Re: Ming T. Tsuang, M.D., Ph.D.

Dear Andy:

APR 26 1991

I am writing to inform you of my interest in and support for the candidacy of Ming T. Tsuang, M.D., Ph.D., for the position of Director, National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH). NIMH is one of the main institutes of the Alcohol, Drug Abuse, and Mental Health Administration (ADAMHA), administered by Frederick Goodwin, M.D., who reports to Louis Sullivan, M.D., Secretary of Health and Human Services. Dr. Tsuang is among the list of distinguished candidates who will be interviewed by the NIMH Search Committee in the near future.

Dr. Tsuang has a distinguished record as a clinician, teacher, researcher, and administrator and has served in these capacities in a variety of private, state, and Federal mental health care settings. He is one of the leading researchers in this country in the field of mental health, with a truly international reputation for his research in schizophrenia and other major psychiatric disorders. He was recruited by Harvard University as a full professor in 1985, when he became Chief of the Psychiatry Service at the Brockton/West Roxbury VA Medical Center.

The Brockton/West Roxbury VA Medical Center is a large and important center for the medical and psychiatric treatment of veterans in southeastern New England. It has two division hospitals (at Brockton and West Roxbury, Massachusetts, separated by a distance of over 20 miles), a separate outpatient clinic at Worcester, Massachusetts, and two free-standing clinical outreach centers. Dr. Tsuang chairs the Mental Health and Behavioral Sciences Council, which sets policy and coordinates services by psychiatry, psychology, social work, nursing, recreation, rehabilitation, and allied clinical services. The Psychiatry Service offers a full range of clinical, teaching and research activities in affiliation with Harvard Medical School. Clinical services include inpatient treatment for mental illness and substance abuse (over 340 beds), the experimental Intensive Psychiatric Community Care program of services for veterans with chronic mental illnesses, and a diversity of outpatient programs. There are over 88,000 annual visits for outpatient care and over 4,000 annual emergency walk-in visits. The total operating budget for clinical mental health programs exceeds $22 million, of which $18 million is in direct operating expenses. There are 420 full-time regular staff and 25 regular part-time staff doing clinical work and supporting mental health activities within the services participating in the Mental Health and Behavioral Sciences Council. Within the Psychiatry Service itself, there are 80 regular clinical and administrative staff, including 26 psychiatrists and 16 psychiatric residents (psychiatrists in training).

At Harvard University, Dr. Tsuang plays a key role in coordinating and administering a variety of clinical, training, and research activities. For example, he serves on the Subcommittee of Professors for Harvard Medical School, which is the main body concerned with professors' appointments. He directs the Harvard Program in Psychiatric Epidemiology, which studies the risk for and prevention of mental disorders, and chairs the Research Committee of the Harvard Joint Departments of Psychiatry, a research consortium of six Harvard Medical School psychiatric institutions. From 1986 to 1990 he served as Chairman of the Mental Health Policy Working Group, Harvard University Division of Health Policy, Research, and Education; a joint program of three Harvard Schools: Medicine, Public Health, and the John F. Kennedy School of Government.

Dr. Tsuang is also experienced at the national level in the formulation and implementation of mental health policy. He has served on a number of national committees in the VA and at NIMH, and chaired the NIMH Epidemiologic Studies Research Review Committee from 1989 - 1990. This committee reviews grant proposals concerned with studying mental health services, the occurrence of psychiatric disorders in various populations, and the search for the causes of these disorders. Currently, he is a member of Extramural Science Advisory Board, the primary advisory board to the Director of NIMH. Likewise, within the VA he serves on the VA Medical Research Service Planning Council, the primary advisory board for the Director of the Veterans Health Services and Research Administration.

Within the scientific community, Dr. Tsuang is well known for his pioneering research in schizophrenia and other major psychiatric disorders, including manic-depressive illness, alcoholism, and drug abuse. His work has been highly valued for its contribution to the basic scientific understanding of the course and outcome of these disorders, and for helping to establish objective diagnostic criteria that have been the foundation for much of the recent progress in this area. He has undertaken studies of families with schizophrenia and other psychiatric disorders, and is an expert in the rapidly developing field of psychiatric genetics, which is concerned with studying the hereditary causes of mental disorders and their interactions with environmental factors. His scientific work has been honored by a number of prestigious national awards, including the First Prize Clinical Research Award (American Academy of Clinical Psychiatrists, 1983); the Rema Lapouse Award for Mental Health Epidemiology (American Public Health Association, 1984); and the Stanley Dean Award for Basic Research in Schizophrenia (1989). The Dean Award is sponsored jointly by the American College of Psychiatrists and by the Fund for the Behavioral Sciences, and is given annually in recognition of major research accomplishments in the behavioral sciences contributing to our basic understanding of schizophrenia.

A distinguishing feature of Dr. Tsuang's career, which would serve him well as Director of NIMH, is his extensive experience in international scientific and medical settings. In addition to his medical and psychiatric training in Taiwan, he studied at a number of internationally-respected programs at the University of London. He received a Ph.D. in Psychiatry from the University of London, and subsequently participated as an investigator in the landmark International Pilot Study of Schizophrenia. This study, which was sponsored by the World Health Organization in nine countries (England, Denmark, the USA, Czechoslovakia, the USSR, Colombia, Taiwan, India, and Nigeria), was the first systematic attempt to determine whether schizophrenia could be identified throughout the world using standardized assessments of patients and objective diagnostic criteria. The project did demonstrate that schizophrenia defined in this manner could be reliably observed throughout the world, and set the standard for all scientifically-acceptable psychiatric research that followed. At the University of Iowa, Dr. Tsuang headed a major NIMH-funded project that traced patients from psychiatric hospitalization to determine the course and outcome of their illness 30 to 40 years later. Over 98% of the patients were successfully traced, and large numbers of families were also studied to examine the hereditary and environmental context of the illness. Dr. Tsuang's post-doctoral research expertise and accomplishments were recognized in 1981 by the awarding of the Doctor of Science in Psychiatric Epidemiology and Genetics by the Faculty of Science of the University of London. Over the years, he has continued to play a leading role in international psychiatric scholarship and research. With his demonstrated international experience and connections, Dr. Tsuang would be ideally suited to leading NIMH during an outward-looking era of international cooperation in mental health.

In summary, Dr. Tsuang has the scientific background and breadth of leadership experience needed to be an outstanding Director of NIMH. He has held positions of increasing seniority and responsibility in a variety of private, state, and Federal institutions, and in addition has an extensive international background. His appointment as Director would strengthen the scientific reputation of NIMH, both within our country and abroad. Dr. Tsuang has a proven record of government service from his years of directing mental health services at the Brockton/West Roxbury VA Medical Center, and a knowledge of the inner workings of governmental agencies at the local, regional, and national levels. In short, he has the personal and professional qualities, and commitment to government service, needed to be a highly successful Director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

For your information, I have enclosed a copy of Dr. Tsuang's curriculum vitae and additional supporting material. Please contact me if you would like additional information concerning Dr. Tsuang and his qualifications for this important position.

