*John: I know you are you can read my letter. It may prevent some grief later on.

Dear John:

Enclosed is a copy of the 1988 Annual Report of the Martin Luther King Holiday Commission. You may want to take a moment to glance through it lest the President get drawn into something inferentially that he may later regret.

Frankly, I am concerned about the nature and extent of some of the activities and programs described in the Annual Report. They go far beyond the purposes for which the Commission was established. In the enclosed copy, I've marked a few of the more egregious examples.

Take a look at page 47. The Report describes the Commission's national college student conference in Atlanta: "The students learned how to bring protest campaigns through the stages of information, education, personal committment [sic] and purification, negotiation, direct action, reconciliation, and gained fundamental skills which allowed them to return to their campuses and effectively deal with injustices. The Conference also encouraged students to register and vote."

Also, contrary to what was claimed when the Commission was established, it has received significant support from federal funds. All of the Commission's employees, except the Executive Director -- who, by the way, is also on the staff of the King Center for Nonviolent Social Change, Inc. -- are provided on a non-reimbursable basis from federal agencies. For the four-year period ending February 28, 1989, the stated value of these services was $1,729,000 in the Washington office and $375,000 in the Atlanta office. (This does not include office space, furniture, and equipment, also donated on a non-reimbursable basis by federal agencies.)

The Honorable John Sununu
April 20, 1989
Page two

Notwithstanding the Commission's questionable activities, I'm also concerned about the principle of providing federal funds for a permanent commission to run the celebration of a national holiday. There is no other federal holiday that receives that honor.

On Monday, the House passed a bill to make the Commission permanent with a $500,000 annual appropriation. George Mitchell intends to take up the Senate bill when the Senate returns on May 1. The Senate bill would extend the Commission for five years with a $300,000 annual appropriation.

I thought you might appreciate a "heads up."

Many thanks and kindest personal regards.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read "Jesse", with a large, stylized initial "J" that loops around the first part of the name.

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Sununu:

Recent reports from the media indicate that Congress is beginning to apply pressure for President Bush to agree to accept at least $5 billion in new or increased taxes as part of this year's budget agreement. The American Legislative Exchange Council's more than 2,000 Democratic and Republican state legislator members would like to collectively respond, "Read our lips...NO NEW TAXES."

ALEC is honored to be a leader in the fight on behalf of the American people against the tired tax and spend policies of those politicians who believe that government is entitled to an ever increasing portion of the people's money. As legislators, our members know first hand the importance of a balanced budget. But, they also know that the way to balance the budget is not by raising taxes, but by reducing wasteful and unnecessary government spending. We know that the American people are not undertaxed -- government just spends too much.

We urge you to hold firm in the face of the special interests demanding more of the taxpayers' money. There will always be those who believe that the answer to every problem is to throw money at it. We hope that you, like ALEC, realize that there is a better way.

Sincerely,

Representative David Halbrook

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

April 20, 1989

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear John:

Let me preface this letter with a sincere compliment to the staff of this new administration. They are to be commended for a very smooth and harmonious transition. However, I'm afraid that the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW) has stumbled upon one glitch.

As you may recall, our major donors of $1,000 and $5,000 meet annually with the President and First Lady. This traditional meeting, an afternoon tea, which began eight years ago, had been originally confirmed for May 15. However, due to a conflict with the Presidential Trust, the White House asked if we could change the date to May 22. We did so graciously, although the change cost us over $25,000 in additional expenses.

Working around the 9:30 a.m. Oval Office meeting between President Bush and our $5,000 donors and the 4:00 p.m. tea with Mrs. Bush and all major donors, we began setting up White House briefings, breakfasts with Republican leaders and our banquet.

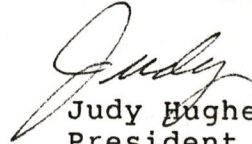

With two days of activities firmly in place, and speakers confirmed, we have just received word that the White House tea with Mrs. Bush must be again moved to 9:30 a.m. Unfortunately, that time is in complete conflict with the Presidential Oval Office meeting and a breakfast meeting with the Republican House leadership.

