Presidential AIDE

The WHITE HOUSE, Wash., D.C. 20500

Dear Andy - Thinking of you & Gov. SCU-UNO - in the center of the eye of the Maelstrom,"

Like you - I am only really interested in Engineering, Technology, Math, Science - and making the Nation & World a better place to live in. No one in the Nation is better qualified to solve problems, of all types, than an experienced, qualified - educated Engineer. We use "judgement", all the time, in our work - - and, that inclines us that way.

I think that only I was so impressed by Judge SOUTER - - clearly, he is perfect for his new job on the Supreme Court. He has "good judgement."

Now that my age & health are real HANDICAPS - I can spend more TIME RESEARCHING MATH PROBLEM SOLVING - both Theoretical and  applied Science ones.

(2) 9-29-90 Z

And, the revelations — once you get into the details of the problems are fascinating and surprising.

There are some methods I've used for 30 or 40 years, in solving problems, that were not fully correct — but close enough for accuracy? I just did not have the TIME or INCLINATION to go back, in to the TEXT, and thoroughly the theory & efficient METHOD recommended.

Now, I have that TIME & INCLINATION — because in RESEARCH, "pressure" does not work well — or, only once or twice at the most. So, I'm convinced USA problems in all AREAS, suffer because we do not want to PAY special individuals to use their BRAINS — with no apparent material, or physical result?

We need "THINKERS", "CRITICS" and individuals that are GIFTED in "DETECTING FLAWS" in a DESIGN — before, it's used!

In AIRCRAFT-DESIGN, there are 100's of cases, where if MANAGERS LISTENED to some CRITICS, it COULD HAVE SAVED AVIATION PROGRESS & LIVES, ONE CASE, WAS THE

FAMOUS LOCKHEED AIRLINER of the 1950's -- WHOSE WINGS FELL OFF IN FLIGHT: The "ELECTRA"

One PILOT, seeing the NEW "ELECTRA" for the FIRST TIME, ASKED: "WHERE ARE ITS WINGS?" He was only JOKING -- But, the SHORT, STUBBY, WING-SPAN was UNUSUAL -- and He detected it. That, turned out to be one of the CAUSES of its WING FAILURE, the CRASH-REPORTS revealed. (VIBRATION modes)

To the SKILLED, EXPERIENCED eye -- of an Expert -- much can be detected -- that is, or may be wrong, in a Machine today, that is frowned upon? The BIG or 4 story HI-RISES in Tiers -- supported by THIN Columns -- JUST WAS NOT SAFE in EARTHQUAKE COUNTRY! I could see that, in L.A. in 1944-50. But, no one could speak out, or CRITICIZE, because of local

PRIME & Chamber-of-Commerce? a Hit under.

Of course, U.S. Educators, today are just beginning to suspect that MATH, SCIENCE, ENG-INEERING & TECHNOLOGY - in PUBLIC SCHOOLS - have not been receiving the attention and understanding, by School Administrators, needed for successful mastery by most STUDENTS?

The SUBJECT has been UNDERESTIMATED in its DIFFICULTY & TIME CONSUMPTION leg-ited, for 40 years, at least, I THINK.

⊗ Just SIMPLE FORMULAS in physics or Algebra, and GEOMETRY, - CAN, at times, be- come CONFUSING & incomprehensible - - if we misinterpret some one factor.

⊗ For example - - I have a text- Manual - put out during WAR II on "Materials Testing" & Safety in Design. The BIS CON-CEPT, then, was the "ENDURANCE LIMIT" and FAILURE due to FATIGUE, or REPEATED- STRESS - - a new CONCEPT in those days.

They PLOTTED CURVES of STRESS vs. CYCLES under stress, for a whole RANGE of VALUES - call "S-N" CURVES. (See P. 5)

6(5) 9-29-90Z

Now in the 1930 & 40s -- Engineers, were often NOTED for their LACK of MASTERY of GRAMMAR & THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE -- especially at the CHEAPER & LOWER-PRICED COLLEGES, WHO DID NOT SPEND MUCH TIME ON SUCH TRIFLES AS GRAMMAR, SPELLING, etc.

So, reviewing this Research Text on materials -- a brilliant work -- by world experts -- at a time when it was the PEAK of smc efforts -- I wasn't sure how to properly READ one of these "S-N" ENDURANCE LIFE CURVES?