Sincerely yours,

John Spillane

Dear Andy:

I'm dropping you this note to express my appreciation for allowing me to take you + Bruce fishing the other day. Even though the fish were not too cooperative, it was fun just to get out on the water.

I have enclosed a fishing "trophy" picture for your fishing expedition wall of fame. I know it is not on the level of a Teddy Roosevelt expedition, but we did not have to fight off mad charging elephants either.

The other item enclosed is of utmost importance. It provides strategic steps on how to become a world class professional bass fisherman. It not only provides helpful hints on how to dress and act like a fisherman, but most important - how to tell "Fish Stories."

It is of no consequence whether you catch a fish or the size of the fish, what counts is how the story is told. All legendary professional bass fishermen (many have used this book) work as hard on their stories as they do on their casting.

Andy I enjoyed fishing with you.
Good fishing in the future.

Dear Andy:

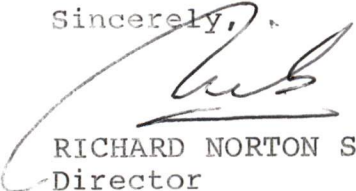

I have been remiss in not writing, since I had heard through the grapevine that you may have been at least partly responsible for putting Bill Weld in touch with me when the Governor-elect was looking for someone to work on his inaugural address. While I wish you were the one making the speech, still it was an interesting experience.

On another front, I hope there is someone at the White House these days thinking ahead to the Bush Library. Having done some consulting on the Reagan Library, and spent last year doing double duty for the Archives, running Eisenhower as well as Hoover, it may be that I have presidential libraries on the brain. Be that as it may, someone there ought to make sure that you get ahold of the tent in which General Schwarzkopf met with his Iraqi counterparts to conclude the war. It would make a fantastic centerpiece for a museum display on the conflict - especially with a voice-over from the President describing in his own words how he felt at the moment he learned of the ceasefire.

Hope all else is well with you. These must be extraordinarily exciting days at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue. Even from a distance, I keep my hand in a bit, doing some speechwriting for both the Quayles and, most recently, Mary Howell's intro for Governor Sununu. Let me add my humble amen to the chorus of approval for all you are doing. It's a great time to be an American (and a Republican).

Re: Autograph for William E. Dorn

Dear Andy:

I spoke to Linda concerning the enclosed photograph of Bill Dorn lighting up a victory cigar on November 6, 1990. Bill, as you know, is a lifelong democrat, served on the School Committee in Holbrook and was extremely important in orchestrating our victory on November 6. In addition, he is a big fan of yours and hopes at some point he'll have you back in Massachusetts running for office. You can be assured that he'll be an extremely dedicated campaign worker.

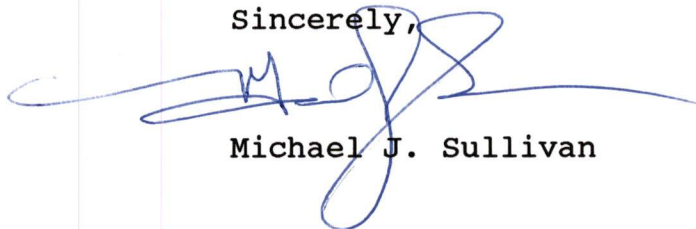

Bill, during the course of the campaign, always had a cigar in his mouth but never lit it. He promised that he would have an opportunity to light up the cigar on election evening, and he did. This was captured by a photographer from the Brockton Enterprise and appeared in The Enterprise a day or two after the election. The picture won an award for the photographer.

We plan on presenting this photograph to Bill at a function on April 26, 1991 at the Knights of Columbus in Abington. I would be most pleased and appreciative if you would acknowledge your regards to Bill on the photograph, and I know Bill would be honored. Should you need any additional information concerning the photograph or about Bill Dorn, please feel free to give me a call. Also, if you happen to be in the area on April 26, you are most welcome to attend and participate in our function at the Knights of Columbus.

Again, let me thank you for all of your support and encouragement during the course of our campaign and since. I am most proud to represent the Seventh Plymouth District. Your strong endorsement, advice and participation in the District went a long way towards our success. Without it, I am confident that we would be on the outside looking in. I am enjoying the challenges, though I wish the economic picture was brighter. My best to you and your family.

Leaders praise Hemet man's song

by CONSTANCE A. WELLS

Hemet News staff writer

"It's goin' hucklebuck!" That's how George Byer of Hemet describes the success of his song "A Hero."

Currently, the Marines Combat Center Band at Twentynine Palms is putting it to music. U.S. Marine Corps Brig. Gen. J.E. Livingston, said the song is "genuinely moving ... It's difficult to express just how much your encouraging words mean to us. Every Marine, sailor, and family member aboard the combat center is grateful for the support we've received from wonderful people such as yourself."

Voice of America calls it very touching and has passed the song along to VOA's music library which made it available to the broadcasters for use in their programs.

Air Force Col. John M. McBroom said "the words in your song surround the theme of what we are all capable of if we only try hard enough — in our daily lives, in peace, or in war if necessary."

Eyer said the inspiration for the song came "one day in the jungle of the South Pacific during World War II. It rained for weeks and weeks.

Then one day, under cathedral-like foliage, the sun broke through. I remembered that forever."

Byer said he wrote the song some time later and "fiddled around with it" but really hadn't done anything with it until recently, when the war in the Persian Gulf brought back the old feelings he had as a soldier.

"We had nothing there," Byer said of his own wartime experiences, "and I wanted to give something to soldiers that they could have, that could give them personal self-satisfaction, make them realize what they can achieve."

So he put together his song and sent it into the American Song Festival "and they gave me an award," for excellence in creative writing, originality, technical skill and talent in composition. The song was sent to the armed forces in the Persian Gulf.

Byer said he received a nice letter from Congressman Jerry Lewis of California's District 35. He recently got a letter from Tansill R. Johnson, chief community relations office of public affairs at Washington D.C., thanking Byer for his patriotism and notifying him that his lyrics would be submitted to the U.S. Army Band

"Pershing's Own" for evaluation and consideration by the band's composing and arranging staff.

Byer said he hopes to get the Twentynine Palms band to lead the Hollywood's Welcome Home Desert Storm Parade in May with his song. In preparation for that event, Byer has written to Johnny Grand, parade creator and producer.

"To be all alone in their thinking, to hear in the distance, the beat of a drum — Then conquer the walls so forbidden, When others turn their backs and run ... A Hero who's taken whatever life has to offer, And tried again, where they've lost before;" These are the words of "A Hero," and the verses end with Byer's recollection of the sunlight piercing the jungle of WWII "Somewhere through the clouds, comes the sun, To glory the Hero they've been — They've fought the good fight in their role, There's no denying their life, with a right to the win. . ."

