STATEMENT BY THE PRESS SECRETARY

The United States today signed a framework agreement with Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay establishing a Council on Trade and Investment. The President, accompanied by Brazilian President Fernando Collor, participated in the Rose Garden ceremony. United States Trade Representative Carla A. Hills signed for the United States. The other signatories were Argentine Foreign Minister Guido Di Tella, Brazilian Foreign Minister Francisco Rezek, Paraguayan Foreign Minister Alexis Frutos Vaesken, and Uruguayan Foreign Minister Hector Gros Espiell.

The framework agreement is the first signed with a regional group since the President announced the Enterprise for the Americas Initiative (EAI) on June 27, 1990. The United States has signed bilateral framework agreements with eight other countries of this hemisphere under the EAI.

The objectives of this Council, established by this framework agreement, are to monitor trade and investment relations, identify opportunities for expanding trade and investment through liberalization and other appropriate means, and negotiate implementing agreements. It will also seek to consult on specific trade and investment matters of interest to both parties and identify and work to remove impediments to trade and investment flows. Under the agreement, the five countries agreed to seek the cooperation of the private sector in matters related to the work of the Council.

In his remarks during the signing ceremony, the President praised the accord, noting that the proposal for a multilateral agreement had come from the four Latin American countries. He reaffirmed that the U.S. goal is for a hemispheric free trade area stretching from Alaska in the North to Tierra del Fuego in the South, and promised that the United States would implement this agreement with the same spirit of cooperation and innovation that produced it in the first place.

At President Collor's suggestion, the parties have agreed to refer to this agreement as "The Rose Garden Agreement."

TRADE AND INVESTMENT AGREEMENT
WITH ARGENTINA, BRAZIL, PARAGUAY AND URUGUAY

The United States on June 19, 1991 signed a "Framework Agreement on Trade and Investment" with Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay, and Uruguay, the countries now in the process of forming the Southern Cone Common Market (MERCOSUR) by the end of 1994. The signing of a single agreement with these countries constitutes an important step in implementing the trade component of the President's "Enterprise for the Americas Initiative" (EAI).

Enterprise for the Americas Initiative

June 27 is the first anniversary of the President's announcement of the EAI. In the past year, significant progress has been made in implementing the trade pillar of the EAI (See "Chronology").

The EAI is the result of a thorough review of U.S. economic policy toward Latin America. It seeks to create new, equal and reciprocal relationships with the other countries of the Western Hemisphere. The EAI, which consists of three pillars addressing trade, investment, and debt issues, responded to the actions these nations have taken to promote democracy and economic reform.

Trade Pillar

The EAI specifies two approaches to bring down trade barriers in the hemisphere: a successful outcome to the Uruguay Round and a "system of free trade" from Alaska to Tierra del Fuego. The North American Free Trade Area (NAFTA) is the first step in the creation of such a hemispheric market. The process of creating this market will take a number of years because the commitment to open markets completely and on a reciprocal basis involves many complex issues.

Framework Agreements

The United States is moving forward to conclude framework agreements on trade and investment with those countries and groups of countries that wish to work toward freer trade in the hemisphere. Framework agreements, in and of themselves, do not bind the signatories to carry out specific trade liberalization commitments. They are comprised of a declaration of trade and investment principles, an agreement to consult on a regular basis, and an initial agenda for consultation. Illustrative of the enthusiasm for the President's initiative, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, Honduras, Peru, and Venezuela have signed framework agreements with the United States thus far.

Completion of a framework agreement with a country or group of countries establishes a channel to explore various trade liberalization options and promote the EAI vision. It does not imply that we will be proposing free trade negotiations with such countries immediately.

While framework agreements have to date been undertaken on a bilateral basis, countries joined in regional groups may also sign agreements directly with the U.S. under the President's initiative. As noted by the President in his June 27, 1990 speech announcing the EAI, "... The U.S. stands ready to enter into free trade agreements with other markets in Latin America and the Caribbean -- particularly with groups of countries that have associated for the purposes of trade liberalization."

The signing of a framework agreement with Argentina, Brazil, Paraguay and Uruguay marks the first framework agreement with a regional group.

The Office of the United States Trade Representative is also finalizing a similar agreement with the Caribbean Community (CARICOM). By significantly reducing trade barriers among themselves and expanding this liberalization to other countries, these regional groupings enhance free trade principles that support U.S. objectives in the current GATT negotiations.

The remarkable progress on negotiating these agreements with such a broad range of countries in the Americas testifies to the commitment of so many nations in the Western Hemisphere to economic reform, liberalization and democracy in recent years.

Chronology of EAI Trade Implementation to Date

Significant progress has been made during the past year in implementing the trade pillar of the EAI:

- By the end of June, the United States will have entered into "Framework Agreements on Trade and Investment" with a large number of Western Hemisphere nations:

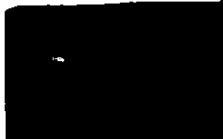

Mexico (((((((()
Bolivia (Prior to the EAI announcement)
Colombia (July, 1990)
Ecuador (July, 1990)
Chile (October, 1990)
Honduras (November, 1990)
Costa Rica (November, 1990)
Venezuela (May, 1991)
El Salvador (May, 1991)
Peru (May 1991)

-- The United States is also discussing Framework Agreements with numerous other countries. It expects negotiations to be completed by July with:

Guatemala
Nicaragua
Panama

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Phillip D. Brady ph
SUBJECT: UNCF Dinner

In light of your interest and your longstanding association with the United Negro College Fund (UNCF), please be advised we have reviewed Mr. Johnson's proposal with Counsel again, and it would appear that you could host a general event honoring UNCF. The dinner would not be "expressly" for the purpose of rewarding or soliciting contributions to UNCF and would not be "exclusively" for UNCF's major contributors.

Also, general discussion with Rose Zamaria and Gary Walters indicates that while the White House does not have gift authority, the Executive Residence can be reimbursed for events. That authority is the basis on which the Team 100 dinner and State Dinners are paid for by the RNC and the State Department, respectively.

Accordingly, if you are interested in hosting a more broadly based dinner honoring UNCF, the concerns which Counsel identified (attached) can be ameliorated. If you wish, we will draft a response along these lines and can work with UNCF and Gary to develop an event consistent with past precedent.

Thank you.

MEMORANDUM FOR PHILLIP D. BRADY
ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AND
STAFF SECRETARY

FROM: JAY S. BYBEE JSB
ASSOCIATE COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Letter to POTUS from John Johnson

You have requested our views on a letter from John Johnson to the President in which he asks that the President hold a dinner at the White House for major donors to the United Negro College Fund ("UNCF"). Mr. Johnson has not only requested a dinner, but has asked that the dinner be held on November 19, 1991, which is National Philanthropy Day. Additionally, he advises that UNCF is willing to pay for the dinner.

There are two separate questions posed by Mr. Johnson's request. First, can (or should) the President hold a dinner for major UNCF donors. Second, if the President were to hold such a dinner, could UNCF pay for the dinner.

We should begin by emphasizing that the President and First Lady may invite whomever they wish to the White House for dinner. The President and First Lady have always been generous in recognizing the contributions, financial and otherwise, that have been made to the Administration's causes. (The recent Team 100 dinner is a good example.) But in our view it would be inappropriate for an outside organization such as the UNCF to use the White House so explicitly to reward (or solicit) contributors.

As you know the President has adopted a policy regarding the use of his name by charitable institutions. Under this policy, which differs from the President's policy regarding commercial endorsements, the President routinely declines to permit his name to be used in connection with charitable fundraising, except for those institutions or causes with which he was involved prior to becoming President. It is our understanding that the President had substantial involvement with UNCF prior to becoming President and that he has continued to support UNCF's efforts.

Notwithstanding the President's continued support for UNCF, we recommend against the President holding a White House dinner exclusively for UNCF's major contributors. First, while the President frequently has attended charitable fundraising events such as banquets, we unaware of an event at the White House which was held exclusively to honor donors to an outside charitable cause. Such an event would suggest that the President had used his office for the gain of a private foundation. We believe that such explicit use would be inappropriate. Second, there is the appearance of a quid pro quo in that donors to UNCF are rewarded with a White House dinner. Third, and wholly apart from these concerns, we are concerned with the inferences that would be drawn from a dinner that only recognized major donors. At a time when the President is emphasizing volunteerism and philanthropy, it would be a cross signal for the President to honor only major contributors to UNCF.

In any event, no outside organization may pay for its dinner at the White House. Since the White House does not have gift acceptance authority, such payment would constitute an augmentation of appropriations. The National Park Service does have gift acceptance authority and we have relied on that authority for donations of food and drink for events such as the Easter Egg Roll and the physical fitness program. We doubt that an event such as that proposed by Mr. Johnson would fall within the Park Service's gift acceptance authority, but should there be interest in pursuing this question, we would press the question to the Park Service.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this matter. If there are any further questions, please do not hesitate to contact us.

Dear Mr. Brewster,

Please, would you consider having a dinner in a White House on Thursday, November 19, for the UNCF major donors.

We have got to break the back of this capital campaign, and we think that such an event would be highly, highly productive.

That day is National Philanthropy Day.

The UNCF will pay for the dinner, in fact, we really want to do it.