Part of the problem was that "Log-Log" GRAPH paper was used for "N" -- and not always -- but, sometimes for "S", the stress. After a while, I concluded that THE TEST LAB would take dozens of SPECIMENS of the same, IDENTICAL SIZE -- and, test ONE to FAILURE AT A GIVEN STRESS, "S" -- and record the CYCLES "N" at FAILURE? And repeat this for VARIOUS STRESS VALUES for each SPECIMEN! THIS GAVE A CONTINUOUS FAILURE CURVE of STRESS vs. CYCLES!

(G) 9-29-908

So, rather than calling it an "S-N" FAILURE CURVE, someone named it an "ENDURANCE CURVE", and then "QUALIFIED" the conditions that may, or may not, bring about FAILURE.

Anyway -- the "mind set" of the Technicians, showed me how, in math, -- if we have a "fixed idea" about using a Formula --- we may be unable to handle the Formulas, if something "odd" occurs in the solution -- as, say, a CONSTANT, with NO UNITS; or, in using "RADIAN" measure where: $S = R\theta$ and $\theta = \frac{S}{R} = \frac{\text{IN}}{\text{IN}} = 1 = \text{NO UNITS}$ $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} S = \text{INCHES} \\ R = \text{INCHES} \\ \theta = \text{RADIAN} \end{array} \right.$ we can get confused in the UNITS TRAINING.

In APPLIED MECHANICS & STRENGTH OF MATERIALS, many AUTHORS use the "UNITARY" METHOD, where ONE, or MORE, DIMENSIONS are EQUAL to ONE, or the UNIT, "1". Another, case, is in the DEFINITION of WORK = $F \times S$ = LB-Ft.? In some FORMULAS: $E = \frac{\text{Stress}}{\text{Strain}} = \frac{P \cdot L}{A \cdot \Delta L}$; and $P = \frac{A \cdot E \cdot \Delta L}{L}$ LB. also, $\text{STRESS} \times \text{STRAIN} = \frac{\text{LB}}{\text{IN}^2} \cdot \frac{\text{IN}}{\text{IN}} = \frac{\text{WORK}}{\text{IN}^3} = \frac{\text{Wt.}}{\text{Vol.}}$ BEST REFR. 2011

Dear Andy:

Thank you for taking the time to ^{take up} call me to discuss the meeting between the President and President Zhelev of Bulgaria. I know it is a very hectic time for you.

I wanted to reiterate how important it is for the meeting to take place. As I mentioned to you, Zhelev is supporting the President's embargo which is costing the Bulgarian people a great deal of hardship during an already difficult phase in their transition to democracy. It is vitally important that we show the leadership and the people of Bulgaria that doing the right thing will be rewarded and recognized.

As you know, this is the first trip that Dr. Zhelev has taken since he became President. His meeting with the President would be his first with a head of state. This is the message that he wishes to send to the world and to the Socialists in Bulgaria - that his country's future is with the West, with democracy, and with a relationship with the United States. We began this process when the Republican Institute, with State Department's cooperation, worked with Dr. Zhelev before the national elections. The Institute brought him here; he met with the Vice President and Secretary Baker. Now, as the President of Bulgaria, he needs a brief meeting with our President.

Again, thank you for taking the time to discuss this and to look into the matter. As you know, there are quite a few people who are concerned about this issue, and your involvement will be appreciated.

I look forward to talking with you again, and to hearing from you that the meeting has been scheduled.

Sincerely yours,

Bruce Benson

This really means a lot to the Institute and the Republican Party - thanks

Dear Mike -

Massachusetts Primary Day is one week away. I couldn't help but think of the excitement we enjoyed eight years ago. I remain deeply indebted to you for all you did for me during that campaign.

This could be the year that Republicans have longed for in the Bay State. Polls show either one of our GOP contenders as viable in November.

My best to Terry. You're both friends for life.

Andy

Dear Andy,

Enclosed is the article that ran in this morning's Globe. It was listed on page one, under a large photo of Bill Weld and ran on page 44, in the middle of the special political section. When you, Ron and The President come to Massachusetts, I would be honored to meet with all of you if it is possible.

Since I am raising my three sons by myself, as I have for the past ten years, there is not a lot of money to attend fund raisers. I would however like to help on the campaign. If you or Ron Kaufman have something in mind, that I could do to help, just let me know.

Bush, other GOP leaders will target campaigns in Mass.

By Michael K. Frisby
GLOBE STAFF

WASHINGTON — National Republican leaders, sensing a possible end to the hold Democrats have had on Massachusetts, plan to target the state as a rallying point and flood the state with visits from President Bush and other influential party figures.