Byer said he isn't looking for fame, just "morale-boosting for vets." Of the good reception the song has had so far, he said simply, "I guess I put some pretty good adjectives in there."

APRIL 10, 1991...DEAR FRIEND ANDY-

WE WANTED TO SHARE MR. BYER'S LETTER TO THE PRESIDENT REGARDING HIS WRITING THE AWARD WINNING SONG "A HERO" AND THE VERY GOOD ARTICLE THAT APPEARED IN THE HEMET NEWS.

NOW MORE THAN EVER, FOR WHAT HE HAS DONE AND IS DOING MR. BYER DESERVES HIS RIGHTFUL RECOGNITION AND APPRECIATION WITH THE MEDAL OF FREEDOM AWARD.

The Associated Press

OSLO, Norway

A Norwegian legislator yesterday said he has nominated President Bush for the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize for standing up to Saddam Hussein's "threats against the whole world community."

Vidar Kleppe of the right-wing Party of Progress said Bush, by leading allied forces against Iraq, "stepped into the front line in the fight against oppression, torture and totalitarian acts against human dignity."

As an elected member of a national assembly, Kleppe has the right to nominate a peace prize candidate.

FAX-I-202-456-2461

Dear Friend Mr. President-

We share a common recognition, in that both of us have been nominated for the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize. And your deserving nomination for defending the threats against the whole world community by Saddam Hussein, gave me the incentive to write the Award Winning Song..."A Hero"

The song expresses the indomitable courage, the inspiring dedication to patriotic principles and that great potential in the confident spirit of the heroic men and women, of Operation Desert Storm, of whom General Schwarzkopf said, "Every One Of 'Em's A Hero"

Dear Madam Chairperson:

I am recommending George H. Byer, to you as a candidate for the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize.

George H. Byer is a visionary who believes in the future of international relations and cooperation through friendship. He is the founder and director of the National and International Friendship Week held annually June 22-28th. His latest initiative, is the worldwide "Friendship Corps for Children" which is reaching out to children around the world and uniting them with a video of love, friendship and songs. Mr. Byer understands that peace and security requires friendship and a cooperative attitude, as he dedicates his efforts and determination to help further this cooperation and make the planet earth a healthier, safer and a more peaceful place in which to live for all humankind.

As a former Mayor of Anchorage, Alaska, Mr. Byer is looking ahead to the reality of greater international understanding in people to people relations, with the advent of a Bering Strait Bridge linking the Soviet Union with Alaska. Today, the possibility of people crossing the "Friendship Bridge" and "spreading their goodwill as they go", is closer to realization as the area is now being considered for a Bering Strait "International Park".

As one of the architects of world friendship and cooperation, George H. Byer is a worthy candidate for the 1991 Nobel Peace Prize. For, through his untiring efforts in trying to join the children of the world together with a common purpose to unite with others who share the planet, it is his hope that today's efforts will help to create a more cooperative and peaceful world for tomorrow.

Thank you for your thoughtful consideration.

I have been following your career and successes since I worked for you in the House Republican Leadership. Over these past many years I have been meaning to drop a note of congratulations to you, however, I must admit that is one of many notes and letters to various people I have not yet written.

I therefore find myself in this awkward situation. That is, writing to ask you for a recommendation when I have yet to write a note of congratulations. I hope that you will accept my belated congratulations.

The Weld/Cellucci Administration is presently in the process of appointing new Secretaries and Commissioners and removing political appointees of the former administration. I am very interested in continuing to work and make a contribution in my present capacity, however, the Administration has just released a memorandum that states all senior level positions must be approved by the Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

While I knew the Lieutenant Governor while he served with you in the House, I did not know if he would remember me after all these years. A recommendation from you would certainly be extremely beneficial and I would be very grateful.

Since leaving the House Republican Leadership, I have continued to work in the Massachusetts State Government both with Bob Powilatis at the Auditor's Office and more recently with Ralph Nee in the Division of Capital Planning & Operations. I have enclosed a copy of my resume to provide you with a detailed outline of my public service experience.

I would respectfully request a recommendation from you to the Weld/Cellucci administration.

Thank you.

Sincerely:

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "Michael D. Sullivan".

EPA, ASSISTANT ADMINISTRATOR FOR POLICY,
PLANNING AND EVALUATION

I enjoyed meeting with you in January, and in spite of your relentless schedule, I am looking forward to another opportunity sometime to talk with you about environmental issues again.

I appreciate your vote of confidence concerning my qualifications for the Assistant Administrator for Policy, Planning and Evaluation, and I appreciate your forwarding my resume to Chase Untermeyer. I want to continue to work on environmental policy for President Bush, and this office is critical for EPA and the Administration in the area of regulations, climate, economic policy to name just a few key areas.

Allan Bromley has been very supportive and enthusiastic concerning my candidacy for this position and contacted Bill Reilly. Thursday, I interviewed with Bill Reilly for this position, and I am encouraged. I understand I am one of two candidates with whom he has granted interviews. I believe that if he knew of your interest in me for the position through a telephone call or a letter, in addition to Dr. Bromley's strong support, it would make the difference.

I would very much appreciate your thoughts on this, and again, I really enjoyed talking with you, and look forward to talking with you again.

EXPERIENCE

October 1990 to present

SENIOR POLICY ANALYST, The White House, Office of the President's Science Advisor, Dr. D. Allan Bromley, for environmental issues. Responsibilities include global climate change policy issues and risk assessment and risk management issues.

November 1989 to October 1990

SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE ASSISTANT ADMINISTRATOR, Office of Policy, Planning and Evaluation, U.S. EPA, handling work of a confidential nature, and participating in the analysis, development and evaluation of environmental policy and the process of communicating policy information.

July 1989 to October 1989

CONSULTANT, in local government environmental planning, including acting as Administrator for the Lake Tawakoni Planning Commission, Hunt County, Texas. Responsibility for implementation of an unprecedented state statute, permitting county zoning in the lake area, including the development of a comprehensive land use plan and zoning ordinance. Other work included assisting in the construction of a local ordinance for the disposal of low-level radioactive waste and hazardous waste.

October 1988 to May 1989

TEACHING ASSISTANT, The University of Texas at Dallas in the Environmental Sciences Department, while completing my dissertation and doctoral study.

October 1987 to October 1988

LEGAL RESEARCH, Thompson and Knight law firm, Dallas, Texas. Extensive work with Superfund and RCRA matters, including work with major PRP committees on Superfund sites in EPA Region 6. I was the lead researcher in the firm of 200 on local zoning and ordinance opinions. I also researched ARAR's criteria and decisions for presentation to the Texas State Bar.

March 1986 to September 1987

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANT TO THE CITY MANAGER, City of McKinney (pop. 20,000). My duties included handling special projects for the city manager, including grant administrations, writing ordinances, and city policies. I also conducted a major investigation of a gas utility for the City.

