I am dictating this note to you by telephone, so please excuse me if I ramble a bit. You suggested that I give you some of the specifics for the Music Center Gala next September so that you could talk to the President about the event when you see him next.

- (1) The 25th Music Center Anniversary Gala is scheduled for Sunday night, September 24. We have asked the President and Mrs. Bush to be our honored guests for the evening. The Gala show will be similar to the annual Kennedy Center awards night. We will be presenting three awards to young artists in music, drama and dance that night. The awards will be presented by "masters" in the various fields of interest, and will include a $25,000 scholarship for each awardee. We will be doing the same thing in subsequent years on an annual basis.

The Gala show will be produced by Gary Pudney and Bob Banner. PBS is planning to tape the show and broadcast it later on a national basis.

- (2) The California Republican Party has also asked the President if he would speak at a fundraising dinner on Monday night, September 25. I believe the Century Plaza Hotel has been reserved for that event. As you know, Pepperdine would like Mrs. Bush to participate in a dinner for them that same night. I also understand that The Blue Ribbon has requested Mrs. Bush to attend a lunch on their behalf on Monday as well.

If the Bush's decide to come for the long weekend, you may want to think about whether they might like to attend a performance of Phantom of the Opera on Saturday, September 23. I am sure we can arrange to get appropriate seating for them and their guests. Perhaps they could enjoy some rest and relaxation on Saturday, and otherwise be hosted by you and others as they desire. Maybe we could get him out on the golf course at Lake Sherwood or somewhere else either Saturday or Sunday. You are the best judge of how he might like to spend his time away from the scheduled events.

We are off to London this morning and will return on June 30, but my office can get in touch with me should you have any additional questions.

Good luck.

office in N.Y. 718-981-9813
weekend #-home 718-667-5193

Called to personally speak to the President regarding the President's trip to New York on Monday.

Congressman Molinari was very upset. He said he tried to work the President's assistants (Atwater and Wray) to set up a "10 second meeting" with the President while he was in New York. The Congressman said there was "no follow-up" and he was "hurt badly" by this. The press in New York badgered him about his not seeing the President. His upcoming race is even at this time and he feels this incident will hurt him.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ANDREW H. CARD, JR.

SUBJECT: Congressman Guy Molinari

Congressman Molinari was invited to greet you, either at the Waldorf Hotel or at the heliport in New York City, during your trip to the United Nations. He declined. He had requested an opportunity for you to meet with him and some potential campaign contributors. The logistics and tight schedule made it impossible for us to accommodate him.

We are exploring the opportunity to have you participate in a small fundraising reception on October 12th when you go to New York in support of Rudy Giuliani (50-75 people/15 minutes of your time).

I have attached a summary of Jim Wray's Molinari contacts for your information.

TO: ANDY CARD
FROM: JIM WRAY [initials]
SUBJECT: CONGRESSMAN GUY MOLINARI OF NEW YORK

The congressman has been "upset" with the White House operation for some time. The range of matters is everything from trip inclusion to personnel appointments. The trip to New York City on September 25 put him over the line, and resulted in his call to the President.

- September 12: the congressman called to request a fundraising event for himself and Rudy Giuliani during the planned NYC trip on September 25 and 26.
- September 14: knowing the official nature of the trip, the political affairs office requested two one-on-one meetings with the President (Giuliani/Molinari)
- September 20: Roger Ailes appeals to Governor Sununu for a Giuliani fundraiser during the trip on the 25th.
- September 21: I informed the Giuliani campaign of an approval on the event providing it can be held upon arrival at the Newark Airport.

Molinari's A.A., Bob Dizard, is informed of this possible event. If approved, he would be able to work in some of Molinari's supporters.

- September 22: Fundraising event is ruled out due to logistics. A seat on Marine One is offered to Giuliani. Giuliani is also given committment of an October 12th fundraising event in NYC.
- September 23: Molinari reads all of this in the NY TIMES.
- September 24: Molinari's office calls me to see what his involvement in the President's trip will be.

We offer the congressman a greeting opportunity at the Waldorf Hotel. He declines. I try to upgrade the greeting to arrival at the heliport. His staff informs us he declines this as well.

I call Andy Card at KBP to inform him of the potential problem with Molinari.

- September 26: Molinari calls me to inform me that he is really upset about the fact he could not get a short meeting with the President. He is letting folks on the Hill know. He claims that he never got the word on the heliport greeting opportunity.