So far we are at 90.6 mil of the 250.0 mil we have to raise - that's the good news. The bad news is that Walter's gift of 50.0 mil is included. (Amenberg, that is) What do you think - I hope you can do it.

Charges Fly at Obscure Agency, Embroil Two House Members in a Nasty Dispute

Were Allegations of Sexual Harassment Retaliation for Whistle-Blowing, or Vice Versa?

By Craig Wincker

When Rep. Bob Livingston (R-La.) took the House floor on the evening of June 5 for a special order speech, he wasn't just saluting the local fire department or engaging in a colloquy with some other Member on wetlands conservation.

He spent his allotted hour describing a bitter conflict between two executive department officials that involved allegations of sexual harassment and mismanagement, charges of partisan posturing, and a tangle of government investigations and Congressional hearings.

The dispute between the two government officials — one a political appointee, the other a career civil servant — has become more than just a minor personnel matter because of the powerful connections each has in Congress.

Livingston and Rep. Tom Lantos (D-Calif.), the chairman of a

Rep. Lantos held hearings on the dispute even after President Bush shut down the agency.

Lantos, who chairs the Government Operations subcommittee on employment and housing, has held two hearings on the dispute. At the first, in December 1990, investigators from the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) said they found some merit to both sides of the argument.

But the OPM representatives claimed that they had not adequately probed the matter and requested time to conduct a more thorough inquiry.

On May 2 of this year, Lantos sent out notices that he intended to hold a second hearing on Hamel's charges, incorporating the finding of a subsequent OPM inquiry and a separate investigation conducted by a special counsel.

But later that afternoon, President Bush suddenly signed an executive order abolishing the PCEE. According to a House source familiar with the investigation, the situation at the commission had become embarrassing to the Administration, and Bush's action was designed to defuse it.

Just two months before the PCEE was abolished, the source said, the White House was acting as if it intended to keep the agency operational and was appointing new commissioners.

The Special Counsel, working under the auspices of the Merit Systems Protection Board, has since found that, while Hamel's allegations are worthy of whistleblower protection, his complaint against the PCEE is moot since the agency no longer exists.

Lantos's primary concern, according to top aide Bob King, is that federal workers who try to report wrongdoing are protected from retribution. Livingston says Hamel has been treated unfairly and her reputation damaged. According to Livingston's office, the investigations have cost the taxpayers about $250,000.

"While the commission is now dead," Lantos said Monday, "today's hearing is necessary because of questions left unanswered at our last hearing and because of my continuing concern about how federal employees who 'blow the whistle' on waste and abuse are treated."

Livingston, who testified at the hearing, took a different view. "Gordon Hamel was showboating for the media," he said. "It should also be an embarrassment to those including, frankly, you, Mr. Chairman, who have for whatever reason taken the side of Gordon Hamel to embarrass and defame a very nice lady."

In an interview with Roll Call, Livingston said that Lantos had other motives as well.

"I believe that this was a circus," Livingston said of the hearing. "It was a circus intended to embarrass the Bush Administration, embarrass the PCEE, and to use Betty Heitman as a scapegoat."

King said Lantos did not want to make any further comment on the situation.

The Hamel-Heitman saga was featured on an episode of "Hard Copy," a racy television show, and in two Jack Anderson newspaper columns. But all these reports relied heavily on Hamel's allegations. According to Livingston, Heitman was muzzled by lawyers for the government.

In his speech last Wednesday night, Livingston, in blunt language, told Heitman's version of the story, detailing all of her allegations against Hamel.

"This sort of behavior — crude sexual harassment, verbal abuse, insubordination — was quickly earning Mr. Hamel a one-way ticket to the unemployment line he so richly deserved," Livingston said.

According to depositions taken from PCEE employees and entered into the Congressional Record by Livingston, Hamel referred to women in the office as "b—" and "c—" and a 20-year-old college intern was "brought to tears at the prospect of working alone in the office with Hamel."

Livingston acknowledged that he has been a friend of Heitman's for more than 20 years and that she is a former co-chair of the Republican National Committee and chair of the National Federation of Republican Women.

Livingston had unusually harsh words for Hamel throughout his entire speech, referring to him, for example, as "a cheap political shill." He read excerpts from Justice Department summaries of statements by some PCEE employees, and also from the first OPM investigation of the matter. Many of Heitman's charges against Hamel could not be substantiated because of lack of corroboration from other sources.

For instance, Heitman says she repeatedly warned Hamel orally about his behavior toward female staffers. But as any veteran of government service knows, warnings carry little weight unless they are in writing. Hamel says he was never given a warning.

A source involved with the investigation said OPM and Justice Department lawyers had repeatedly recommended to Heitman that she put in writing her concerns about Hamel.

Adding to the complexity of the dispute is the fact that almost everyone involved seemingly has an axe to grind. Hamel's wife is a former secretary to Rep. Barney Frank (D-Mass.), who used to chair the employment and housing subcommittee and who brought the matter to Lantos's attention last year.

Livingston, as he said in his speech, is a friend of Heitman's — a fact Lantos did not fail to point out at Monday's hearing.

In his special order speech, Livingston used blunt language, calling Betty Heitman's antagonist 'a cheap political shill.'

And Livingston referred to a connection between the chief counsel of Lantos's subcommittee, Stuart Weisberg, and Hamel. But Weisberg said his only association with Hamel was that the two played on Frank's softball team several years ago.

While the whole matter may be considered moot by the government, relations between Livingston and Lantos don't seem to be thawing.

"The feelings are very hard at this point," Livingston said.

At last week's hearing, Livingston criticized Lantos for taking 'the side of Gordon Hamel to embarrass and defame a very nice lady.'

key House Government Affairs subcommittee, are on opposite sides of the dispute and as a hearing last week were in the uncomfortable position of questioning each other's motives.

It all started last August when Gordon Hamel, a top official at the President's Commission on Executive Exchange (PCEE), was placed on administrative leave with pay. Hamel contends he was suspended because he reported mismanagement and abuse at the PCEE, a little-known agency formed 22 years ago to place federal workers in private sector jobs for a year, while bringing in corporate executives to spend the same amount of time working in government positions.

The agency's executive director at the time, Betty Heitman, says that Hamel was fired because he allegedly harassed and abused female staffers at the commission and attempted to undermine the credibility of several of the agency's programs.

She claims Hamel has portrayed himself as a whistleblower — and thus shielded from retaliatory termination — to protect himself from the harassment charges. Hamel's supporters say the charges did not surface until after he made his own charges of waste and abuse.

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

STATEMENT BY THE PRESS SECRETARY

China Trade

The Press Secretary today announced the decision to impose constraints on high technology trade with the Peoples Republic of China as a result of actions by entities in the PRC to transfer missile technology to other countries. The President decided that the significant risks to U.S. security interests posed by these missile transfers would result in limits on the sale of high performance computers. In addition, the President will not waive sanctions that prohibit the transfer of U.S. technology for satellites launched on Chinese rockets. Finally, we are taking steps to impose sanctions on certain firms in the PRC that have contributed to missile proliferation.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate Release

FACT SHEET

China Trade

Export of High Performance Computers

The U.S. has serious national security concerns regarding the shipment of high performance computers to the PRC. These concerns are based on several factors:

- the aggregate threat of significant technology transfer that occurs when researchers develop experience in operating the computers and customizing software;
- the potential diversion to military use of technology acquired in this fashion; and
- the key role that computers play in the management of high technology military systems and the resulting enhancement of the capabilities of such weapons or missiles as demonstrated in Operation Desert Storm.

These concerns are heightened by the risk that the PRC may transfer advanced weapons-related technology to other countries, as in the case of ballistic missile transfers.

Exports of computers to certain countries, including the Peoples Republic of China (PRC) are controlled multilaterally by the U.S. and its partners in the Coordinating Committee for Multilateral Export Controls (COCOM). Over the past year, these controls have been liberalized significantly. However, high performance computers that are critical to the effectiveness of military systems remain tightly controlled and require the approval of the seventeen COCOM members prior to the issuance of an export license.

Because of the threat to regional stability resulting from ballistic missile proliferation by the PRC, and the resulting threat to U.S. national security interests, the President has decided to limit licensing the export of computers exceeding a Composite Theoretical Performance of 41 million theoretical operations per second (Mtops). Export licenses for computers above that level will occur only after extensive review to ensure that the proposed sale poses no threat to national security. Our concerns in this regard are being communicated directly to other governments that are members of COCOM and the Missile Technology Control Regime.

Satellite Launches on PRC Missiles

Licenses to Chinese entities of U.S. technology for satellites, their components and associated technologies have been suspended under Section 902 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1991-1992. Under the law, the President may waive these suspensions if he reports to Congress that it is in the national interest of the U.S. to do so.

The President has decided that PRC actions related to the proliferation of missiles make it inappropriate for the U.S. to approve any further export licenses for commercial satellite launches at this time. This action does not affect the recent decision to allow the launch of the Swedish satellite known as Freja nor the reaffirmation of the approval to launch the Australian Aussat satellites.

Missile Proliferation Sanctions

U.S. concerns related to weapons proliferation resulted in legislation that requires the imposition of sanctions on companies that engage in certain missile proliferation activities. We have evidence that two Chinese entities have transferred missile technology to Pakistan. The entities in this case are the China Precision Machinery Import-Export Corporation and China Great Wall Industry Corporation. Accordingly, we are taking appropriate legal steps with respect to imposing sanctions on these firms.