Andrew Card, the White House deputy chief of staff, indicated yesterday that Bush, who was born in Milton, is aware of the sudden shift in political winds that could blow the Democrats out of office.

"The president is enough of a politician to know that this is a political opportunity of a lifetime," said Card.

Yesterday, Bush added an Oct. 4 Boston stop to a campaign swing that will also take him to Connecticut and Vermont, Card said. He probably will make only one trip to Massachusetts, but Card said Cabinet members will also likely visit the state.

The emphasis placed on the state by national Republicans is expected to boost gubernatorial candidate William Weld and Senate hopeful James Rappaport, who both won convincing victories in the Republican primary.

In a preview of the attention Bush is placing on races in Massachusetts, Card said the president had telephoned Weld and Paul Cellucci, the Republican lieutenant governor candidate, as well as Rappaport on Tuesday night to congratulate them. Bush made the calls from his hotel room in Los Angeles, where he was making a campaign swing for the GOP.

According to Republican sources, Ron Kaufman, a White House political aide, visited with Weld and Cellucci Tuesday evening and is reportedly discussing ways the administration can assist the campaign. Card, Kaufman and Cellucci all played major roles in Bush's campaign in Massachusetts during the 1988 presidential campaign.

Michele Davis, executive director of the Republican Governors Association, said the Republican competitiveness in the state, particularly in Weld's contest against Democrat John Silber, will be used to generate interest in other states and as a fund-raising tool for the party.

"I think a lot of VIPs could come into the state," Davis said. "The dynamics of this race are such that it could be the upset of 1990 and it has created an awful lot of enthusiasm among the administration and people watching Massachusetts."

For Republicans, she said, the state has become a symbol.

"This was the state that was guaranteed to go Democrat," said Davis. "But it's clear that something was broken in Massachusetts and the people who broke it don't know how to fix it. It's time to give the other guys a try. I think that is an incredible, convincing argument that has credibility with voters."

Davis said the national party can only give $1,000 in cash to Weld's campaign, but that other technical assistance will be offered.

National Republicans are also focusing on Rappaport's race against Sen. John F. Kerry, a Democrat. Card, in discussing the contest, said that "Kerry should be afraid in this climate, where voters have demonstrated their frustration" toward incumbents.

Moreover, Wendy Burnley, director of communications for the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee, said Russell Schriefer, their regional political director, will be dispatched to Boston tomorrow to meet with Rappaport and his staff on what assistance they can offer.

Under federal law, the national party can donate up to $17,500 in cash to the campaign and offer $450,162 in coordinated assistance, which can include paying for advertising and other expenses.

Burnley called Rappaport "a viable contender" who can benefit from the voter unrest unleashed in Tuesday's contests.

Kerry, however, said he is ready to exploit Rappaport, saying the Republican candidate has not been truthful during the primary campaign. Kerry acknowledged that the voters are angry and frustrated, but he maintained they will be angry at Rappaport for not "making clear his tax returns as other candidates have done."

But Rep. Chester Atkins of Concord, the state Democratic Party chairman, conceded that the White House can help the Republican candidates.

"They can do an awful lot," said Atkins. "I'm sure they'll have Ron Kaufman with the same bag of tricks."

Stephen Kurkjian of the Globe staff contributed to this report.

Cambodian council holds first meeting

REUTERS

BANGKOK, Thailand - A national council representing Cambodia's Vietnamese-backed government and its guerrilla opponents held its first meeting yesterday to try to end the conflict that has bled their country for more than a decade.

The 12 council members and 40 aides, many of whom have been enemies since the 1960s, gathered in the afternoon with handshakes and smiles at the Cambodian Embassy.

The formation of the Supreme National Council, which is expected to exercise sovereignty while elections are arranged under UN auspices, was a vital step in a peace process that has been hampered by mutual hatred and suspicion.

More than 100 reporters and photographers recorded the unprecedented meeting of the communist Phnom Penh government, the communist Khmer Rouge, the Khmer People's National Liberation Front and Prince Norodom Sihanouk's faction.

At the end of the its three-hour meeting yesterday, the council did not report any progress toward ending 11 years of civil war in Cambodia.

But delegates told reporters that a second session of the council would take place this afternoon. The delegates were then driven off in a red bus to attend a reception at Government House.

"The fact that they met for a day is in itself remarkable," a Western diplomat said after the meeting. "It's history in the making."

The freshly painted Cambodian Embassy was filled with flowers and posters of the Angkor Wat temple complex.

