should see that the needed investment capital will be available. Also we must see that this money when available is indeed primarily invested here.

The main ingredient is public confidence in the future of our nation. Without that confidence, investors will not dare to invest; the entrepreneur will not dare to start new enterprises nor expand existing ones, and the public will not dare to spend. As long as that mood prevails businesses will continue to close down.

It triggered an effort by a mere handful of people here in the Washington area to quietly and in obscurity rethink our system of democracy, as well as our system of free enterprise. They aimed to adapt it to the demands of the next decades and the next century. Though much detail work still has to be done, they are now ready to step out of the shadows.

I have asked these people to organize themselves as a non-profit think tank, the "Institute of National and Global Aims and Goals" -- "Aims and Goals" for short! This will become my personal Presidential Think Tank for the next term.

Today, the key to peace on earth is that needed system of democracy that will work, and work well, anywhere on earth. Under the accompanying system of free enterprise and opportunity for all, those nations will then turn inward to concentrate on their own well being. We have already seen this process at work in Japan, Taiwan, Singapore, South Korea and many other places. As history has shown true democracies will not make war upon each other!!

The third leg of the restoration of democracy "to what it was intended to be" -- is namely the long-standing old idea of campaign funding by the Federal Government:

Candidates would qualify for that funding by the collection of signatures. Some would be able to collect these on their good reputation; others would use less desirable methods. But if the 10 candidates with the most signatures would qualify for Federal funding, most likely there will be a sufficient number of worthy candidates among them.

First there will be shake-out election, that will reduce the field to two. That will be followed by the final or run-off election.

What would be the effect? The candidates would all concentrate on where the most votes are -- the great moderate middle mass of midstream America. They would go there with moderate and sensible proposals. Power would have been taken way from the extremist on both sides, to be placed in the hands of the great Silent Majority.

What will happen to the two Parties? They will survive, but others too may arise. All will be forced to switch from money raising to thinking, planning, and education of public. And that will be all to the good.

Let us first look at the subject of how to protect our economy from inflation, recession, and depressions. We will have to plan now for the problems of future success. Our aim should be a recession and depression proof economy. The greatest immediate danger is inflation.

Today most of our money supply consist of Bank credit created by the Banks. The Federal Reserve system -- by means of the so called reserve requirements -- exercises a certain amount of limited control over this process; in fact that control is far too limited.

As a result of these limitations, Banks have become the greatest endless de-stabilizers of our economic system. Economist speak of it as the loose cannon on the ship of our free system. In times of economic boom they lend recklessly. We have seen the Savings and Loan Banks lend recklessly to real estate developers. The result has been over-building and the greatest real estate depression and the largest banking scandal ever! In fact that real estate debacle did much to trigger the present recession.

Today, the Banks instead of lending recklessly, refuse to lend even where direly needed. Today if a man loses his job and wants to borrow money on his home to tide him over, the Banks will refuse him, because he has no income and as such, is a bad risk. The Banks, as always will lend to those who do not need but not to those who need it.

Of Course this possibility has to be thoroughly researched. The resulting tentative plans will have to be put before the Banking world, the industrial world, and the public. If all looks good and all agree, it can then be passed into laws.

I now come to a painful subject -- the revitalization of our industry. We believe in open markets, but other nations do not! They subsidize and protect their vital industries and then demand access to our open market!

Most of these revitalization efforts will of course involve expanded research and development and plant automation.

Once more, from where will come the savings to do so? There is of course an ideal answer -- a system under which what people pay into social security will be -- to the largest possible extent possible -- invested in our economy. It will not only help our industries grow; the retirees will benefit even more.

Not only should big industry benefit, but groups of individuals who want to start a small enterprise should under carefully monitored circumstances be able to start such an enterprise. That system should make possible the true fulfillment of the system of free enterprise and opportunity available for all!

And that brings up another basic issue. Recessions and depressions -- and we have had one on the average every seven years -- can have different causes. The more persistent of all however, are the excesses of the stock market. It brought us the Great Depression of 1929-39; when one third of the nation were unemployed; production was down to half.

Lately we have seen an overly deregulated Savings and Loan industry create the great financial scandal and real estate crisis ever. We have seen the greedy leverage buyout artist bring great companies to their knees. Moreover, the danger of panic selling by the big investment funds -- leading stock market crashes, still hang over our heads.

Before the world will recognize our system of democracy as the answer, to the future we have one more central issue to face: At present our system is developing a wide "netherclass" of crime, drugs, homelessness as well as illegitimacy and the poverty of the single mother; subsistence on welfare has become a way of life!

In fact, to a degree every democracy shows this same pattern. It is -- so it seems -- an undesirable side effect of freedom of the individual; that freedom if totally unrestrained, tends to run wild.

The first challenge is to halt the core of the problem -- drugs and drug related crimes. The second is the restoration of morals, ethics and decency!

But punishment to fit the crime is merely the beginning. The second main emphasis should be on rehabilitation. Let us go back to boot camps and work camps, to re-make kids-gone-wrong into decent people, and let us give them effective job skills before we release them. It has worked wherever tried! Above all, let us go back to teach morals, ethics, and decency in the schools and even earlier than that.

No issue has torn this nation apart more than the abortion issue, and no issue has created more adversary anger and hatred. The American public has since long decided that neither of the two extreme positions are right. Certainly to make Government funded abortions freely available to say 13 years olds solely at their own discretion, goes against the grain of every parent.

