Dear Andy:

The President's photograph inscribed to Benson Chou arrived in fine fashion. To say Benson was overwhelmed would not be far off base. He was most appreciative and is in search of a high grade gold frame.

You helped make him a better Republican.

We are in an uphill battle to elect Senator Pete Wilson as California's Governor. We will fight on - need a 26 hour day.

Andy, my resume has been with Chase for sometime and we have discussed that I might be of some help to the President.

Not that you have spare time, but an assist from you and the Governor would be helpful. I am not a man of many talents, but I have background in media, aviation, space and government, plus military experience. Not that I need a job, but I would like to make sure we have President Bush for another four years. Any commission of action type assignment you might find for me would be appreciated. We have to stay with a winner.

I thank you for your support and cooperation. My regards to the Governor and warm regards to both of you for good health and some fun at work. I appreciate you being there.

Most sincerely,

Dear Mr. Card:

I hope you enjoyed the newspaper articles regarding the SSA's decision of August 28, 1990 in the case of the State of Minnesota/University of Minnesota's social security tax violations dating back to 1958.

In this regard your assistance was very appreciated for until your response the SSA's progress in reaching its decision wasn't apparent to me. In many ways your response and interest as illustrated by your letter in April, 1990 was the first sign that the SSA would insure a lawful and equitable decision in the matter under question.

In this sense your lone response was similar to another response I received on February 14, 1990 from a Republican state representative from Minnesota. Out of the 100 state legislators whom I sent a series of three letters to in February, 1990, about the SSA/IRS matter, only this one responded with action. Representative Dennis Poppenhagen (R), a person I had never met, sent me a copy of his letter to the president of the university inquiring as to the veracity of my claim (copy of his letter enclosed).

He subsequently received a response from the university president (copy enclosed) which illustrated to me that this administrator wasn't enjoying such a specific inquiry.

Through this exchange of correspondence and in several meetings with Representative Poppenhagen, I learned that he is a person of unique integrity, honesty, intellect and unflinching Christian values. He is also a person who will ask those difficult and unpopular questions in carrying out his responsibilities as an elected official. And as you may recall when you were a Massachusetts state representative, being a member of the Republican party in a state dominated by the Democratic party (like Minnesota) is more than a difficult task.

Mr. Poppenhagen is seeking re-election this fall. However, his predilection for taking honest and uncompromising positions has apparently made him one of the top targeted state Republican representatives for defeat by the DFL party this fall. And although I am not a constituent of his, his inquiries to the state government and/or university on my behalf in the matter of the SSA have apparently caused him additional re-election opposition.

I have no doubt that Representative Poppenhagen can represent himself as ~~his~~ has so done in the past. However, I am indebted to him for his unique and honest inquiries in his official capacity. Accordingly, I respectfully ask that he be given the appropriate recognition and morale support by President Bush and this administration if and when the President visits Minnesota this month.

In a similar manner as yourself, Representative Poppenhagen invested the effort and time in a subject that was on the surface simply incredible. However, I will always remember and greatly appreciate persons such as yourself and Representative Poppenhagen who listened to me when I was literally a proverbial voice in the wild.

Thank you in advance for any assistance in the above, and as always,

Very Respectfully,

Dear Andy Card:

Re: LT COL JOHN J. HIGGINS III
Melrose, Massachusetts

Jack Higgins has had a long, distinguished career in the Massachusetts Army National Guard with a consistent "Outstanding" Effectiveness rating. Because of Pentagon cuts in the MASSARNG he was transferred to Inactive Status a few months ago and now wishes to transfer into Active Status with the Army's Reserve Selective Service System in which he has more than 5 years experience (out of his total of more than 27 years Guard System.)

Jack was of great help to me when I served as Mass. Co-Chairman of Democrats for Bush in 1988. He was Bush Coordinator for Democrats in Medford, Malden, Melrose, Saugus, Lynnfield and did a great job in that region. He's so popular up there, in fact, that we all wonder why he doesn't run for office, himself.

The enclosure provides all relevant information and I should be deeply grateful for whatever interest you may be able to take in this most deserving case.