We have expressed urgent concern to the Chinese Government about exports of missile technology. Under Secretary of State Bartholomew will discuss these concerns in detail during his meetings in China June 17 - 19.

MEMORANDUM TO THE PRESIDENT

FROM: CLAYTON YEUTTER

This is a mid-week report since we're about to gather the RNC in Houston. Expected attendance is 138 members which is a tremendous turnout. If your schedule isn't too hectic next week, I'll slip over and give you a report on what transpires. (Incidentally, I neglected to mention after my last trip that Hal DeMoss asked me to pass on "warm regards to the broccoli eater!"

Jeanne went with me on a quick trip to Europe this past week. I addressed a meeting of the Young President's Organization (YPO) in Vienna, which had about 400 people (probably 3/4 American) plus spouses involved. It was a tremendously well organized meeting, and provided a good recruiting ground for major donors. I also spoke to a major investment seminar in Paris, and tried to give a strong boost to the Uruguay Round. I pointed out that Kohl and Mitterand are still the keys to success of that exercise, and added that it is imperative that they take a different attitude toward it now that they chose to do last December.

We had Republicans Abroad events in both cities, and the one in Paris was excellent. We stayed with the Curleys while there, and they both send their best. Walter plans to try to help a bit from a distance as we try to breathe some life into the New York Republican Party.

The Louisiana convention turned out about as well as could be expected. As you undoubtedly know, Congressman Holloway got the official gubernatorial nomination, thereby denying it to Duke. But he received only slightly more than a majority of the votes, so it was no big victory for him. That should leave Governor Roemer in a relatively strong position, assuming his veto of their abortion legislation is not too damaging.

The President

I do hope you'll sometime be able to work in an event for Roemer, even though some of the party hierarchy has been objecting to White House and "national party" interference in Louisiana politics. I'll be meeting with their RNC members in Houston this week, and I will quietly suggest to the party chairman, Billy Nungesser, that he do his criticizing in private!

The Strauss nomination was a good move. This is a such a critical time for the Soviet Union that you need someone in Moscow who understands business and politics. I'm not sure the Soviets can get through the political and economic reform process even with guidance and support from you, Secretary Baker, and Ambassador Strauss, but without some guidance they are in deep trouble. We got a few phone calls from party people objecting to the nomination, but not many. I told Ron Brown we were going to follow the same appointment strategy for any legitimate Presidential candidate he might surface!

The Thornburgh Senatorial candidacy is in the hands of the courts, as you know, but we're reasonably confident that the final outcome will be satisfactory. Were the extant decision to be affirmed, both we and the Democrats would have to change electoral procedures in a whole host of states. I did a fundraiser for Congressman Ritter early this week, and there was lots of discussion of the issue since his is the home area of the Federal District Judge who ruled on the matter. People there are just astonished at and totally surprised by what occurred. We do need a timely outcome, and that may require skillful legal follow up in Pennsylvania.

In my last report I neglected to congratulate you on the fast track victory. That was a sensational, heartwarming result in a rugged battle on a very critical issue. Your personal intervention was crucial, and the world will benefit. The Democrats, of course, chose the labor unions over Hispanics and we need to point that out over and over again from now until November 1992.

Direct mail fundraising is still tough, but so far we are keeping our heads above water. We're giving considerable attention to our major donor program, and I've begun to invite small groups of Team 100 members and Eagles to the White House for breakfast or lunch with me. They seem to like having an opportunity for some input in that intimate environment, so I plan to keep doing it even though it is time consuming.

Dear Mr. President,

The Soviet legislature's recent moves toward codifying the right to emigration by citizens of the USSR is a step that you have welcomed and urged Soviet leaders to take. Unfortunately, some American citizens desiring to visit territory controlled in whole or in part by the Soviet Union continue to be denied the exercise of the basic human right to freedom of travel.

I am one of those people.

On April 18 I submitted a visa application to the Soviet consulate in Washington to travel to Lithuania at the invitation of the Lithuanian Supreme Council (Parliament). Subsequently I was informed by the consulate that I would be denied a visa, though my wife received one in about a week's time. Since the latter part of April I have been waging an unsuccessful campaign to reverse this decision and visit the land of my parents for the first time in more than 18 years (I am 37 years old).

The first time I visited Lithuania I had just graduated from high school in Detroit, where I was born and raised. My brother and I were allowed to visit Lithuania in 1972 for five days only, and were strictly confined to the Lithuanian capital, Vilnius. We were unable to travel to the birthplaces of our parents or the gravesites of our grandparents. This was to be a major goal of my visit this year.

But when the time came to leave for Lithuania on June 3, my wife was forced to travel alone.

Since receiving word of my visa denial I have worked through the US and Lithuanian governments to apply pressure on the Soviets. A number of Congressmen and Senators have tried to help. Senators DeConcini, Robb and Riegle, as well as Congressmen Hoyer, Smith and Wolf wrote letters on my behalf to the Soviet ambassador. Staff assistants to Senators Warner and Bradley placed phone calls to the Soviet embassy. The Soviet consul-general told Senator Bradley's aide that he was well acquainted with my case but could promise nothing. Two bureaus of the State Department were contacted, and I was assured that my visa denial would be raised with the Soviets.

I spoke with Lithuania's President Landsbergis about my visa denial when he was here in Washington last month. He directed the Lithuanian Foreign Ministry in Vilnius and Lithuania's representatives in Moscow, to address my case.

It was the latter who unraveled the mystery behind my visa denial. They visited the KGB in Moscow and were told that I was on a blacklist compiled by the KGB in Vilnius and that, so long as the Vilnius office wanted me to be kept on the list, I would not be allowed into Lithuania.

Further inquiries yielded another clue: the blacklist containing my name had been submitted to the Vilnius KGB by Mykolas Burokevicius, the leader of the rump Communist Party in Lithuania which is widely considered to have played a central role in the failed coup d'etat against the Landsbergis government last January. The KGB told a Lithuanian diplomat in Moscow that the individuals named in the blacklist were guilty of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" and of opposing Lithuania's accedence to President Gorbachev's new all-Union treaty.

Mr. President, more than once you have publicly expressed your faith in Mr. Gorbachev and his policies of perestroika (restructuring) and glasnost (openness). I ask you to use your good offices to intercede on my behalf. Please put this challenge to President Gorbachev: if he is sincere about his policy of openness, why is he denying Americans visas to visit the land of their ancestors? Why do his security forces continue to maintain blacklists of Americans?

Your efforts will be much appreciated and, I have no doubt, will bear fruit not just for me, but for other Americans as well whose basic human right to freedom of movement is being similarly violated.

Sincerely yours,

Victor Nakas

Dear Lou:

I have checked with our lawyers on Yale's generous offer to name its business school for me.

There are complications. One aspect of the Texas A&M proposal includes naming a school of government and public service after me. Under the terms of this agreement with Texas A&M, there is a possible conflict.

A&M has agreed to raise all the money for my library. Obviously, friends nationwide will be asked to help. The lawyers see a potential conflict here until A&M has completed its mission.

I was truly honored, and I hope you'll tell Benno that.

See you soon.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Phillip D. Brady ph
SUBJECT: Yale Business School Request

Per your request, please be advised I have discussed the issue you raised with Boyden Gray. He expressed a similar concern to yours, of the potential appearance of using public office to benefit a private entity. He also pointed out that while you are considering the appropriate screening mechanisms for donations for your Presidential Library and what restrictions should be placed on contributions (i.e., should foreign government contributions be accepted while you are in office), you would have no such ability to screen contributions made to the school at Yale.

Additionally, the Texas A&M Presidential Library proposal includes plans for a George Bush School of Government and Public Service which will be a part of the University itself. This proposed school continues to be very much a part of the overall project, and it would likely be problematic (at least from Texas A&M's point of view) to have two graduate schools with partially overlapping missions and similar names.

Finally, the George Bush school in Midland is a public school, and they made an independent decision to name it after you. You may also recall that Midland sought to rename its airport after you (please see attachments); you did not want to accept this honor while you were in office.

In sum, with regret it's recommended that you not specifically approve the use of your name at this time, particularly given the status of Yale's current fundraising drive. Of course, you would be free to accept any such honor without restriction after leaving office.

Thank you.

Yale has asked if they could name their business school after me.
It is a graduate School started really by Bill Donaldson.

Yale is embarking on a major fund raising drive. I am sure they feel naming the school for me would be tremendously beneficial. I worry about having my name used for fundraising, but it is a nice honor. Yale's president approached Lou Walker, uncle, on this.

Also I wonder if this would interfere with Bush Library though the donors won't overlap that much.

Please discuss with Boyden > itold Lou that there might be some policy about accepting tribute like this while in office -- then I thought of Midlands George Bush school.

Advise please !!!

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: JAMES W. CICCONI mc
SUBJECT: Possible Renaming of Midland International Airport

Patty's
Per your request, we have checked into the request mentioned in Bobby Holt's letter (Tab A) regarding the possible renaming in your honor of Midland International Airport.

Response to this request is, of course, an entirely personal decision. To assist you, I have attached at Tab B the applicable precedents from the Reagan years, along with a veto by President Ford of a bill to name a federal building in his honor, and a memorandum from Counsel on the subject.