April 1985 to October 1985

ASSISTANT TO THE CITY MANAGER, OMBUDSMAN/PUBLIC INFORMATION/LEGISLATIVE LIAISON, City of Chesapeake, Virginia. My responsibilities included taking and handling complaints for the city manager, and designing and implementing a public information campaign. (I was selected from a field of over 400 applicants.)

March 1979 to April 1985

EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT, Seaguard Corporation, Portsmouth, Virginia. Seaguard was a manufacturer of marine and shipbottom coatings, mil-spec anti-fouling coatings and epoxies. I was liaison to all governmental agencies and responsible for compliance with all environmental regulations. The implementation of RCRA, cradle-to-grave regulations began in November 1980, and I was responsible for developing a compliance program for the company. I was contract administrator and bid and estimated all GSA and major U.S. Navy proposals.

PROFESSIONAL ACTIVITIES

DURING BUSH CAMPAIGN

President, Grayson County Republican Women's Club Jan - Dec, 1988.

Set up Bush Phone Bank for the County and staffed with volunteers. Distributed Bush campaign material through members and placed every Bush sign available throughout the county. (The Democrat Vice-Presidential candidate, Bentsen, made two visits to our county during the campaign, so we made concerted efforts to make the Bush campaign visible.)

Assisted in the start-up of the Grayson County Republican Men's Club. 1987-1988.

Traveled throughout east Texas to meet the Bush surrogate campaign representatives (including George Bush, Jr.), and supported them on every trip made in east Texas.

Delegate to the Grayson County Republican Convention.

Campaign Manager for the Randy Sutton for Congress campaign. I helped to organize the eleven county Fourth Congressional District with County Chairmen in every county and dozens of "coffees" and fundraisers throughout the campaign. The Randy Sutton campaign publicly announced the support of George Bush for President before the Republican Convention.

PRIOR REPUBLICAN ACTIVITIES

Virginia:

Supported Republican National Committee activities.

Supported the Sen. John Warner campaigns and attended events.

North Carolina:

Campaigned for my grandmother in her race for State Senate in the late 1960's. She was also N.C. State Republican Women's Club President, N.C. State Republican Party Vice-Chair and worked on Nixon for President campaign in the 1960's.

NOTE TO ANDY CARD

FROM: VICKIE V. SUTTON
SUBJECT: JANUARY 4TH MEETING

I enjoyed meeting with you last week, and I certainly appreciated the time you took to discuss political, environmental, and other issues with me. You had asked that I follow up with a note after our meeting on Friday, which I am pleased to do.

My interest, as we discussed, is to be as helpful as I possibly can be to President George Bush and the Administration. I cannot tell you how much I have enjoyed every opportunity I have received to lend my support to President Bush both before the campaign in Texas and after the campaign at both EPA and the Office of Science and Technology Policy.

In our meeting, I mentioned that the policy office at EPA would soon be changing. Terry Davies "officially" announced yesterday he would be leaving as Assistant Administrator of the Office of Policy, Planning and Evaluation on March 1, 1991. This would very likely open up the Deputy Assistant Administrator position as well. Although I know that Bill Reilly and his Chief of Staff, Gordon Binder are very receptive to your recommendations; the Assistant Administrator position has been historically an especially close position to the Administrator in part because it provides Agency direction and cuts across every EPA program and every regulation. As you know, Terry Davies was a long-time friend of Bill Reilly. I have a had very good working relationship with both Terry Davies and Bill Reilly, and if there is an opportunity to consider someone from the Bush team, and you think it is appropriate, I would certainly like to be considered.

I would very much appreciate your thoughts on this, and again, I really enjoyed talking with you. I know how very busy you are and your sincerity and interest was very much noted and appreciated.

Dear Mr. Card:

A quick, yet belated thanks to you for arranging the meeting between Commissioner Watts and Governor Sununu a couple of weeks ago. It was a great thrill for both of us, and an historic day to be in the White House!

On a more personal note, I knew I should know your name when we met, and it took me a few days to piece it together. Now, I can say what an honor it was to meet the man responsible for one of the winning issues of the 1988 Presidential race! I've read your name in a couple of books including Germond's and Paul Taylor's. I wish I had placed it that day...I would have loved to have heard more of your perspective on the race, if time had permitted. Perhaps another day.

Let me repeat to you our commitment to help in any way toward the President's re-election. We're proud of the job you are doing, and it must continue.

Thanks again. We hope to hear from you again!

Dear Andy:

It is great to be in such a positive environment; things with President Bush and Vice President Quayle as well as Governor Weld and Lieutenant Governor Cellucci are going so well - even though we are in tough times.

A plan of school choice, a cornerstone of the Administration's education policy, is being implemented in Massachusetts due to the initiative of the Weld Administration. I have been pleased to work with Jim Harrington, Bill and Paul's education advisor, on the choice initiative, as well as with officials in New Hampshire and Maine, two other states with pending choice legislation.

On May 4, 1991, Barbara Bush is scheduled to speak at Framingham State College's Christa Corrigan McAuliffe Dinner in Newton (see enclosure). ~~If you could arrange for me to be included in her party (much as I was when Vice President Quayle came to Boston), as a representative of the Administration, I would be most appreciative.~~

Steve McAuliffe (Christa's husband) and I went to high school together and he participated in the conference this office sponsored in Concord, New Hampshire last fall, as did Grace Corrigan, Christa's mother.

I thought you might enjoy reading the enclosed story about Andrew Natsios.

Thanks for all your help and encouragement.

Sincerely,

Natsios Writes From Kuwait City

MILFORD
NEWS
~3/13/6

HOLLISTON — Major Andrew Natsios is now in Kuwait City, according to word received by the local Legion Post.

Natsios, a former state representative, past chairman of the Massachusetts Republican state committee, and currently the holder of a cabinet post in the Bush administration as Director of the Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance, was called to active duty when his reserve unit, the 352nd Civil Affairs Command, was activated in December.

He arrived in Saudi Arabia at the beginning of February.

His letter to the Holliston Legion post was dated Feb. 28. It read:

"Your card was the first mail I received from Holliston. It arrived at the right time as I was getting homesick — for Holliston particularly. All of us over here appreciate all the support we have gotten back home.

"As Saddam Hussein has just discovered, the morale of the soldiers is more important than anything else. Their morale was terrible; our morale has been excellent thanks to all the support from America. They gave up because they didn't believe in what they were fighting for. We knew why we were here and were victorious — with virtually no casualties.

"Many of us saw the Iraqi armies arrayed against us and thought we might lose 10,000 killed in action to defeat them. The President promised this wouldn't be another Vietnam — where our troops were there too long, our political leaders interfered in military matters they didn't understand, and the country was divided. We are glad it's over and Kuwait is free.

"My work begins now. I leave today for Kuwait City where we begin to restore some essential services — food, water, medical care and shelter.