I discuss October 12 with him and how we could work out an event for him if approved. He appreciated that opportunity, but was still upset.

Dear Andy:

I am writing on behalf of Outboard Marine Corporation regarding the donation of a limited edition Chris Craft American Classic boat to the Office of the President of the United States.

Chris Craft, which is owned by Outboard Marine Corporation, is producing 24 boats constructed to the specifications of the 1930, 24-foot, Model 103 mahogany runabout. (I have enclosed a brochure on the boat for your information.) These boats will be built under the personal supervision of Christopher J. Smith, grandson of the founder of Chris Craft. Outboard Marine Corporation would like to offer one of these 24 boats to the Office of the President of the United States to be used as an "official presidential launch." We understand that the donation of this gift would need to comply with all appropriate laws overseeing gifts to the Office of the President.

As a recognized lover of boats and, in particular, quality boats, Outboard Marine Corporation believes that President Bush would truly appreciate this American Classic. The boat will be American built and of first rate quality. If the President is able to accept the use of this boat, Outboard Marine Corporation would appreciate a photo of the President with the boat.

Charles Strang, Chief Executive Officer of Outboard Marine Corporation, was recently recognized at a White House-sponsored awards luncheon honoring people with a technical background. Mr. Strang is very enthusiastic about the donation of this boat to the Office of the President.

Please let me know if there is any interest in this donation or if you need further information. I will call Linda Gambatesa to follow-up on this letter.

Jocelyn White

MARGARET GARDNER
LEGISLATIVE ASSISTANT

May 15, 1989

Dear Ron,

As we have discussed, we would like to implement a plan using the resources of a Republican Administration to help promote local Republican officials in this state. We focus on legislators for several reasons. Unlike other states, our delegation is small enough that a great deal of personalized attention is possible. Also, given the Party strength, we are much more influential within the Party compared to other states and it is from our ranks that we should be grooming future candidates for higher offices.

Finally, during the Presidential campaign it was emphasized repeatedly that a Bush Administration would not forget us in Massachusetts. This went a long way in winning important endorsements when they were needed.

We see five different levels that need attention.

- A. Recognition of Legislators who backed Bush
- B. Recognition of Legislators as the political strength of the local Party at this time
- C. promotion of potential future candidates and select Legislators
- D. Public perception that local legislators are somewhat connected with White House and that there are political benefits from electing Republicans in a Democratic controlled state
- E. Development of GOP policies for state.

A. RECOGNITION OF LEGISLATORS WHO BACKED BUSH.

At least two Legislators were lost in the 1988 endorsements because they felt there would not be any benefit from being with Bush early. This comes from their 1980 endorsement of Bush and later Reagan with no recognition given them after the election. Possible ways to reward them and keep them supportive include:

1. White House trinkets e.g. tie clips, cuff links, stick pins.

2. Autographed photos of the President with inscriptions of thanks for help. (All but one can be autopenned.)
3. On a rotated basis, some recognition when the President is in the state e.g. airport greeting, or complimentary ticket to wherever he is speaking. The goal should be at least one photo opportunity for each Bush Legislator before the next campaign.
4. Adding to White House Christmas card list.
5. Periodic in-state meetings of Bush Legislators with the campaign leadership and occasionally the national leadership.

B. RECOGNITION OF LEGISLATORS AS PARTY LEADERS OF STATE

1. Notification and, where possible, participation in visits to state by Cabinet members and other high ranking officials.
2. A legislative liaison to work with the Administration in solving local constituent problems or questions involving Federal government. This would be a local legislator like Cellucci or either of us.
3. Issues briefing in Washington for the entire legislative delegation. This could involve day long meetings with officials and RNC staff as well as a meeting with the Vice President.
4. Notification of state Republicans being named to federal positions.
5. A White House meeting with the President. This is the toughest request but we think justified. Nothing symbolizes the significance of the delegation or the President's appreciation for our partisan work like a White House meeting.

C. PROMOTION OF KEY LEGISLATORS and

D. PUBLIC PERCEPTION THAT LEGISLATORS ARE LIMITED PLAYERS IN THIS ADMINISTRATION.

There are a number of legislators who are potential candidates for higher office. In most other states they would be actively groomed and promoted. To some extent we can do that here with the help of the Administration and RNC.