In short, there is a clear precedent that federal buildings and facilities not be named for Presidents while they are still in office. President Reagan continued this precedent. With regard to non-federal facilities, President Reagan accepted the naming of a school and a cottage, but declined the renaming of the Newark Airport due to the "apparent immodesty of the action."

We will be happy to draft a letter in accordance in your decision.

Decision

- ☒ Draft letter accepting the honor.
 - ☒ Draft letter ~~discouraging~~ opposing the renaming while I hold this office - inasmuch as it is in 2 cities
 - ☐ Draft letter which declines to encourage or discourage the renaming.
- we really feel close to, please make it a good grateful letter.*

Thank you.

I received your letter about the proposal that the name of the Midland International Airport be changed, and I want to tell you how pleased and honored I was by the thoughtfulness of the Mayor and City Council. I'm informed, however, that there is clear precedent against Presidents accepting any such honor while in office, a precedent I feel it important to respect.

Midland and Odessa will always be dear to Barbara and me. We raised a family there, and it's where I became a Texan. I hope that sometime in the not-too-distant future, I'll be able to revisit Midland and see many old friends.

MR. PRESIDENT:

As the attached note from Counsel indicates, this invitation is a bit more complicated than some of the others you have received. Should you wish to accept it, it is likely the initiation fee and the annual dues would be counted as a gift because the invitation contemplates you would have all the privileges of a regular member and the club would expect "that the club facilities be used at least occasionally." Second, there is a general caution against participating in new ventures (e.g., not writing articles for the first issues of magazines), which might apply here; since the course is new, it might seek to derive commercial benefit from your association with it, however indirect.

Thank you.

You have asked for our views on an invitation from the President of the Robert Trent Jones Golf Club in Lake Manassas, Virginia, to the President to become an honorary member of the Club. The Club's offer to the President would waive the initiation fee and annual dues; it does not state anything about greens fees or other charges or assessments. The invitation states that "[a]ll we ask is that the Club's facilities be used at least occasionally." The Club claims that it does not discriminate on the basis of race or sex, and the Board of Governors includes at least one black and one female member. Secretary Skinner is also a member of the Board of Governors of the Club.

From time to time the President receives either memberships or honorary memberships in organizations and clubs. When memberships are received, they are treated as gifts. If the President decides to accept the membership, then the membership must be valued and reported as a gift. Honorary memberships present a more complicated problem. Some honorary memberships are truly "honorary;" that is, the President is declared an honorary member, but no real evidence of membership is involved. The President is not expected to exercise any of the ordinary privileges of his "membership." Such honorary memberships are not treated as gifts for purposes of valuation and reporting. On the other hand, honorary memberships that carry definite privileges and, therefore, can be valued, are treated as gifts and must be reported by the President.

Though nominally "honorary," the offer from the Robert Trent Jones Golf Club has the earmarks of a regular membership. Although the Club would waive the initiation fee and annual dues, the President would have all the privileges of a regular member; indeed, in its invitation the Club notes that it would expect "that the Club's facilities be used at least occasionally." In our view, the honorary membership has value that can easily be determined, and if the President wishes to accept the invitation, his membership will be reportable, both for the initiation fee and the annual dues.

Wholly apart from our gift analysis, we are concerned that the Robert Trent Jones Golf Club may derive some benefit from being able to state that the President is an honorary member of the Club. Although the Club's invitation assures that the project "is a golf club, not a real estate development," the golf club itself is a commercial development that stands to gain in prestige if the President is an honorary member and particularly if he plays the course. Indeed, our concerns are heightened by the Club's request that the President use the facilities "at least occasionally." If the President were to accept this honorary membership, it might well encourage other clubs and organizations to confer honorary membership on the President as a means of boosting their prestige. At the very least, if the President wishes to accept this offer, we should seek assurances that the Club will not refer to the President's membership in any advertisement, report or other publication.

One alternative to our gift and commercial benefit concerns would be for the Club to offer the President some less formal relationship with the Club, for example, a standing invitation to play the course. A standing invitation would probably not be considered a membership, either honorary or regular, and in and of itself would not be reportable as a gift. Of course, to the extent the President actually used the facilities and the greens fees, caddies fees, or other charges were waived, then that gift would be reportable under the usual rules. The standing invitation would reduce our concerns over possible exploitation of the President's honorary status with the Club.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this matter. If we can be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact us. In particular, should the President decide to accept this invitation or some variation (e.g., a standing invitation), you may wish to contact Greg Walden concerning the application of the gift rules.

Dear Mr. President:

All of us were very happy you could find the time to play our golf course on Sunday, April 28th. Jim Muething, our young professional reported that your game was pretty "solid".

Now for the purpose of this letter:

On behalf of the Board of Governors, Robert Trent Jones, Clay Hamner, Ernest Ransome and I (as Trustees), extend to you an invitation to become an Honorary Member of this new championship Club. It would be a genuine pleasure to have you "on board".

Speaking of "Board" -- you will notice from the list of Governors on this letterhead that there will be no discrimination in our admissions policy. We handled that matter, beginning at the Board level -- no "tokenism".

Also, this is a golf club, not a real estate development. No homes will be on the course -- no lots sold or to be sold for future home building. However, the Club will provide sufficient housing for members and guests through small clusters of cottages located near the Clubhouse. By the way: the Clubhouse will be Georgian Colonial in style (brick with slate roof), and completed by next May 1st; ground was broken about 10 days ago. There will be twelve suites in the Clubhouse itself.

May 2, 1991

Mr. President, under an Honorary Membership, both the initiation fee and annual dues are waived. All we ask is that the Club's facilities be used at least occasionally.

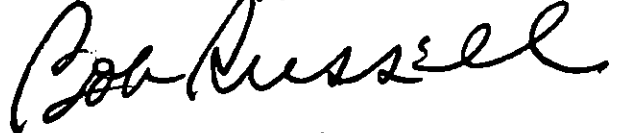

I'm attaching a copy of the "Membership Documents", plus a reasonably good map just in case Mrs. Bush would like to drive out for a tour.

Jim Muething, the golf pro, will be happy to set it up:
(703) 754-7533.

If you have any questions, please contact me at (201) 285-7301 or Ebersole Gaines or Sam Skinner, both members of our Board of Governors.

Looking forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Dear Ms. Joyce:

We recently received a complementary copy of the Winter 1990-91 issue of American-Arab Affairs and write to correct a situation regarding the use of a Presidential quotation.

In November 1989, you requested a Presidential message for the eighth anniversary of the American-Arab Affairs Council. Your letter specifically stated that the message was to be read at a luncheon with the Board of Governors of the organization and made no mention of plans to excerpt the message for other uses such as fundraising. Our sending a message to your organization was itself a departure from usual White House procedure; normally we provide such messages only for "milestone" anniversaries of national organizations. Nevertheless, a message was sent.

The recent issue of American-Arab Affairs inaccurately excerpts this letter as an endorsement of your publication, and the subscription envelope contains the same purported endorsement and a reproduction of the President's signature. This is unacceptable for several reasons. First, it represents an unauthorized reprinting of a Presidential message for a use for which the message was not sent. Second, the President's message congratulated the American-Arab Affairs Council, not the magazine. Third, this is an unauthorized reproduction of the President's signature.

For these reasons, we request that you remove the President's endorsement from materials related to your magazine.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Phillip D. Brady

Dear :

As Americans, we know the significance of hard work. We recognize the rewards of diligent effort, and we understand the importance of embracing opportunities as they present themselves. This is our heritage, what we are used to.

Today we are facing a brand new set of opportunities - which will have a critical impact on determining the course of our country's future.

We have the ability in 1991 and 1992 to consolidate our Republican base at every level of government and reshape ~~our~~ ^{the} political landscape. In town halls, county courthouses, and state legislatures from coast to coast, Republicans stand to score major victories.

With Democrat tax-and-spend policies jeopardizing state economies, the power of our Republican message is stronger than ever.

Even more encouraging is the possibility of our regaining the U.S. Senate. With 20 Democrats up for reelection out of a total of 35, our chances of picking up the seven seats we need for recapturing control are outstanding.

We must seize the opportunity. We must once again show our fellow Americans the dramatic differences in policy, principle, and leadership between the Democrat Party and the Republican Party. We must draw the lines of distinction and clearly present our accomplishments and proposed strategy for dealing with the myriad of issues that touch our lives.

We must formulate and implement an extensive plan aimed at registering more new Republican voters, recruiting first-rate candidates for every office on the ballot, and mobilizing a massive volunteer force to carry our message to every corner of the United States.

The Republican Party of Virginia has outlined an excellent plan to achieve this goal in your State. It is an aggressive program designed to maximize both the political and financial resources available to us.

This plan needs your support. I urge you to take a moment now to make a pledge of your time to help build the grass-roots network we will need. Please back up this pledge up with a special contribution to help fund the budget that has been established exclusively for this campaign victory program.

Virginia should lead the way for Republicans.

You have helped make the difference so many times in the past, and I'm asking you to help make the difference again in 1992.

Your gift of money and time will be critical in Virginia.

The key to success rests with you. On behalf of the Republican Party of Virginia, please become involved and send your contribution today. Help lead Virginia and the Nation to even greater Republican triumphs.

Thank you, and God Bless you.

