GARY G. JACOBS
PRESIDENT

THE LAREDO NATIONAL BANK

"SERVING TWO NATIONS SINCE 1892"

LAREDO, TEXAS

November 14, 1991

Mr. Andrew H. Card, Jr.
Assistant to the President and Deputy to the Chief of Staff
The White House
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Andy:

Once again, thank you very much for the generous amount of time you gave me and for your sincere interest in my point of view.

Upon reflection, we covered a lot of points, but I may have been a bit too simplistic in my analysis of the risk/reward ratios in the Mexico Free Trade issue with the U.S. Congress.

It is my opinion that the Salinas administration is less dependent upon the necessity of a win on FTA today than they were a year ago. In the short run, he has so much going for him that it would not necessarily be a disaster if we failed to deliver in 1992; however, I am somewhat transfixed upon the Salinas Presidency and his current pro-American cabinet. Things could change in Mexico and Salinas could change. Ultimate failure to sign an agreement on trade could, in fact, give the anti-U.S. left in Mexico the cement they need to build back the anti-U.S. coalition they no longer control. I guess without a success on FTA we run the long term risk of confirming to the left and devout Mexican nationalists that the U.S. is really not their friend, etc., etc. If Salinas and his team stay strong, the backlash could be controlled, but given all they have done and are trying to do, we definitely run a risk. The risk is less today than when we started on this path, but still there.

Having spent a day with the Heritage Foundation, I found most participants in the Mexican Trade seminar more fearful than I of irreparable consequences of our own failure to deliver an agreement. I do not share their optimism that Congress will "do the right thing." None of the economists we have found can come up with a credible scenario to show job loss in the U.S. I continue to believe, based upon our own border experience, that hundreds of thousands of new U.S. jobs will be generated by the expanding trade resulting from the FTA.

If we are going to try to get it approved in 1992, we must have a broader-based and more enduring approach than Fast Track. The Fast Track coalition has gone on to other things. We will have to convince Middle America in the rust belt and elsewhere that a Mexico FTA will help them compete with the Japanese, Koreans, etc. If politically feasible domestically, the safe thing to do is try to get it passed sooner than later.

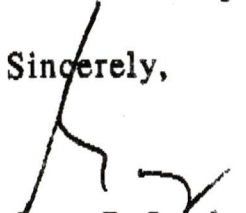

Based upon our work with the U.S.-Mexico Business Committee of the Council of the Americas and the many other meetings we have attended, that there are, in fact, no models that can prove or disprove the job dislocation scenarios. There are Hispanic U.S. economists like Raul Hinojosa, of UCLA that try to demonstrate disaster on both sides of the border. Hinojosa has so confused the issues that his solution is a "North American Regional Development Bank and Adjustment Fund". He is evidently someone the Hispanic community believes is knowledgeable. From what little I have read of his work, I don't think he is in touch with either side of the issue. It occurs to me, having seen unemployment in Laredo, Texas, drop from 22% in 1983 to less than 7% today (100% related to the Mexican recovery), that there is a strong grass roots support for the FTA in the contract trucking, air freight, machinery manufacturing, and customs broker industries, to name a few. Perhaps we should build a grass roots constituency away from the border that is living proof that a prosperous Mexico creates jobs in the U.S., (e.g., We are told IBM is exporting $900MM per year to Mexico and will continue for at least three years.) This constituency of "Born Again" U.S. Exporters should drive the effort on the hill and take some of the burden from your team.

Thanks again. We are lucky that our fine President has someone like you supporting his worthwhile efforts each day. Please call when I can be of help.

Dear Andy:

It has just come to my attention that the 50th Wedding Anniversary of Robert and Josephine Vitale is about to take place on November 8th. I would appreciate it if you would arrange to have the Presidential congratulatory greetings sent to their daughter, RoseAnna McMackin at Roger Goodwin Drive, Wrentham, MA 02193.

I am aware of the short notice of this request and, in the event that you are unable to have it sent by November 8th, the Vitales will treasure it when they receive it.

Thanks so much.

Dear Andy:

I have received a strong appeal from Mr. Gregorio Igartua concerning the request for organizing a meeting in the White House with several local leaders from the west coast of Puerto Rico. The purpose of this meeting is to explore the issue of the presidential vote for Puerto Rico. As you know, Mr. Igartua has been active in the Republican Party and supportive of the Bush effort since 1980.

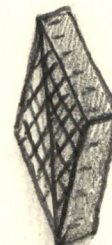

Mr. Igartua has exemplary credentials. He is a graduate of Georgetown Law School and has developed a successful law practice and real estate firm in Aguadilla, Puerto Rico. He has worked with and assisted many of the leaders of Puerto Rico, including Don Luis Ferre, Baltasar Corrada and Dr. Miriam Ferrer. He represents sound, fresh ideas, which are needed. I would appreciate it if you or your assistant could meet with him at your earliest convenience.

Please contact Mr. Igartua directly at (809) 891-9040.

Your attention is truly appreciated.

Dear Mr. Card,

I am writing to ask your consideration of Mr. Van Christo of Boston, Massachusetts for the post of United States Ambassador to Albania.

Van Christo's selection for service in this position is clearly warranted for a number of strong reasons. Van was born in Albania and was brought to this country as a very young child. He has maintained through out his life his interest in all aspects of Albanian history and culture. He is completely fluent in the Albanian language and is recognized as one of the most knowledgeable Albanian-Americans on the subject of the Albanian peoples and their politics. This last is a particularly accurate comment as to Van Christo's familiarity with and understanding of current conditions in Albania surrounding the recent collapse of government in that country. As recently as early June (6/4/91) Van was asked to make a television appearance on "Monitor News" (Christian Science Monitor Broadcasting Network) to provide comment on these events.

As the head of Van Christo Associates, a successful advertising and public relations firm in Boston, Van has an established business reputation. He has great skills as a communicator and as a negotiator. It is clear that these skills would be of enormous value to the United States Ambassador to Albania - they would serve to advance the interests of both the United States and Albania.

Finally, I have personal experience of Van's warm and outgoing personality and his commitment to human values. While it is a purely personal opinion, I feel that these aspects of his character could be as important to an ambassadorial posting as any others. I am privileged to recommend Van Christo for your consideration.

Dear Andy,

I'm sorry I couldn't be down in Washington to attend this meeting between you and my colleagues, Dr. Rave Ashew, Richard Miller, and Mark Goodin. It has taken a goodly amount of time to address these issues with H.H.S. but with your help we've finally achieved some success.

I hope to be involved in future discussions concerning the chiropractic profession and possible appointments to advisory positions with the Department of Health and Human Services. I would very much like to be a part of a pilot program.

Knowing your treadmill schedule, I would like to in the near future have the opportunity to sit and smooch with you over, say a diet coke.

Andy, on behalf of my profession thanks again for all your help.

Please let's talk soon

Regards, Kirt

Dear Andy:

After spending eight years in the attorney general's office here in Idaho, I decided it was time to get back to work and have set up a solo law practice in Boise. That is all well and good but I do kind of miss the excitement of the political/governmental arena. I would be very interested in serving on a federal board, commission or task force in order to keep some involvement and to be of service to the Bush Administration at the same time. Enclosed are two copies of my most recent vita. I would appreciate it if you would see that these get into the right hands at the White House. The areas that I would feel comfortable with are water, natural resources, environment, federalism, and consumer issues.