Furthermore, our own credibility and value to the state is enhanced if we can create the perception that local legislators are involved with the Administration.

Some of the ideas to accomplish these include:

1. Appointments to federal commissions.
2. Involvement with groups like the A.C.Y.P.L. and A.L.E.C.
3. Close assistance on developing ideas for state policy.
4. Where possible, name dropping with the media and lining them up for media hits as local advocates for specific administration actions.
5. Use of legislators to help with interest group outreach.
6. Encouraging groups to recognize Legislator's work with measures like "Legislator of the Year" awards.
7. On selected basis, meetings between legislator and high level officials to help resolve a local problem.

D. DEVELOPMENT OF GOP ISSUES

It is timely to concentrate on the Republican plans for running the state. Because we will be somewhat answerable for Administration policies and we need to show that we have solutions for this state's mess we need to tune-up our involvement with issues. Using experts within the Administration, as well as friendly outside groups, we should encourage various members to take the lead on specific policies.

This has the advantage of developing ideas to be offered during the campaign, promoting the skills of select members, reaching out to groups not traditionally associated with the Party in this state, and preparing some substantive support in the legislature for a Republican Governor in 1991.

Specific ways in which the Administration can help will depend on what issues are selected. Those decisions should obviously involve the State Committee, House and Senate leaders, and other individual members.

We have lost much of the local cohesiveness and momentum of the campaign. Steps should be taken to bring people back together, working in a common and positive direction. We think this plan, while requiring a lot of hand-holding here and some work in D.C., should be given careful review so we can keep members involved and enthusiastic.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Robert Marsh

Dear President and Mrs. Bush:

Personnel in Mrs. Bush's office advised me by telephone today to address you in writing concerning a request I want to make.

As you may know, on Sunday, June 4, the annual Walk for Hope is being held here in Washington in support of AIDS Care, Research, and Education. Frankly, I was surprised not to see your names among the sponsors and co-chairs of the event. In fact, there are only four Congressmen among them.

I am writing to ask you to sponsor me for this walk. Sponsors pledge so much per kilometer, for a total of 10 kilometers. A pledge of $10.00 per kilometer, for example, would mean a total pledge of $100.00. If you are willing to become one of my sponsors, please send me your check made out to "The Walk for Hope."

I do hope that you will support me in this effort. I, for one, find AIDS Care, Research, and Education of the utmost importance to our society. As you know, walks like this are a way of bringing private funds into solving public problems. And so it is to you as private citizens that I appeal for your personal support in this walk.

Thank you for your time and personal concern. I hope many others will follow your good example.

Sincerely,

Honorable George H. W. Bush
President of the United States
White House
Washington, D.C. 20024

Dear Mr. President:

Founded in 1815, the Handel & Haydn Society is America's oldest active performing arts organization in the country. The Society has long had a tradition of honoring various anniversaries with special celebratory activities. The 1989-90 season marks our 175th consecutive season and we will honor that celebratory tradition with a special series of activities.

The purpose of the Jubilee year is not only to thank our supporters and patrons who make our music possible, but also to act as the springboard to thrust H&H into the national arena as a vital, artistically exciting music organization. All our activities are therefore designed with this goal in mind. We have planned a national tour to five cities, a two-disc recording with London Records, an opening gala at the Museum of Fine Arts, an exhibition at the Boston Public Library, a declaration from the United States Congress and special awards to internationally recognized Handel and Haydn scholars. Our festivities culminate in a public birthday celebration at the Hatch Shell on the Esplanade with a performance of Vivaldi's Four Seasons choreographed to a laser light show.

We are currently in the process of forming an honorary committee of influential members of the business and political communities to head our masthead in this important year. The positions are honorary, with no official obligations attached; we of course do hope the honorary members will make an effort to attend some of our activities. The committee members thus far are: Leo L. Beranek, founder of Bolt, Beranek & Newman, as Honorary Chairman; Governor Michael Dukakis; Mayor Raymond Flynn; Marcia Thompson, President of the National Arts Stabilization Fund; J.P. Barger, President, Dynatech Corporation; Dr. Mitchell T. Rabkin, President, Beth Israel Hospital; and George Putnam of Putnam Management Company, Inc.; and Edward E. Phillips, Chief Executive Officer, The New England.

As the most important leader in the country, the Board of Governors would like to formally invite you to become a member of this committee. The Jubilee year commences July 1, 1989 and ends June 30, 1990, with most of the activities occurring in the period October 1989-June 1990.

