Mr. James A. Baker, III
Chief of The White House Staff
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Ave.
Washington, D.C. 20203

Dear Mr. Baker:

It's a matter of judgment that the electorate threw out the baby with the bath water. They voted for a quick economy fix and ignored the orderly economy turnaround, moral character in leadership, family values, the development of hard won foreign achievement, the sound approach to global economic, trade and environmental policy.

To be certain the electorate had their mind made up to pursue an unachievable goal. No formulae from President Bush or Chief of Staff Baker could have swayed them at this decision. The new administration will fail in achieving the quick fix in our economy, but soon and prior to that failure will be confronted with revolutions and ethnic upheavals around the world, in the Baltic states, the Eastern bloc, the Balkan peninsula, in the Middle East, and almost immediately in the leadership in Russia and among the republics. For the moment China, Japan, the Pacific Rim, Africa and South America appear mildly under an ongoing controlled evolution and/or soft revolution.

While President Bush and Chief of Staff Baker are winding up the transition, you must have your eyes on Wyoming, appointment as a senator, and run for the office of the President in 1996. You will surely win.

Tarver Technology is a small start up company in biotechnology. Enclosed is a copy of the company's profile and a grant from the Department of Agriculture to research the bits and pieces of the Pacific Yew tree in the cloning of the cell used for the production of the cancer drug Taxol. It took two years to obtain the grant, and without any political assistance or funding.

Since we are a small start up company, the funding is being sought from the oil rich Arab countries, letters to the ambassador's of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait are attached. The company is in a somewhat Catch 22 situation, it has the scientific know-how, and the necessary physical grant, but no well developed staff and laboratory to satisfy the ridged requirements of the FDA, NIH, N.C.I., EPA and etc. Therefore it is hoped that we may obtain funding from the countries of Saudi Arabia and/or Kuwait.

Should Chief of Staff Baker have any suggestions in getting our request to the top of what we assume to be an enormous list, in order that it may be considered for a grant, it would be greatly appreciated.

November 20, 1992

There were more comments in the recent election, "I wish I could have voted for James A. Baker". I think for the time, Senator Robert Dole of Nebraska should be given encouragement to have his head and exercise opposition. He will be great with the in fighting, but does not qualify for president because of the lack of popular support. It envisioned that Ross Perot and his supporters may be unable to hide their disagreement over the economic, and foreign and other policies of the new administration.

Thanks again for everything and good luck.

Yours very truly,

Robert A. Tarver

TARVER TECHNOLOGY

DESALINATION: Application of the principle of ion exchange through membrane walls in the presence of a catalyst, in the conversion of open sea water to potable water. A target of conversion of open sea water is sought rather than the present limitation of application to brackish water, and at a cost competitive with stored runoff or underground water.

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS: Research leading to the development of a drug for the prevention and/or cure for the deposit of plaque on the myelin sheath of principle nerves, interfering with the sending of signals to the muscles for their movement and control. Classified as an autoimmune disease.

RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS: Research leading to the development of a drug for the prevention and/or cure of the bone buildup in the joints, impacting the movement and eventually freezing the principal joints.

ALZHEIMERS DISEASE: Research leading to the development of a drug that will pass the blood brain barrier and will prevent and/or cure the classified as an autoimmune interfering with damage to the principal motor and memory portion of the brain, and eventual death. Classified as an autoimmune disease.

CANCER: Research leading to the cloning of the plant cell, derivative of the Pacific Yew tree, from which the drug Taxol is made. The drug Taxol stops the division of the cancer cell and its reproduction which would otherwise result in the expansion of the tumor, and eventually the spreading throughout the entire system. There are insufficient Pacific Yew trees to complete the ongoing group study, it is environmentally protected, it takes almost 100 years for the tree to grow to maturity and six mature trees for one Taxol treatment. No other species around the world produces the effective cell, the cell is complex and does not lend itself to synthetic reproduction in the chemistry laboratory, thus cloning plant cell to plant cell seems to be the only solution possible. This laboratory has a grant from the U. S. Department of Agriculture for the use of the bark, heartwood and needles of the Pacific Yew Tree for research.

Note: The research in all of the above areas are concentrated in plant derivatives with the possible exception of desalination of sea water. There the research in the development of a catalyst to promote ion exchange may have its source in human physiology such as the ATP in the lungs, the principle of atom transfer in the living plant, and the principles of chemistry, electricity or physics, or a combination of two or more.

His Excellency Ghazi Mohamed Algosaibi
Embassy of the State of Bahrain

Washington, DC 20008
U.S.A.