Sincerely,

Dear fellow Republican:

This is a crucial year for our Republican Party and our Commonwealth.

Years of arrogant, one-party Democrat rule has left Virginia with the worst fiscal crisis of any state. And what may be worse, the scandals and bickering of top Democrats has made Virginia a national laughing stock.

You and I must put an end to this once and for all. I hope I can count on your support today.

Sincerely,

Donald W. Huffman, Chairman

We must seize these opportunities. We must once again show our fellow Americans the dramatic differences in policy, principle, and leadership between the Democrat Party and the Republican Party. We must draw the lines of distinction and clearly present our accomplishments and proposed strategy for dealing with the myriad of issues that touch our lives.

We must formulate and implement an extensive plan aimed at attracting more new Republican voters, recruiting first-rate candidates for every office on the ballot, and mobilizing a massive volunteer force to carry our message to every corner of the United States.

The North Dakota Republican Party has outlined an excellent plan to achieve this goal in North Dakota. It is an aggressive program designed to maximize both the political and financial resources available to us.

This plan needs your support. I urge you to take a moment now to make a pledge of your time to help build the grass-roots network we will need. Please back up this pledge up with a special contribution to help fund the budget that has been established exclusively for this campaign victory program.

The 1990 election was a pivotal year for North Dakota Republicans - ~~by having~~ the most successful election in 10 years.

1992 offers the opportunity to expand on that success, but the ~~party~~ ^{but the party needs} ~~need~~ your help.

You have helped make the difference so many times in the past, and I'm asking you to help make the difference again in 1992. Your gift of money and time will be critical in North Dakota.

The key to success rests with you. On behalf of the North Dakota Republican Party, please become involved and send your contribution today.

Help lead North Dakota and the Nation to even greater Republican triumphs next year.

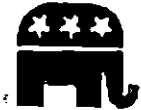

Thank you, and God Bless you.

Sincerely,

From the desk of . . .

Dear President Bush:

The employees of the Angeles National Forest would like to welcome you to Southern California by presenting you this newly released copy of "Angeles National Forest."

The Forest Service is celebrating 100 years of "Caring for the Land and Serving People." Knowing you have a strong interest in the environmental well-being of this country, we wanted you to be aware of the challenges and opportunities we have on the Angeles National Forest, California's very first National Forest. Our employees, special use permittees, concessionaires and growing number of citizen volunteers face enormous challenges managing this unique and complex ecosystem in the midst of what has become one of the most heavily urbanized areas in the nation.

While I have the opportunity, I want to applaud you for your Recreation Initiative. This program will provide essential funds for refurbishing our worn out recreational facilities and will revive our critical environmental education programs in inner city schools.

This book, "Angeles National Forest," is the product of a dedicated group of volunteers and one fine photographer, Mr. Roy Murphy. These volunteers raised the funds, took the pictures, wrote and edited the text and will distribute and sell the book. All of the profits from book sales will go back into projects on the Angeles National Forest.

I hope you enjoy your personal copy. It's a real pleasure serving under your leadership.

Sincerely,

MICHAEL J. ROGERS

Dear :

As Americans, we know the significance of hard work. We recognize the rewards of diligent effort, and we understand the importance of embracing opportunities as they present themselves. This is our heritage, what we are used to.

Today we are facing a brand new set of opportunities - which will have a critical impact on determining the course of our country's future.

We have the ability in 1992 to consolidate our Republican base at every level of government and reshape ~~our~~ ^{the} political landscape. In town halls, county courthouses, and state legislatures from coast to coast, Republicans stand to score major victories.

With the redistricting process loosening the hold many Democrat incumbents have on their districts, there is excellent potential for us to expand our influence and pick up seats in the United States Congress.

Even more encouraging is the possibility of our regaining the U.S. Senate. With 20 Democrats up for reelection out of a total of 35, our chances of picking up the seven seats we need for recapturing control are outstanding.

We must seize these opportunities. We must once again show our fellow Americans the dramatic differences in policy, principle, and leadership between the Democrat Party and the Republican Party. We must draw the lines of distinction and clearly present our accomplishments and proposed strategy for dealing with the myriad of issues that touch our lives.

We must formulate and implement an extensive plan aimed at registering more new Republican voters, recruiting first-rate candidates for every office on the ballot, and mobilizing a massive volunteer force to carry our message to every corner of the United States.

Dear :

As Americans, we know the significance of hard work. We recognize the rewards of diligent effort, and we understand the importance of embracing opportunities as they present themselves. This is our heritage, what we are used to.

Today we are facing a brand new set of opportunities - which will have a critical impact on determining the course of our country's future.

We have the ability in 1992 to consolidate our Republican base at every level of government and reshape ~~our~~ political landscape. In town halls, county courthouses, and state legislatures from coast to coast, Republicans stand to score major victories.

With the redistricting process loosening the hold many Democrat incumbents have on their districts, there is excellent potential for us to expand our influence and pick up seats in the United States Congress.

Even more encouraging is the possibility of our regaining the U.S. Senate. With 20 Democrats up for reelection out of a total of 35, our chances of picking up the seven seats we need for recapturing control are outstanding.

We must seize these opportunities. We must once again show our fellow Americans the dramatic differences in policy, principle, and leadership between the Democrat Party and the Republican Party. We must draw the lines of distinction and clearly present our accomplishments and proposed strategy for dealing with the myriad of issues that touch our lives.

We must formulate and implement an extensive plan aimed at registering more new Republican voters, recruiting first-rate candidates for every office on the ballot, and mobilizing a massive volunteer force to carry our message to every corner of the United States.

The Republican Party of Wisconsin has outlined an excellent plan to achieve this goal in your State. It is an aggressive program designed to maximize both the political and financial resources available to us.

This plan needs your support. I urge you to take a moment now to make a pledge of your time to help build the grass-roots network we will need. Please back up this pledge up with a special contribution to help fund the budget that has been established exclusively for this campaign victory program.

You have helped make the difference so many times in the past, and I'm asking you to help make the difference again in 1992. Your gift of money and time will be critical in preparing for next year's elections.

The key to success rests with you. On behalf of the Republican Party of Wisconsin, please become involved and send your contribution today.

Help lead Wisconsin and the Nation to even greater Republican triumphs next year.

Thank you, and God Bless you.

Sincerely,

10 ENV

MEMORANDUM FOR PHIL BRADY

FROM: SHIRLEY M. GREEN smg
SUBJECT: Federal Spending/Taxes

We are receiving mail about programs funded by Congress and about taxes on the middle class that is being generated by Dr. James Dobson's Focus on the Family organization (copy of typical letter attached). Larry Lindsey gave us a draft reply, which we have edited slightly. Larry's draft included language encouraging writers to bring their concerns to the attention of Congress. We ran that by Nelson Lund, and he's advised us to take that out (copy attached). We will, of course, be able to use this letter for non-generated mail on these subjects.

--DRAFT TAXES AND GOVERNMENT SPENDING--

Dear:

Thank you for your letter to President Bush regarding Federal taxes and Federal spending. The President understands and shares your concern.

Last year, Congress and the Administration took great care in negotiating and crafting a package of deficit reductions and budget restraints, which answers many of the problems that you address. The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 not only cuts the budget deficit by $500 billion over five years but also puts into place powerful restraints against future increases in spending.

In addition, the bill incorporates an expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit for low- and moderate-income working families with children, adopting the same principles as the President's proposed Child Tax Credit. The maximum credit for some families will more than triple, increasing from $950 in 1990 to around $3000 in 1995, when the credit will include a reimbursement for qualified health insurance payments.

Automatic spending restraints were the most important component of last year's deficit reduction package. They will help to limit the burden of deficit spending on today's children and on those yet unborn. These tight spending caps and "pay as you go" financing are already having a positive effect. No longer can new programs be introduced unless a way is found to pay for them first. Unfortunately, some in Congress continue to introduce legislation to cut funds from the President's broad-based budget proposal in order to fund narrow, special interest projects. The line-item veto would help the President to restrain such wasteful spending. To date, Congress has refused to grant him that authority.

President Bush appreciates your support for spending restraint and for responsible government. He also appreciates your taking the time to share your concerns with him, and he hopes that you will support further reductions in spending and additional tools of restraint, such as the line item veto.

With the President's best wishes,

Sincerely,

SMG

The White House

Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear President Bush;

I have enclosed a copy of a report I received from Dr. James C. Dobson, President of the Focus on the Family Organization.

Words can not express my outrage at some of the programs funded by the United States Congress that are listed in this report. I am particularly incensed because of all the rhetoric I listened to in the fall of 1990 about the necessity for a tax hike due to the great federal budget deficit. No wonder we have a federal budget deficit with all the waste that is going on in Washington, D.C. The way I feel right now is that I am inclined to vote against all incumbents in 1992 regardless of party affiliation. I am going to urge my friends to consider doing the same thing and I have a fairly wide circle of friends. The people of this country are sick and tired of listening to demagogic statements about taxing the rich and other such verbal garbage when you people in Washington throw our dollars around on wasteful projects like those listed in this report.

I would urge each of you to do what you can do to stop this waste and specifically I would urge you to support in the Congress Senator Dan Coats' bill concerning the increase in the personal exemption. I am also personally tired of seeing all the tax breaks go to Oil Companies and other special interest groups as listed in this report.