On the other hand the idea that a just fertilized egg has become a person with its own rights as well as a ward of the state and that its' abortion is murder, is equally unacceptable to a nation founded on the principle of the self-reliant individual. In the eyes of most, the extreme right's position would represent a return to the totalitarian State. To each and every woman a just fertilized egg belongs to her and her alone. Then, when the baby begins to stir, she realizes that there is life that is beginning to have demands and rights of its own.

In fact in the eyes of most Americans as well as in the eyes of the law, the truth lies somewhere in the middle. We all differ in degree and detail. I personally lean more towards the pro-life; Barbara, as nearly all women do, leans more towards pro-choice. But that moderation on the part of midstream America has not stopped the agitation and the sowing of division and mutual hatred.

You have worked hard for your convictions; you achieve as much as humanly possible. Now bury the hatchet and join us in "making America what History intended us to be -- the core nation and builder of a great New World Order for the millennia yet to come".

It aims to make America the example for all nations in a democratic system that will work and a free enterprise system capable of creating "stable lasting well-being for all.

My fellow Americans, we are living through a very crucial period in the History of mankind. This election may well prove to be the most crucial of that period. The world has gone through such periods before, periods of turmoil and resolution of turmoil by the updating of its systems.

Today, a great New Global Order of peace between the nations and well-being for all, must be created. Once again "the system" needs an overhaul and updating to make it into the foundation of that New Order. I ask you for the opportunity to carry out this task!

Dear Jim:

President:
Dr. Michael A. Daniels

As you know, I am doing all I can to insure the President's re-election. I think his message is finally getting through to the American people. The country will be headed for dismal times if Clinton misleadingly gets elected.

Vice President:
Dr. Dalton A. West

Mr. Robert C. MacKenzie
Mrs. Janet Morris

I am forwarding to your attention a proposed program by a stalwart patriot, Fred Jonkers, an associate of my thinktank. He is a Bush man, and has some good ideas to explain what we should be doing in the next ten days. It needs a little work, but I believe it has sound principles which the campaign or administration may be able to use.

Keep up the good work!

Cordially,

PROPOSED PLAN FOR THE PRESIDENT'S SECOND TERM,

The long version proposes answers to the main problems on the voters mind. It provides sufficient detail to be convincing that the president has answers.

The long version introduces 9 major attention getting new reform initiatives.

The short version calls for 5 major reform initiatives, and does not specify the answers.

The long version can be shortened without cutting out programs. But it should be in essence a <sup>FORM OF</sup> (inaugural) address, laying out a 4 year program of reform and change. It should be delivered one week before Nov. 3. This should be done fully and well, no halfway measures.

IN A LONG PRESS CONFERENCE.

DEAR SEC. BAKER:

RAY CLINE TOOK MY (20 PAGE) PROGRAM AND CUT IT DOWN TO 8 PAGES, BUT IT WAS DONE IN A HURRY AND BECAME GARBLED.

THE THING TO DO IS FOR YOU TO GO OVER THE LONG VERSION — THAT IS MY ORIGINAL — AND CUT OUT WHAT YOU CONSIDER IN APPROPRIATE.

SINCERELY YOURS.

PROGRAM FOR THE PRES.' NEXT TERM.

(EDITED)

ROUGH DRAFT I

A SPECIAL PRESIDENTIAL INITIATIVE
FOR
"NATIONAL AND GLOBAL AIMS AND GOALS"

A program for adapting our institutions to the demands of the coming century, as the superpower responsible for peace on earth and the well being of mankind

Note to the Presidential Staff

This program is intended to fill the time-space between the end of the Presidential debates and the election.

The program is to be introduced at a previously announced Special
T.V. address.

If the program would lead to debate and further questions, three manuscripts in which the proposed reforms have been worked out in greater detail, are available. That material can be used to answer questions in more detail .

THE PRESIDENT HAS ASKED HIS STAFF TO COME UP WITH SOMETHING. THE STAFF IS WAITING FOR A LAST MINUTE MIRACLE. IF THERE IS GOING TO BE ANYTHING LIKE IT, THIS WILL BE IT -- A PROGRAM OVER 20 YEARS IN THE MAKING, WAITING FOR THIS DAY.

IN THIS PROGRAM THE PRESIDENT WILL CONNECT WITH THE HOPES AND FEARS OF THE PEOPLE. HE WILL ANSWER THE DEMAND THAT SOMETHING IS DONE; HE WILL BRING NOT JUST CHANGE, BUT A FORM OF FULFILLMENT OF THE FREE SYSTEM.

THROUGH THIS PROGRAM THE PRESIDENT COULD YET MAKE HIMSELF ONE OF THE GREAT DECIDING FIGURES OF THE CENTURY. THE PRESIDENT HAS NOTHING TO LOSE AND EVERYTHING TO GAIN!

PERSONAL FREDERICK JONKER

This draft program was extracted by me from 3 study manuscripts written over the past 20 years (see attached Resume). One deals with Democracy (titled "Unfulfilled Democracy"). The second deals with the economy (titled "Wealth and National Destiny; Model Free Economy;"). The third manuscript dealing with World Orders has been held in reserve.

As an immigrant already over 70, I have no personal political ambitions, except to see the program fulfilled.

The program is not just a 4-year one!<sup>1</sup> It is at least an 8-year program.

Whether Pres. Bush is re-elected or not, Mr. Baker is likely to be the strongest Republican Candidate in '96. It is therefore my hope that if Pres. Bush is re-elected, Sec. Baker will be placed in direct charge of the program, so that toward '96 the program will have become as much Mr. Baker's as Pres. Bush's!

If Pres. Bush is not re-elected it is hoped that for the above reason, Mr. Baker will take over the role of sponsor protector and user of the program.