From a monetary standpoint the change is colossal. We will stand to lose $10,000 in catering fees and $40,000 in additional mailing costs. From a personal standpoint it is equally as tragic. Our major donors are responsible for NFRW's financial existence. I know you will agree with me that NFRW members serve not only as the backbone of the Republican Party, but as the great voluntary army of a presidential campaign.

John, I would greatly appreciate your personal assistance in this matter. We are merely asking for the White House tea with Mrs. Bush to be scheduled anytime after 12:00 p.m. on May 22.

Thank you for your time and I look forward to your favorable reply.

Sincerely,

Judy Hughes
President

Dear Governor Sununu:

Enclosed are personality profiles of George Bush and Michael Dukakis which a colleague and I have just completed. We are both organizational psychologists who specialize in advising senior executives on ways to improve their management and leadership effectiveness. The profiles of President Bush and Governor Dukakis were developed by reading a variety of articles, books and transcripts of interviews with both individuals. We simply abstracted personality traits from these sources and then, using various statistical models, filled in the gaps and expanded on the information.

The profile of President Bush highlights his problem-solving style, his general personality strengths and weaknesses and his social style. It also includes developmental advice. I hope it is in some way useful.

MINISTRY OF TRADE AND INDUSTRY

KWACHON, KYONGKI-DO 427-760

REPUBLIC OF KOREA

April 14, 1989

The Honorable John H. Sununu
Chief of Staff
Executive Office of the President
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

The Honorable John H. Sununu,

U.S.-Korean bilateral trade relations are at a critical juncture. The emergence of new patterns in the trade relationship present challenges to both countries in terms of how these patterns can be wisely addressed. I am pleased to enclose, at this critical juncture, a copy of a new comprehensive white paper on Korea's trade policies entitled "Free and Fair Trade: Korea's Record and Commitment," dated March 1989.

This report provides a comprehensive update of the trade liberalization initiatives Korea has undertaken during the past several years and the new initiatives being implemented. Significantly, it tells how this country, under uniquely severe social and political conditions, consistently and rapidly pursued free and fair trade as soon as it was in a position to do so. This document will show that, quite contrary to some of the misperceptions about Korea's trade policies, Korea is, and has been, a responsive and responsible world trader. In order to preserve and strengthen the historically strong relationship between the two countries, any determination regarding Korea's trade policies, or impressions formed of them, should be made on the basis of the whole record, not isolated issues. This document intends to serve as a useful source when the whole record is compiled.

If you have any questions or would like to receive additional copies of this document, please contact Mr. Hee-Bum Lee, Commercial Attache, Korean Embassy, 2362 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008, at (202) 939-5600, or Mr. Jong-Kap Kim, Director of the Trade Cooperation Bureau, Ministry of Trade and Industry, Korea, at 011-822-504-0105. We would appreciate receiving through Mr. Hee-Bum Lee any comments that you might have on this report.

Sincerely,

Seung-Soo Han
Minister of Trade and Industry

WASHINGTON, DC

April 14, 1989

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear John:

Mark D'Arcangelo's name has come to the Administration already for a possible appointment to the vacant position on the Board of Directors of the Federal Prison Industries Corporation. I am writing to convey my strong support for his appointment to that position.

It is my understanding that the vacant position is nominally filled by the Secretary of Defense. Given the large quantity of appointments facing the Secretary of Defense, this one, not directly related to his responsibilities at the Pentagon is low priority. But for the corporation, and its Chairman, Don Schwartz, a Republican Eagle, the appointment is critical and Mr. D'Arcangelo would be a great asset to the Administration and the board itself.

Mr. D'Arcangelo is highly recommended, not only by Don Schwartz, but by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons, Michael Quinland, and the retiring Board Member, Lane Kirkland. These gentlemen feel that his background and field of expertise would give the board another director with valuable qualifications and experience.

Enclosed is a copy of his resume and I hope you will contact me if there is any way in which I can provide you with additional information about him.

With my best regards.