With thanks and best wishes, I am,

Sincerely,

Jim Jones

Dear John,

After ten challenging and productive years at National Right to Life, I must regretfully begin to think about moving on, in order to better meet the needs of my growing family.

I believe that I could make a significant contribution to advancing the policy goals of the Administration, perhaps in a position that would draw on my extensive experience in legislative affairs and policy development. I would be grateful for any assistance that you could provide me in this endeavor.

Thanks in advance for anything you can do.

Warmest regards,

Legislative Director, National Right to Life Committee (NRLC)
June, 1981, to date.

NRLC, composed of 50 state affiliates representing some 3,000 local groups, is the nation's largest pro-life advocacy organization. NRLC supports legislation and government policies to protect innocent human life, especially by curbing the practices of abortion, infanticide, and euthanasia.

Since 1981, director of the NRLC Federal Legislative Office; primarily responsible for advancing NRLC's public policy goals at the federal level, with respect to both Congress and the Executive Branch.

Worked directly with members of Congress and congressional staff in support or opposition to innumerable amendments and bills, most often falling within the jurisdictions of the Senate committees on Labor and Human Resources, Appropriations, Judiciary, and Foreign Relations, and the House committees on Energy and Commerce, Appropriations, Judiciary, and Foreign Affairs.

Served as NRLC's primary liaison with the White House and with Executive Branch agencies during both the Reagan and Bush administrations; extensive dealings with many agencies, most often with various offices within the Department of Health and Human Services and the Department of Justice.

Drafted legislative proposals. Analyzed legislation. Developed legislative policies under the supervision of the Executive Director and the President of the organization, within parameters established by the Board of Directors.

Coordinated the activities of NRLC's 50 state affiliate organizations with respect to federal public policy goals, including guidance of grassroots lobbying campaigns.

Wrote most of NRLC's materials dealing with federal public policy issues, including technical factsheets for Congress on specific legislative issues, frequent reports on legislation for NRLC's membership, releases and background papers for the media, and essays for the broader public that have appeared in diverse publications, including the Washington Post, Newsday, American Politics, the National Catholic Register, World, and many others.

Testified before various congressional committees, and prepared testimony for presentation by others.

Enclosed please find Mr. Tom Long's resume and supporting documentation for his bid for the Federal District Judgeship in the Southern District of Illinois.

Mr. Long will be interviewing at the Justice Department on August 1, 1991, and we felt someone at the White House should be aware of his candidacy.

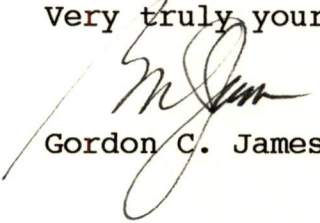

I met Mr. Long at the now famous Alton, Illinois rally for the President in September, 1988. He has supported the President and the administration for many years.

I am sure he would appreciate any help you could give him should the occasion arise.

I've just about recovered for the London Summit and should be ready for another monster trip soon.

Thanks for your help.

GENERAL COMMENTS:

I am interested in serving President Bush as the United States District Judge for the Southern District of Illinois.

I possess a broad base of experience as an attorney in a general practice law firm. My administrative experience includes full responsibility for all law firm activity for eight attorneys and ten staff members.

As an Assistant State's Attorney in Madison County, Illinois, I prosecuted felony cases ranging from murder to official misconduct. I have handled criminal jury trials, investigations and grand jury matters in the State Courts of Illinois.

My certification as a Certified Public Accountant gives me the necessary background to handle complex financial and tax matters which are often the subject of federal trials.

1988 Presidential Election:

My activity in the 1988 Presidential campaign was as follows:

- George Bush delegate to National Convention from 21st Congressional District in Illinois. I was one of the first County Chairmen to endorse George Bush early in the campaign.
- Coordinator for George Bush Campaign during 1988 Primary and General Elections for 21st Congressional District in Illinois
- Coordinator for two visits by Vice President George Bush to Madison County, Illinois during 1988

First visit was in March, 1988 preceding Illinois Primary where I coordinated visit of Vice President as Lincoln Day Keynote Speaker. I was responsible for all local coordination, publicity and program matters.

Second visit was in September, 1988 when the Vice President visited Alton, Illinois for a campaign rally. I was responsible for all coordination for the visit and rally which resulted in a crowd of approximately 6,000 and extensive media coverage in the Metro-East area and throughout Illinois.

In both visits, I had extensive contact with all members of Vice President's advance team as well as key members of the Illinois Campaign for the Vice President.

- I participated in a visit by Mr. Prescott Bush to Southern Illinois. I spent the day with Mr. Bush, and we covered four campaign events together on behalf of the Vice President's campaign in October, 1988.

General Political Activity:

During the past ten (10) years I have been actively involved in every major Republican campaign in Madison County, Illinois and the State of Illinois.

I am currently the Madison County Republican Chairman. The county has a population of approximately 250,000 and consists of 220 precincts. As County Chairman, I have complete responsibility for the Republican Party activities within the county. I am also actively involved with state wide candidates, state legislative candidates and congressional candidates.

I have recently been a candidate for the Appellate Court in the Fifth Judicial District in Illinois. I conducted a campaign in thirty seven counties covering the Southern one third of the State of Illinois. The district is approximately the same district as the Southern District of Illinois jurisdiction for the Federal Courts. This was my first attempt at public office, and I received forty five percent of the vote. I was found qualified for the office in a poll of all attorneys in the thirty seven counties, and I received the endorsement of three major newspapers in the district. (See, attached articles and endorsements.)

Our viewpoint

Choices for appellate court

Legitimate concerns arose this year about improper influence of machine politicians on Southern Illinois judges. The apparent need for qualified judges who are not tied to the Democratic machines in St. Clair and Madison counties has guided our choices in the 5th District Court of Appeals races.

Of primary concern is the race between Democrat Richard Goldenhersh of Belleville and Republican Tom Long of Godfrey. In our view, Goldenhersh is the wrong choice because he has made partisan and incompetent decisions.

Goldenhersh presided over the longest jury trial in U.S. history and was justifiably criticized by fellow professionals for letting the case get out of hand. The American Lawyer, an independent law journal, blamed Goldenhersh's mishandling of the case as the primary reason for its undue length: "Delay tactics by litigants are an accepted part of the system. A judge who allows a trial to stretch for years is not," the journal stated.

For 3½ years, Goldenhersh burdened taxpayers and jurors with the Kemner vs. Monsanto dioxin trial, which produced more than 100,000 pages of transcript based on more than 6,000 exhibits and testimony from 177 witnesses. In a word, his performance was deplorable.

Goldenhersh also has stepped aside while the Democratic machine used his courtroom for political purposes. In connection with lawsuits filed against this newspaper by Jerry Costello and his family members, Republican County Board member Bob Glenn gave an affidavit saying the newspaper could not get a fair trial in St. Clair County. Amiel Cueto, Costello's lawyer, tried to discredit Glenn in part by calling another Republican, Jeffrey Barnes, into court and questioning him about some photographs showing Barnes dancing in a G-string at a private party. Somehow, this was supposed to discredit Glenn.

The only connection between Glenn and Barnes, who was running for county treasurer at the time, was their Republican affiliation. Lawyers for this newspaper repeatedly pointed out that Barnes and his past indiscretions were not connected to Glenn or to the lawsuit. Nevertheless, Goldenhersh allowed Cueto to question Barnes in great detail about the photographs.