T.V. ADDRESS

BY PRES. BUSH

My fellow Americans:

The debates are now behind us. The debates and the Agenda I have presented dealt largely with the most immediate problems -- the immediate short term issues, the issues of what to do about the present U.S. and Global depression. Secretary Baker -- the new economic Czar of my intended next administration <sup>2</sup>will have much more to say about this.

But today the concern of the American people -- and myself -- go far deeper and reach far, far beyond. As so many have expressed it, "This system" no longer seems to work! If there is anybody who is aware of this it is the President of the United States. There are a hundred fanatic Special Interest Groups to rile the public into Adversary Anger. Above all there is a Congress gridlocked in an Adversary Party struggle, unable to produce the needed wise and decisive actions in the interest of all.

I have for many years been well aware of the need for change, for better answers to the multitude of the many ingrained problems which plague our society -- and in fact all democracies across the globe. As President, one soon becomes aware of the fact that these problems do not primarily come from the people who together form our system of governance; <sup>largely</sup> they reside in the system itself. As long as members of the Congress have to raise money for their re-election <sup>By</sup> favoring special interests, democracy will fail to provide governance in the interests of all.

I have heard Democratic, Presidential candidates call loudly and insistently for change, without specifying what that change would be. I heard it in 1980 and today we hear it again. I have so far not joined this form of empty demagoguery.

One reason is that ill considered drastic change contains its dangers and could lead to unexpected undesirable side effects. For example, we have seen a well intentioned and needed welfare system to alleviate the suffering of the disadvantaged, lead to welfare as a permanent life style, with fatherless households and illegitimate children growing up in neglect; we have seen too many of these children slip into a life of drug dealing and crime.

Change, therefore, and certainly the presently needed far reaching changes, should first be well considered and researched in advance for <sup>their</sup> full consequences and undesirable side effects. This particularly applies to the needed radical changes called for today.

What we are facing today is the the need of and dire responsibility for the updating of our system of democratic institutions and economic controls; they will have to be updated from those conceived two hundred years ago for a small isolated island nation living outside of the mainstream of world events, to what we are today -- a nation charged by Providence with responsibility for the maintenance of peace on earth and the well being of mankind. As a Providence given duty we have been thrust into the role of our Brother's keeper; as a Christian nation we have no choice but accept that duty.

That updating of our system to meet the needs of the coming century -- the needs of our own people and the world around us -- will be the principal task I have set myself for a second term. I hereby present you that long-term plan!

(The economy)

Of course, our most immediate concerns, center around the economy. In fact, we need a plan to make America number one again, in industrial growth and innovation!

Already as part of my near term Agenda, I have mentioned a drastic reduction in the capital gains tax. If that would make the rich, richer, so be it -- at least for the time being! I also mentioned a drastic investment tax credit for corporations.

The NAFTA Legislation to create a Common Market between the USA, Canada and Mexico, is now before the Congress. An intensified trade exchange between the US and Mexico could immensely benefit both nations, but only if for every labor intensive job exported to Mexico, we create a high-tech job here. High tech jobs, however, require a large investment and we should see that the needed investment capital will be available. Also we must see that this money when available is indeed primarily invested here.

However, the Germans and Japanese save and invest at a rate respectively 2 and 3 times ours. Therefore needed will be new and much larger sources of

They are needed investment capital as part of a systematic program to make America number one again in industry and commerce. I will come to that later!

There is, however, one more essential ingredient without which even such a program will fail -- that ingredient is public confidence in the future of our nation. Without that confidence, investors will not dare to invest; the entrepreneur will not dare to start new enterprises or expand existing ones, and the public will not dare to spend. As long as that mood prevails businesses will continue to close down.

This confidence in the future of our system has over the past years been sorely put to the test: Today we see a Congress gridlocked and mired in Adversary Party infighting. The public no longer perceives this body capable of the needed action.

Needed to restore public confidence, is a radical basic change from the present system based on Adversary Party struggle, to a system of Consensus seeking democracy -- a system that will force its members automatically to decision making, not based on Party interest, but in the best interests of the entire nation. This is the sort of system that every President has unspokenly and silently dreamed and wished for. I did, and no doubt so did my predecessors!

In fact if our Founding Fathers would return today they would be horrified! The adversary Party System of today represents the very opposite of what they intended. What they envisioned was "The Trustee System" -- a system under which people of high character and learning, representing the people, would be thinking and acting in the best interests of all and the nation as a whole.

Instead -- to their horror -- our Founding Fathers begot the Adversary Party System, driven by Special interests. Read what Geo. Washington had to say in his Farewell Address about the nefarious practices of the Parties and the Party politicians. And things have not changed since!

Unfortunately, Presidents have so far been far too busy with the "crises-of-the-day" to give the needed thought to the needed reforms.

(The origin of the plan and the Research behind it)

While many wish for a fundamentally better system, a mere handful of Americans did something about it. The effort was triggered by a Memo issued early in the eighties by the late General Albert C. Wedemeyer, former Commander in Chief of the China Theatre during W.W. II. In his Memo he called for the establishment of a form of non-political non-partisan "Supreme Planning Council composed of the best minds and most experienced in their field, to advise the People, the Congress and the Executive, on major issues and dangers as well as the courses to take. What the Supreme Court is to do for legal system, so that Planning Council was to do. for the nation's National and International Policies; it was to act as a counterweight to the blundering of the Congress..

It triggered an effort by a mere handful of people here in THE Washington area to quietly and in obscurity rethink our system of democracy, as well as our system of free enterprise. They aimed to adapt it to the demands of the next decades and the next century. Though much detail work still has to be done, they are now ready to step out of the shadows.