Sincerely,

Mark O. Hatfield
United States Senator

Dear Mr. Sununu:

For 14 years the civil war in Lebanon has been raging on. Prospects for peace, new governments, and countless seize fires come and go. Further lives are still being lost.

Our brothers and sisters in that destitute country need our support.

Located in a region of vital importance to the United States, it's definitely in the interest of our government and every American citizen to see a free, independent, and sovereign Lebanon once again.

I urge you to please do what you can to stop the bloodshed and work towards restoring Lebanon to that group of nations which are free, independent, and sovereign.

Sincerely,

Dear John:

It is my understanding that the President is giving serious consideration to the appointment of Teresa A. Gorman as Assistant Administrator for Water at the Environmental Protection Agency. If so, I wish to congratulate the President on what I believe would be a marvelous choice for this very important EPA position.

Administrator William K. Reilly's great confidence in Ms. Gorman's abilities is obviously well placed, and I believe that she would indeed be a valuable addition to the agency's leadership team.

Teresa has been a member of the Minority Professional Staff of the House Energy and Commerce Committee since 1984, and prior to that, she served with the Office of Policy Analysis at EPA.

On Capitol Hill, Teresa enjoys an outstanding reputation among both Members and staff for her expertise in environmental matters, her knowledge of the legislative process, and her special ability to work effectively and cooperatively with parties on all sides of an issue. The consummate professional, she excels as a communicator and negotiator.

In addition, I have had the opportunity to observe her at work under what clearly were some very difficult and challenging circumstances. I am particularly reminded of her outstanding work during the long and arduous task of enacting the 1986 Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act.

Both the Public Works and Transportation and Energy and Commerce Committees reported different versions of the bill, thereby necessitating extensive negotiations in order to reconcile the two versions prior to going to the House Floor.

April 13, 1989

The Honorable John H. Sununu
Chief of Staff to the President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Gov. Sununu:

As President of the ALLIANCE OF INDEPENDENT STORE OWNERS AND PROFESSIONALS, I want to register our strong opposition to the attempt to saddle the Postal Service with an additional $500 Million charges in fiscal 1990 as part of Mr. Darman's solution to the Federal budget deficit. Our organization is made up of small business people from coast to coast who rely on the U.S. Mail for business purposes and it is our interest to protect these small companies from unreasonable postal rate increases.

Just last year, the members of the ALLIANCE were hit with a staggering 30 percent increase in third-class postal rates. The news coming out of the Postal Service indicates that we can expect another round of increases of equal or greater magnitude, perhaps as early as November, 1990. The additional $500 Million you are asking from the Postal Service will only add to that amount and accelerate the effective date and size of the next rate increase. The $500 Million will come out of the hide of small businesses that we represent including my own furniture store. It cannot be absorbed by the Postal Service, which is experiencing difficulty controlling its other costs.

Last year's postal increase has severely hurt our members and businesses everywhere. Small businesses have no leeway in their tight operation budgets to absorb 30 percent increases in advertising costs. Their small size limits their access to the mass media. Small businesses rely on the U.S. Mail. Increased mailing costs mean either reducing the size of mailing or discontinuing advertising altogether. Experience has shown beyond a doubt that reduced advertising or failure to advertise leads to a downward trend in business, to business failures, and eventual bankruptcy. This means reduced tax revenues and will ironically exacerbate the deficit problem rather than offer a solution.

A National Alliance for a FAIR Postal Policy

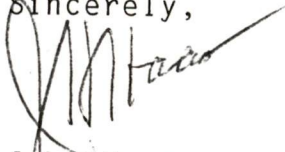

P.O. Box 2014, Loop Station /Minneapolis, MN 55402

Sununu
April 13, 1989

We are aware and know that there is no painless solution. The members of the ALLIANCE recognize that all Americans must help solve it. But, we think the proposal to shift a sudden lump sum charge to the Postal Service and its customers to cover retirement costs associated with nonpostal employment is particularly unfair. We support Postmaster General Frank's proposal for the amortization of these retirement costs limited to actual years of postal work experience.