I believe that the United States of America is on the verge of a great tax revolt and I believe you will see it erupt in 1992 unless something is done by you people in Washington to reverse this situation. I am ...

Very Sincerely Yours,

William G. Colmery Jr.

Dear Mr. & Mrs. Colmery:

It was with mixed emotions that I sat down to pay my state and federal taxes this April. On the one hand, I have always felt great appreciation for the country in which we live and the freedoms we enjoy. Certainly, every American should be willing to support the system that makes possible the security and opportunities we take for granted.

On the other hand, this tax season brought to mind the shameful waste of our resources by irresponsible representatives in government. What they are doing is a national disgrace. Indeed, if the American people fully understood how their hard-earned money is being squandered and misused, they would certainly rise in revolt against the big spenders in Washington. Not only is Congress dissipating the great wealth of this country, but it is also robbing from future generations, who are not here to defend their interests. Of even greater concern is my firm conviction that oppressive taxation is the most serious external threat to the institution of the family.

To understand the scope of this problem, let's look at some specific federal expenditures from the last two or three years. Many of the following items were buried so deep in budgetary documents it took watchdogs a year or more to dig them out. Our thanks go to Citizens Against Government Waste, the Heritage Foundation and the National Taxpayers Union for their assistance in identifying these specific examples of government waste:

- * $49 million for a rock-and-roll museum.
- * $1.9 million for an "all-Ireland genealogy project."
- * $5 million to help support Ted Turner's "Goodwill Games."
- * $2 million to construct and sail an ancient-style canoe to depict the migration of native Hawaiians.

- * $15 million to Dartmouth College as part of a jobs creation scheme. A total of 39 jobs were created at a cost of $324,685 each!
- * $1.36 million for preliminary work on an $18.6 million project to turn a Miami boulevard into an "exotic garden for people."
- * $500,000 to restore the birthplace of bandleader Lawrence Welk, which was not requested by the Welk family! (This item came under severe public criticism and has been withdrawn.)

Perhaps the strangest of federal expenditures are made in the name of "research." How do you feel about your taxes going to support the following studies? Nearly all of these projects were tucked within federal budgets during the past two or three years and have recently come to light:

- * $566 million (rising to $900 million later this year) to send American cows to Europe to participate in an "Export Enhancement Program."
- * $500,000 to study the effects of cigarette smoking on dogs.
- * $107,000 to study the mating habits of Japanese quail.
- * $19 million to study whether flatulence emitted by cows and other livestock harms the ozone layer.
- * $84,000 to study why people fall in love.
- * $1 million to study bicycling and walking safety.
- * $160,000 to study food gathering habits of the Ache Tribe in Paraguay.
- * $50,000 to prove that sheepdogs do, in fact, protect sheep.
- * $46,000 to determine how long it takes to cook breakfast eggs.
- * $170,000 to fund a Dunkin Donuts store in Lawton, Okla.
- * $6.1 million in the search for extraterrestrial life.
- * $90,000 to study the social and behavioral aspects of vegetarianism.
- * $219,592 to teach college students how to watch television.
- * $2,500 to investigate the causes of rudeness, lying and cheating on tennis courts.

Not only is there waste in budgeted items, there is mismanagement in virtually everything government does. For example, it is estimated that the government is currently owed $250 billion, but much of it given our representatives a staggering amount of money to spend--and they've complained that it isn't enough.

What is particularly irksome is the deception that is practiced on the American taxpayer. Remember the great hue and cry last year about the federal deficit and the need to raise taxes to effect a reduction? President Bush joined the chorus and abandoned his "read my lips" campaign promise. We were told that only by generating $140 billion in new taxes could fiscal responsibility be restored. Our citizens bought the line and tolerated yet another raid on their pocketbooks. As many of us predicted, however, the deficit was not reduced at all. Congress cynically grabbed the money and ran, leaving us even deeper in financial difficulty. In fact, they refused to cut or even trim a single non-defense program from their $1.1 trillion budget. Even the most ineffectual and wasteful expenditures survived intact. Indeed, Congress actually increased spending by $96 billion in 1991, and the federal deficit will soar to $300 billion by year end. And would you believe they're talking on Capitol Hill about another tax increase in the near future?

The voices of big-spending congressmen giving high-minded speeches last year still echo in my ears. For days they worked to justify the proposed increase in taxes. But were they sincere? Let's look at Congress' allocation in the 1991 budget for their own welfare and comfort:

- * $25,000 to find the best location for a new House gymnasium.
- * $40,000 for new trash receptacles.
- * $2 million to renovate one of the House restaurants.
- * $350,000 to renovate the House beauty parlor.
- * $340,000 for international travel.
- * $100 million for franking privileges (free mail to constituents). This perk makes it almost impossible for challengers to defeat incumbents in an election.
- * $6 million to upgrade the Senate subway system.
- * More than 300 congressmen are eligible for retirement benefits in excess of $1 million. Not bad, huh? How big is your retirement fund, by comparison?
- * Congressional salaries were increased by 25 percent last year, while talk of the deficit was in progress. Then they cut an inside deal, agreeing not to speak of the matter during election campaigns.
- * Prior to the general election of 1992, congressmen can resign and legally take all their remaining campaign funds with them for private use. For some, this will amount to more than a million dollars. Nice work if you can get it.

To be fair, we must acknowledge that there are many conservative, conscientious congressmen on Capitol Hill who have fought the big spenders tooth and nail. They are as distressed by wasteful policies as you and I. But they are in the minority, and they consistently lose the battles with House and Senate leadership. I know from personal contact that many of these responsible representatives are discouraged today, feeling embarrassed and helpless to stop the waste.

Obviously, there is a role to be played by ordinary citizens--people like you and me. And there is no time to lose. Millions of families are facing financial ruin because they can't live on the pittance left to them after federal and state taxes and social security obligations have been deducted. Others are coping by moonlighting, and mothers are seeking formal employment when they would prefer to stay at home. Why, I would ask, should government be permitted continued extravagance while wage earners are strapped with debt and unmet need? It makes no sense.

It is time for us to let our representatives in government know that we have had enough. Our comments should be directed first to the White House, making it clear that the American family must be given preferential treatment in the tax code! I'm not sure the President understands this necessity yet. As you know, he supported the recent tax increase that simply gave Congress more money to waste.

Fortunately, some in Congress are moving to address the issue of tax fairness for families. Senator Dan Coats of Indiana and Representative Frank Wolf of Virginia have introduced bills to boost the personal exemption to $3,500 per child. A figure twice that would be needed to restore the exemption to the value it had for our parents' generation, but this would be a significant step in the right direction. Please write your U.S. senator (address: U.S. Senate, Washington, DC 20510) and your U.S. congressman (address: U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC 20515) and ask them to support Sen. Coats' bill, S701, and Rep. Wolf's bill, HR1277. Let them know how you feel.

If you're tired of seeing all the tax breaks go to oil companies and other special interest groups, do let your governmental officials, especially congressmen and senators, know how you feel. If they still won't listen, there is another time-honored way to convey the message. I'll bet you can figure out how to get their attention!

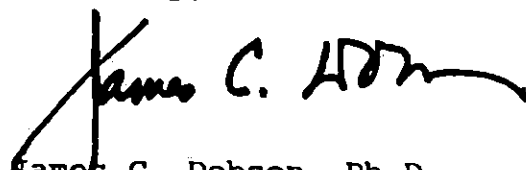

Finally, I'll close with this thought about Focus on the Family. The financial pressure on individual families during tax season creates a small crisis for the ministry every year at this time. People simply can't give when they have nothing left to share. Indeed, we would not want them to do so. But if there are other supporters of our work out there who could help us pay the bills through this spring, we would appreciate their participation.

Let me return to the thought I expressed at the beginning of this letter. I love my country, and even with its faults and its self-serving politicians, it is the greatest nation on earth. What is needed to make it even better, perhaps, is a new "Boston Tea Party." The last one occurred 218 years ago and was intended to protest taxation without representation. As it turned out, taxation with representation hasn't been so marvelous, either! We must hold our elected officials accountable for the way they handle our national resources, and to help them find a new line of work if they miss the point.

God bless you all. Thanks for reading along with me each month.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "James C. Dobson", with a stylized flourish at the end.

Dear Paul:

I enjoy thoroughly receiving and reading your letters. Even in disagreement, you are an eloquent and perfect gentleman.

During our luncheon meeting on April 18, we discussed the President's new Foreign Assistance Act which had been brought to our attention earlier that week. In fact, I think Ralph first received a copy the day before.

Chris and I felt strongly that our Board, individually and collectively, should be supportive of the President, even though the Act failed to include a provision perpetuating the Board. We all were concerned that the Board's input on Title XII was not considered by A.I.D. That oversight subsequently was satisfactorily addressed in a letter from Dr. Roskens to me, which I shared with the Board.

Were we in a situation of deciding whether to support or oppose a proposal being advanced by A.I.D., then your argument would be compelling and correct. However, that ain't exactly where we are. I am loath to entertain any suggestion that we do other than enthusiastically assist and support the President in his attempt to produce a new, viable and more simple approach to administering foreign aid. I agree with his desire to restore the proper balance of Congressional and Presidential authority in the conduct of foreign policy.

I asked each Board member at the conclusion of the lunch whether we were in agreement as to our adopting a position supportive of the President and everyone concurred.