Honorable Algosaibi:

On June 15, 1992 we wrote to you for a grant or loan of $2,500,000.00 for two research and development projects, one for cancer and one for desalination of sea water, copy enclosed.

We sincerely hope that you have forwarded our request to the primary person responsible for the funding and also we hope that a grant may be considered rather than a loan because of the importance of the two research and development subjects and because of the conservative amount of the request covering the two year period.

You may find of interest our letter of August 27, 1992 to the newly appointed Chief of The White House Staff, James Baker, a copy of which is enclosed and which you may find self explanatory.

You may also find of interest a letter of June 22, 1992 from Dr. Ding Wang of China with whom we have been corresponding in connection with a plant derivative drug to prevent and/or cure the disease rheumatoid arthritis.

Since we have some important deadlines in each of the projects we look forward to hearing in the very near future from the principal person responsible for the funding.

Since our president, Robert A. Tarver, is traveling a good deal of the time, it is requested that a written response be forwarded to the above address.

Your courtesy is appreciated. Thank you.

Yours very truly,

Robert A. Tarver

Dear Mr. Baker:

I'm following up on my invitation of May 7th by enclosing updated information on the 1992 FORTUNE 500 FORUM.

To date, over one hundred chief executives have confirmed that they will be with us in San Antonio on October 29-31. The purpose of this event to stimulate new thinking on the critical issues facing U.S. business today. This year's program will cover topics ranging from the changing global economy to role of business in society. Overall, the 1992 FORTUNE FORUM is truly shaping up to be an exceptional event.

We remain hopeful that you will be able to join us as a keynote speaker, and look forward to your response. Please feel free to call me or Theodore Lowen, Program Director of the FORTUNE 500 FORUM, at (212) 522-1195 if you have any questions.

Dear Mr. Secretary:

It is with great pleasure that I invite you to be the keynote speaker at the 1992 FORTUNE 500 FORUM, to be held October 29-31 in San Antonio, Texas.

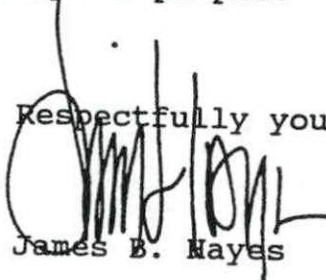

This event brings together the leaders of America's largest corporations with policy-makers and scholars to explore today's best new business thinking. It is attended by exclusively the CEOs, Presidents and Chairmen of the FORTUNE 500 Companies. Last year, the FORTUNE 500 FORUM took place in Charleston, South Carolina. Speakers included President Bush; Cabinet Secretaries Cheney, Kemp, and Martin; General Brent Scowcroft; Governor Mario Cuomo; and General Electric CEO Jack Welch.

As you can see in the enclosed briefing book, this year's FORUM will address issues ranging from the global economy to stimulating innovation within the corporation. Executive work sessions will explore strategic management issues and future trends that will affect business worldwide.

The meeting begins on Thursday evening, October 29th and continues through early afternoon on Saturday, October 31st. We would, of course, be pleased to work with your office to schedule your speech at the most convenient time. For your information, the press will be invited to the FORUM and FORTUNE intends to cover it in a subsequent issue.

We would be greatly honored if you accept our invitation and address this distinguished group of people. Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully yours,

James B. Hayes

James Baker
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Baker,

This letter comes to you from a grateful community of Filipino-Americans who speak with one voice in calling you a friend.

We are especially thankful to your staff, particularly Jim Schaefer, the Associate Director for Public Liaison, and Vernon Parker, the Special Assistant to the President for Personnel, for their work in coordinating and making possible our special tour of the White House and briefing at the Old Executive Building last Friday, September 11th.

The unique program which Mr. Parker proposed, that of establishing an internship program for young Filipino-Americans in the college and graduate levels to work at the White House for school credits or entry-level positions, is a praiseworthy activity which we at the CFAC wholeheartedly endorse. This would be a tremendous opportunity for young Filipino-Americans to have a first hand look at how the executive branch operates.

As you probably know, the leadership and predominant membership of the CFAC has always been supportive of the Republican cause from day one of the Reagan-Bush campaigns, from Hawaii in 1980 to Liberty Park, New Jersey in 1984. During the Bush-Quale movement in 1988, we were there with you rallying the ethnic community to victory. As recently as July 21, 1992, one call from Mr. Schaefer was all it took for us to galvanize the community one more time in welcoming President Bush at the Three Saints Orthodox Church in Passaic, New Jersey.

In the face of this support of long-standing, we appreciate your affirmation and confidence in entrusting us with the role of serving as your liaison with the community. We definitely will not lack of persistence in pursuing this opening for our young people which you are nobly helping advance.