I do hope you'll be able to join us for this very important year. Should you have any questions or need further information, please do not hesitate to contact either me or Mary Hall, the Society's General Manager, at 617-266-3605. Thank you for your consideration.

Re: ReSurfacing the Tennis Court.

The memo John Schmitz sent was a very good one.

$11,000 is $11,000 and I see no reason not to accept this generous gift, saving the tax payers some dough.

I don't worry about the Camp David situation. The Association did not offer to do the courts there and we should not solicit them or anyone else to give such a gift.

I agree that no commercial use or advertising should be granted or implied.

The Ford Pool was at least one precedent setting item, so I have no fear of even the appearance of impropriety.

MEMORANDUM FOR ROSE ZAMARIA
SPECIAL ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AND DIRECTOR OF WHITE HOUSE OPERATIONS

FROM: JOHN SCHMITZ JBS
DEPUTY COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: White House Tennis Courts

I have reviewed Gary Walters' memorandum to you on the question of resurfacing the White House Tennis Court. Specifically he advised you that the U.S. Tennis Court and Track Builders Association has agreed to resurface the tennis court at no cost to the government.

The Park Service has authority to accept gifts (16 U.S.C. 6(a)) so as a matter of law what Gary Walters has suggested can be done. (This authority was used in 1974 to accept the swimming pool as a gift.)

Accordingly, the question whether to have the courts resurfaced at government expense or pursuant to gift authority becomes a question of policy. In making a policy decision you may wish to consider the following:

- The gift has at least one "price". Gary Walters has advised the U.S. Tennis Court and Track Builders Association that they would receive "at a minimum" acknowledgement of the donation from the Park Service and the Executive Residence. Gary recommends as well a donation ceremony involving the President.
- Who is paying for the resurfacing of the courts at Camp David? It might appear inconsistent if government funds are used for Camp David and gift funds are used at the White House.
- Is $11,000 worth worrying about - assuming the Park Service has $11,000 available for the resurfacing - is that seen significant enough to be worth considering use of the gift authority? (i.e. - If the savings to the taxpayer were more dramatic it might be worth considering, but not for $11,000.)

If a decision is made to accept the gift I would recommend against a photo opportunity. If the photo opportunity is granted we would advise sending a letter to the recipients indicating that no commercial use or advertising use can be made of the photographs.

SUBJ: USE OF THE ATTACHED QUOTE FOR RGA BROCHURE

The Republican Governors' Association has requested the use of the attached quote for its 1989 brochure. This brochure is used as a fundraising tool but is not a direct mail piece. RGA expects to distribute approximately 2500 of these brochures over a two-year period.

No Presidential signature has been requested. RGA plans to place a picture of the President next to the quote with "President George Bush" underneath the picture.

Please contact Leslie Gromis at x7730 with any comments.

The year 1991 will provide our best opportunity to ensure fair redistricting for congressional districts through the next century. In many states, governors play a vital role in this reapportionment process. Voters across the nation will be relying on governors to bring fairness to congressional redistricting, and the Republican Governors' Association can help make this happen.

Dear President Bush:

On June 5, 1989 (the second day of National Fishing Week), your friend and fishing buddy Ray Scott will be awarded the Sport Fishing Institute's most prestigious award, the 1989 Sport Fisherman of the Year.

As you may recall, you were the first recipient of the award in 1986. Senators Wallop and Breaux received it jointly in 1987 and Fish and Wildlife Director, Frank Dunkle in 1988.

Each recipient has made major contributions to the sport of fishing. I am sure you will concur in the selection of Ray Scott to join this select group.

Mr. President, I would like to invite you as the initial recipient of the Sport Fisherman of the Year to present the award to Ray. This would give the award special significance to Ray and underscore the truly enormous contributions he has made to sport fishing. The award is to be made to Ray at a Capitol Hill Reception (5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.) on June 5, 1989, in Room 562 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building. The presentation would be made sometime during the two hours reception, at your convenience.

If it is impossible for you to attend the reception, perhaps, a brief ceremony at the White House on June 6, 1989, would be possible (anytime after 11:00 a.m.).