"What the Iraqis did to the Kuwait people is unimaginable. The atrocities against children I have seen reports about are so brutal and barbaric that the President's comment that the Hussein regime is comparable to the Nazi's is quite accurate.

"I did appreciate your card. Thanks again.

"P.S. That Scud that killed those 27 soldiers earlier this week fell 600 feet from the office I worked in while I was stationed there for a week. It was unnerving."

In his assignment in Kuwait City, Natsios will be able to draw on experts in every field needed for the restoration of Kuwait.

Natsios' wife, Elizabeth, told the Daily News last month that she had no idea how long he will be gone, "because his work will really begin with the end of the war."

In his post as director of the Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance, Natsios has already traveled all over the world, setting up disaster assistance units in response to catastrophes both natural and man-made.

Some of the countries he has worked in are North Africa, Ethiopia, the Sudan, Egypt, Kenya, Ganda, Angola, South Africa, Libya, Mozambique, Panama, Costa Rica and Guatemala.

Last November he spent 10 days in the Soviet Union at the invitation of the Soviet government to help them organize a disaster relief program. The Russians with whom he worked at that time came to Washington for further consultation, but their scheduled arrival came just as Natsios left for Saudi Arabia.

The 40-year-old legislator/teacher/federal official/military man now lives in Silver Springs, Md. with his wife and three children, Emily, 11, Alexander, 8 and Philip, 4. But the family still calls Holliston home and plans to return to their homestead here one day.

Dear Andy:

Once again I wish to thank you for delivering the inaugural Wadsworth Lecture at Mount Ida College. It was very helpful in laying the groundwork for an understanding of what was to follow in the Persian Gulf. I personally appreciated your methodical, well organized, step by step building of the the case for America's presence in the region.

Enclosed is a small photo album as a memento of the occasion. We hope you will enjoy having this as a reminder of your time with us and the occasion of your receiving an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from the College. For our part, we shall always fondly remember your visit with us. I will personally treasure the time and the photos will be a reminder of this special occasion.

Thank you again for accepting our invitation. If I may be of any service to you in the future, please feel free to call upon me.

Wheelock College president to step down in September

By Anthony Flint
GLOBE STAFF

Daniel S. Cheever, scion of a long line of Yankee schoolmasters and a leading figure in the Boston educational community, will step down as president of Wheelock College Sept. 1.

Cheever, 48, will join the international executive search firm of Heidrick and Struggles Inc., remaining in Boston and specializing in presidential searches for both public and private colleges and universities.

A former superintendent of the Lincoln and Weston schools who has served as Wheelock president since 1983, Cheever has himself been the focus of recent presidential searches. He was approached about the headmaster's job at Milton Academy and was touted as a dark-horse possibility for the Harvard presidency.

"I feel I've accomplished the job I was given to do, which was to help a very good college reverse some of the declines of the 1970s and early '80s and become better established," Cheever said of his career at Wheelock in an interview yesterday.

"After 18 years as a chief executive at schools and colleges, we decided it was time for us to do something different," Cheever said, speaking of a decision made jointly with his wife, Abigail.

"Also, I think it's the point where Wheelock is ready for new blood and fresh perspective," he said.

Wheelock College, a 103-year-old, 1,200-student coeducational institution in the Fenway specializing in teacher training, early childhood education and day-care administration, has prospered under Cheever. Before his arrival, the college had suffered from enrollment declines, faculty layoffs and low morale.

In the years since Cheever's appointment as president, undergraduate enrollment has increased 60 percent and postgraduate enrollment has doubled. The college's endowment has risen from $1.5 million to $7.5 million during his tenure. The student population has also become more diverse; increased diversity was one of Cheever's main goals.

"Dan is leaving us a splendid legacy, namely a vigorous institution with a clear and relevant mission, an exceptionally well-qualified faculty and staff, a commitment to diversity ... and a solid financial structure," said Ted Ladd, chairman of Wheelock's Board of Trustees.

Ladd said a search committee to select Cheever's successor will be assembled soon. In that regard, Wheelock will join several other area institutions, including Harvard, Brandeis and Bentley College, all of which are seeking new presidents.

While Cheever has not cut the highest profile among area college presidents, he is well known in academic and education circles. He has been a prolific commentator on the state of the nation's schools and on early childhood education.

Cheever served as chairman of the Boston Plan for Excellence and of the Education Resource Institute. Former US Education Secretary William Bennett named him to a national commission to study the nation's elementary education system.

Cheever also served on the state Joint Task Force on Teacher Preparation, which recommended eliminating the undergraduate education major for teachers and requiring a liberal arts education and a master's in education instead. That is currently Wheelock's approach, and teacher certification in Massachusetts will require those steps starting next year.

A 1964 graduate of Harvard who also received a master's and doctoral degree in education there, Cheever taught in experimental integrated schools in North Carolina and Philadelphia before becoming superintendent of Lincoln schools in 1970. He later became chief of the Weston schools before joining Wheelock.

Cheever comes from a long line of prominent figures in education, philanthropy and politics. His ancestor, Ezekiel Cheever, founded Boston Latin in the 1600s. Former Gov. Francis Sargent is a cousin.

Dear Andy:

I believe the President has been looking for people in the field of education. I have no connection with Dan Cheever (except he is a very distant relative) but he is one of the brightest people I know. He has been a leader in education ever since he left college. Frankly, I think he will be wasted at Heidrick and Struggles, if that is where he moves.

I suggest that he might be useful to the Administration somewhere in its educational field. Alternatively, he might be of use to Mrs. Bush in her program, "Reading is Fundamental." I assume he is a Democrat but don't know.

I don't normally write you about people outside of politics and though he is a friend, I have never worked with him.

I strongly suggest that for your educational efforts, this man might be very useful.

S. RES. _____

Expressing the sense of the Senate that the United States should take a leadership position in calling for worldwide carbon dioxide emissions reductions at the first meeting of the Intergovernmental Negotiating Committee on a Framework Convention on Climate Change to be held in Washington, D.C. on February 4th - 14th, 1991.