Further to Mr. Parker's request for us to search within our constituency for qualified personnel within a short time frame for positions in the Environmental Protection Agency, I am delighted to nominate Jaime I. Romero, a pioneer in the environmental field and a very effective communicator on environmental concerns.

Mr. Romero has been involved with environmental issues since 1970 when protection of the environment was initially being formulated as a major international concern. Enclosed is a résumé outlining his background for your perusal.

Dear CFAC member,

The new age of involvement is upon us again. Changes of dynamic proportions are occurring around our community of communities, both in this country and back home in the Philippines.

We welcome you once again to close ranks with us in confronting the new challenges facing our constituency at a historic moment when we are needed the most. As you know, the U.S. military bases in the Philippines are no more. The linchpin of Philippine-American affinity is slowly reverting to nothing more than mere memories of relationships long past.

At the same time, a new leadership is emerging in the Philippines with the inauguration of President Fidel V. Ramos. His administration may need to develop a fresh rapprochement with authorities in the United States, through a recognized and politically well-established organization like the CFAC.

By visiting the White House and the Congress last September 11 with an urgent message to President Bush to invite President Ramos for a state visit, we have tried to play a very important role of building a bridge between the Philippines and the United States at this time when the relationship is at its lowest ebb.

That trip to the White House also developed, for our people, some definite commitments from the Administration to recognize and appoint members of our community to respectable positions in the Executive Branch in acknowledgment of the existence of over three million Filipino-Americans. Other issues such as dual citizenship, internship programs and economic development concerns were also addressed. A continuing dialogue has been established.

These are just a few of the recent activities of our organization which, with your help, will transform CFAC into a unifying force for the interest of overseas Filipinos in this country.

You, too, can be a part of this dynamic movement for good.

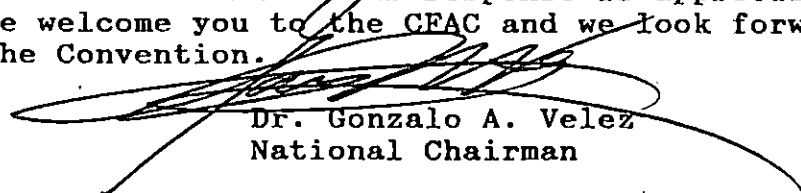

As you know, the CFAC will commemorate its 15th Anniversary Celebration on October 25, 1992 at the Town and Campus Banquet Center, along Pleasant Valley Way in West Orange, New Jersey.

We welcome you to this convention. Issues of interest will be discussed throughout the day. In the evening will be a dinner/dance, capped by a keynote speech by one of the national candidates of the on-going presidential campaign.

Attached is a program of activities for your review. Also enclosed are tickets to the ball. Your response is appreciated.

Once again, we welcome you to the CFAC and we look forward to seeing you at the Convention.

Sincerely,

Dr. Gonzalo A. Velez

EMBASSY OF THE PHILIPPINES

WASHINGTON, D.C.

15 September 1992

Despatch No. 443-92

The Honorable
The Secretary of Foreign Affairs
M a n i l a

Attention: Office of American Affairs

S i r :

I have the honor to transmit herewith a copy of the 11 September 1992 letter of the Congress of Filipino-American Citizens (CFAC) to President George Bush which they presented during their audience with the President on even date. The said letter requests President Bush to extend a formal invitation to President Fidel Ramos for a State Visit.

After presenting said letter, CFAC paid a courtesy call at the Embassy and was received by Consul General Susan Castrence, then officer-in-charge of the Embassy. The officers of CFAC requested the Embassy to transmit a copy of said letter to President Ramos.

The Embassy recommends that the Department advise President Ramos to communicate to CFAC his reaction to their initiative as well as to their 1 July 1992 congratulatory letter to him (attached) which we understand was transmitted earlier. The Embassy would appreciate receiving advice on the action taken regarding this matter.

Very truly yours,

For the Charge d'Affaires:

SUSAN O. CASTRENCE
Consul General

WASHINGTON, D.C.

15 September 1992

Dear Mr. Velez:

I wish to thank you for the opportunity to meet your group last 11 September 1992.

As promised, we have officially transmitted your 11 September 1992 letter to President Bush to our office in Manila with the recommendation that it be forwarded to the Office of the President. We have likewise suggested that President Ramos communicate to your group his reaction to your initiative and your 1 July 1992 congratulatory letter. We shall inform you of any developments regarding this matter.

With warmest regards.