The Cambodian Embassy, which had been abandoned since 1975, was quickly refurbished by the Thai army since the government and guerrilla opponents agreed on a UN peace plan in Jakarta, Indonesia, last week.

Yesterday's council meeting opened with the Phnom Penh prime minister Hun Sen sitting at one end of a long table and Son Sann, leader of the noncommunist Khmer People's National Liberation Front, sitting at the other end.

The Khmer Rouge, which was driven out of Phnom Penh in 1979 after a reign of terror in which more than a million Cambodians were killed, was represented at the meeting by Khieu Samphan and Son Sen, both of whom held important positions when their group came to power in 1975.

The delegates wore business suits and ties, except for the Phnom Penh defense minister, Tie Banh, who wore a military uniform.

auspices.

The council's 12 members, accompanied by about 40 aides, met for the first time yesterday at the Cambodian Embassy in Bangkok.
No progress was reported after three hours of talks, but delegates said that a second session would meet this afternoon.

Although Beijing provided key support for Hanoi during the Vietnam War, the two nations split over the issue of Cambodia, which Vietnam invaded in late 1978 to oust the Chinese-backed Khmer Rouge regime and install the current Phnom Penh government. China retaliated by attacking Vietnam in early 1979.
In recent years, the two nations have also clashed over the Spratly Islands in the South China Sea, which both claim.

Dear Ambassador Can,

The enclosed letter to Mr. Card at The White House outlines some of the benefits of the CO-Sponsored PEACE TALKS on Cambodia. I believe that the goals of both nations could be achieved in some respects if we embark on this course.

The PEACE TALKS could be just what it takes to get our two nations on course.

If our two nations do find the proper path to understanding and recognition, would I be acceptable as an ambassador to Viet Nam? I may not be a long standing State Department career man but I do know how to get our two nations to talk.

In frank and honest dialogue lies our future.

On the matter of Cambodia, I feel that only the most direct and rapid response on Viet Nam's part will show it's positive attitude and ability to deal quickly with urgent world matters. Thereby showing it's continuing leadership role in Southeast Asia.

Please feel free to write, call or FAX your answers or questions at any time.

Sincerely,
Your friend and partner in peace

Dear Ambassador Can,

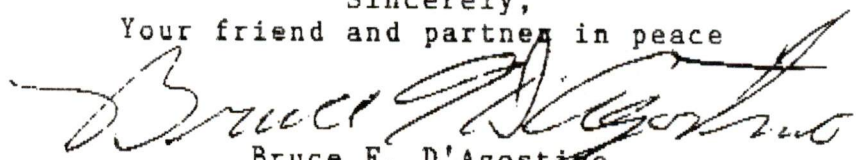

I wish to express my sincere gratitude for the show of support that you expressed in your June 29, 1990 letter. Your letter was forwarded to The White House and I have received a letter from Deputy Chief of Staff Andrew Card, acknowledging my letter and the copy of your letter. I will keep you informed of any progress on matters of mutual interest.

I wish to know if the government of Viet Nam would support an immediate meeting in Bangkok or other suitable location, sponsored by Humanitarian International, to try to avoid a BLOODBATH in Phnom Penh.

The meeting's goals would be to find a way to put in place a temporary CEASE FIRE and PEACE PLAN. The idea would be to have representatives of the major factions meet and come to an agreement for a TEMPORARY PEACE AGREEMENT. I know that this was attempted in Japan but the killing goes on and will worsen. If I can get a letter of support from your government, then I will ask the U.S. to Co-Sponsor the Peace talks. If you think that this is possible, write to me at once. I know that the U.S. is backing the opposition to Hun Sen's government but, this is a chance for both sides; Viet Nam and the U.S. to drop all the rhetoric and work together for the first time since our war. This could be the key to open the door for recognition and allow me to start our two nations on their way towards being PARTNERS IN PEACE.

Please do not delay, the situation in Cambodia is becoming very unstable, as you can see by the enclosed articles. The opportunity for me to put the U.S. and Viet Nam together has never been better. I ask that you do not let this opportunity slip away. It may be only a matter of days or weeks before it will be too late.

I think that you'll find the implementation of my PEACE TALKS as outlined and sent on July 18, 1990, very informative. I have not heard anything positive from the personnel office yet.

Cambodian council holds first meeting

REUTERS

BANGKOK, Thailand — A national council representing Cambodia's Vietnamese-backed government and its guerrilla opponents held its first meeting yesterday to try to end the conflict that has bled their country for more than a decade.

