THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

December 16, 1991

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: FREDERICK D. MCCLURE fm
SUBJECT: ANALYSIS OF KEY VOTES IN THE 102nd CONGRESS

This memorandum provides an analysis of Congressional support for your Administration's positions based on what we consider the key votes cast in the First Session of the 102nd Congress. The votes selected were those where a clear Presidential position was expressed on a particular vote. House and Senate votes are analyzed separately.

Generally, this analysis shows that House and Senate Republicans supported your position 87% of the time. Senate Democrats supported your position 27% of the time while House Democrats supported your position just 17% of the time. Because of strong Republican support and the votes of Democrats from Southern States, you have won nearly every major issue or have garnered enough votes to show veto strength.

THE SENATE

Fifty-five key votes were selected for the Senate analysis. Thirty-three votes dealt with budget and domestic policy issues while 22 votes dealt with foreign policy and national security issues.

(1) You enjoy continued strong support from Senate Republicans. In 1991, the median Presidential support level among Republicans was 87%. This is slightly higher than the 82% level among Republicans in the 101st Congress.

Senators Dole, Domenici and Garn supported you 96% of the time, followed by Senators McConnell, Nickles, Simpson and Gramm (94%). The lowest Republican scores were by Senators Jeffords (44%) and Cohen (54%).

(2) The median Presidential support score for Democrats was 27%, slightly higher than the Democrats' 23% score in the 101st Congress.

Southern Democrats remain your strongest supporters. Senators Heflin (69%), Shelby (64%), Breaux (58%), Boren (57%), Johnston (53%) and Nunn (52%) had the highest scores. Senators Harkin, Wellstone, Sasser and Metzenbaum (13%) had the lowest scores.

(3) As a result of your strong support by Senate Republicans and Southern Democrats, your position either won or received enough votes to indicate your veto could be sustained on 52 of the 55 votes. Your position prevailed on 40 of the 55 votes (you won 36 votes outright; on four votes you won the issue either through subsequent floor votes or in conference committee after proving veto strength in the Senate). Your position did not prevail on three votes: restoring funding for the Administration's housing reform (HOPE) initiative; removing exemptions for Congress from civil rights and other laws; beginning debate on the national energy strategy bill. On the remaining 12 votes where your position did not prevail, there were enough or nearly enough votes to indicate that a veto could be sustained. These votes are on bills still pending in Congress.

(4) Of these 55 votes, 10 votes required the opposition to muster a super-majority (either 60 votes to invoke cloture or to waive the Budget Act, or 67 to sustain your veto). On seven of these 10 votes, the opposition failed to achieve a super majority needed to win.

The House of Representatives

Thirty-nine votes were selected for the House analysis. Of these votes, 30 dealt with budget and domestic policy issues, while nine dealt with foreign policy, national security and international trade matters.

(1) House Republican support for your positions remained strong. The median level of support among House Republicans was 87% in the first session of the 102nd Congress, up slightly from the 83% level of the 101st Congress. The number of "strong" Republican supporters this year is higher than in the two previous years. For example, this year 60 Republicans had Presidential support levels above 90%. This compares to 50 members with 90% or better support during 1989 and only 22 in 1990.

Ten House Republicans voted with you 100% of the time: Minority Leader Michel (IL); Representatives Archer (TX), Johnson (TX), Lowery (CA), Rhodes (AZ), Livingston (LA), Ireland (FL), Shaw (FL), Thomas (WY) and Slaughter (VA-retired).

As in previous analyses, Republicans with the lowest level of Presidential support are clustered in the Northeast. Examples include: New York Representatives Fish (39%), Horton (35%), Green (33%) and Gilman (30%), and Maryland Representative Morella (29%).

(2) The median support level among House Democrats was 17%. Democratic support also increased compared to last year, but was still below 1989 levels. This year 18 Democrats supported you more than 50% of the time. This compares to only 10 Democrats in 1990 and 53 Democrats in 1989.

As in past years, the vast majority of your strong Democrat support comes from Southern States, including: Representatives Stenholm (TX), 77%; Montgomery (MS), 76%; Hutto (FL), 74%; Hall (TX), 74%; Hayes (LA), 73%; Huckaby (LA), 69%; Parker (MS), 69%; and Sarpalius (TX), 68%.

More than 15 Democrats had Presidential support levels of 0%. Examples include Representatives Markey (MA), Miller and Boxer, (CA); Kennedy and Studds (MA); and Conyers (MI). Other Democrat members of interest include Gephardt (MO) and Bonior (MI) -- 10%.

(3) Your position prevailed outright on 12 of the 39 key votes selected. On 23 of the remaining 27 votes where your position did not prevail outright, your position received enough votes to indicate a veto could be sustained. Your position did not prevail on four votes: three votes on the issue of unemployment compensation and a fourth vote on the resolution by Representative Pelosi (CA) imposing conditions on MFN status for China.

The summary does not reference the tabling action; rather it notes that the amendment was defeated by a 37-62 vote.)

Also, votes on some important issues were excluded because they were adopted by lopsided margins. For example, votes on appropriations bills were excluded because they passed by wide margins.