IN THE SENATE OF THE UNITED STATES

January __, 1991

Mr. Mitchell (for himself, and Mr. _____.) submitted the following resolution, which was _____

RESOLUTION

Whereas, human activities substantially increase the atmospheric concentrations of the greenhouse gases: carbon dioxide, methane, chlorofluorocarbons and nitrous oxide;

Whereas, an increase in the concentration of greenhouse gases enhances the natural greenhouse effect, resulting on average in an additional warming of the Earth's surface and an excess of radioactive energy available to alter the climate system;

Whereas, carbon dioxide has been responsible for over half the enhanced greenhouse effect in the past, and is likely to remain so in the future;

Whereas, the scientific assessment of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) concluded in August 1990 that under a business-as-usual scenario for emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases, a global warming of five to ten degrees Fahrenheit above pre-industrialized levels is likely by the end of the next century, bringing the Earth to its warmest level in at least 150,000 years;

Whereas, many scientific studies show that rapid global warming would create grave risks of precipitous climate shifts, with effects including extreme heat waves and droughts in agricultural and urban areas, amplified warming at mid and high altitudes, sea level rise and resultant flooding of coastal areas, an increase in the frequency and severity of hurricanes and other extreme weather events, and the potential destruction of forests over broad expanses;

Whereas, environmental stresses of this magnitude have the potential to cause unprecedented agricultural, economic, and social and political disruptions;

Whereas, the Ministerial Declaration of the Second World Climate Conference in November 1990, adopted by more than one hundred governments, including the United States, calls for the negotiation of a treaty to limit climate change in order to protect society and the environment "without further delay based on the best available knowledge" with the ultimate global objective "to stabilize greenhouse gas concentrations at a level that would prevent dangerous anthropogenic interference with climate.";

Whereas, the Declaration further states that "the potentially serious consequences of climate change give sufficient reasons to begin by adopting response strategies even in the face of significant uncertainties.";

Whereas, the United Nations General Assembly has established an Intergovernmental Negotiating Committee for a Framework Convention on Climate Change responsible for negotiating an international climate protection agreement in time for signature at the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development in June 1992;

Whereas, the first negotiation session will be hosted by the United States from February 4th to 14th, 1991;

-3-

Whereas, Germany, Denmark, Austria, Australia, and New Zealand have already proposed to reduce emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases; and that seventeen other countries (Belgium, Canada, Finland, France, Great Britain, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, and Switzerland) have proposed, individually or collectively, to stabilize or reduce their carbon dioxide emissions by the year 2000;

Whereas, the United States emits more carbon dioxide than any other nation and has the highest per capita emissions of carbon dioxide;

Whereas, a large fraction of the emissions of carbon dioxide from the United States could be controlled at a savings, no cost, or low cost and that such measures would contribute to the competitiveness of American business and the overall economy;

Whereas, the National Energy Strategy, which has been in preparation for the last eighteen months, presents an opportunity to develop targets for reductions in United States emissions of carbon dioxide and mechanisms for implementing such targets;

Therefore be it resolved, it is the policy of the United States (1) to specify reductions in the national emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases by a date certain, and (2) to assume a leadership position in negotiating an international climate protection treaty that contains specific commitments to reduce emissions of carbon dioxide and the following elements:

- An agreement by industrialized nations to reduce their current emissions of carbon dioxide;
- An agreement by developing nations to limit their growth in carbon dioxide emissions from fossil fuel combustion so that total emissions from the industrialized and developing world are significantly reduced;
- An agreement by all countries to stop the release of carbon dioxide due to deforestation, by preservation of existing forests and reforestation;
- An agreement by all countries to take available steps to cut emissions of other greenhouse gases, including methane;

-4-

- The establishment of an international fund, to help developing countries achieve these objectives;
- The establishment of a mechanism of continuing international cooperation for development of efficient policies for future emissions reductions necessary to meet the objective of stabilizing greenhouse gas emissions at safe levels.

Be it further resolved, that the United States should support, at the February negotiating session, the establishment of a process that will allow negotiations of substantive provisions to accomplish each of these elements, for inclusion in the convention that is to be concluded in June 1992.

MEMORANDUM

November 29, 1990

FROM: John B. Shlaes, NGO, Second World Climate Conference

SUBJECT: Second World Climate Conference, Geneva Switzerland;
October 29 to November 7, 1990

Background:

As the world wide interest in the issue of global climate intensified, promulgated by the international debate the last year and a half, two meetings took place in Geneva in late October and early November that could have had a significant impact on the political outcome of the issue.

These were:

1. Scientific and Technical Conference held from October 29 to November 3, 1990.
2. Ministerial Conference held from November 2 to November 7, 1990.

Both Conferences were part of the Second World Climate Conference and were coordinated by the World Meteorological Organization with the assistance of the U.N.'s United Nations Environmental Programme, the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization and its Intergovernmental Oceanographic Commission; the Food and Agriculture Organization; and the International Council of Scientific Unions.

The meetings took place just three months before the beginning of the International Framework negotiations which will commence in Washington D.C. in February, 1991. This was immediately after the one and a half year long deliberations and study at both Ministerials and the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC). The timing of the Second World Climate Conference had been planned for several years, in fact, preceding the IPCC meetings, however, the meetings did serve as a platform for those who wished to use the conclaves as a forum to promote specific political objectives.

For several countries the Second World Climate Conference was an opportunity to create a "basement" on a variety of issues, anticipating that any decisions by nations at this meeting would then serve as a "starting point" for the upcoming Framework deliberations. For others, especially several of the smaller developing countries, the meeting served as an opportunity to make political comments regarding such issues as sea level rise and technology transfer.

The European community looked at the meeting as a way of clearly and aggressively promoting their newly developed policies of attempting to stabilize CO₂ and greenhouse gases by the year 2000; some members espousing reduction of 20% by the year 2005. The United States, though committed to the "process" of deliberation on these issues, were focused on waiting until "official" deliberations began on the global climate issue through an already designated series of Framework deliberations that would take place in the United States, Switzerland and Kenya in 1991 and 1992, culminating with the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil in June, 1992.

The Science and Technical conference brought together over 700 scientists and technicians from 120 countries with either a scientific background in climate change issues, or some governmental involvement in the issue. The WMO, participating as the secretariat stressed that the meeting was a deliberations of "individuals" with expertise in the field. Though not expressed in any of the literature, the Scientific Conference took on special importance because it was to make a report to the Ministerial Conference that convened two days after the Scientific meeting closed. This gave it's delegate the ability to make a statement regarding not only their scientific views on global warming and related issues, but could also recommend steps to ameliorate perceived world wide environmental degradation, including stabilization. Representatives of Exxon, Shell, Dupont, and the Southern Companies represented the business community at the Science and Technology meeting.

The Ministerial meeting though scheduled for two days, November 6 and 7, in fact was a four and a half day meeting. It was a meeting with two distinct aspects: From Friday, November 2 to Sunday November 5 there were intense negotiations on a draft Ministerial Declaration which was to be the "working document" for the participating Ministers at their November 6 and 7 deliberations. The debate among the 140 countries in attendance over the Draft Declaration was intense and consisted of a 14 hour session on Saturday, November 3, and a 18 hour session on Sunday, November 4. The Ministerial drafting sessions created a "snapshot" of many of the key issues of debate that will arise in upcoming Framework negotiations, and at the same time defined for the observer the nature of some of the coalitions that have developed in relationship to the global climate issue.