Ray and Susan were very excited about their recent overnight stay at the White House. Although Ray didn't say who won, spoke of his game of horse shoes with you. He recounts that it was during that game, you said you would take action to remove the proposed spending cap on the Wallop-Breaux Trust Fund. Being a man of your word, it was done. The entire sport fishing community recognizes and appreciates your personal attention to that very important matter.

MR. PRESIDENT:

Former Governor of Pennsylvania Ray Shafer has been seeking a private meeting with you for some time in his capacity as a member of the National Committee on US-China Relations. Governor Sununu has spoken with him a number of times and can explain what Shafer has in mind.

In addition to the above, he gave the Governor a memorandum (attached) on NATO policy. The key suggestion is that NATO and the Warsaw Pact consider negotiating a mutual non-aggression pact.

A response to Governor Shafer is attached for your signature.

A. Basic Assumptions

1. There are still good reasons for the North Atlantic community. In values and interests Western Europe and North America have much in common.

2. The bipolar pattern which served as a convenient formula for Europe since World War II is becoming obsolete. The notion of a Europe divided between the Soviet Union and its satellites on the one hand and Western Europe under the protection of the United States on the other, no longer provides a realistic basis for analysis or policy.

3. Leadership in the North Atlantic community can no longer be based primarily on power, ours or the Soviet Union's. We could not hope to dominate the Western Europeans economically, and few of them are willing to pay obeisance to our military might. Nor will analyses (such as Henry Kissinger offered recently) that the long-term constant and predictable trend of the Russian state "under czar or commissar" is expansion, keep alive much longer a general anxiety about the Soviet threat. We need a new justification for the community.

4. Opportunities to develop a stable working relationship between American leadership and the North Atlantic community were missed during the 1960-85 period. In the wake of Reykjavik and the (bi-lateral) INF treaty Western Europeans have lost much confidence in American leadership. The West Germans are quite disturbed.

5. Western Europe is impressed by President Gorbachev's overtures. The initiative has passed to him. We can expect further moves soon after his return from Beijing.

B. A New Approach

1. We have to be clear about our common purposes.

(a) We do not want the Soviet Union to dominate Western Europe; and

(b) We do not want a reversion to the unbridled nationalism of the past.

2. We have to make procedural concessions.

(a) We have to establish intermediate level task forces which include Western European officials and work out compromises with Western European ideas.

(b) Since inevitably we shall be faced by surprise moves, we must learn to improvise - within a framework of a consensus.

3. We must restore confidence in American leadership.

- (a) As the cement of our relationship we must keep the nuclear umbrella in good repair.
- (b) We may take the initiative in cultural matters which tie us together. For example, 1992 is not just the year of the Common Market, it is also the 500th anniversary of the voyage of Columbus. The opportunities to celebrate such an event and our common ties are practically endless, with both international and domestic benefits.
- (c) We should take a positive posture to the full implementation of the Common Market in 1992. It was, after all, our idea which we pressed vigorously, often against European inertia. Why should we now assume the inevitability of tariff wars? At least in the past the most suitable and profitable trade partnerships were among highly industrialized countries.
- (d) Most important, we need to reclaim the diplomatic initiative from Gorbachev. It will take a spectacular move by the President, not at a super-power summit, but within the broader (Helsinki type) European framework. To be successful it must meet three tests. First, it must be seen as a bold stroke worthy of a grand strategy. Second, its dramatic element must be reinforced by the effect of surprise. Third, it needs to be popular in Europe and acceptable at home. Several possibilities come to mind, but perhaps the most promising is the idea of a European Security Agreement. While lower level negotiators struggle with the nitty-gritty details of conventional force balance, the President at a NATO meeting or perhaps during a visit to the Berlin Wall could propose a multi-lateral non-aggression treaty between NATO and The Warsaw Pact states.

C. Explanation

Since NATO has no intention of attacking anyone, and since the Warsaw Pact claims to be in a defensive position, the proposal would merely recognize reality. But suddenly, Europeans will cease discussing Gorbachev's friendly gestures and start talking about an America which, after all, can make great decisions and President Bush, the peacemaker.

Admittedly, non-aggression pacts which were violated litter the floor of history. Two developments, however, suggest that it may be an idea whose time has come. First, the precedent of the INF Treaty providing for surprise, on-site inspections. While they could not guarantee absolute safety from aggression, they would effectively preclude a surprise attack. Since such a treaty would not require disarmament (though it would probably moderate arms levels) and alliance ties (just to be sure) would remain intact, the target of aggression would have time to develop its defense-- a prospect which in turn would help to deter predatory action. The second development is the admittedly dire economic straits of most Eastern European countries. The treaty could incorporate a most favored nations clause which would facilitate East-West trade, transcend the Iron Curtain, and draw Eastern European countries away from the Soviet Union.