The 12 council members and 40 aides, many of whom have been enemies since the 1960s, gathered in the afternoon with handshakes and smiles at the Cambodian Embassy.

The formation of the Supreme National Council, which is expected to exercise sovereignty while elections are arranged under UN auspices, was a vital step in a peace process that has been hampered by mutual hatred and suspicion.

More than 100 reporters and photographers recorded the unprecedented meeting of the communist Phnom Penh government, the communist Khmer Rouge, the Khmer People's National Liberation Front

and Prince Norodom Sihanouk's faction.

At the end of the its three-hour meeting yesterday, the council did not report any progress toward ending 11 years of civil war in Cambodia.

But delegates told reporters that a second session of the council would take place this afternoon. The delegates were then driven off in a red bus to attend a reception at Government House.

"The fact that they met for a day is in itself remarkable," a Western diplomat said after the meeting. "It's history in the making."

The freshly painted Cambodian Embassy was filled with flowers and posters of the Angkor Wat temple complex.

The Cambodian Embassy, which had been abandoned since 1975, was quickly refurbished by the Thai army since the government and guerrilla opponents agreed on a UN peace plan in Jakarta, Indonesia, last week.

Phnom Penh's prime minister, Hun Sen (right), meets with other members of Cambodia's Supreme National Council yesterday.

Yesterday's council meeting opened with the Phnom Penh prime minister Hun Sen sitting at one end of a long table and Son Sann, leader of the noncommunist Khmer People's National Liberation Front, sitting at the other end.

The Khmer Rouge, which was driven out of Phnom Penh in 1979 after a reign of terror in which more than a million Cambodians were killed, was represented at the meeting by Khieu Samphan and Son Sen, both of whom held important positions when their group came to power in 1975.

The delegates wore business suits and ties, except for the Phnom Penh defense minister, Tie Banh, who wore a military uniform.

Beijing, Hanoi leaders hold secret meetings

LOS ANGELES TIMES

BEIJING — China and Vietnam, which fought a brief border war in 1979, appear to have taken a major step toward reconciliation, with a secret meeting between leaders of the two nations this month.

Nguyen Van Linh, the Vietnamese Communist Party chief, Prime Minister Do Muoi and former Prime Minister Pham Van Dong met in China with Chinese Prime Minister Li Peng, and apparently also with the Chinese Communist Party general secretary, Jiang Zemin, diplomats in Beijing and Bangkok told reporters yesterday.

One result of the changing Chinese-Vietnamese relationship was the rival Cambodian factions' acceptance last week of a United Nations Security Council plan for ending the fighting in their nation. Beijing and Hanoi have backed opposing sides in Cambodia for more than a decade.

The UN-sponsored pact encompasses formation of a Supreme National Council, representing Cambodia's Vietnam-backed government and its guerrilla opponents, to exercise Cambodian sovereignty while elections are arranged under UN auspices.

The council's 12 members, accompanied by about 40 aides, met for the first time yesterday at the Cambodian Embassy in Bangkok. No progress was reported after three hours of talks, but delegates said that a second session would meet this afternoon.

OFFICE OF NATIONAL DRUG CONTROL POLICY
EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
Washington, D.C. 20500

August 23, 1990

Dear Andy:

Thanks for your August 6th note on strategy for the drug issue. As I am sure you know, I met with Ed Rogers and others to discuss planning options for the fall. The enclosed memo provides information requested at that meeting. It summarizes the case we can make and lists the activities we have in preparation for the weeks ahead.

In light of my meeting with Ed and the world situation, we have presented a schedule of activities that can accommodate as much participation by the President as you judge appropriate. For example, the September 5th update -- now to be presented by Bill in room 450 -- could begin with brief remarks by the President, if you desire. We will, of course, send you materials prepared for all these events in advance.

Please let me know if I can be of further help.

Sincerely,

John Walters

CHRISS WINSTON
DEPUTY ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR COMMUNICATIONS AND DIRECTOR OF SPEECHWRITING

FROM: JOHN P. WALTERS
CHIEF OF STAFF AND NATIONAL SECURITY ADVISOR

SUBJECT: DRUG CONTROL POLICY IN THE COMING MONTHS

As promised during our meeting, I am forwarding a revised schedule of drug-related events and some thoughts on how the drug issue can be handled in the coming months.

We can expect media attention on the one-year anniversary of the President's September 5, 1989, address to the Nation on drugs. Of course, the extent of this coverage will depend on the world situation. Nonetheless, there are a series of activities planned by our office and others, that will help make the case for Administration policy. The President could participate in most of these activities as deemed appropriate and a decision to do so could be made on short notice.