The second part of the Ministerial Conference was the formal meeting of Ministers which consisted of heads of state as well as Cabinet Level Ministers. In a desire to get world wide regional participation and high visibility for the meeting the WMO as Secretariat invited and got participation from Great Britain's Margaret Thatcher, Jordan's King Hussein, Malta's Prime Minister Edward Fenech-Adami, France's Prime Minister Michel Rocard and Tuvalu's Prime Minister Bikenibeu Paeniu. The United States was represented by the Undersecretary of Commerce for Ocean and Atmosphere John Knauss. The Heads of State opened Tuesday morning's Ministerial session, but, with the exception of King Hussein, did not stay at the meeting.

Throughout the long period of international discussion on global climate, whether it be an IPCC meeting or a U.N. Ministerial, Non governmental Organizations (known as NGO's) have been represented in sizeable numbers. In the United Nations interpretation, an NGO is an individual representative of an international organization. In recent years at most U.N. meetings, NGO's are usually social service, human resource or environmental organizations. Though business participates periodically under the auspices of the International Chamber of Commerce or some other group, the predominate groups are "non" business. In the case of these global climate meetings, the environmental organizations had broad representation and were large in numbers. A listing of the representation includes:

- Audubon Society
- Australian Conservation Foundation
- Bangladesh Network on Global Climate Change
- Bulle Bleue - France, Morocco
- BUND - FRG
- CASA Japan
- Centro Ecumenico de Documentas E. Informacao - Brazil
- Citizens Alliance to Save the Atmosphere and Earth - Japan
- Climate Action Network - Europe
- CSFR - Czechoslovakia
- Danish Nature Concern
- Deutscher Naturschutzring - FRG
- Environmental Defense Fund
- Environmental Science and Policy Institute
- Friends of the Earth - Canada, Ghana, International, Japan
- Netherlands, UK
- Greenpeace - International, Japan, South Pacific, Switzerland, UK
- Independent Ecological Centre - Budapest
- Instituto Autonomo de Investigaciones Ecologicas, A.C. Mexico
- Kenya Energy & Environmental Organizations
- Lega per L'Ambiente - Italy

Natural Resources Defense Council
Pacific Institute for Studies in Development, Environment and Security
Paeto de Grupos Ecologistos - Mexico
Royal Institute of International Affairs
Sierra Club
Social Ecological Institute - Poland
Swiss Aid Agencies Coalition
Union of Concerned Scientists
University of the Andes - Venezuela
Woods Hole Research Center
World Resources Institute
World Wildlife Fund & The Conservation Foundation
World Wildlife Fund for Nature - International, Switzerland, UK

Business on the other hand who had aggressively attempted to get credentialed for the Ministerial were only able to get four individuals admitted. John Shlaes, of the Edison Electric Institute represented the Global Climate Coalition and the International Chamber of Commerce; Don Pearlman, a Washington, D.C. attorney, represented the Leadership council for Effective climate Change Policies. Two others represented the World Coal council, and the Canadian Electrical Association.

The environmental NGO's were well organized, both within the meetings, and outside the meeting hall where they had a highly visible operation. They had come to the meeting with predetermined allies on many issues including stabilization, technology transfer, developed country support of developing countries, and a variety of other issues. They even made sure that several delegations had environmental representatives as governmental participants. Within the meetings their credibility was enhanced by the participation of Bill Nitze, a former Deputy Assistant of State who was representing the U.S. Alliance to Save Energy during the Ministerial meeting, and T.J. Glauthier, an outstanding economist, seasoned by representing the utility industry during U.S. Congressional acid rain negotiations who represented the Conservation Foundation during the Science and Technology deliberations.

The environmental groups held daily press conferences during the nine days of discussion, and issued a daily newsletter, ECO, which editorially went from doing feature stories on key environmental representatives to criticizing the U.S. efforts on the global climate issue.

The business representatives present focused on aggressive activity with delegates to all three meetings to assure that balanced and credible approaches were assumed in the final statements emanating from the congress. This included working closely with the United States delegation to assure business' views were known and understood, working with other delegations on specific language and publicly indicating business' desire to be part of the deliberative process as the global climate issue was discussed and debated world wide.

It was agreed by the Ministerial Secretariat that both the environmental NGO's and the business NGO's should have an opportunity to read a statement expressing their own constituencies' views to the assembled body. A Joint Statement by Industry Non-Governmental Organizations was prepared and read to the assembled Ministerial body on November 7.

Organizations that signed the business statement were:

Australian Coal Association
Australian Institute of Petroleum
Business Council of Australia
Canadian Coal Association
Canadian Electrical Association
Edison Electric Institute
Dr. H. Gassert, Chairman Environment Committee of the Federation of German Industries (BDI)
German Hardcoal Mining Association
Global Climate Coalition
Leadership council for Effective climate Change Policies
National Coal Association
World Coal Institute

The environmental NGO's read their own statement.

The United States delegation was headed by Dr. John Knauss, the Undersecretary of Commerce for Oceans and Atmosphere. The chief negotiator of the U.S. delegation was Bob Reinstein, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Environmental Affairs and a former U.S. Trade Negotiator. The rest of the 15 person delegation was made up of representatives from the Departments of State, commerce, Energy, Agriculture, and the Office of the President's Science Advisor.

These individuals included:

F. Daniel Becker, Global Warming Programme
Reed H. Boatright, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
Richard Bradley, U.S. Department of Energy
Christine Dawson, U.S. Department of State
John Easton, U.S. Department of Energy
Jonathan Elkind, President's Council on Environmental Quality
J.F. Fitzgerald, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
Nancy Gray Maynard, Executive Office of the President, OSTP
Kathleen McGinty, U.S. Senate
Charles Moore, Merchant Marine and Fisheries Commission
Richard D. Morgenstern, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
Daniel A. Reifsnyder, U.S. Department of State
J.R. Spradley, U.S. Department of Commerce
John Weiss, U.S. Department of State

The U.S. delegation was confronted with some difficult challenges coming into the meeting. They were being pressed by the European countries to join them in their recently declared initiatives to stabilize CO₂ and other Greenhouse gases by the year 2000, or as some European countries espoused, reduce by 20% by the year 2005 at 1990 levels. Further, there was the added pressure of the pre-conference statement by the Japanese to make a substantial reduction in 1990 levels of CO₂ emissions. The U.S. delegations' policy was to not agree to stabilization language at this conference; and that they did nothing to imply or support new positions prior to the February Framework meeting. While the official Ministerial declaration did acknowledge commitments of the European nations and others to "take actions aimed at stabilizing their emissions of CO₂ and other gases not controlled by the Montreal Protocol, by the year 2000 in general at 1990 level", the U.S. delegation did manage to get the body's recognition of efforts such as the U.S.'s adoption of acid rain legislation embodied in the report as follows: "We also acknowledge the initiative of some other developed countries which will have positive effects on limiting emissions of greenhouse gases."

As well as the substantive challenges, the environmentalist groups were publicly critical of U.S. policies related to the Climate Congress and some were personally acrimonious to the head of delegation, Dr. Knauss. This public pressure kept up throughout the conference through press conferences by environmentalists and such diverse groups as the "Children of the World" and Greenpeace.