The President has handled the Iraqui crisis brilliantly in the opinion of all those I have talked with - and as a garrulous retiree I talk with multitudes. With kindest personal regards,

Cordially,

Dear Andy:

This letter I hope will serve many purposes.

First, to tell you how excited I am that the Republican Party is making great inroads in Massachusetts. Hopefully this will be "our year".

I would like to invite you and your lovely wife Kathi to be our guests on Saturday evening, November 17 at the Red and White Ball. This might very well be the year that you may be able to make it, and we would truly be delighted to have you both present.

I am enclosing some information on Kathy & Jim Daley whom we are honoring this year as our Man and Woman of the Year -- two very loyal and devoted people, who since they became involved in our organization have extended themselves to many parents of retarded children.

Here's hoping that the next few weeks are successful and we can all rejoice on Tuesday, November 6. Best personal regards.

Dear Friend,

I am writing to you in my capacity as a Dinner Committee member for this year's Red and White Ball of the Greater Boston Association for Retarded Citizens. Each year at the Ball, GBARC honors as its man or woman of the year an individual who has made contributions of lasting civic, philanthropic, and social value to our community.

In that tradition, GBARC will honor as this year's "Man and Woman of the Year" Kathy and Jim Daley. Boston knows the Daley's as owners of the Copley Plaza Hotel, the Tremont House, and the Back Bay Hilton, and GBARC knows the Daley's as benefactors of the generous "Residentiality" program, in which parents of children with disabilities are provided with a weekend of rest, away from the rigors of dealing with the stress their situation demands.

I am asking you to participate in this gala event on Saturday Evening, November 17th, at the Sheraton Boston Hotel, and in so doing, help GBARC help those retarded citizens who cannot help themselves. Plans are being made to make this an outstanding evening, one in which I know you would want to share. Channel 5's Frank Avruch will be the master of ceremonies that evening and Buddy Greco will entertain.

Please help insure the success of the 1990 Red and White Ball by your attendance at $125 per ticket or $1250 per table, or becoming a Donor for $250, a Sponsor for $500, or a Patron for $1000. By so doing, you will help enhance the quality of life for so many of our retarded citizens.

Best personal regards,

Sincerely,

Dinner Committee

Dear Andy:

The summer of 1990 brought the Goodwill Games, the largest joint US/USSR event ever, to Seattle and the State of Washington. It was a great event, with more than 2,300 athletes competing, three world records set, and scores of individual best performances. The Games attracted tens of thousands of visitors from outside the United States. Twenty-eight Soviet charter planes, more than the total chartered activity for 1989, brought almost 4,000 Soviet citizens to the States. Of these visitors, 1,300 Soviets stayed in the homes of Seattle-area families, constituting the largest homestay program ever to occur between these two countries.

The cultural, literary, and artistic program, featuring historic, traditional, and modern works, has been hailed as one of the best and most comprehensive of its kind. From the Seattle Opera's production of "War and Peace" to the Henry Art Gallery's vanguard exhibit, "Art Into Life: Russian Constructivism," the Goodwill Arts Festival culminated in an unforgettable international celebration of the arts. The trade component, developed by a local firm, built on the new friendships and learning experiences by offering unique opportunities and incentives for encouraging international trade agreements. The conferences held in conjunction with the Games brought professionals and academics from the Soviet Union together with their American counterparts for discussion in an atmosphere of openness and celebration. All of the exchanges and accomplishments that made up the Games have left a lasting legacy, not only for the Pacific Rim, but also for the athletes, arts community, business, and the citizens of both countries.

Needless to say, putting together an event of this magnitude and scope is a major feat, made possible only through the efforts of thousands of people. Your help on the federal side was a big contribution to the event, one which all of us appreciate immensely. Sincere thanks for your support and for the role you played in making the 1990 Summer Goodwill Games one of the great success stories of our lifetime.

Sincerely,

David U. Gogol

I'm writing to nominate Don Luis A. Ferré as a recipient of the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Carlos Chardón and I have been discussing this for some time. Don Luis, as you well know, has dedicated his life to public service, has been a fighter for everything that stands for democracy and freedom, has worked and toiled continuously to direct Puerto Rico towards statehood, which we believe is the peak of any freedom quest.