Long, in sharp contrast, is independent of the dominant political interests in the metro-east and would bring a conservative approach to the bench. Long supports merit selection of judges and opposes judicial activism. Voters have a perfect opportunity to replace a partisan judge with a conservative independent one and, accordingly, should elect Long.

In the races pitting Charles Chapman against Robert Keenan and Philip Rarick against Donald Lowery, we prefer Keenan and Lowery. Chapman and Rarick, local Democrats, are qualified professionally but would just be more of the same: two metro-east Democrats on a bench overrun with them. Keenan, a Republican from Mt. Carmel, and Lowery, a Republican from West Frankfort, are about as far removed from the local Democratic machine politicians as one can get in the 5th District.

The remaining race is between Democrat Robert Howerton and Republican William Evers. On the basis of professional qualifications alone, the choice has to be Howerton. In the Illinois State Bar Association judicial advisory poll, Evers scored between 15 and 20 percentage points below the minimum needed in every category to receive a qualified ranking.

Because the poll represents only the opinions of lawyers who choose to participate, and consequently might be skewed, it cannot be used as a precise measure. For example, if a candidate fell short of the qualified ranking by a few-hundredths of a percentage point, it would be stretching things to conclude that the person was unqualified.

But in Evers' case, the results are uniformly and extremely negative, making Howerton the clear choice.

Jones vacancy

ROBERT H. HOWERTON is about as patient, fair-minded and even-tempered as judges come.

He has served well on the First Circuit bench and evidences the broad knowledge of the law required at the appellate level. He has proven firm in criminal cases and appears sensitive to constitutional issues.

His opponent, William C. Evers III, is a more capable attorney than his rating by fellow lawyers ("strongly not recommended") would suggest. Yet, while we have no aversion to conservative jurists, we find Evers rigidly ideological.

Judge Howerton's endorsement by the metro-East Democratic machine does not commend him, but neither does it disqualify him. While geographic diversity on the court is a lesser consideration, his more rural background would be a welcome addition — given his considerable intellectual attributes as well.

More assuringly, Judge Howerton's long service in Southern Illinois (as Williamson County state's attorney in the 1970s and as a judge since 1979) provides a lengthy record that yields nothing but our confidence.

Karns vacancy

CHARLES W. CHAPMAN is the kind of candidate that makes choosing easier than it might otherwise be, as his opponent, Robert M. Keenan Jr. would also make a good appellate judge.

Keenan is a competent, conservative jurist who sincerely supports civil rights. But Chapman deserves the "strongly recommended" rating he received from attorneys — the only Fifth District candidate so rated. Chapman is also endorsed by Judge John Karns, whose retirement opened the seat he seeks.

Chapman was not, however, the candidate who received the primary endorsement of the metro-East, plaintiff lawyers' Democratic machine. That alone mutes criticism from his opponent. In addition, Judge Karns is joined in endorsing Chapman by the other two most-recently retired Appellate judges, who are from the northeastern and southeastern reaches of the Fifth District.

Geography aside, Judge Chapman offers outstanding credentials. A circuit judge since 1979 and a former chemist, he has heard some very difficult and technical cases and yet has an excellent record of having been affirmed on appeal. Named Outstanding State Trial Judge in 1984, he ought to be elected to

New judgeship

J. THOMAS LONG is not a judge but that's no reason to keep him off the appellate court.

His opponent, Judge Richard P. Goldenhersh, is a competent 20th Circuit judge. We're confident he'd make a good Appellate judge.

His record leans heavily toward plaintiffs, however. While that alone is not a disqualification, his strong support from plaintiff lawyers and the metro-East political machine thus give us pause.

Long is an unabashed conservative but no ideologue. Although he is neither a judge nor a metro-East Democratic insider, his fellow attorneys rate him as well as Goldenhersh. The review nature of the Appellate Court, as opposed to the trial nature of circuit courts, suggests an experienced attorney would do as well as an experienced judge. A Certified Public Accountant as well as an attorney, Long offers special training that could prove beneficial.

The overall quality of these two candidates is very close. We prefer not to endorse the political-machine approach to choosing judges and a past tendency that has given metro-East courts its reputation as a "plaintiff's haven".

New judgeship

PHILIP RARICK received a very high rating from his fellow attorneys — and deservedly so.

The Third Circuit judge brings impeccable credentials, having served since 1980 after five years as an associate judge. As chief of the circuit's criminal division, he has intimate understanding of this difficult and critical area of law.

Judge Don Lowery also brings long and broad experience, but his ambitions seem more political than professional. He raises the geographical question, for instance, even though his opponent is from the rural eastern side of Madison County, not the metro-East area. He emphasizes the inconvenient forum issue and cites the Monsanto case as an example, but Rarick has heard relatively few personal injury trials and does not preside in the county or even the circuit that heard the Monsanto case.

Judge Lowery even suggests that metro-East lawyers are responsible for his low bar poll rating, but the relatively low number of questionnaires marked on him suggests they came from the less-populated First Circuit where he sits.

Judge Rarick has shown an exceptional and independent legal mind and the

Dear Mr. Long:

A Judicial Advisory Poll has recently been completed on judicial candidates seeking election in the March, 1988 primary election outside of Cook County. Shown below are the results of the poll as they relate to your candidacy.

Ballots Mailed	Ballots Returned	Summary Score	Results*
1136	725	73.56	R

Your score for each section of the poll is as follows:

Judicial Integrity -- 71.80	Judicial Temperament -- 74.85
Legal Ability -- 74.34	Court Management -- 74.09

- * SR: Strongly Recommended (90 or Above)
- R: Recommended (70-89)
- NR: Not Recommended (60-69)
- SNR: Strongly Not Recommended (Below 60).

PLEASE NOTE: A candidate failing to receive a minimum score of 70 on "Judicial Integrity" or "Legal Ability" sections of the poll will receive a rating of "Not Recommended" even though the total summary score is 70 or above.

The section scores shown above provide greater detail of the responses which reflect an evaluation of strengths of the individual candidate as expressed by the attorneys who voted. Results by individual question will be sent to you

Dear Mr. Card;

At eighteen years of age, I am about to enter my freshman year at the American University in Washington D.C. Through connections that I have made in the Republican Party, I am led to understand that you may be able to assist me in finding a job or internship while I attend school.

I have enclosed a letter of recommendation and a short summary of my experiences. I hope that this information will give you some insight into my character. The gift of experience is more valuable than any other. Today, I am asking you for a chance to learn about our government. Working in Washington will help me to pass on your generosity to a new generation of Americans.

Sincerely,

Michael J. Jones

ENCLOSURES

Resumé

I have been active in my community from a very young age. I have been a member of the Orleans Republican Town Committee since age fifteen. In March, The committee elected me as it's Secretary. I now have the honor of being the youngest elected officer of a public service body in the history of the town of Orleans.

Last Summer, I served as an administrative aid for Jon Bryan in his bid for Congress. This great opportunity gave me a wealth of experience that cannot be read about in books or taught in any classroom. Other fortunate experiences for me have spawned from my positions as Orleans Delegate to the Nauset Bipartisan Committee on Political Education, member of the Barnstable County Republican Club, and volunteer work for the Eight is Enough campaign to limit the terms of elected officials.