I have asked these people to organize themselves as a non-profit think tank, the "Institute of National and Global Aims and Goals" -- "Aims and Goals" for short! This will become my personal Presidential Think Tank for my next term.

The results of ) ( this work has come none too soon! Today, all of mankind cries out for freedom and democracy. The need is for a system that will work anywhere on earth, even among the least developed nations. It must be a form of rule of wisdom that places the best and most high-minded in charge; it must govern in the best interest of all of the people; above all it must be proof against subversive overthrow.

For this, the world looks toward us, as the land of democracy. Instead it sees a system gridlocked in "Adversary Infighting". In fact the system we have today has only worked to an acceptable degree in a mere handful of the highly developed Western nations. In fact the very same Adversary Party system already self-destructed twice before, first in Greece and then in Rome. In classical Rome -- as we have seen since then in Germany and Italy and all over the world -- the infighting of the Parties escalated in street fighting. That in turn escalated in two immensely cruel Civil Wars, until the Ceasars restored order by military might, as the only possible answer.

Today, the key to peace on earth is that needed system of democracy that will work, and work well, anywhere on earth. Under the accompanying system of free enterprise and opportunity for all, those nations will then turn inward to concentrate on their own well being. We have already seen this process at work in Japan, Taiwan, Singapore, South Korea and many other places. As history has shown true democracies will not make war upon each other!!

Thus, to develop such a system of democracy and demonstrate it before the forum of the nations for others to copy, will become one of the central tasks of my second term.

(The details of Meta Democracy)

Let me give you a brief preview of what such a system of "Meta-Democracy" could look like:

All successful and durable systems of governance of the past such as Tribal Democracy as well as certain benign autocracies, usually featured two forms of

"legislative" bodies. One would be a body in which the people as well as special interests could voice their complaints and demands; here, factions and parties ruled. The other institution ideally consisted of unbiased prominent experts and specialists, to come up with - answers, to serve the interest of all. In modern terms those systems featured a form of "Lower House" and a form of "Upper House". Gen. Wedemeyer's concept of a form of "Supreme Planning Council" amounted in effect to such an Upper House.

In fact the British 'House of Lords' was intended to become such an Upper House, except that much later the House of Lords -- with their lands being taken -- while their feudal lands were taken away from those Lords -- that House of Lords too became a form of special interest group.

Virtually all of the European democracies born after the French revolution, were also to be based on the "Dual House principle". Unfortunately, because nearly all of these democracies were formed as federations of various smaller Principalities, those Upper Houses too became Houses of special interests -- namely defenders of the interest of these Principalities.

The same happened here ! Our supposed Upper House became the House of representatives of the States -- just a House of another form of special interest.

(The U.S. Upper House of Experts and Specialists)

It is time that we finally "restore democracy to what it was intended to be".

How would such an Upper House work? It would be comprised of respected experts and specialists in many different fields and professions. Each member would be elected by <sup>all of</sup> those working in his field. No campaign contributions and overt campaigning would be permitted. The Parties and the Unions would have to stay out of it -- so would industrial and other large organizations! The election process would be a step-wise process. The vote would be secret. Any attempt by organizations to influence the vote of their employees would be forbidden.

Legislation proposed by the specialists in a certain field regarding their own field would first have to be approved by the entire Upper House, before being sent to the Lower House for approval.

While the Upper House would call only for the special expertise for each field, each field also has its special interest to defend. For <sup>, however,</sup> ~~that~~ it would have to go to the Lower House, which would remain the House of Special interest of any and all kinds.

(The secret vote in the Congress)

Many of the details have already been visualized, but much work needs still to be done. Would it work? And above all, how could we ever expect the Congress to give up so much of its power?

This brings me to the second main item in the restoration of democracy to "what was intended to be", namely the secret vote in the Congress.

Of course the secret vote and democracy go together as a head and the hat on it. It was to be part of the Constitution, except that an escape clause was slipped in. What would be the effect of its restoration, which would include. A provision forbidding a member from divulging how he voted? The effect would be that each Member would be free "to vote his conscience" as our Founding Fathers intended! He no longer would need to walk the Party line, or cater to the special interests of his contributors. I believe that most of the Congress would be for it!

Of course companies and other special interests would stop trying to buy Senators and Representatives, and campaign contributions would dry up. And that brings me to the third leg of the restoration of democracy <sup>it</sup> to what it was intended to be <sup>it</sup> -- namely the long-standing old idea of campaign funding by the Federal Government:

Candidates would qualify by the collection of signatures. Some would be able to collect these on their good reputation; others would use less desirable methods. But if the 10 candidates with the most signatures would qualify for Federal funding, most likely there will be a sufficient number of worthy candidates among them. From that point on no other spending of any kind by any one -- least of all by the Parties -- other than the Federal allocation of funds, would be permitted. Also there would be strict rules on how to spend these funds

First there will be a shake-out election, that will reduce the field to two. That will be followed by the final or run-off election.

What would be the effect? The Parties being out of the game, the candidates would all concentrate on where the most votes are -- the great moderate middle mass of midstream America. They would go there with moderate and sensible proposals. Power would have taken away from the extremist on both sides, to be placed in the hands of the great Silent Majority.

Such a "Congress and Executive of the mainstream of America" could then commence to dissolve the immense logjam of problems facing us today.

(The future of the Parties)

What will happen to the two Parties? They will survive, but others too may arise. All will be forced to switch from money raising to thinking, planning and education of the public. And that will be all to the good.