Paul, I know that, as a "parent" of Title XII, your feelings differ from mine, and I respect you for those beliefs. The dreams you fashioned and the goals you set for feeding the hungry have been partially met. While we likely never will achieve a total victory, we surely can continue the fight, even if we carry a different banner and march to a new drummer.

Dear Mr. President:

I write to suggest that you may want to consider Arnold Burns for the position of Attorney General to succeed General Thornburgh.

Arnold Burns served as Deputy Attorney General under Attorney General Meese for a substantial time and rendered very impressive service. He is an able lawyer from New York and is a person of high ethical standards. The experience which he has already had at the Justice Department together with his outstanding ability and character would certainly be the basis for the prediction that he would make an excellent Attorney General.

I am sure that you have a number of people under consideration, but it occurred to me that you might want to add Arnold Burns to the list of those under consideration if that is not now the case.

All good wishes.

Dear Mr. President:

I was very pleased to see that the Fast Track proposal succeeded which now allows for the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) dialogue to begin.

The Dallas Chamber of Commerce, along with many other business groups, have been in direct contact with United States Trade Representative Carla Hills and her staff concerning the prospect of Dallas becoming a major site for discussions of the historic trilateral trade negotiations. The city has finalized a package of incentives which are very meritorious.

Assuming that the NAFTA discussions are held in cities other than the capitol cities, Dallas would provide an extraordinary setting for the various rounds of negotiations. I hope that you and U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hill will keep Dallas in mind as a principal location for the NAFTA negotiations, and if I can be of any personal assistance with respect to this consideration, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Ray L. Hunt

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: Carla A. Hills CPH

SUBJECT: The Visit of the President of Brazil

In anticipation of President Collor's visit, I wanted to report to you on three critical trade issues that require Brazilian action.

Intellectual Property: The Collor Government has submitted legislation to its Congress on intellectual property rights. It falls short of our objectives and includes elements of major concern to our private sector, primarily the pharmaceutical industry. We have encouraged the Collor Government to improve on the proposed legislation in specific areas. I would appreciate your emphasizing to President Collor that it is essential to amend the proposal before it becomes law so as to be responsive to our concerns. We are seeking from the Brazilians no more than what we have obtained from Eastern Europe and Mexico.

Uruguay Round: In the Uruguay Round, Brazil has been an ally in agriculture as part of the Cairns group, but has not been cooperative in other areas important to us. As a leader among developing countries, Brazil's help on these issues is crucial. I would appreciate your stressing to President Collor how critical it is for Brazil to negotiate constructively in all areas, especially intellectual property, services, and market access.

Informatics: Finally, greater market access in Brazil for computers and related electronics equipment, or "informatics," has been a major U.S. concern with Brazil for many years. The Collor Government has been pushing to phaseout restrictions in this area. Significant barriers remain, and the Brazilian legislature is attempting to extend these restrictions. I would appreciate your encouraging President Collor to resist these efforts and continue to open the Brazilian market.

I have attached some suggested talking points on these issues for your convenience.

Attachment

Intellectual Property Rights

- o Strong protection of intellectual property is indispensable to countries wishing to attract investment and transfer of technology.
- o To achieve these objectives, Brazil should be a leader in the Hemisphere by offering world class protection for intellectual property.
- o USTR Hills has made known our concerns with your Government's proposed intellectual property law. I urge you to revise the proposal as we have suggested before it becomes law.

Uruguay Round

- o We agree that achieving fundamental reform of world agriculture remains the linchpin of a successful Round, and will continue to press for progress.
- o But the Round can only succeed if we have a broad agreement across all areas. Thus, to move forward, we have proposed to complete key elements by July 31. Specifically, we want:
 - To develop a text that establishes world-class standards for protecting intellectual property; and
 - To accelerate negotiations on market access for manufactured goods, services, and government procurement.
- o Brazil, and its partners in the Cairns group, need to lead by example now, and seriously engage in these areas of negotiations.

Informatics

- o I appreciate the efforts your Government has made to liberalize the so-called informatics sector. I am also aware that some in the Brazilian Congress are trying to thwart your efforts.
- o I urge you to resist these Congressional efforts and continue to open the informatics market.

THE PRESIDENT HAS SEEN

May 25, 1991

Dear President,

We are graduate students and scholars from P.R.China, now studying at University of Southern California. It is our great pleasure to write the letter to you and we would like to take this opportunity to express our opinion upon the renewal of P.R.China's most-favored-nation status.

It is obviously that the withdrawal of MFN status to China will be detrimental to both China and the U.S.A.. In the event China's MFN status is suspended, Chinese people's feeling will be hurt, the political and economic reform in China will experience a severe setback, and the Chinese people will suffer. It would also hurt many American companies and result in causing the United States to lose access to the huge potential market in China.

A group on Capital Hill is advocating the extension of China's MFN status, but only if certain conditions are met. As far as we know, some Chinese students and scholars overseas also hold this viewpoint. But in our opinion this effort would be useless and resultless. Due to the different social systems, historical and cultural backgrounds and different level of development in China and the U.S., it is quite natural for such countries to have different opinions and approaches on various issues. So adding political conditions to MFN status is bound to lead to two extremes: either withdrawal the MFN, that is the thing we do not hope most, or as a mere scrap of paper in practice.

We all know that there is much room for improvement and development in Chinese social system and many other respects. Chinese people and government have been making great effort on it. In point of fact, any approach unacceptable to China would run counter to one's intentions.

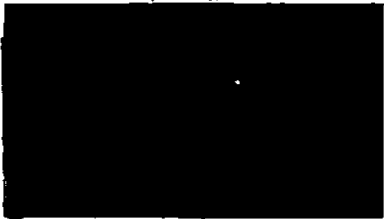

It is sincerely hoped that you and your friends could support a smooth extension of China's most-favored-nation status.

With best wishes.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 17, 1991

The President today named the volunteers of Project Safe Place, of Louisville, Kentucky, as the 485th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. Young people who are in trouble and have nowhere else to turn may enter any location bearing a Project Safe Place sign to obtain help and understanding.

Founded in 1983 in Louisville, Kentucky, Project Safe Place is a network of businesses and public facilities which voluntarily display the Safe Place sign on their premises, which signals help to youth who are in distress. An employee of the participating organization will provide a safe refuge for the youth while a Safe Place volunteer is contacted.

More than 200 community members have received eight hours of training in crisis intervention, enabling them to support and counsel young people. A corps of volunteers is on call to respond to young people who have sought help at a "safe place." The volunteers arrive at the location within fifteen minutes to talk to the young person and determine how the youngster may be assisted. Some of the youth simply need a safe ride home and others are escaping a dangerous situation. The young people learn about Project Safe Place through volunteers who lecture at local schools. More than 30 young people each month seek help at one of 300 Safe Place locations throughout Louisville. This program has been replicated in over 100 cities.

The President salutes the volunteers of Project Safe Place as the 485th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. Daily Point of Light recognition is intended to call every individual, group, and organization in America to claim society's problems as their own by taking direct and consequential action; to identify, enlarge, and multiply successful initiatives, like the efforts of the volunteers of Project Safe Place; and to discover, encourage, and develop new leaders in community service, reflecting the President's conviction that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 18, 1991

The President today named the volunteers of The New England Mentor Program, of Boston, Massachusetts, as the 486th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. The New England, formerly known as "New England Mutual Life," is inspiring young people to pursue higher education and strive for successful careers.

The New England Mentor Program is a three way partnership among The New England, the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, and Jeremiah Burke High School. The New England formed a partnership with Jeremiah Burke High School, an inner-city school, offering students work/study opportunities. After realizing the need for a support system for the students to help improve their work/study experience, The New England approached the Big Sister Association to train employees on how best to mentor the students. The New England employees now serve as career mentors to the student employees.

The Big Sister Association matches the students with employee volunteers based on mutual interests and backgrounds. The students, who are in the 11th and 12th grades, work from 2:00 until 5:00 p.m. during the school year and full-time during the summer. The New England provides transportation from the school to work, where students are employed in entry level positions at higher than minimum wage. Students meet with their mentor at least once a week to discuss their progress, identify special interests, and set goals for the future. The volunteers also help the students complete college applications and obtain college scholarships.

The President salutes the volunteers of The New England Mentor Program as the 486th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. Daily Point of Light recognition is intended to call every individual, group, and organization in America to claim society's problems as their own by taking direct and consequential action; to identify, enlarge, and multiply successful initiatives, like the efforts of the volunteers of The New England Mentor Program; and to discover, encourage, and develop new leaders in community service, reflecting the President's conviction that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

The President today named the volunteers of UPLIFT, Inc., of Greensboro, North Carolina, as the 488th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. The volunteers of UPLIFT reach out to families who live in housing projects, offering them a better chance for a brighter future.

Founded in 1986, UPLIFT serves the residents of Ray Warren Homes, a low-income housing community. UPLIFT, located in a church basement, is comprised of two services: the Child Development Center and the Family Resource Center. Both programs are interrelated and focus on rebuilding the family unit. The Child Development Center offers education-enriched child care five days a week, allowing parents to work or study. The center boasts a computer learning center, where students from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro teach the youngsters computer literacy skills. Volunteers also lead field trips to the zoo, museums, farms, fire departments, and other educational facilities. In addition, professionals serve as mentors, inviting the children to visit them in the workplace, while elderly volunteers serve as "foster grandparents," cooking meals and reading to the children.