The Message. America is winning the battle against illegal drugs. The President's Strategy is working. We must continue the fight and apply the effort called for in the President's Strategy in order to get the job done.

Our Progress. When the President took office, many commentaries called the drug problem hopeless, but the president dedicated himself to ending this scourge from the moment he took office. Now the President's pledge is being fulfilled.

1. Drug use, the demand for illegal drugs, is down. The central goal of the President's drug control strategy, reducing drug use, is being achieved among almost all categories of users:

The number of occasional drug users is declining, as measured by both government and private sector surveys.

Drug use by high school seniors continues to decline.

Emergency room admissions for drug overdoses and medical examiner reports on deaths related to drug use are declining, indicating that drug use by heavy users is also declining.

2. The supply of cocaine, the most dangerous drug threat, is down. The wholesale price for cocaine in major metropolitan areas has almost doubled and the wholesale purity has substantially declined.

The Administration has joined with the Andean nations to attack cocaine trafficking at the source.

Seizures of illegal drugs are up and the Administration has vastly expanded interdiction efforts with the addition of resources from the Department of Defense.

Attacks on drug trafficking organizations in the U.S. have expanded, attacks on traffickers' money have increased, and attacks on their sources of precursor and essential chemicals have escalated.

3. The Administration has brought unprecedented leadership and resources to fighting the drug problem.

The President's Drug Control Strategy has brought together the efforts of Federal, State and local governments, and those of the private sector, schools, communities and volunteers, into the first truly national strategy.

The $10.6 billion requested for FY 91 marks the largest growth in any major Federal program, as 69 percent increase since President Bush took office:

o Law Enforcement	-- up 60 percent
o Treatment	-- up 68 percent
o Education/Prevention	-- up 83 percent
o International Programs	-- up 127 percent
o Research	-- up 66 percent
o Drug Intelligence	-- up 225 percent

- o Requested over $2.6 billion for State and local drug grant programs for FY 91, a $1.4 billion, 109 percent, increase over the FY 89 level. Most of this is for "demand-side" programs.

Coming Events. In the coming weeks we anticipate the following drug control activities (those where Presidential participation could be planned are indicated by an ""):

Week of August 27	Release of (further encouraging) First Quarter 1990 hospital emergency room data from the Drug Abuse Warning Network (HHS/NIDA).
August 28	Director Bennett visits marijuana eradication site in Kentucky's Boone National Forest.
September 4	Release of new survey data by the Partnership for a Drug-Free America (Jim Burke).
Week before September 5	Advance background meetings, phone calls, and mail contact with major beat reporters, columnists, and editorial writers. (September 5 is the one-year anniversary of President Bush's television address.) Embargoed copies of ONDCP's "Leading Drug Indicators" white paper will be made available.
*September 5	Anniversary of President Bush's television address. Speech and press conference for Director Bennett. Release of ONDCP's "Leading Drug Indicators" white paper.
September 6 (Tentative)	Senator Biden has a pending request for a hearing on the status of the drug war.
*September 10 (Tentative)	Bill Moss, Presidential Drug Advisory Council, announces plans for a National Forum meeting of city anti-drug coalitions.

*September 11 (Tentative)	Formal announcement of Administration plans to implement section 5301 of the 1988 Drug Bill (denial of Federal benefits to convicted drug offenders). Participation by the Attorney General, HHS Secretary, and other affected department and agency heads.
September 12-17 (Tentative)	Release of opinion and attitude survey on drugs by national polling organizations (encouraged by Jim Burke).
September 15-30 (Tentative)	Announcement of over $40 million in Community Prevention Grants by HHS.
*September 18	Release of ONDCP's "State Anti-Drug Legislation" white paper, or "wall chart."
*Early October to (Tentative)	Release of ONDCP "Federal Anti-Drug Aid State and Local Governments" white paper (on the DFSC, ADMS, and BJA block grant programs).
*October 4, 9, 16 (am), 25, or 26 (Tentative)	Meeting of major CEOs on workplace programs (Jim Burke).
*October (Tentative)	Release of results from the 1990 National Household Survey (HHS).
*November 9-10	National Forum meeting (Bill Moss), Washington, D.C.

Jim Burke's proposal for an October meeting with CEO's on workplace programs awaits a scheduling decision for the President. This is the only event in the above list that requires such a commitment and Jim needs about a month lead time to schedule the senior participants that would be invited.

I would be happy to discuss these proposals or others with you at any time.