(Democracy for the underdeveloped world)

I believe that a program as outlined will make us again the example for all mankind. In this program we will have made democracy safe for the world -- safe for even the lesser developed nations. Each of these nations now possesses a small class of the Western Educated which have transcended tribal strife and Tribal loyalties. From this elite an Upper House can be recruited as a starter democracy. That Upper House must be firmly in control of the military. Later, if that Upper House works well, a Lower House can be added!

(Futuristic economic controls)

Earlier I mentioned the need for a plan to make America number one again in industrial expansion and innovation. Also I mentioned the need for a larger source of investment funds,

Let us first look at the subject of how to protect our economy from inflation, recessions and depressions. We will have to plan now for the problems of future success. Our aim should be a recession and depression proof economy.

The greatest immediate danger is inflation -- inflation by the driving up of wages by Union demands. In the past, in good days of our economy, the steel and auto workers Unions succeeded in pushing up wages in their industry to twice the national level. It helped give other nations an opening to invade our market to cripple and partially destroy these industries.

But even if the Unions would restrain themselves, a booming economy would create a labor shortage. That in turn would drive up salaries and wages.

In the past the Federal Reserve system has curtailed this form of inflation by cutting credit to slow down the economy. Some industries will not be affected by this, but others like the building industry and auto sales, depend for 90 percent on credit. Thus, this method of inflation control will throw both of these industries into a tailspin, triggering a recession. It will indeed curtail inflation, but at what price! What we have now is in effect inflation control by recession.

There are, however, in theory other and better answers -- and here things are getting quite technical: Today most of our money supply consist of Bank Credit created by the Banks. The Federal Reserve system -- by means of the so-called reserve requirements -- exercises a certain amount of limited control over this process; in fact that control is far too limited. The Fed Reserve system as it stands today is actually a relic of the past.

As a result of these limitations, Banks have become the greatest mindless de-stabilizers of our economic system. Economists speak of it as the loose canon on the ship of our free system. In times of economic boom they lend recklessly. We have seen the Savings and Loan Banks lend recklessly to real estate developers. The result has been reckless overbuilding and the greatest real estate depression and Banking scandal ever! In fact that real estate debacle did much to trigger the present recession.

Today, the Banks instead of lending recklessly, refuse to lend even where direly needed. Today if a man loses his job and wants to borrow money on his home to tide him over, the Banks will refuse him, because he has no income and, as such, is a bad risk. The Banks, as always will lend to those who do not need but not to those who need it.

(The 100 Percent Reserve System)

There is, however, a possible answer -- the so-called 100 percent Reserve system. It was first proposed during the Great Depression as a means of getting the economy going again. But the Congress did not understand it, and so it died!

Under this system it is not the Banks who create the credit supply, but the Federal Reserve System. The Banks simply borrow from "The Fed" to dole it out to the industry and consumers. But the Fed. will have the power over the Banks to direct the credit to where it should go most, such as to ailing industries which need to modernize. Conversely it has the power to curtail credit from those industries which are recklessly expanding, as the real estate industry is wont to! The Fed. can do so preferably by varying the rates at which it lends to the Banks, or -- if things threaten to go haywire -- it can simply direct the Banks where to place the money it lends them and where not.

Here we have a possible tool to create recession and depression free booming economies.

Of course this possibility has to thoroughly be researched. The resulting tentative plans will have to be put before the Banking world, the industrial world and the public. If all looks good and all agree. It can then be passed into laws.

We the USA and West need such a plan for an advanced system of free enterprise -- the need is urgent. For the past-communist world, and above all for the Third World, such a plan is of even greater urgency. For their sustenance these nations heavily depend on a limited number of export products, be it copper or peanuts, coal or oil. A mild recession in the West can throw these nations in the deepest and most harmful of depressions with great human misery. The proposed system should make it possible to forcefully and rapidly direct their economy towards other product and general diversification.

5, (An industrial revitalization policy)

I now come to a painful subject -- the revitalization of our industry.

We believe in open markets, but other nations do not! They subsidize and protect their vital industries and then demand access to our open market!

At the end of W.W. II our industry was far ahead of anyone else. Japan's was far behind. But in Japan, Government, Big Industry and Banking got together to force their industries into drastic modernization. They succeeded and commenced to invade our markets, selling at high prices in Japan to undersell us here. True, our industries had rested on their oars and fallen behind. But why, while the Japanese Government policies were able to force their industries to surpass us, why did not we have Government policies which at least would have forced our industries to keep up with the Japanese? Why not? 60 percent of the American people and perhaps 90 percent of our industries now want such policies!

We can start doing so by setting up "Industrial Vitalization Boards" for each major industry, comprising representatives of Industry, Government and Banking, to plan the needed strategies. Much advance research and planning will, however, be needed to do this right. But it must be done!

Most of these revitalization efforts will of course involve expanded Research and Development and plant automation.

Once more from where will come the savings to do so? There is of course an ideal answer,—a system under which what people pay into social security will to the largest possible extent be invested in our economy. It will not only help our industries grow; the retiree will benefit even more; every dollar he paid into the system in his younger years should be worth a multiple when he retires.

Not only should big industry benefit, but groups of individuals who want to start a small enterprise should under carefully monitored circumstances be able to draw from their accumulated assets to start such an enterprise. That system should make possible the true fulfillment of the system of free enterprise and opportunity for each and all!

The investment of such funds -- to be done by our investment industry -- should of course be carefully regulated and watched. Again much study research will be needed before such a plan can be put before the people.

Of course, the Government should guarantee this system against disastrous stock market collapse.

(Wall street reform)

And that brings up another basic issue. Recessions and depressions -- and we have had one on the average every seven years -- can have different causes. The most persistent of all <sup>however,</sup> are the excesses of stock market. It brought us the Great Depression of 1929-39; one third of the nation was unemployed; production was down to half.