As we come closer to the realization of the status plebiscite for which we owe you a great deal, while at same time Don Luis grows in years, we felt this becomes an ideal juncture to bestow this recognition on such a distinguished American.

I don't have to expand on Don Luis' contributions. You know them well or better, but I would like to request some guidance, counsel and help in this endeavor.

With best regards,

RF/mcv

Dear Andy:

I trust this letter will be well received: It concerns my thoughts re the governor's race in Mass. Pass it along to Mr. Weld if you feel it is appropriate to do so.

I am assuming that there will be at least ~~w~~ two debates. During the second debate, I think weld should say to silber: "You know, I've heard a lot about your style and thinking from faculty at BU, and I've observed you during the past 9 months make some really troubling statements, and frankly, Dr. Silber, I think you're crazy." "You're an autocrat; you don't tollerate dissent -- you trouble me and I don't think you're well."

Additionally it is my feeling that Weld should be in straight collared shirts,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Card:

In July of this year the FDIC advertised openings in that agency in the Boston Globe for applicants to fill the position of OWNED REAL ESTATE SPECIALIST (ORE). I immediately sent in the proper form for their consideration.

This week I received a form stating that all positions have been filled.

In view of my comprehensive experience over many years in all phases of the real estate business - part of which was with the Federal Government doing the same work - I am inclined to believe that I may have been discriminated against because of my age. Surely my heavy experience would more than qualify for the requirements of the position.

I did not mention on my SF-171 that I had been a member of the Salem Republican City Committee or a candidate for State Representative from this district or that I had been affiliated with the Republican State Committee as a co-ordinator here in Essex County so the rejection could not have been for that reason.

I am interested in learning why this decision was made, or, perhaps, if there are any openings for a seasoned, experienced real estate veteran.

I am enclosing a copy of the letter I mentioned and a copy of the SF-171.

Thank you in advance, for any consideration that you may be able to extend- I am

Sincerely,

John Goodwin

When applicants financed privately it was necessary to deal with local banks and be familiar with their procedures.

Dear Andy:

Here is a copy of the article Gary and I submitted to both the Boston Globe and the Boston Herald in response to Bill Weld's TV add campaign. So much for that effort.

Behind the Weld victory there is a "Silber lining." For the people of Massachusetts, I pray that in November it breaks through the dark cloud looming on the horizon.

Give me a call if you ever have a free lunch. In the meantime, keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

Weld's Meese Myth

Wm. Bradford Reynolds
Gary L. McDowell*

There has been a strange new twist in the campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in recent days. The question of the integrity of one of the candidates, William Weld, has been raised -- but by Weld himself, not by his opponent Steven Pierce. At issue is his recent campaign advertisement in which he seeks to bolster his image by attacking -- not Pierce -- but his former boss, Attorney General Edwin Meese III.

By this time, no one could have missed it. The announcer intones with gravity how Bill Weld resigned from the Meese Justice Department. As a Boston Globe headline is flashed across the screen, it is announced that the result was that Ed Meese "quit". Nothing could be farther from the truth.

Just as a matter of record, Weld resigned in April 1988; Attorney General Meese resigned in August of that year, only after the report of the Independent Counsel had exonerated him of any wrongdoing in the Wedtech affair. Hardly the kind of proximity one expects to see in matters of cause and effect. But that is only half the story. How Bill Weld chose to go is also worthy of remembrance: it tells more about his character than

* Wm. Bradford Reynolds is a lawyer in private practice in Washington, D.C.. From 1981-88 he was Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights at the United States Department of Justice; from 1987-88 he also served as Counsellor to Attorney General Meese.

Gary L. McDowell is currently a visiting scholar at Harvard Law School. From 1985-87 he served as Associate Director of Public Affairs at the United States Department of Justice and was chief speech writer to Attorney General Meese.