A call by President Bush for a European Conference for such a purpose would rival President Nixon's opening to China. The Soviet Union may not like it very much, but we could not lose. If they accept it, fine; if not, the evidence of their ill-intentions would be there for anyone, even the most devout European peacenik, to see. And the Republican Right might hate it, but it could be reminded of its recurrent platform for the liberation of the captive peoples of Eastern Europe, and it could be easily explained that such a treaty would be the first practical and significant step toward their goal since the errors of Roosevelt and the travesty of Yalta.

We do not have much time. The North Atlantic community, if it is to survive and prosper, needs special Presidential attention.

3. Leadership in the North Atlantic community can no longer be based primarily on power, ours or the Soviet Union's. We could not hope to dominate the Western Europeans economically, and few of them are willing to pay obeisance to our military might. Nor will analyses (such as Henry Kissinger offered recently) that the long-term constant and predictable trend of the Russian state "under czar or commissar" is expansion, keep alive much longer a general anxiety about the Soviet threat. We need a new justification for the community.

4. Opportunities to develop a stable working relationship between American leadership and the North Atlantic community were missed during the 1960-85 period. In the wake of Reykjavik and the (bi-lateral) INF treaty Western Europeans have lost much confidence in American leadership. The West Germans are quite disturbed.

5. Western Europe is impressed by President Gorbachev's overtures. The initiative has passed to him. We can expect further moves soon after his return from Beijing.

B. A New Approach

1. We have to be clear about our common purposes.

(a) We do not want the Soviet Union to dominate Western Europe; and

(b) We do not want a reversion to the unbridled nationalism of the past.

2. We have to make procedural concessions.

(a) We have to establish intermediate level task forces which include Western European officials and work out compromises with Western European ideas.

(b) Since inevitably we shall be faced by surprise moves, we must learn to improvise - within a framework of a consensus.

3. We must restore confidence in American leadership.

- (a) As the cement of our relationship we must keep the nuclear umbrella in good repair.
- (b) We may take the initiative in cultural matters which tie us together. For example, 1992 is not just the year of the Common Market, it is also the 500th anniversary of the voyage of Columbus. The opportunities to celebrate such an event and our common ties are practically endless, with both international and domestic benefits.
- (c) We should take a positive posture to the full implementation of the Common Market in 1992. It was, after all, our idea which we pressed vigorously, often against European inertia. Why should we now assume the inevitability of tariff wars? At least in the past the most suitable and profitable trade partnerships were among highly industrialized countries.
- (d) Most important, we need to reclaim the diplomatic initiative from Gorbachev. It will take a spectacular move by the President, not at a super-power summit, but within the broader (Helsinki type) European framework. To be successful it must meet three tests. First, it must be seen as a bold stroke worthy of a grand strategy. Second, its dramatic element must be reinforced by the effect of surprise. Third, it needs to be popular in Europe and acceptable at home. Several possibilities come to mind, but perhaps the most promising is the idea of a European Security Agreement. While lower level negotiators struggle with the nitty-gritty details of conventional force balance, the President at a NATO meeting or perhaps during a visit to the Berlin Wall could propose a multi-lateral non-aggression treaty between NATO and The Warsaw Pact states.

C. Explanation

Since NATO has no intention of attacking anyone, and since the Warsaw Pact claims to be in a defensive position, the proposal would merely recognize reality. But suddenly, Europeans will cease discussing Gorbachev's friendly gestures and start talking about an America which, after all, can make great decisions and President Bush, the peacemaker.

Admittedly, non-aggression pacts which were violated litter the floor of history. Two developments, however, suggest that it may be an idea whose time has come. First, the precedent of the INF Treaty providing for surprise, on-site inspections. While they could not guarantee absolute safety from aggression, they would effectively preclude a surprise attack. Since such a treaty would not require disarmament (though it would probably moderate arms levels) and alliance ties (just to be sure) would remain intact, the target of aggression would have time to develop its defense-- a prospect which in turn would help to deter predatory action. The second development is the admittedly dire economic straits of most Eastern European countries. The treaty could incorporate a most favored nations clause which would facilitate East-West trade, transcend the Iron Curtain, and draw Eastern European countries away from the Soviet Union.