In the Family Resource Center, parents of the children who attend the Child Development Center and other adults in the community are encouraged to become involved in the education of children. Volunteers teach classes in child development, health care, storytelling, nutrition, and parenting. Volunteers also help prepare adults to take the GED (General Educational Development) test, and they offer career counseling, vocational training, and job placement assistance.

The President today named the volunteers of the Madisonville Emergency Assistance Center, of Cincinnati, Ohio, as the 489th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. With only 165 volunteers, the Madisonville Emergency Assistance Center (MEAC) serves over 3,500 needy individuals each year.

Founded in 1988 by a consortium of local churches and organizations, MEAC offers immediate help to those who are homeless or have financial problems. The center is located in a once dilapidated building. Volunteers refurbished the facility and the surrounding property, indirectly stimulating the neighboring business community. The center is comprised of classrooms, offices, and a future computer lab.

The volunteers of MEAC help with three different programs, the Adult Education Program, "Moving Families Out of Poverty," and the Emergency Assistance Program. Through the Adult Education Program, volunteers offer classes to prepare for the GED (General Educational Development) examination, helping individuals obtain the functional equivalent of a high school diploma. Through "Moving Families Out of Poverty," volunteers counsel family members, helping each individual establish daily and lifelong goals. Volunteers help the adults obtain job skills and employment, encourage the children to continue their studies, and enhance family relationships. Through the Emergency Assistance Program, MEAC offers food, clothing, and assistance with paying rent or utilities. They also work closely with other local agencies, referring clients to needed services.

Dear Mr. President:

I have the honor to enclose the nomination of Donald L. Graham, of Florida, to be United States District Judge for the Southern District of Florida vice Sidney M. Aronovitz, retired.

Mr. Graham was born December 15, 1948 in Salisbury, North Carolina, is divorced and has one child. He received a B.A. degree, magna cum laude, in 1971 from West Virginia State College and a J.D. degree in 1974 from Ohio State University, College of Law. He was admitted to the Ohio State Bar in 1974, the Florida State Bar in 1980 and the New York State Bar in 1985.

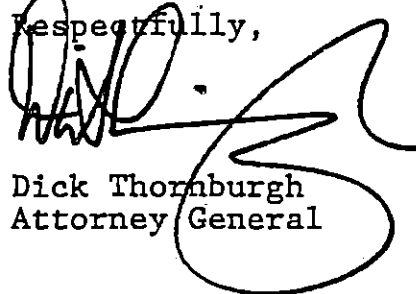

He served in the United States Army, Judge Advocate General Corps from 1974 to 1979 when he was honorably released from active duty.

Since 1984, Mr. Graham has been in the practice of law with the firm of Raskin & Graham, P.A. Prior to the formation of the above firm, he was a sole practitioner in Miami, 1984; and an Assistant United States Attorney for the Southern District of Florida, 1979-1983.

The Standing Committee on Federal Judiciary of the American Bar Association has submitted a formal report which states the Committee's opinion that Mr. Graham is qualified for appointment to this position. He bears an excellent reputation as to character and integrity, has judicial temperament and is, I believe, worthy of appointment as a United States District Judge.

I recommend the nomination.

Respectfully,

Dick Thornburgh

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Chiron

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

June 17, 1991

The President today named the volunteers of Project Safe Place, of Louisville, Kentucky, as the 485th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. Young people who are in trouble and have nowhere else to turn may enter any location bearing a Project Safe Place sign to obtain help and understanding.

Founded in 1983 in Louisville, Kentucky, Project Safe Place is a network of businesses and public facilities which voluntarily display the Safe Place sign on their premises, which signals help to youth who are in distress. An employee of the participating organization will provide a safe refuge for the youth while a Safe Place volunteer is contacted.

More than 200 community members have received eight hours of training in crisis intervention, enabling them to support and counsel young people. A corps of volunteers is on call to respond to young people who have sought help at a "safe place." The volunteers arrive at the location within fifteen minutes to talk to the young person and determine how the youngster may be assisted. Some of the youth simply need a safe ride home and others are escaping a dangerous situation. The young people learn about Project Safe Place through volunteers who lecture at local schools. More than 30 young people each month seek help at one of 300 Safe Place locations throughout Louisville. This program has been replicated in over 100 cities.

The President salutes the volunteers of Project Safe Place as the 485th "Daily Point of Light" for the nation. Daily Point of Light recognition is intended to call every individual, group, and organization in America to claim society's problems as their own by taking direct and consequential action; to identify, enlarge, and multiply successful initiatives, like the efforts of the volunteers of Project Safe Place; and to discover, encourage, and develop new leaders in community service, reflecting the President's conviction that, "From now on in America, any definition of a successful life must include serving others."

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: D. ALLAN BROMLEY file

SUBJECT: Leave of Absence from Yale

Two years ago, when I left Yale to come to Washington, Yale granted me its standard two year maximum leave of absence. The University agreed however that, were you willing to request that the leave be extended, it would be approved by the Yale Corporation on an annual basis.

While I hesitate to bother you in this matter, it is important to me that I retain my Henry Ford II chair in the Yale Physics Department and I would therefore request that you consider sending a letter to Benno Schmidt; I enclose herewith a possible draft of such a letter.

I have not had an opportunity to congratulate you on your Yale LLD so let me do so now.

Many thanks for your help.

DRAFT

June 11, 1991

Dear Benno:

I write to request that Allan Bromley's leave of absence be extended during the 1991-1992 academic year in order that he can continue to serve as my Assistant for Science and Technology.

With warmest best wishes.

George Bush

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

May 9, 1991

Dear Mr. Kennedy:

I read with distress your comments reported in the attached clip from our News Summary.

I can categorically assure you that I never was in Paris as claimed by the rumormongers. I can also categorically assure you that I have no information direct or indirect of any contact with Iranians relating to this hostage question.

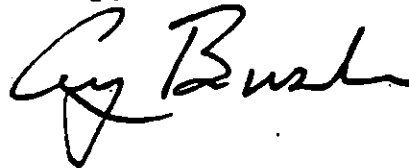

I am disappointed that you would feel I might have been a participant in a scheme to keep any American held hostage. I emphatically deny any such complicity.

One of the sad things about public life is you have to suffer attacks on your character, on your honor.

I can readily understand your concern when allegations are made like those made by Mr. Sick. A proposition so fundamentally immoral would certainly concern anyone. Please accept my word that I know nothing about anyone else's involvement in such an insidious plot, and I know for a fact that I had no contact such as those being alleged by Mr. Sick.

I wish you all the best and I hope this has laid to rest some of your understandable concerns.

Sincerely,

Mr. Moorhead Kennedy

EX-IRANIAN HOSTAGE SAYS BUSH DENIAL OF DEAL DOESN'T CONVINCE HIM

FORT LAUDERDALE -- One former Iranian hostage said Wednesday that President Bush's "very limp denial" left him more convinced than ever that the presidential campaign of Ronald Reagan enticed Iranian officials to continue holding the hostages until after the 1980 election....

Moorhead Kennedy...said Bush's denial emphasized only that Bush personally was not involved, but left open the question of whether the deal took place. "If there was nothing to this story," Kennedy said, "the President would have said, 'Number one, there is nothing to this story. Number two, we have investigated our archives and files and found nothing to support such a story. And number three, we welcome a full investigation.'" Kennedy spoke from New York City, where he is a Republican Party deputy district leader.

OUTLOOK ON OVERHAULING FOREIGN AID: LITTLE CHANCE

President Bush's request for an overhaul of the foreign aid program that would override congressional restrictions on aid disbursements appears to have little chance of passage on Capitol Hill, according to Administration and congressional sources....

Administration officials say the ideas emanating from Capitol Hill would produce legislation worse than the existing law; congressional sources reply that what Bush really wants is what one called "unfettered discretion to tilt foreign aid more and more toward military rather than development assistance without any checks from Congress." For that reason, the sources said, Congress clearly intends to rebuff Bush's request, formally submitted last month, that it surrender much of its power to "earmark" aid.

CHINA LASHES OUT AT U.S. PRESSURE ON HUMAN RIGHTS

BEIJING -- China lashed out at the U.S. Thursday for exerting pressure over human rights, saying nothing could change China's policies -- not even the threat of losing trade privileges worth billions of dollars. A visibly angered Foreign Ministry spokesman, Wu Jianmin, told a news briefing that attempts in Washington to link extension of China's MFN status to its human rights record would not work.... "We do not want to see the deterioration of Sino-U.S. relations but this does not depend entirely on China," he said. "If such a situation does occur it is nothing to be afraid of. China is prepared for it."

KERRY TO PROPOSE STEPS TO RESOLVE MIA ISSUE

Sen. Kerry...will announce today what his office describes as a major step toward resolving the status of the hundreds of U.S. service personnel still listed as missing in action from the war.

Kerry, who returned this week from a trip to Vietnam and Cambodia, is to announce that Vietnamese officials have agreed to allow Vietnam veterans and the families of those considered missing to travel "freely within the country" and to pursue leads about the missing. In addition, the Vietnamese government has agreed to offer translators and access to government records, a Kerry spokesman said.