The fact is that this alleged "act of conscience" (as the recent Weld campaign ad portrays it) was carried out in the most clandestine way imaginable. It had more the trappings of the intrigues and cabals of a medieval court than the high principles of republican government. Weld, along with then-Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns, secretly went to the White House with the hope of persuading then-Chief of Staff Howard Baker to get the President to sack his long time friend and loyal colleague Meese. When it became clear this was out of the question, Burns and Weld quit in a flurry of media attention -- none of which was discouraged by Weld.

The immediate result? The Justice Department went about its business. Weld's position as Assistant Attorney General for the Criminal Division, was taken over and administered with great skill by a career civil servant, Jack Keeney. Nary an administrative beat was missed. As indicated, all this occurred in April -- four full months before the Attorney General decided to return to private life.

Long before Bill Weld left the Justice Department, the allegations concerning the Attorney General had taken on a life of their own. The sad dynamic between partisan politics and the press had assured as much. If Ronald Reagan was the Teflon President, Edwin Meese had become his Velcro aide; what his opponents couldn't do directly to Reagan they did indirectly through Meese. Any disloyal aide with political aspirations of his own would know an opportunity when he saw one. Bill Weld did.

Bill Weld's attempted assassination of Ed Meese was hardly the stuff of high principle and personal integrity: it was a matter of crass self-interest, pure and simple. With Meese's removal, Weld saw the opportunity for his promotion to Associate Attorney General (or, perhaps, even to Deputy), a promotion that was not to be under Meese. When Baker and Reagan thwarted that plan, the only recourse was to resign as loudly and as provocatively as possible in an effort to turn duplicity, always a private vice, into a public virtue.

But the assassination attempt failed; Ed Meese lived; and the President stood by him, knowing his confidence was not misplaced. In time, the meticulous combing of the Attorney General's affairs turned up nothing. Only when the final report was issued -- and only then -- did Attorney General Meese step down. By that time Bill Weld was little more than a vague memory in Washington.

James Madison once observed in The Federalist that there is always a danger in republics of "those who would practice with success the vicious arts by which elections are too often carried." Surely dishonesty and misrepresentation count among those "vicious arts". And anyone who engages in them raises very serious doubts that they are fitted to serve in the highest office in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANDY CARD

FROM: LEE L. VERSTANDIG lee

SUBJECT: EC-Procymidone Update

As a follow-up to our telephone conversation last week, I thought you might be interested in the attached letter from the EC Agricultural Minister to Bill Reilly.

EC Minister MacSharry today delivered the attached letter to EPA Administrator Reilly. This letter is in response to the visit last week in Brussels of the EPA Assistant Administrator for Pesticides where EPA actions regarding wines treated with procymidone were outlined. Also, a copy of this letter is being delivered today to Carla Hills by the EC Vice President. He also plans to raise this issue with her.

As you can see, MacSharry is most disappointed with the EPA action, and perplexed by the lack of cooperation and the fact that no short-term remedy was found by EPA, despite the fact that EPA has determined that the fungicide is "safe".

Additionally, I thought you might be interested in the recent press articles since the EPA action which reflect anger, frustration and calls for some form of retaliatory trade actions. Also, please note the unofficial translated letter from the European Wine Shippers Association to Minister MacSharry.

I had hoped to meet with you briefly following our conversation to share these growing concerns and possible options for short term relief since I understand that the White House Policy Office now has this matter under review. Do let me know if I can be of any further assistance since clearly this issue is escalating.

Dear Mr. Card:

I am writing to you to express an interest in obtaining employment as a research or legislative assistant on your staff.

I am aware that I am presently an unknown commodity to you. I believe, however, that my background reveals several characteristics which could be of great value to the President.

At present, I am Office Manager for the Whitman for U.S. Senate campaign. In this position, I am gaining experience in media relations, assisting the finance department, and writing and researching position papers on both foreign and domestic policy. My ability to work with others is a necessary skill which is assuredly needed in becoming an effective research or legislative assistant.

Undoubtedly, many bright and capable applicants wish to join your staff. I hope, however, that you will consider the overall strength of my application, including the fact that I am willing to relocate to Washington after residing in New Jersey for my entire life.

Thank you for your time and consideration. I would be extremely interested in discussing my qualifications further over the course of an interview. Please feel free to contact me at (201) 722-5156 if you have any additional questions.