A call by President Bush for a European Conference for such a purpose would rival President Nixon's opening to China. The Soviet Union may not like it very much, but we could not lose. If they accept it, fine; if not, the evidence of their ill-intentions would be there for anyone, even the most devout European peacenik, to see. And the Republican Right might hate it, but it could be reminded of its recurrent platform for the liberation of the captive peoples of Eastern Europe, and it could be easily explained that such a treaty would be the first practical and significant step toward their goal since the errors of Roosevelt and the travesty of Yalta.

We do not have much time. The North Atlantic community, if it is to survive and prosper, needs special Presidential attention.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

May 2, 1989

Dear Bobby:

I have now seen your recent letters. First, on the White House pass. I am glad you understand. There have been all kinds of difficulties with White House passes, some of them legal and some of them precedent-setting. I have decreed early on that there would be no exceptions to the "no-pass" rule. I am confident that it is best, and I've regrettably had to turn down several close friends who have requested such a pass.

It was certainly no "imposition" in your asking, but we have just had to make clear to everyone that unless people are employed here they would not get full-time passes. I am told that you are on the access list, and I hope that will facilitate your coming here.

I'm sorry the Texas trip did not work out, nor the New York trip, which was on such short notice. But we'll get together in the future. We had an interesting meeting with Alex Courtelis where John Sununu and I explained to him that complications arise between the political fundraising and the regular presidential events. The problem is enormous if there is a perception that the trip is for political fundraising. And that's one of the reasons John Sununu has been so careful on meetings, etc. You may recall from the campaign that if we did a political event when I was Vice President, and did 20 non-political events, we ended up paying out of the political account for the entire trip. It's different now, but there still is a major problem of allocation.

In any event, I was glad to hear from you. Stay in touch. I remain grateful for all you have done. Love to Joanie.

Patty told me that my request could not be done - Sorry to impose - She was very kind & explained to me the reasons of your many close friends & etc - So be it -

I was disappointed though when I was called Monday morning & was advised that I could not be manifested on the Calif. - TEXAS - Florida legs of your trip. They said they were full & do not come - The reasons for us wanting to travel was to help STROKE the L.A. & Miami Folks & just simply be there in TEXAS as support.

Thanks & hanging in there -

Geo -

Enclosed letter from Bonnie Newman to Steve Studdert on my request for what I call a White House "Pit Pass" (White House Clearance).

I consider myself an "employee" of the Bush Family (pay checks have been a little light) and I know rules are sometime made to be broken, but I would like to ask the favor of having full White House clearance. One of the many reasons is the twenty to forty-five minute wait at the security gate each time I go to the Big "House", and etc. Also pride of ownership -

If necessary I will go to work and serve as Chief of Staff to Don Rhodes (pay remains the same) so I can qualify as an employee.

I'm coming up the day after tomorrow, Wednesday, March 27, again just for the day, to meet with Lee Atwater and then I will be at the White House for a couple of hours, and hop back in the plane and come home.

If this is asking too much, don't worry. Scratch it.

Following our meeting with the President Thursday, I am advised that the five "traditional" honorary degree options of B.U. are Laws, Science, Letters, Humane Letters, and Divinity.

Mrs. Bush will receive a Doctor of Humane Letters because of her literacy work. President Mitterrand will receive a Doctor of Laws, an honor given a statesman who has done good for his nation or people.

Boston University chooses to award the President a Doctor of Laws. Based on the guidance expressed by the President I conveyed our concurrence. I trust you will inform the President.

FROM THE PRESIDENT

TO: Governor John Sununu CS

My friend, former Congressman Gene Taylor called.

He was formally the Ranking Minority Member of the Post Office Committee.

He wants to bring Tony Frank ("he is one of us") in to see me. Tony Frank is head of the Post Office.

He also suggested bringing in the National Association of Postmasters. He has requested a 5 to 10 minute visit.

He asked that if I could not have such a meeting, that a meeting be set up with Dick Darman.

Because of my special friendship with Taylor, I would like to meet him, but we should check out what his agenda should be.

Check before I meet with the Postmaster General.

All yours.

* Suggest this be checked with OMB. They're most likely to know what's cooking on postal issues. Have sent Darman a copy of this note so he'll be ready for call.