In school I was also very active. I was chosen by the Principal to give speeches in support of the school budget at the town meeting. I arranged the Model U.N. club at my school in order to add a cultural program to my schools curriculum. I was President of the Debate Club for three years and a member of various other school groups. I worked very hard at helping my peers to gain political literacy. I was in charge of voter registration at Nauset Regional High School. This was a position that I took very seriously. I arranged for guest speakers like Sen. Henri Rauschembach and County Commissioner Robert O'Leary to address the student body. I also set up a debate between the candidates for the local State Representative seat to be held at the school.

Soon I will leave Orleans, Massachusetts in an attempt to broaden my horizons at the American University. In Washington, I would like to continue my education both in and out of school. Hopefully, one day I will be able to use my experience to help make this great nation a little better.

To Whom It May Concern:

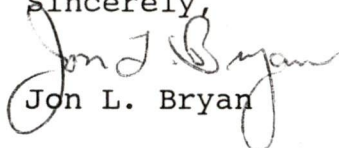

It is with great pleasure that I provide this recommendation for Mr. Michael Jones.

I have known Michael for several years and have found him to be the most dedicated, hard-working, and sincere young man that I have ever known. As a college professor for ten years, I have met many dedicated students with great promise; however, none with the attributes of Mr. Jones.

I was so impressed with Michael that, at his young age, I hired him for an important role in my congressional campaign. He performed his tasks with characteristic dedication, punctuality, and vigor.

Michael Jones is the most outstanding young man I have ever met, and I know that he will be an asset to his chosen school or workplace.

Dear Mr. President:

Thank you for inviting NAM representatives and me to hear your South Lawn remarks last Wednesday evening. And I certainly appreciated the generous gesture of being personally recognized. In the days since, I have been reflecting on your words and your approach and continue to be struck by their fundamental power.

The language was impressive because it tended to encourage a positive cooperative effort -- the single most difficult effect to achieve in this indecisive era -- through rhetoric that was honest and true to our national condition.

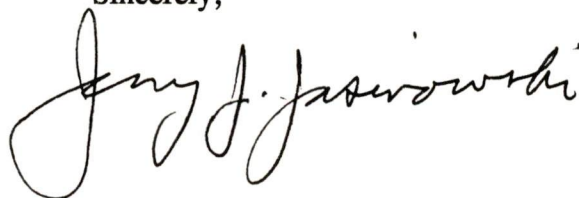

- o The fact that members of Congress were not invited sent a potent message of its own that went beyond your mild castigations of the moment. That said to people, "It's up to us," something we have not heard enough of.
- o Several rhetorical constructions were especially refreshing in their combination of "lift" with a focus on the challenges, such as "The state of our nation is the state of our communities ... ," "track record of success ... ," "we dust ourselves off ... ," "Let's face it ... ," "Transforming America"
- o And, of course, you brought order and momentum by carrying your listeners into the present 1990s, through the "Big Government" 1970s, the self oriented 1980s into a decade in which individuals from all walks of life can "lead" and enable the country to "think and act anew."

We would not object to your including in the future a mention of "manufacturers," as "carrying the load of this nation's competitiveness as well as being in the lead now in environmental improvements, quality and service." Manufacturers have changed and transformed themselves a great deal in the 1980s and are committed to pursuing continuous improvement.

I know you will ensure that those South Lawn themes do have a future. Those words deserve to be repeated again and again and you will find they will resonate with everyone who believes in this country's unique capability to tackle its problems and make things better. Thanks again for your special consideration.

re: CAFE Legislation
5 May 1991

Times is slipping away on the CAFE issue. Action needs to be taken immediately to organize an inside-outside group to defeat efforts to increase CAFE standards. In my opinion, the position should be outright opposition, rather than a Johnston-Wallop compromise that keeps the principle but just leaves out the numbers. Our effort should be to delete the whole idea.

What follows is a description of a typical inside-outside issues group, such as is typically used to work on an issue of this type. Such a group does not at this point exist on the CAFE issue. If we are to win this issue, such a group needs to be put together at once, and set into motion. There are ample resources available to make a successful effort, if the industry will provide funding.

I. Congressional Action. No inside-outside groups can function without a congressional horse to ride. There simply has to be a Senator and a Congressman willing to make a full commitment to the project. These figures become the generals, and the constituent forces marshalled under them agree to abide by their judgment of the legislative situation and tactics, within the strategic goal all have signed on for. What is involved is a major commitment to undertake lobbying activities, vote counting, and so on, and to devote sufficient staff time to the effort that it has a chance of being successful.

The following things have to happen:

A. Designation of a primary Senator and Congressman to work the issue: Nickles in the Senate and McEwen in the House are possibilities, though the Administration is shy of McEwen because of his position for repeal, rather than holding the line. Dingell is obviously an important player in the House, and may have to be used, although his preference for a gas tax as an alternative to CAFE makes him unreliable and dangerous.;

B. Institution of a regular (at least weekly) meeting of interested staff with outside industry, administration, and interest group lobbyists. At these meetings there will be regular updates of vote counts;

C. Development of vote counts on the major proposals to be presented to the House and Senate. These will come from industry and interest group contacts with members and staff, from mail and telephone campaigns, and from face-to-face, member-to-member contacts.

D. Organization of special orders, one-minutes, and Congressional Record inserts to begin to counter the one-sided treatment this issue has received to date.

E. Recruitment of effort by industry and interest groups. This will have to be done with personal meetings at a sufficiently high level (Senator or Congressman) that industry gets the idea that it is a serious effort.

II. Administration Action.

A. Designation of appropriate contacts within the Administration to work the issue. Probably Domestic Policy Office, the VP's staff, OMB, and DOT (NHTSA);

B.

high level
"Administration Official"* ←

III. Industry Action.

A. Participation in the congressional meetings.

B. Conduct of lobbying and vote counting efforts.

C. Support for interest group efforts, both on-going and prospective.

D. Grass-roots lobbying efforts, such as was done last year through Bonner and Associates;

E. Development of ideas for offensive media attack, to begin to communicate the silliness of CAFE, rather than responding to environmentalist initiatives. Ideas could include street theater, crash demonstration videos, displays of crumpled cars, displays of the "cars of the future," and so on;

F. Development and implementation of an ad campaign doing the same thing.

IV. Interest Groups. These include industry oriented groups, such as the Coalition for Vehicle Choice and the American Coalition for Traffic Safety, and also more ideological groups, some of which are still to be recruited.

They also include groups which can address the issue of traditional values versus the elitism of the social engineers. Those writing these laws and regulations apparently do not have families, do not pull boats and trailers, and feel no need to travel long distances by car in (relative) air conditioned comfort. They need to know that there are millions of people in this country (one-third of American families have four or more members) who will not appreciate being crammed into Geo Metros.

Traditional values groups are ready to move on this issue (and on several others where they might not appear to be involved). They need instruction, education, stroking, and attention. I would like to provide those things, and am prepared to do so if the necessary support can be found.

All interest groups need to begin immediately with the following actions:

- A. Meetings with target Senators and Congressmen.
- B. Letter-writing and phone campaigns.
- C. Direct mail campaigns.
- D. Op-Ed campaign embodying our ideas. Provision of materials for the special order, record insert and one-minutes campaign under congressional above.

In my judgment, the CAFE battle is winnable. The tide has already begun to turn, on the safety and technical issues, perhaps decisively. If we can follow up now, opening a second front on the issue of traditional values, we can decide the issue in our favor. There is no cause for despair, but also no time to lose.

Dear Mr. Card:

During the past three months, I've written to you to share Bank of Boston's thoughts on the state of the New England economy in general and the disposition of Bank of New England in particular.