I look forward to hearing from you shortly.

Dear Andy:

Because of your interest in District 2 Marine Engineers, I thought you might like to see the enclosed clipping which reports on some of the testimony Jerry Joseph presented Sept. 18 to the House Merchant Marine Subcommittee. He outlined a proposal for rebuilding the merchant marine that relies on private enterprise rather than a program that features subsidies.

I hope to be able to offer a full presentation of District 2's well-thought-out program to you and other interested officials of the administration in about a month. In the meantime, feel free to get in touch if I can be of assistance on this or any other matter.

House Votes Funds For Fast Sealift

By WILLIAM DIBENEDETTO

Journal of Commerce Staff

WASHINGTON — The House of Representatives Wednesday voted to use funds from the Star Wars missile defense program to buy additional fast sealift vessels for the Navy's cargo supply mission.

The House overwhelmingly approved a new equipment amendment vote as it finished work on a $283 billion fiscal year 1991 defense authorization bill that slashes President Bush's total defense budget request by $24 billion and the Star Wars program by over $2 billion.

"We do not yet know the full lessons learned from the Operation Desert Shield deployment," House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin, D-Wis., said.

What is known is that "in particular, sealift is very important," Rep. Aspin said.

Rep. Aspin introduced the amendment that includes $187 million for chemical warfare protection equipment and facilities, $250 million for up to three more fast sealift ships, $36 million for C-141 cargo planes and $290 million for minesweeping ships.

The new sealift vessels would complement the eight aging fast sealift ships already in operation, some of which have suffered mechanical breakdowns. Those vessels were formerly owned by Sea-Land Service Inc.

The money would increase the fast sealift program level to $625 million for about six ships. Congressional and industry sources had speculated that Congress might add as much as $600 million to the program.

In related action on Capitol Hill this week, maritime labor union officials pecked at the government's sealift fleet policies and pushed for a reserve cargo fleet chartered and operated by private commercial maritime companies.

Jerome E. Joseph, executive vice president, District 2 Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, said in prepared testimony for a House maritime subcommittee:

"Nobody should create a scenario where U.S. sealift capability depends upon others, no matter who the others are."

Regardless of the 96-vessel Ready Reserve Force inventory, he continued, the Navy "must get its requirements from other sources because of the inherent faults of the program."

Members of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee's Merchant Marine Subcommittee also took shots at reserve fleet policies during the panel's review Tuesday of sealift requirements.

Rep. Helen Delich Bentley, R-Md., called for an independent review of sealift policies by the General Accounting Office, a congressional investigating agency.

Mr. Joseph's proposal for an active ready reserve fleet chartered to commercial operators could have "better results than subsidies" because it would "replace a costly (reserve fleet) maintenance program . . . with a revenue-producing activity," save lay-up and activation costs and quickly "expand sealift capacity at the outset of any emergency," he said.

Vice Admiral Paul D. Butcher, deputy commander in chief of the U.S. Transportation Command, said the performance of the 40 vessels activated from the RRF "is a noteworthy accomplishment" and "proof that the RRF concept is sound."

Karl M. Landgrebe, vice chairman, licensed division, District No. 1-MEBA/National Maritime Union, said in prepared testimony that current reliance on reserve cargo vessels for sealift is flawed.

Those vessels "do not always work when they're broken out," and "if you destroy the commercial merchant marine base, or allow it to wither, professionals will leave the profession as they have done in droves."

Mr. Landgrebe said if more fast sealift vessels are purchased, then they should operate as part of the commercial fleet "and not gather rust at anchor."

The White House Office

Dear Andy:

We very much appreciate the time you spent last week with the Officers of the National Association of Counties. We thought it was an excellent meeting. Despite your many responsibilities and hectic schedule, we are pleased and encouraged by your continuing interest in domestic issues affecting counties.

Again, we want to commend you, Governor Sununu and President Bush for appointing an outstanding intergovernmental affairs staff in the White House. Under the leadership of Debra Anderson, it is proving to be a superb team. We particularly are blessed by having Bill Canary and Lynn Lawson as the liaison for county governments.