We hope you will use your good offices and search for a fairer solution and not jeopardize the small businesses we represent.

Sincerely,

John Haas
President

White House

Dear Mr. Sununu:

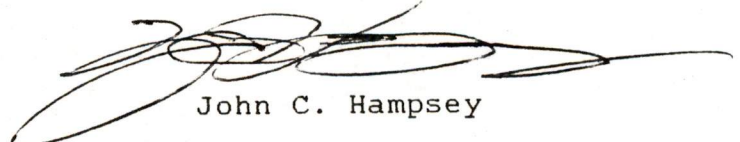

This may not be the normal procedure, but I am writing to inquire about the possibility of a speech-writer position at the White House. (You may know my brother, Bernard J. Hampsey, who has been a New Hampshire Judge in the Peterborough area for the last 23 years.) I am currently on the Literature Faculty at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where I teach courses in English and Classical Literature. Previously I had been an Assistant Professor of Humanities at Boston University (1983-88) where I taught literature and philosophy. Altogether I have 11 years experience as a professor. I received my Ph.D. in English from Boston College in 1982.

Besides years of classroom experience accompanied by high student and peer evaluations, I have experience as tour-guide, script-writer, and speech-maker. I have also delivered many papers and lectures under a variety of settings and circumstances. (This June I am delivering a lecture at the Eastern Writers' Conference on "The Imaginative Essay.")

My writing has come into its own in recent years. I have published articles, essays, and stories in a variety of places including the new highly acclaimed Gettysburg Review (contributing editors include Ann Beattie, Robert Penn Warren, Richard Wilbur, Donald Barthelme, and Garrison Keillor) and Shenandoah. My fiction receives the personal attention of Michael Curtis (Senior Editor) at the Atlantic, William Phillips at Partisan Review, and James Linville at the Paris Review. I am currently writing a piece on academia and politics for the Boston Globe Magazine (I have written book reviews for the Globe in the past). My article in the November issue of Boston Woman (on the Supreme Court ruling and women joining men's clubs) was praised in the Boston Globe's "Literary Life" section. Besides some new stories and essays, I am currently working on a second novel.

I certainly appreciate your time and consideration and hope to hear from you soon.

Very sincerely,

John C. Hampsey

Dear John,

Considering all the heat the President is getting in the Exxon Valdez accident (see enclosed), I wonder if the President's schedule would allow him to make a trip up to the area.

I realize the logistics involved makes this not only an expensive, but also a time consuming proposition but it would prove to the world and most importantly Congress, that President Bush does indeed care about the environment so much so that he is willing to take the time to get personally involved.

A second benefit from such a visit would be of great help in the upcoming debate on further exploration in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. This is one of the best ways to help turn around the oil import problem. That our imports are higher than 1973 does not seem to bother many people except for us. Even our friends in Congress hardly give this issue the time of day. A presidential visit to the oil spill in Alaska could be most helpful.

Best Regards,

Chris

Dear John:

I write to urgently and respectfully ask that you encourage President Bush and National Security Adviser Skowcroft to make Lebanon a major priority for American foreign policy. Our country can do much to stop the bloodshed and suffering of the Lebanese people. Long a friend of the United States, Lebanon deserves full independence and sovereignty.

As an American of Lebanese descent, I know that the United States has stood for that which is right and compassionate and just. Thank you for your thoughtful consideration of my request that we do all that we can to end the long nightmare in Lebanon.

Sincerely yours,

President, Los Angeles World Affairs Council - 1973-1988

Dear Governor:

We have been informed by David Shobe, President of the National Alcoholic Beverage Control Association, that you will not be able to attend the Association's '52nd Annual Conference Banquet on Tuesday evening, May 2, 1989, at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in New Orleans.

We are sorry and disappointed and would like to ask you if there is any possibility that your busy schedule can be arranged that would permit you to attend this special evening at which time Chick will be honored by his fellow Commissioners from all the eighteen Control States, officials from the Liquor and Wine Industry.

If that isn't possible, we would appreciate letters of congratulations from you, President Bush and Vice President Quayle.