Lately we have seen an overly deregulated Savings and Loan industry create the greatest financial scandal and real estate crisis ever. We have seen the greedy leveraged buyout artists bring great companies to their knees. Moreover, the danger of panic selling by the big investment funds leading stock market crashes, still hangs over our heads.

Clearly under the present system the nation can not risk a social security system based on investment.

But there may be an easy cure -- a law that forces each and all to hold on to a stock for at least one year -- except in personal hardship cases or the case of small investors. It would effectively stop stock market crashes or speculative run ups. It would also effectively hamper or stop most greenmail and bad leveraged buyouts, permitting the desirable <sup>and</sup> necessary ones to go through.

Hopefully in this way we may be able to make investment industry into what it should be the very heart and core of the free system, instead of its Red Light District. Also we would have made the system safe for a social security system based on investment.

(Ethics, morals and common decency)

Before the world will recognize our system of democracy as the answer, to the future we have one more central issue to face: At present our system is developing a wide "netherclass" of crime, drugs, homelessness as well as illegitimacy and the poverty of the single mother; subsistence on welfare has become a way of life!

In fact, to a degree every democracy shows this same pattern. It is -- so it seems -- an undesirable side effect of freedom of the individual; that freedom if totally unrestrained, tends to run wild.

In general, the more tightly controlled, repressive and authoritative the previous society, the more new freedom of the new democracy tends to run wild -- it explodes in abandon. Sexual restraints are discarded, youths roam in street gangs, mafias and other criminal organizations rise up; financial scandals break out; we see the outbreak of "religious" racketeering à la Jim Bakker, and so many others; human greed shows its ugly face; under the pressure of leftist "rights" groups, "Criminal rights" take precedence over "victim's rights"; in general law and order disintegrate! We have seen it in Latin America and Asia and now we see it in Russia. Once democracy comes to countries like Iran with a totalitarian theocratic rule, even worse may happen. The same might well apply to China.

Unless we demonstrate the answers, democracy will be as much feared in the Second and Third Worlds as it is desired.

The first challenge is to halt the core of the problem -- drugs and drug related crimes. The second is the restoration of morals, ethics and decency!

(The rethinking of the modern system of justice)

To stop drugs and crimes and restore order and decency, we will first have to rethink and rebuild our system of justice from the ground on up! No commissions of politicians and rights advocates can do so. In fact they are cause of it all!

It will require no less than the convocation of the best non-partisan and non-political minds the nation has to offer to come together in a form of "Grand Commission for Law, Order and Decency in the age of freedom".

There are many fundamental issues to be decided. At present a previous criminal record can not be brought up in Court. Of course it should! For example, a first conviction of a juvenile for drug dealing should be lightly sentenced; but should not a second offense be heavily punished? should perhaps not a third offense mean up to life?

Should not that apply to all crimes, such as rape, theft or whatever? Should Mafia bosses go free because of technicalities?

In fact our system of Common Law is relic inherited from Britain. Its origins go back to the Middle Ages. In the rest of the world it has by and large since long been replaced by statutory law. Under our system any little judge anywhere can "make law" by decisions which vary from the norm. Unless overruled by a higher court any of the idiot decisions you may have heard of then become "law". That is it becomes precedent for other similar idiot decisions -- such as holding the manufacturers of weapons responsible for crimes committed with these weapons.

We could go on almost indefinite with comparable questions; in the eyes of the public the legal system has become an "Alice In Wonderland" of insanity. Under my second term the needed total overhaul of the system will be part of the program of making democracy what was intended to be.

(Rehabilitation)

But punishment to fit the crime is merely the beginning. The second main emphasis should be on rehabilitation. Let us go back to boot camps and work camps, to re-make kids-gone-wrong into decent people, and let us give them effective job skills before we release them. It has worked wherever tried!

(Prevention)

Above all let us go back to teach morals, ethics and decency in the school and even earlier than that: Let us give the small ghetto children now growing up amid crime, drugs and poverty, an environment of love and harmony, teach them ethics and decency and expose them to the beauty of nature, art and music. Where it has been tried it worked! And of course to the extent possible let us also involve the parents. In fact an "education in virtues" should become part of the curriculum of every school.

(The abortion referendum)

So far I have largely reflected the findings and programs of my "Aims and Goals" group, though I have added my own personal sentiments. I will now use this opportunity to add a purely personal view as well as a proposed initiative for my next term:

No issue has torn this nation apart than the abortion issue, and no issue has created more adversary anger and hatred. The American public has since long decided that neither of the two extreme positions are right. Certainly to make Government funded abortions freely available to say 13 year olds solely at their own discretion, goes against the grain of every parent.

On the other hand the idea that a just fertilized egg has become a person with its own rights as well as a ward of the State, and that its abortion is murder, is equally unacceptable to a nation founded on the principle of the self-reliant individual. In the eyes of most, the extreme right's position would represent a return to the totalitarian State. To each and every woman a just fertilized egg belongs to her and her alone. Then, when the baby begins to stir, she realizes that there is life that is beginning to have demands and rights of its own.

In fact in the eyes of most Americans as well as in the eyes of the law, the truth lies somewhere in the middle. We all differ in degree and detail. I personally lean more towards the pro-life position; Barbara, as nearly all women do, leans more towards pro-choice. But that moderation on the part of midstream America has not stopped the agitation and the sowing of division and mutual hatred.

Therefore, in my next term I will call for a public referendum in which all tax paying members of the public can take place. They will be asked to give a yes or no, to a long list of questions. The results will go to the Executive, the Congress and the ) (supreme Court, as the will of the people to be enacted in law.