Although we discussed a number of issues during our meeting, I would like to restate our concerns on a few major items.

While budget negotiations are continuing and nothing is finally decided, NACo is adamant in its opposition to limiting or changing the federal deduction for state and local taxes. We hope that any final agreement will not include deductibility and that other taxes can be raised to produce necessary revenues.

Our meeting with EPA Administrator Bill Reilly and his staff slightly reassured us that EPA may be drafting more reasonable regulations on mandating 25 percent recycling of solid waste for incinerators and large landfills. There still are questions about matching the new requirements to the availability of markets for recyclable materials and the schedule for implementation. Despite our meeting with Administrator Reilly, we believe the input of counties and cities is inadequate. We would appreciate continuing support from the White House in making sure that elected local officials are consulted.

The Honorable Andrew Card
September 19, 1990

We applaud the Administration for supporting the reauthorization and restoration of the National Health Services Corps. This program is particularly critical to our rural counties. The other health care issue we discussed is tightening requirements for non-profit hospitals to provide care for the indigent. We are proposing legislation that would condition non-profit status on the amount of indigent care provided. We also discussed this issue with HHS Secretary Sullivan. We would hope that the Administration could support this legislation.

Finally, we have concerns about the child care legislation pending in a House-Senate conference committee. We would like to work closer with the Administration in shaping a bill that can be signed by the President. We also urge the Administration to include some funding for this initiative in the 1991 budget agreement.

Andy, on behalf of all of the NACo Officers, we appreciate the opportunity to meet with you and discuss these important issues. We look forward to working with you and your very able staff.

1987-88 NORRIS DIVISION CHAMPIONS

September 27, 1990

The Honorable George H. Bush
President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20016

My Dear Mr. President:

As owner of the Detroit Red Wings ice hockey team, I am pleased to be able to contribute to the fabric of American culture, by providing an opportunity for the Detroit metropolitan area to develop a sense of community and team spirit through professional athletics. I see athletic teams as a major asset in our United States, enjoyed by Americans nationwide and a source of pride for our cities.

I am writing to request the assistance of the White House with the U.S. immigration matters of Mr. Robert Probert, one of the National Hockey League's All Star players and a professional athlete in Detroit actively participating in community service.

Robert Probert, a young man from Windsor, Ontario, has been playing for the Red Wings for the past several years. Unfortunately, Mr. Probert grew up in a family environment where his father and brother were alcoholics and he too developed a substance abuse problem. Last year, Mr. Probert was convicted in the United States of possessing a small amount of cocaine for his personal use. This was a serious crime, not only from society's view of making a concerted effort on our "war on drugs" but also from Mr. Probert's perspective. His arrest and conviction jolted him out of his complacency regarding his substance abuse problem.

He admitted his guilt in federal court and has paid his debt to society by serving three months in a federal detention center and complying with ongoing probation. Subsequent to Mr. Probert's release from the federal detention center, he has voluntarily worked speaking to community groups, schools, and on radio and television in Detroit about the evils of drug abuse. For the past eighteen months since his arrest, Mr. Probert has been absolutely alcohol and drug free.

Our immigration laws are very strict in providing detention and deportation from the United States for persons convicted of narcotics offenses. Presently, the Immigration and Naturalization Service is moving to deport Mr. Probert from the country. Based on the fact that Mr. Probert has enjoyed a dramatic rehabilitation, will likely suffer dire psychological consequences if his professional hockey career is terminated, and is receiving very special treatment for his substance abuse problem here in the United States, we have tried to resolve this rather difficult matter with senior officials of the Immigration and Naturalization Service in a way that would allow Mr. Probert to remain in the United States.

Mr. Probert has been receiving the best medical attention America has to offer for his substance abuse problem, directed by a psychiatrist, formerly an investigator at the National Institutes of Health, who has filed for a method patent for the unique treatment prescribed. This particular treatment plan is not readily available elsewhere, but may provide a model for treatment that will effectively address and cure the problems of substance abusers.