Obviously, the decision by the FDIC earlier this week did not go as we had hoped. But we remain proud of having been at the table, of having mounted a billion-dollar capital plan backed by savvy investors who know us well, and of seizing the opportunity to put in a competitive bid in a very short time. The fact that we were competing against two of this nation's premier banks and lost in a photo-finish after being discounted at the outset only adds to the significance of this undertaking. While we are undeniably disappointed, we are also exhilarated by the process and gratified by how far and fast we have come.

As the enclosed statement by Ira Stepanian expresses forcefully, we remain confident in the wake of the FDIC decision. Our loss for this quarter, just announced, is substantially less than in the preceding quarters -- another sign that our institution is firmly on the road to recovery.

You don't get to be 207 years old without taking a few knocks. Nor do you get to be that venerable age without learning to get up, go on, and grow stronger and wiser. Bank of Boston is up and moving forward. You'll be hearing from us again -- and periodically -- as we continue to put our strengths to work for our bank, our industry and our region.

As always, I welcome your perspective on these issues of such importance to all of us. And I thank you for your continuing interest.

Sincerely,

BANK OF BOSTON

News
Release

Statement from
Ira Stepanian, Chairman and CEO
Bank of Boston
April 22, 1991

As you know, the FDIC has selected Fleet/KKR as the new owner of Bank of New England. This was a rigorous, demanding process for all participants. We congratulate Fleet and its CEO, Terry Murray. We are disappointed by the FDIC's decision, but we have gained an even stronger sense of confidence in ourselves and our institution as a result of this process.

The essence of this nation's economic system is competition. Fleet is already one of our most respected competitors, and we will continue to go head-to-head with them. We also look forward to working shoulder-to-shoulder to continue the essential task of rebuilding this region's economy.

We believe we submitted a bid that accurately reflected the value of the Bank of New England franchise to Bank of Boston, based on our knowledge of that bank and our marketplace, as well as our own strategic considerations.

We also believe that our arguments for in-market combinations and regional banking consolidation are as valid today as they were when we first voiced them. We are looking for additional opportunities, and we will remain a major player in the regional consolidation process.

Moreover, we have proved that we have the talent, determination and financial capacity to do so. We thank the investors who subscribed to our private placement. Their decision was an expression of confidence in both Bank of Boston and our region.

Most of all, we thank our employees. Their countless hours of unstinting effort made our bid possible. We know more about ourselves, our capabilities, and our power as a team, as a result of this undertaking.

Even before the opportunity to bid for Bank of New England, Bank of Boston was well on the road to recovery. The acquisition of that bank would have accelerated our recovery, but the FDIC's decision by no means negates it. We intend to be in the forefront of our region's economic renewal, just as we have been a leader in every one of New England's economic recoveries for 207 years.

Are we disappointed? Of course. Are we discouraged? Absolutely not. Bank of Boston has demonstrated the fundamental strength of our bank, the loyalty of our region, and the incredible talents of our people. There is much to be done to restore confidence and health to New England. We're ready to get back to work.

Re: Talent

(1) As you know, Judge Grover Rees was recently considered for a federal district judgeship, but unfortunately it didn't work out at this time. Rees is disappointed but not angry, even though he was strung out for quite a while. He is definitely interested in moving on from the post he now holds in American Samoa. He's had a talk or two with White House Personnel over the past few weeks about possible positions in the Administration.

As we've previously discussed, we here have known Rees for over a decade, and we regard him as being in the first tier of those who have made important contributions to the formation of sound public policies. Indeed, when President Bush was first elected, NRLC regarded recommended Rees-- along with Kay James-- as the highest caliber of talent that we could recommend to this Administration. Two and one-half years later, we rend our garments in frustration that Rees remains in a position in which he can contribute little to the shaping of public policy.

I recite this history by way of preface to asking that you personally look into this and do whatever is possible to get Rees into the best legal/policy job possible.

A former congressional staffer and law professor, Judge Rees is experienced in many areas of the law and public policy, including constitutional law. He would be perfect for something like directorship of the Office of Policy Development in the Justice Department, or some other good legal/policy slot of at least deputy assistant secretary rank. (After all, Rees was a deputy assistant attorney general in the Reagan Administration, and last year was recommended by the White House to DHHS for the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Population Affairs slot-- which unfortunately didn't work out because Asst. Secretary James Mason insisted that a doctor, rather than an attorney, fill that job.)

Rees also has an interest in environmental legal issues. Maybe there should be a legal watchdog in the multi-agency apparatus that is preparing for the 1992 U.N. Conference on the Environment and Development (UNCED). Congressmen Henry Hyde, Chris Smith, and I recently met with the Governor regarding efforts by pro-abortion advocacy groups to "piggyback" their agenda on the UNCED.

Anyway, we'd be most grateful for anything you could do on this. Thank you!

One other matter of concern: Some weeks ago, NRLC President John C. Willke wrote a letter recommending the appointment of Boston city attorney Joseph Mulligan to the U.S. District Court. Pro-life activists in Massachusetts have spoken to us of their high regard for Mulligan for years prior to the current vacancy.

Subsequently, I was told that Mulligan's chances were slim because he was a registered Democrat. However, as reported in my Feb. 12 memo, Mulligan has been a financial supporter of Republicans for years, and recently switched his party registration.

We continue to regard Mr. Mulligan as the best qualified candidate known to us for the vacancy; he would undoubtedly get high marks from the ABA and the Judiciary Committee. Therefore, we renew our recommendation. If, however, another selection has been made, or for some other reason we are barking up the wrong tree here, please let me know so that I can tell our state leaders to expend their energies on something else.

Thank you for your consideration of this matter.

Re: U.S. District Court, Massachusetts (Joseph I. Mulligan)

This is a follow-up to the Jan. 31 letter from NRLC President John Willke and myself, recommending Boston Corporation Counsel Joseph I. Mulligan for the vacancy on the U.S. District Court there.

Since that letter was written, I have picked up some rumblings that Mulligan's chances were less than terrific because he is, it was said, a Democrat.

I looked into this allegation and this is what I was told: Mulligan has been a Republican financial supporter for years and is currently a member of the "Republican Inner Circle," which I gather indicates substantial financial support to the party. Mulligan has for years felt alienated from the Democratic Party due to the pro-abortion platform and so forth, but delayed changing his party registration at the request of the mayor who appointed or retained him as Corporation Counsel, Ray Flynn. Mulligan did not want to embarrass Flynn.

However, Mulligan today switched his party registration to Republican.

I am sure that your own sources can easily establish whether my sources are accurate on these points. I have not spoken to Mr. Mulligan directly.

Thank you for your consideration of this excellent candidate.

Bob Gates shared with me the FAX you sent on March 22, 1991. The National Security Council has very few "political" positions and Bob told me that prospects for openings that would fit your background are extremely slim.

I will be glad to pass your resume on to Chase Untermeyer, Assistant to the President for Presidential Personnel. He will make sure your name is in the mix for other opportunities with the Bush/Quayle Team.

Please keep in touch. Sincerely, Andy Card

Dear Mr. Gates:

Your secretary Robin suggested I send you both my professional and political resumes, along with references, before scheduling an appointment with you. Your name was given me by more than one person in Washington who suggested I contact you relative to a political appointment.