Nonetheless, the U.S. delegation participants who had worked together through several IPCC meetings and other Ministerials, knew the issues and the other delegates well. This helped in the ultimate outcome of the debate. The business participants worked with delegates to consistently reinforce the fact that any decisions in these forums could be very costly to business, have a deleterious effect on U.S. competitiveness, and penalize the very organizations that would be looked to in ultimately providing assistance in technology, energy development and possible support of emerging nations.

When I look back at some of the events that influence our future
I look at the two real important decisions that are critical at this time.

First, President Bush being elected.
There is no person who is more qualified to what would this Country be like today, if he had lost. I think anyone who wants to be President should have to have his past experience to qualify.

And Second. You, when you decided to stay

The people of Holt Brook realize who the real power behind the scenes really is. (Ha Ha)
Just kidding Mr President.

people are waving flags again and its great

Dear Mr. President:

The Connecticut Chapter of the Association of the United States Army will sponsor an Ice Capade Show on March 3, 1991, at the New Haven Veterans Memorial Coliseum. With the theme of "Connecticut taking care of its own," AUSA will give 2,000 tickets to the immediate family members of the National Guard, Reserve and active forces deployed in support of Desert Storm. Our soldiers and families will be honored throughout the performance.

Much of this has been made possible through the generous support of local defense related industries such as United Technologies and Textron Corporations. They are proud of the role they have played in the defense of this nation and recognize the need to help those that have been left behind. We feel this event will be especially meaningful to those Guard and Reserve families that do not have the support systems associated with the active forces.

We are well aware of the family ties that you and Mrs. Bush have in the New Haven area. We would welcome you and your family as special guests of the Association. This would offer you the opportunity to address possibly the largest gathering of Guard and Reserve family members in the nation.

If you are unable to attend, a video taped or written message to the families would be appreciated. My staff could assist in background information for such an address.

Thank you for your consideration of this request. I can be contacted at (203) 386-7029.

We will continue to pray for your guidance as you make your toughest decision in the coming weeks.

Sincerely,

John R. Soehnlein

Dear John:

It is my understanding that one of the two positions for White House Deputy Press Secretary is vacant.

Therefore, I am writing to recommend that Claire del Real be considered for this position and to encourage you to talk with her before any decisions are made.

I have personally known and worked with Claire since 1976, and I can assure you that her professional qualifications and experience are excellent and extensive. But more importantly, loyalty and devotion have always been a part of her work ethic.

In 1979, when it was not very fashionable, Claire chose to work on the "George Bush for President" campaign, where she developed a deep respect and affection for the President.

Now, in 1991, Claire would like to have the opportunity once again to serve President Bush directly, in the White House, if not as Deputy Press Secretary, perhaps in the Office of Communications.

Claire is one of the finest people I know and would be a great asset to this administration.

I am enclosing her resume for your consideration and encouraging you and/or Marlin to talk with Claire concerning this, or some other, White House position.

As always, thanks for taking the time to consider my recommendation.

Best,

Maiselle Dolan Shortley

Dear Andrew:

You may recall that this time last year the good folks at National Federation of Independent Business extended an invitation on my behalf to the President to attend a function which was sponsored by the Massachusetts Hotel Motel Association. When I saw you early this fall I expect I told you what a great success we had. We were able to secure The Honorable Vin Weber as our principal speaker and he did an outstanding job. Another year has come and I find myself, fortunately or unfortunately, once again chairing this "Hospitality Breakfast".

John Motley of our Washington NFIB office was nice enough to again extend an invitation to the President to speak at this April 23, 1991, function. Last Friday, January 25, John had the opportunity to discuss our invitation with Bobbi Kilberg, Deputy Assistant to the President for Public Liaison, and he reports to me that Ms. Kilberg said our invitation has not been refused and is still being considered. I would like to use this opportunity to again ask you for assistance. In addition to creating a "great event" I hope you might agree with me that a visit from the President to New England, Massachusetts in particular, would be the greatest boost that this area needs in its attempt to turn around a very serious recession. I would not have trouble in getting between 1000 and 1200 people to attend our breakfast. Can you help me?

Forgive me for using the same letter to cover two items, but I intended trying to contact you to say that I will be in Washington, DC the last week of March for the annual Washington NFIB Board of Directors meeting. Would it be possible for you to have breakfast with John Sloan, President of NFIB, John Motley, Vice President and Director of Federal Governmental Relations for NFIB, and myself on Thursday, March 28, 1991. God willing the daily events that we are all monitoring will come to a fruitful conclusion and your office won't be as hectic as I suspect it is.

Mr. Card,

On Sunday, February 17th, Troop 404, Boy Scouts of America, will hold an Eagle Court of Honor for two distinguished scouts who will be awarded the rank of Eagle. Awarding the Eagle is an important and serious matter. It is the culmination of the efforts of the parents and leaders of these Scouts. It is an occasion for pride and joy, but, it is also a time for serious contemplation.

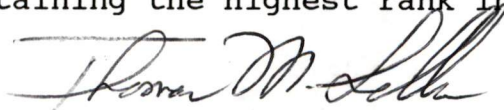

Eagle is the highest and most coveted award in all Scouting, and it is the last major step in the advancement program for these future leaders. The Eagle has a prominent place in America as in Ancient Rome, from Caesar's emblem to the emblems of the President and branches of the Armed Forces. Befitting this very special occasion for these boys and their parents, Troop 404 will be hosting an award ceremony. To make this an occasion that will be remembered by all Scouts, parents and leaders, Troop 404 would appreciate a letter and or appropriate certification from your office.

The names and addresses of the boys are as follows:

Sean T. Sellers
12 Fifth Ave
Westover AFB
Chicopee, MA 01022-1012

Brian L. Grunwald
1 Griffith Road
Westover AFB
Chicopee, MA 01022

Thank you Mr. Card for your support of Scouting. Providing these letters I know will be the highlight of their hard work in obtaining the highest rank in Scouting.

Having now settled in at State, I wanted to take a moment to let you know how much I appreciated your help and support throughout my time at the White House. Being able to work with you on the close cases and knowing that you would back me up on the tough calls made my job substantially easier. The President is well-served by your thoughtful, common sense approach and your unswerving integrity.

Though our paths may not cross as often now that I am at the State Department, I hope that you will feel free to call on me if ever I can be of assistance.

Dear Ray-

It was a privilege to sit with you in the Massachusetts House Chamber on Thursday, January 3rd was a great day for the Bay State. As Republicans took their oath to serve as Governor and Lt. Governor you could almost hear the sigh of relief as the Commonwealth shed its past and found renewed hope and recaptured a spirit of optimism. Bill Weld and Paul Cellucci will be great leaders for all of the people of Massachusetts.

I know that Bill and Paul owe much of their electoral success to you and your efforts. Thank you. You made a real difference! Sincerely, Andy Card