I will then be able to say to both sides: You have worked hard for your convictions; you achieved as much as humanly possible. Now bury the hatchet and join us in "making America what History intended us to be -- the core nation and builder of a great New World Order for the millennia yet to come".

(Peroration)

This my fellow Americans is my long term plan -- the plan for a Greater America -- the plan of my second term of office.

It aims to make America the example for all nations in a democratic system that will work and a free enterprise system capable of creating "stable lasting well-being for all."

Already early in the planning stages of these systems, we hope to call for a series of international conferences in which other nations can state their problems and needs. Out of all this will hopefully come a new form of Peace Corps. This will be a "Democratic Corps" of experts and specialists to assist other nations in installing these new systems of democracy and free enterprise.

My fellow Americans, we are living through a very crucial period in the History of mankind. This election may well prove to be the most crucial of that period.

The world has gone through such periods before, periods of turmoil and resolution of turmoil by the updating of its systems.

The first best remembered of these happened in the growth of Rome from a small settlement of outcasts and refugees in a swampy no man's land, to the unified nation -- formed out of a multitude of small Principalities -- that encompassed all of Italy. A system had to be created that gave equal justice and economic opportunity for all. In the form of the Roman Law -- the cement of the later Roman Empire -- it survived in Europe until the advent of the French Revolution.

Many of you may remember from your history classes the recasting of that pre-revolutionary monarchial and feudal system by the young Napoleon during his good days before success went to his head, into one that became the basis of the modern European state.

Today, a great New Global Order of peace between the nations and well-being for all must be created. Once again "the system" needs an overhaul and updating to make it into the foundation of that New Order.

I ask you for the opportunity to carry out this task!

(Concluding remarks)

I have outlined to you much of the work done and still to be done that "Aims and Goals" foundation. Whatever the people of this country may decide on November 3, I will make it my business that this effort will not die,

Please do at this time not ask me any questions about details. I have told you all I can say now. Instead let me make some introductions:

(Follow introductions:

Pres. and C.E.O. Frederick Jonker

Exec. Director Dr. Ray S. Cline

A rump Board of Trustees may either be merely announced or introduced.

Much of the work to be done in the organization of the conferences, etc., will be subcontracted with Dr. Cline's Global Strategy Council.

PROGRAM FOR THE <sup>IV</sup>
PRES. NEXT TERM.

SHORT VERSION
CUNEDITED

Proposed program for:

President George Bush should create an initiative to deal with "National and Global Goals"

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

Adapting our institutions to the demands of the coming century, the only superpower is responsible for peace on earth and the well being of mankind.

The President will connect with the hopes and fears of the people. He will answer the demand that something is done; he will bring not just change, but a form of fulfillment of the free system.

Through this program the President could yet make himself one of the great deciding figures of the century. The President has nothing to lose and everything to gain!

PROPOSED ADDRESS IN OUTLINE

"This system" no longer seems to work! If there is anybody who is aware of this it is the President of the United States. There are a hundred fanatic Special Interest Groups to rile the public into Adversary Anger. Above all there is a Congress grid-locked in an Adversary party struggle, unable to produce the needed wise and decisive actions in the interest of all.

As long as members of Congress have to raise money for their re-election by favoring special interests, democracy will fail to provide governance in the interests of all.

I have heard Democratic Presidential candidates call loudly and insistently for change, without specifying what that change would be. I heard it in 1980 and today we hear it again. I have so far not joined this form of empty demagoguery.

What we are facing today is the need of and dire responsibility for the updating of our system of democratic institution and economic controls; they will have to be updated from those conceived two hundred years ago for a small isolated island nation living outside of the mainstream of world events, to what we are today -- a nation with the responsibility for the maintenance of peace on earth and the well being of mankind. As a Providence-given duty we have been thrust into the role of our Brother's keeper; as a Christian nation we have no choice but to accept that duty.

The economy of course, our most immediate concern, center around the economy. In fact, we need a plan to make American number one again, in industrial growth and innovation!

Already as part of my near term Agenda, I have mentioned a drastic reduction in the capital gains tax. If that would make the rich richer, so be it -- at the least for the time being! I also mentioned a drastic investment tax credit for corporations.

The NAFTA legislation to create a Common Market between Canada, Mexico, and the United States is now before the Congress. An intensified trade exchange between the United States and Mexico could immensely benefit both nations, but only if for every labor intensive job exported to Mexico, we create a high-tech job here. High tech jobs, however, require a large investment and we should see that the needed investment capital will be available. Also we must see that this money when available is indeed primarily invested here.

The main ingredient is public confidence in the future of our nation. Without that confidence, investors will not dare to invest; the entrepreneur will not dare to start new enterprises nor expand existing ones, and the public will not dare to spend. As long as that mood prevails businesses will continue to close down.

It triggered an effort by a mere handful of people here in the Washington area to quietly and in obscurity rethink our system of democracy, as well as our system of free enterprise. They aimed to adapt it to the demands of the next decades and the next century. Though much detail work still has to be done, they are now ready to step out of the shadows.

I have asked these people to organize themselves as a non-profit think tank, the "Institute of National and Global Aims and Goals" -- "Aims and Goals" for short! This will become my personal Presidential Think Tank for the next term.

Today, the key to peace on earth is that needed system of democracy that will work, and work well, anywhere on earth. Under the accompanying system of free enterprise and opportunity for all, those nations will then turn inward to concentrate on their own well being. We have already seen this process at work in Japan, Taiwan, Singapore, South Korea and many other places. As history has shown true democracies will not make war upon each other!!