I have been following your progress over the years and since you became Deputy for National Security Affairs I listen closely to what you have to say. I heard you speak to a group of business executives, (I was among the guests), in the Old Executive Office building last year. You gave the clearest message I have heard in years and I wondered why you aren't more visible in the public eye because your honesty evokes immediate trust. That is a very rare trait among public officials and one this country needs now more than ever.

My background and professional experience in policy should add a new and different dimension to your current policy and development planning process and I'm sure I could contribute a great deal to your competitive positioning on the global scale as well. I am committed to your purpose and that of the NSC in safeguarding the interests of the United States.

I am planning to visit Washington on April 5 and April 8 and look forward to meeting you then. I will follow this letter with a telephone call to your secretary and appreciate your kind consideration on my behalf.

Yours truly,

The Honorable Andrew H. Card
Assistant To The President and
Deputy Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Andy:

Yesterday when I telephoned Bob Gates, Robin informed me that he had forwarded my professional and political resumes and references to you. After speaking to Linda Casey this morning, she was kind enough to tell me you would again be out of town with the President during my next visit. I also spoke to Diana Untaneyer this morning and she and Chase will be in Texas. Therefore, I thought a brief background of my efforts in Washington might help you understand the political appointments I am seeking in case you receive other inquiries about me.

Although we met several times in conjunction with Funds for Massachusetts Future in Massachusetts, and at various other Republican events since then, I don't think you knew I am a native of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania and came to Boston to receive my Harvard MBA in 1985. I had previously served on Senator Heinz's executive council in Pittsburgh.

Before visiting Washington on March 13 - 15, I spoke briefly to Sam Skinner on March 11 during the Middlesex Club dinner in Boston. He then made sure I met both the White House Liaison, Fred Grubbe and one of his Special Assistants, Betty Monroe. Betty thought I was overqualified for the Deputy Assistant Secretary position in Policy & International Affairs as it is now constructed, and they have a hold on it for a few months until they can figure out the new responsibilities. The other White House Liaisons with whom I met are:

1. Department of Defense:

Clark Wurzberger informed me that DAS positions could open in Inter-American Affairs, Acquisitions or NATO. He also will keep an eye out for Policy positions.

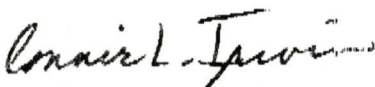

2. Department of Treasury: Debbie Miller - I also plan to meet with Dr. Glauber while visiting on April 4-8.
3. Department of Justice: Marilyn Armour
4. Department of State: Catherine Keller
5. U.S.I.A. Jane Leonard
6. Department of Commerce: Mary Ann Fish

If there is anything you might suggest as I pursue these endeavors, I would welcome your counsel. Since my background is almost exclusively Policy related, with a strong interest in international affairs, there may be other opportunities you may be aware of that I have not yet pursued.

My first priority is in Washington, but I would be open to opportunities that might arise elsewhere, including those outside the United States. I want to be as helpful to President Bush as I possibly can in winning his re-election and in successfully accomplishing his vision for the United States as the preeminent power in the New World Order.

I look forward to seeing you during my next visit and wish you a most joyous Easter Holiday.

Kindest regards,

Constance L. Irwin

Dear Mr. Card:

I recently had the pleasure of attending the MALU (Massachusetts Association of Life Underwriters) John P. Meehan Award Breakfast where you were the featured speaker. In addition to your sharing some insight into the current Middle East situation, you were also gracious enough to pose with my daughter for the attached photograph. My daughter - JUNE KIM, who is actually my step daughter, recently immigrated from South Korea. She graduated from Marblehead High School with honors last year and now attends the North Shore Community College where she is enrolled in the English as a Second Language course. June is contemplating a career in either politics or law and was especially inspired by your presentation.

If you would take a minute out of your busy schedule to autograph the enclosed photograph, and possibly write her a short note of encouragement, it would be most appreciated.

Please send this to my attention at the office as I am afraid that if it were to be delivered to my residence it might get damaged.

I hope that 1991 brings you health and continued success in all your endeavors.

Dear Mr. Jameson,

Chase Untermeyer passed on to me your suggestion that the White House establish a Division of Cultural Resources.

The White House staff is quite small, and its operating budget does not allow for much flexibility in the kinds of responsibilities that must be met. Given those constraints, we are not able to favorably consider your suggestion at this time. Further, the issues that you raise are addressed generically through the Office of Cabinet Affairs, headed by Ede Holiday.

Thank you for your interest. Best wishes.

Dear Mr. Jameson:

Thank you very much for your recent letter suggesting the White House establish a "Division of Cultural Resources."

I appreciate your contacting me with this provocative idea on how to handle matters related to national and worldwide cultural resource issues. However, I don't handle internal White House matters. In an effort to be of assistance, I have forwarded your specific recommendations to the appropriate White House officials who I am sure will find your comments informative.

Thank you again for taking the time to write.

The Honorable Chase G. Untermeyer
Assistant to the President and Director of Presidential Personnel
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Untermeyer:

I am writing directly to you on the suggestion of Brenda Hart, Director of the Office of White House Liaison for the Republican Party, and upon the encouragement of Lee Atwater, an old friend and co-worker in South Carolina. I believe that the White House staff would greatly benefit from the establishment of a Division of Cultural Resources to handle matters related to national and worldwide cultural resource issues. Such an office could work to assure that the following concerns, and a host of other public cultural resource issues, are properly and positively treated:

1. Traditional lifeways and culture (heritage) preservation;
2. Protection of important architectural, archeological, and historical sites;
3. Oral history documentation and preservation;
4. Appreciation of traditional ethnic and religious values;
5. Preservation of traditional Native American lifeways and concerns.

A Division of Cultural Resources would provide the White House with a measure of balance and objectivity in the handling and consideration of such concerns. It would act as White House liaison with Congress and other branches of the Government.

I recommend that this office consist of two main components, one to handle domestic issues, and the other to focus on international and foreign concerns. The office would act as a White House point of contact and information source -- a kind of clearinghouse -- for the myriad national and international cultural resource issues and initiatives. This would include the activities of a multitude of special interest groups, as well as the on-going cultural assistance programs of quasi-governmental organizations such as the National Trust for Historic Preservation, the World Bank, the United Nations, and the International Council on Monuments and Sites.

As the President develops his domestic and international agenda for the 1990's, it is essential that he possess an understanding of the controversies and threats to the complex cultural fabric and traditional lifeways of all nations; the President and his White House staff must be adequately informed on the issues. This expertise is currently lacking among the White House staff.

I would certainly welcome the opportunity to meet with you and discuss this matter with you or your staff in more detail. I can be contacted during working hours at (404) 331-2630, or at my home at (404) 963-5680.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. President:

We remain hopeful that your schedule will permit you to join us to address NAM's March 14 Congress of American Industry. Like last year's conference, this one focuses on human resource issues which we continue to believe are at the center of the competitiveness challenge for the United States in the 1990s.

As you did in your remarks to our 1990 conference, you could put the human resource issues in the broader perspective of economic growth and global competition. Resurgent export activity underscores the comeback of manufacturing in the American economy. The gains we have seen in manufacturing are due in large part to improvements in the quality of American products, which depend primarily on the quality of American workers.

Put simply, Mr. President, with this conference we are trying to reinforce the growing understanding among U.S. employers and policymakers that the workforce is a key to manufacturing progress and economic growth. The Conference theme, the "High Performance Workforce," suggests there are strategies companies can deploy to ensure they get the most out of the energy and skills of American workers -- by in turn investing management energy and skill into the development of those workers. Indeed, the conference will present several examples of such strategies.