Sincerely,

Dear Dr. Velez:

My staff assistants, John Arnold and Steve Hall, have conveyed your concerns to me regarding the CFAC's desire to see President Ramos invited to the United States for a state visit. I completely understand your perspective, and I believe you make a number of valid points about the need to improve relations between the United States and the Philippines.

As you requested, I have written to President Bush, and I have asked him to give every consideration to issuing an invitation to President Ramos.

I regret that my schedule on September 11 did not permit me to attend the briefing, but Mr. Arnold and Mr. Hall have relayed to me your comments and concerns and those of the members who were present.

Please do not hesitate to contact me in the event that I can be of further assistance in this or any other matter.

Sincerely yours,

MATTHEW J. RINALDO

Dear Sir,

I commend U.S. for offering 30,000 troops to safeguard the distribution of food to starving masses in Somalia. Sir, it is sad that the war lords will let their own people starve! I honestly believe that U.S. should pressure UN to take over Somalia and put the things behind the bars and establish some order and conduct ^{free} election down the road.

Sir, I do honestly hope that the President-Elect Bill Clinton will retain you as the Secretary of State. You are a kind, caring gentleman. May the Great Lord keep using your ^{immense} talents for the mankind at large, in whatever role you may play in future. With kindest regards,

Yours very truly

Somalia's plagues

THE TWO children are the last survivors of their family, but not, it appears, for long.

In news footage they sit naked on the ground, their spindly arms wrapped around one another, the inevitability of their imminent deaths in their sunken eyes. In their homeland, rent by internal power struggles, there is no food, and so they starve while worlds away the politicians puzzle over what to do.

But these children are not in Bosnia, now the centre of world attention. They are in Somalia, an African country dying of a lethal combination of clan warfare, drought and famine that has wrought what one U.S. official called the worst humanitarian crisis in the world right now. Millions of people in Somalia are in danger of starving to death in the months to come. Perhaps 200 will die today.

Although the International Red Cross has mounted the largest relief effort in its history, it is too dangerous to take food to some areas, and supplies are often stolen by gunmen and sold by profiteers.

Relief kitchens have graveyards flanking them, so that those who die on food lines may be buried while the line moves on.

The truth is that we are deeply Eurocentric, and for obvious reasons. Many of us have Euroroots, and from the beginning we have sought Euroalliances.

When we hear of Serbian-run concentration camps we relate them, with renewed outrage, to the atrocities of Nazi Germany. When we see Bosnian orphans crying in the windows of buses, offers pour in to adopt them.

Bosnia, with all its horrors, is at the centre of public and political dialogue and Somalia, with all its horrors, is a peripheral discussion. "It's racism," says Jack Healey, executive director of Amnesty International.

And a peculiar sort of myopic ignorance. Civil war and unconscionable internment in Bosnia seem man-made public and private

evils, subject to man-made solutions. But Africa is a mystery to our Eurocentric culture, even to many African-Americans. Its troubles seem like Old Testament plagues, irresolvable and inevitable.

There is nothing inevitable about the corpses littering the landscape of Somalia. There are no easy solutions for a nation of nomads who have been prevented from planting crops by the ravages of civil war, a country that has almost no government aside from village elders in dying towns.

There are no easy solutions in the former Yugoslavia, either, where factional hatreds are a tangled web stretching back centuries. But there is now sharply focused attention by the international community on what should be done and who should do it.

Somalia deserves that same intense attention, from our leaders, the people and our allies abroad.

The United Nations has agreed to airlift food into the interior, but that is neither an adequate nor a long-term solution.

With President George Bush's gulf war bluster about liberation, we lost sight of the best reason to involve ourselves in foreign affairs — because it is sometimes obviously the moral thing to do.

The new secretary general of the United Nations, Boutros Boutros-Ghali, an Egyptian who is the first leader of the UN from the continent of Africa, has referred to the Bosnian conflict as the "rich man's war."

He means it is a white man's war, a Eurowar, in its combatants, its victims and its international interest. That makes aid no less necessary.

Just as the color of its children must make no difference in our help for Somalia. Surely our attention span can encompass two mortal crises at once. Surely our empathy can transcend race.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

October 10, 1989

Dear Mr. Christie:

Thank you for your letter offering to discuss national sealift issues. Your commitment to national security issues and your previous policy recommendations in the maritime arena are much appreciated. Your February 22, 1989 recommendations for sealift were reviewed and have been referred for further consideration.

Since our efforts at formulating a national security sealift policy are nearing conclusion, I suggest that the most appropriate course at this time would be to refer your suggestions and insights to the Department of Transportation which is engaged in developing a broad national transportation policy.

Sincerely,

Brent Scowcroft