We feel that the unique equities in his case qualify Mr. Probert for a grant of humanitarian parole by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service. Such parole status would permit Mr. Probert to continue his treatment, his community service, and his support network with the Red Wings. In addition, Mr. Probert's doctors have made it clear that without his professional athletic endeavors, Mr. Probert's medical stability will be greatly and directly impacted since his professional hockey playing provides a source of well being and accomplishment that he cannot nurture in other employment available to him. For all of these reasons, Mr. Probert's request for humanitarian parole is presently being considered by the Central Office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

We wonder whether appropriate White House staff might be available to encourage the Immigration and Naturalization Service to in fact grant Mr. Probert's request for humanitarian parole. On behalf of Robert Probert, the Red Wings organization, and the Detroit community, we thank you for any attention you or your staff can give to this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Thank you for your recent letter to the White House regarding Special Assistant to the President Doug Wead.

Over the years Doug has been a valuable member of the President's team and has served him faithfully. For several months, however, Doug has been discussing with a variety of people, and specifically with me, his decision to leave his White House position to pursue other avenues. During that period of time, several options were presented to Doug and discussed.

A short time ago, a mutual decision was made that Doug would end his tenure here as of September 1. Both Doug and others here recognize that there have been rumors and innuendos regarding his decision to leave. None of these have any basis in truth.

The White House

Dear Andy:

Thanks for taking the time to meet with Fred. He brings to you our concern about proposed changes to D.O.T. drug testing regulations.

DOT has felt considerable pressure to make changes in the erroneous belief that these changes would save time and money. What was missed by the proposers was the strong effect that market place forces would have and have had to accomplish the same goals. What was also missed were the adverse effects that the proposed changes would have on the testing program. These changes involve interpretation of both false positive and false negative results.

Initially medical review of drug test results was seen as protection for workers who were not users of illicit drugs. The medical review officer (MRO) was created to spare these people the embarrassment or worse that could result if faulty procedures or legitimate prescription drugs resulted in a report to their employer of illicit drug use. The proposed rule would significantly erode this protection.

More recently we have become aware that large numbers of people have learned to cover their drug use by dilution, adulteration, or substitution of specimens. We do not want them these cheaters to beat the system but must be careful that we do not in our zeal to catch them damage the innocent. Coffee and high blood pressure medication are among the things that can cause dilution. Skilled and impartial medical judgement is required for interpretation of results these results. If the rule is allowed to pass that judgement will be lost.

Polls tell us that the American people support workplace testing. They also tell us that their support is based on the belief that adequate safeguards against false accusation have been built into the system. Now is not the time to allow DOT to erode the safeguards so carefully placed in the system by HHS.

I do appreciate your willingness to become involved and would encourage you to do what you can to prevent passage of the changes proposed in the NPRM which are both unnecessary and dangerous.

Sincerely,

Donald Ian Macdonald, M.D.

You may recall, I wrote to you a few weeks ago mentioning my up-coming trip to Russia. As I write this letter, we are flying over Newfoundland on our return trip from Moscow to New York. Visiting Russia was an extraordinary experience for me, as I am sure it was for you.

My visit was planned by a joint venture group called the Boston/Moscow Joint Venture. The group is composed of Henry Quinlan, Bob Fitzgerald and me from Boston, and Dmitri Evdokimov and Oleg Benyukh from Moscow.

I was asked to visit Moscow, and explore the possibility of building a clinic for the benefit of Americans and Western Europeans who might require medical treatment. The Russian hospital system is 40 years behind ours. I will keep you posted on my progress.

We attended a meeting with a Russian group called the Protek Company, headed by a man called Mikhail Bajanov, its president. It is a very large company with 300 enterprises and 350,000 employees. The Protek people want to do a number of joint ventures with our group and U.S. companies with which we have contacts. They would like to establish plants both in our country and in Russia for the manufacture and assembly of consumer products.

Dear Andy:

Linda and I enjoyed meeting you and your wife last Saturday evening at the Anniversary Party for the Boston Police Patrolmens' Association. I find it quite refreshing that you still maintain such a strong love for the Boston area. I am confident the repairs at your house were completed without too much difficulty.

In closing, as an American citizen I am proud of the path that President Bush and you have followed in the Middle East. My wishes for your continued success.

Sincerely,

Donald J. Stanton