Your participation would underscore and dramatize the central significance of such strategies and the relationship of what the government is doing to support the development of a high performance workforce.

Dear "Andy",

I am enclosing a copy of a letter directed to Debbie Romash of the Visitor's Office requested a tour of the White House on Saturday, March 30, 1991. She was unable to honor our request last year due to the busy season and lateness of the request, however, we appreciate her efforts and prompt reply.

The Massachusetts and Rhode Island members of the Knight Templars will return this year for the Easter Sunrise Services at Alexandria on March 31st and again would like to have a tour of the White House on March 30th. I would appreciate any assistance that you may be able to render in making arrangements for the tour.

people

How great it is to see our State again in the hands of Republican leaders, it is going to be a long and difficult job to restore the credibility back to Massachusetts but I am sure that it will be accomplished.

I missed not seeing you at the Republican Convention last Spring but did see you at a distance. It doesn't seem possible that it was 10 years ago that you dedicated the Crown and Eagle Apartments in Uxbridge. How time flies.

Again, thank you for your assistance and may you and your family have a Happy New Year in 1991.

Dear Ms. Romash,

Last March I requested of Andrews Card, which was referred to your office, a special tour of the White House on Saturday, April 14, 1990; however, due to the short notice and busy season of the year, you were unable to honor my request.

On March 30, 1991, the Grand Commandery of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Knight Templars, will again be in the Nation's Capitol to attend Easter Sunrise Services at the Washington Masonic Memorial in Alexandria, Va. scheduled March 31st.

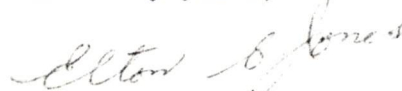

A contingent of approximately forty to fifty members including their wives will be in attendance. It is again requested that a special tour be scheduled in the morning hours of Saturday, March 30th to tour the White House. We would greatly appreciate any help that you may render in our being able to visit the White House at that time.

Having personally toured the White House approximately ten years ago and having the privilege of working with White House staff during World War II when employed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, I know that this group of 40 to 50 Knight Templars will enjoy the tour and thereby feel that their trip has been greatly enhanced by the tour.

Again, thank you for whatever assistance you may be able to give us in this request.

Best wishes for a Happy New Year in 1991.

Dear Mr. President:

I wrote recently to suggest that you include a major export emphasis in your upcoming State of the Union Address. This letter will elaborate on that and add to it some additional suggested themes. Each, however, is a variation on the overriding theme we hope you will stress in the Address and throughout the year, namely economic growth.

The theme of economic growth, when made meaningful in terms of the impact on individuals, jobs, prices and income can serve as a necessary substantive focus for "changing the terms of debate" with the Congress. The NAM strongly believes, Mr. President, that enhancing economic growth through improved competitiveness provides an emphasis that would greatly strengthen your Administration's domestic agenda.

To be more specific, to restore growth and then to maximize it, U.S. employers and policy makers should focus on the following.

(1) Continued enhancement of exports: We believe exports is a more concrete term than competitiveness, yet one that can serve rhetorically as a proxy for it. By their contribution to overall growth, exports held off recession in 1990; they can hasten recovery in 1991.

In the wake of the trade deficits of the 1980s, it was widely argued that American industry was unable to compete in world markets. The export boom since 1987 has decisively refuted this view, demonstrating that with a realistic value for the dollar, American firms can compete effectively against foreign competitors.

As exports have grown in recent years, the trade imbalance has diminished; by one estimate the trade deficit has disappeared altogether save for the oil and auto trade accounts. In fact, some analysts project a surplus in non-oil, non-auto trade of $20 billion in 1991 -- an improvement of $60 billion in four years.

Put differently, we are again exporting our goods, not our jobs, which is as it should be. As suggested in more detail in my recent letter, we need a national export campaign to build on this success. As the attached chart shows, the U.S. has vast export opportunities to tap.

(2) Education and training: Far more important than contentious items now on the so-called "labor agenda" like the Kennedy-Hawkins or striker replacement bills is how well we meet U.S. education and training policy challenges.

Demographics suggest tightening U.S. labor markets through the 90s. Reinvigorated growth will restore job creation. Together, that means more new jobs and fewer new workers. Simple supply and demand suggests that the two add up to opportunity. In sum, an expanding economy and tighter demographics can combine to create for all Americans -- perhaps most especially for minorities and women -- better opportunity for better jobs than at any time in the memory of most of us.

This can be so only if these workers have the skills or the ability to acquire the skills these new jobs will demand. There are well-known and appropriate limits to federal policy in these areas but your new Secretaries of Labor and of Education should be encouraged, if not required, to coordinate the relevant programs of their respective departments. You should challenge the Congress, as well, to coordinate all job training, vocational education and welfare programs with a single focus on ending dependence by empowering all Americans with the job-related skills that allow for independence.

(3) Energy Supply and Conservation: While conservation is an important part of any overall energy strategy, we urge an emphasis on expanding domestic production. If industrial energy use had risen proportionate to the rise in industrial output of recent years, we would today face a need equivalent to importing five million more barrels a day. Industry has responded to the imperative of more efficient energy use; now, the growth imperative is increased domestic production. We urge opening of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to leasing, opening of offshore sites to exploration and development and opening to exploration of lands under current control of the Bureau of Land Management, but not found suitable for Wilderness designation. These steps can be undertaken in an environmentally responsible way; they should be.

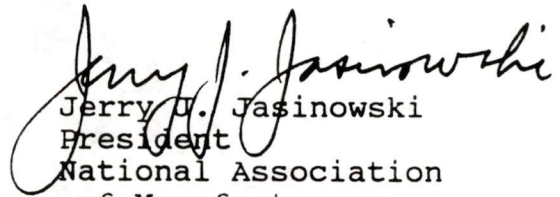

(4) Technological Improvement and R&D Incentives: The heart of our ability to grow is our ability to innovate. Among many American manufacturers, R&D continues apace despite the uncertainty, even the outright disincentives, created by some aspects of federal policy. One such is tax policy, which allows for R&D tax credits only through a series of "iffy" temporary extensions that frustrate corporate efforts at long term planning. The credit should be made permanent. In addition, we urge the Administration to significantly increase funding for non-defense R&D spending.

(5) Liability and Regulatory Reform: A final area involves impediments to growth found in escalating regulatory constraints and the related costs and uncertainty due to liability exposure. The tangle of product liability laws makes potential liability a larger factor in new product decisions than the potential good the products may do. It is essential that our product liability laws be reformed as part of an Administration effort to broadly reduce regulatory and related burdens.

There are other important elements of an economic growth package, Mr. President, such as a supportive monetary policy and financial reforms that you and your advisers are already stressing and considering. We are supportive of such efforts in general and believe the important point is that economic growth be emphasized as the overarching theme.

While there are obstacles to growth, there is also a powerful appetite for it among Americans. None of those obstacles can stand permanently against concerted Presidential leadership. Yours will have our support.