The third leg of the restoration of democracy "to what it was intended to be" -- is namely the long-standing old idea of campaign funding by the Federal Government:

Candidates would qualify for that funding by the collection of signatures. Some would be able to collect these on their good reputation; others would use less desirable methods. But if the 10 candidates with the most signatures would qualify for Federal funding, most likely there will be a sufficient number of worthy candidates among them.

First there will be shake-out election, that will reduce the field to two. That will be followed by the final or run-off election.

What would be the effect? The candidates would all concentrate on where the most votes are -- the great moderate middle mass of midstream America. They would go there with moderate and sensible proposals. Power would have been taken way from the extremist on both sides, to be placed in the hands of the great Silent Majority.

What will happen to the two Parties? They will survive, but others too may arise. All will be forced to switch from money raising to thinking, planning, and education of public. And that will be all to the good.

Let us first look at the subject of how to protect our economy from inflation, recession, and depressions. We will have to plan now for the problems of future success. Our aim should be a recession and depression proof economy. The greatest immediate danger is inflation.

Today most of our money supply consist of Bank credit created by the Banks. The Federal Reserve system -- by means of the so called reserve requirements -- exercises a certain amount of limited control over this process; in fact that control is far too limited.

As a result of these limitations, Banks have become the greatest endless de-stabilizers of our economic system. Economist speak of it as the loose cannon on the ship of our free system. In times of economic boom they lend recklessly. We have seen the Savings and Loan Banks lend recklessly to real estate developers. The result has been over-building and the greatest real estate depression and the largest banking scandal ever! In fact that real estate debacle did much to trigger the present recession.

Today, the Banks instead of lending recklessly, refuse to lend even where direly needed. Today if a man loses his job and wants to borrow money on his home to tide him over, the Banks will refuse him, because he has no income and as such, is a bad risk. The Banks, as always will lend to those who do not need but not to those who need it.

Here we have a possible tool to create recession and depression free booming economies.

Of Course this possibility has to be thoroughly researched. The resulting tentative plans will have to be put before the Banking world, the industrial world, and the public. If all looks good and all agree, it can then be passed into laws.

I now come to a painful subject -- the revitalization of our industry. We believe in open markets, but other nations do not! They subsidize and protect their vital industries and then demand access to our open market!

Most of these revitalization efforts will of course involve expanded research and development and plant automation.

Once more, from where will come the savings to do so? There is of course an ideal answer -- a system under which what people pay into social security will be -- to the largest possible extent possible -- invested in our economy. It will not only help our industries grow; the retirees will benefit even more.

Not only should big industry benefit, but groups of individuals who want to start a small enterprise should under carefully monitored circumstances be able to start such an enterprise. That system should make possible the true fulfillment of the system of free enterprise and opportunity available for all!

And that brings up another basic issue. Recessions and depressions -- and we have had one on the average every seven years -- can have different causes. The more persistent of all however, are the excesses of the stock market. It brought us the Great Depression of 1929-39; when one third of the nation were unemployed; production was down to half.

Lately we have seen an overly deregulated Savings and Loan industry create the great financial scandal and real estate crisis ever. We have seen the greedy leverage buyout artist bring great companies to their knees. Moreover, the danger of panic selling by the big investment funds -- leading stock market crashes, still hang over our heads.

Before the world will recognize our system of democracy as the answer, to the future we have one more central issue to face: At present our system is developing a wide "netherclass" of crime, drugs, homelessness as well as illegitimacy and the poverty of the single mother; subsistence on welfare has become a way of life!

In fact, to a degree every democracy shows this same pattern. It is -- so it seems -- an undesirable side effect of freedom of the individual; that freedom if totally unrestrained, tends to run wild.

The first challenge is to halt the core of the problem -- drugs and drug related crimes. The second is the restoration of morals, ethics and decency!

But punishment to fit the crime is merely the beginning. The second main emphasis should be on rehabilitation. Let us go back to boot camps and work camps, to re-make kids-gone-wrong into decent people, and let us give them effective job skills before we release them. It has worked wherever tried! Above all, let us go back to teach morals, ethics, and decency in the schools and even earlier than that.

No issue has torn this nation apart more than the abortion issue, and no issue has created more adversary anger and hatred. The American public has since long decided that neither of the two extreme positions are right. Certainly to make Government funded abortions freely available to say 13 years olds solely at their own discretion, goes against the grain of every parent.

On the other hand the idea that a just fertilized egg has become a person with its own rights as well as a ward of the state and that its' abortion is murder, is equally unacceptable to a nation founded on the principle of the self-reliant individual. In the eyes of most, the extreme right's position would represent a return to the totalitarian State. To each and every woman a just fertilized egg belongs to her and her alone. Then, when the baby begins to stir, she realizes that there is life that is beginning to have demands and rights of its own.

In fact in the eyes of most Americans as well as in the eyes of the law, the truth lies somewhere in the middle. We all differ in degree and detail. I personally lean more towards the pro-life; Barbara, as nearly all women do, leans more towards pro-choice. But that moderation on the part of midstream America has not stopped the agitation and the sowing of division and mutual hatred.

Q THEREFORE SAY TO BOTH SIDES;

You have worked hard for your convictions; you achieved <sup>how</sup> as much as humanly possible. Now bury the hatchet and join us in "making America what History intended us to be -- the core nation and builder of a great New World Order for the millennia yet to come".

It aims to make America the example for all nations in a democratic system that will work and a free enterprise system capable of creating "stable lasting well-being for all.

My fellow Americans, we are living through a very crucial period in the History of mankind. This election may well prove to be the most crucial of that period. The world has gone through such periods before, periods of turmoil and resolution of turmoil by the updating of its systems.