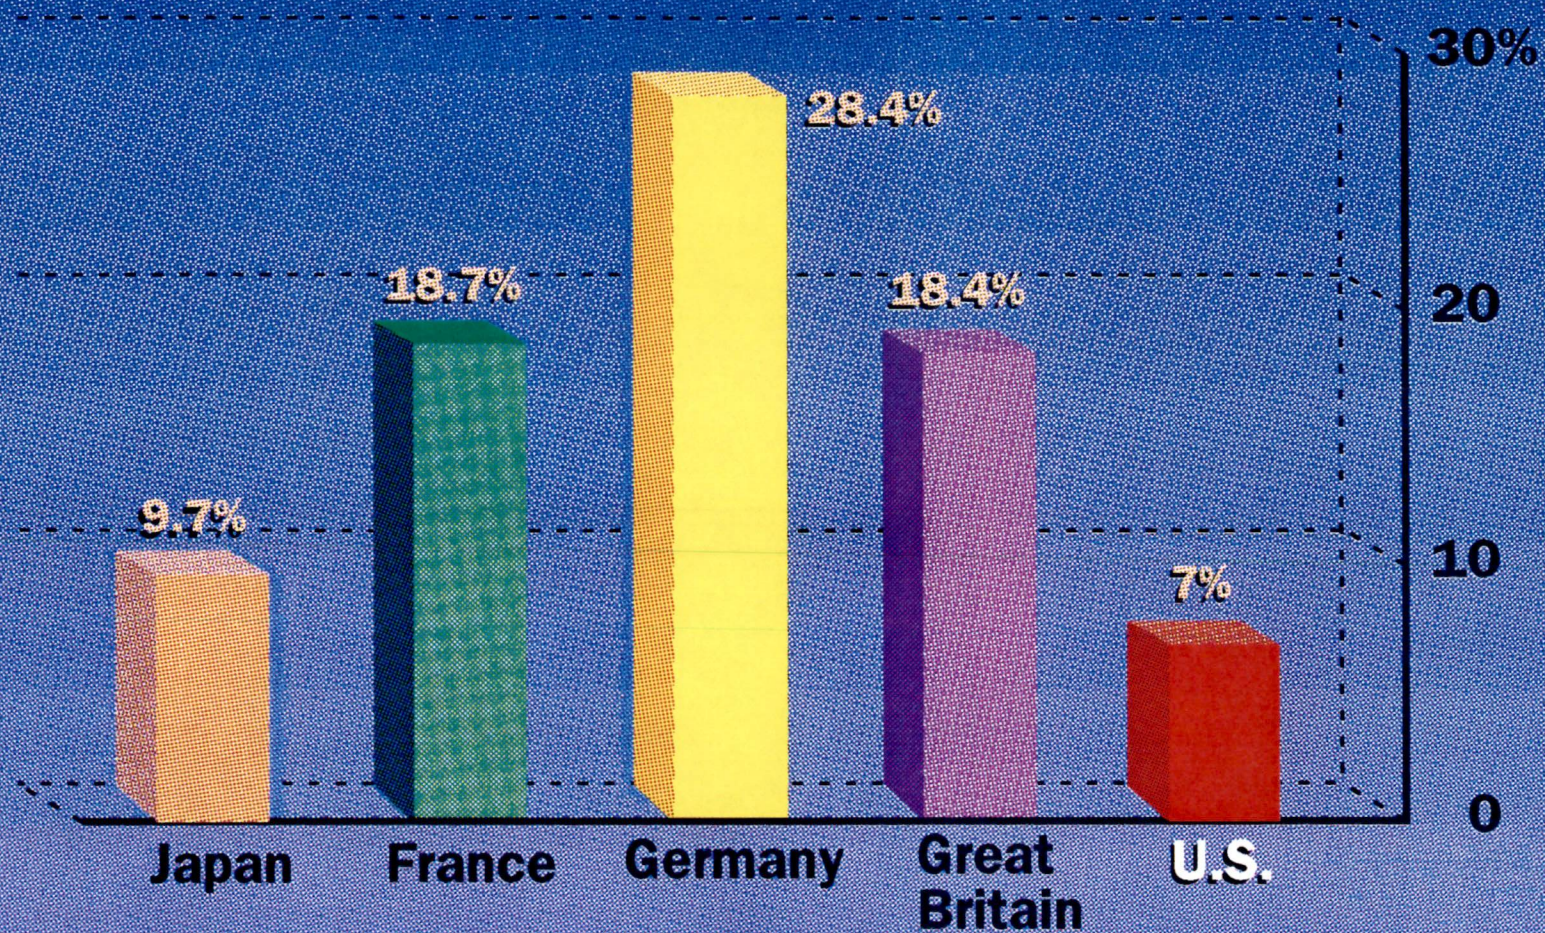

Sincerely,

Jerry D. Jasinowski

MEMORANDUM FOR LINDA CASEY

FROM: DANIEL CASSE Dac
ASSOCIATE DIRECTOR, OFFICE OF CABINET AFFAIRS

SUBJECT: Kirt ~~Josefek~~ Correspondence with Secretary
Sullivan

You may recall that last October, Andy Card was copied on a letter from Kirt Josefek to Secretary Sullivan requesting a meeting between the Secretary and the American Chiropractic Association (attached).

Dr. Sullivan's office has been in touch with Dr. Josefek, and they have referred his letter to the most appropriate officials in the Department. I attach a November 29th letter from J. Jarrett Clinton, the Acting Administrator of the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, inviting Josefek to a set up a meeting.

Please let me know if you need any further information about this correspondence.

Dear Dr. Josefek:

I am responding to your October 24 letter to Secretary Sullivan requesting an appointment to discuss various issues of concern to the American chiropractic community. Dr. Sullivan's schedule precludes an opportunity to meet you but I would be pleased to discuss these issues with you and your colleagues. Further, I will arrange for representatives from the Bureau of Health Professions, Health Resources and Services Administration, to join us. The Bureau has primary responsibility for health professional training and related educational issues.

Our component of the Public Health Service, the Agency for Health Care Policy and Research, was created in 1989 to respond to some of the issues raised in your letter. Our specific purpose is to improve the quality, effectiveness and efficiency of health care services and to promote more complete access to care. We predominately develop and manage a broadly based research program.

During the course of our conversation with several health professional groups we have been able to incorporate chiropractic medicine into the outcomes oriented research on low back pain, currently underway at the University of Washington. Further, we plan to discuss our programs with the National Institute of Chiropractic Research and have outlined our program to the Acting Executive Vice President of the American Chiropractic Association. To further this dialogue, we would welcome meeting you and your colleagues.

Please have your staff call my secretary, Ms. Serena Toro, on 301-443-5650 to set up an appropriate time.

Sincerely,

/s/ J. Jarrett Clinton, M.D.

Dr. Louis Sullivan
Secretary of Health and Human Resources

Dear Dr. Sullivan:

Most likely unbeknownst to you, I wrote over a year ago respectfully requesting a meeting of you, myself and two or three representatives of the American Chiropractic Association. That letter was precipitated by your June 4, 1989 visit to Boston in which we introduced ourselves to you.

Please accept this letter as a second formal request to schedule a such a meeting. The leaders of the A.C.A. which were to meet with you previously have somewhat changed due to the length of time that has elapsed. However, when an appointment can be scheduled the appropriate names will be submitted well in advance.

We would like to have somewhat of an open forum to discuss chiropractic as it relates to your agency as well as the ever growing chiropractor patient population. In particular, we would like to discuss now our profession can serve you and H.H.S.

I have enclosed a copy of the original letter and hope that this one finds you available to meet with us as soon as possible.

We will make ourselves available to accommodate to your schedule.

Thank you for your time and consideration and your anticipated response.

Respectfully,

Kirt L. Josefek, D.C.