The Honorable Mr. John Sununu

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I wish to invite you to be our guest of honor and speaker for the 50th Anniversary of the American Civic Association of Broome County, Binghamton, in upstate New York. This is the main event of a year-long celebration culminating 50 years of activities by the American Civic Association involving in particular helping thousands of foreign-born to settle in our geographic area and to introduce them to the American way of life. The American Civic Association represents more than 96 nationalities at the present time. It was started 50 years ago by 12 founding members, and from that time on it became a legal reference source to thousands of people who were in need of help in settling in the United States, and still serves today. We as members of this Association are proud of its work and the fact that it has helped many of us not to forget our past heritage and culture.

In a recent speech I heard, you were mentioning how proud you were of your heritage, as are many of us in the Association. And for that reason, your name was presented to our committee as the most suitable person to address the 600 to 700 people who will be gathering for the celebration of this anniversary. The dinner will be held about 6 o'clock in the evening of April 15, 1989 in the Sheraton Hotel, One Sarbro Square in Binghamton, New York.

The committee and I will be very anxious to hear from you as soon as possible. I am looking forward to your favorable reply.

Sincerely,

Walid Hammoud, M.D.

Dear John:

Attn: Jackie Kennedy

Warm thanks for the handsome pictures reminiscent of the inspiring March 16 briefings for the 1988-1989 Center Fellows. All of them are most appreciative, as I am, believe me.

John, in the event your busy schedule would permit, we would like to have you as the honored guest of a quite unique organization at the Annual Meeting. Here I am referring to the Public Members Association of the Foreign Service. This is made up of public-spirited persons from throughout the United States who, in non-career roles, have served on boards and commissions for the United States Department of State and the United States Information Agency. The Association will be having its Annual Meeting on Thursday, May 4, at 7 p.m. in Washington, D.C., which will be concluded with a reception and dinner at the F Street Club, 1925 F Street, N.W. We would like very much to have you join us for the reception and dinner and speak informally following dinner. We would anticipate no more than 50 persons.

This is the final year in which my wife, Louise, is serving as President of the Association. We would be doubly delighted should Mrs. Sununu be able to join us. It would be my pleasure to introduce you on that occasion, as the past President of the Association.

Again, my warm thanks.

Sincerely yours,

R. Gordon Hoxie

Dear Governor Sununu:

This is just a brief fan letter for the President. After many years of hype from the White House, it is very refreshing to encounter a more sensible, low-key media operation. I was especially pleased to read about the President's visit to the high school in Fairfax which didn't have any fixed agenda or speech drafted in advance.

It also is very encouraging that the White House isn't attempting to manufacture news every day of the week, which has been the practice for decades.

I believe the American people will appreciate this low-key approach. It is a great relief to the public. Moreover, when the President has something to say, the public will be listening more carefully.

Sincerely,

Anthony Harrigan

Dear Governor Sununu:

We enjoyed your "reflected glory" at the St. Jude Dinner the other night! Talking to you prompted me to invite you as my honored guest to the Bohemian Grove encampment for the weekend of July 21-23, 1989, in the grand Redwoods of Northern California. You would join Nick Brady, Bill Smith, Henry Kissinger and other familiar Mandalay campmates such as Tom Watson, Jr., who is inviting Brent Scowcroft to be his guest. If convenient and appropriate for you and Brent, we would fly you out in a Lear Jet 55 personally owned by Tom, leaving Washington National Friday at 1500 direct to Santa Rosa and returning for dinner Sunday evening.

The President and Jim Baker have been coming for years and they will testify to the magical experience in store for us each year.

I have only one request, namely, you should let me know as soon as possible that you can or cannot accept because I must advise the Bohemian Club and our Camp Mandalay captain right away. Obviously, supervening events may make your cancellation necessary but I would enjoy sharing with you the wide and interesting fellowship of Bohemia.

Hoping it will be enticing for you and we can plan on it, I am

Sincerely yours,

Najeeb E. Halaby

Dear Governor:

I would like to call your attention to an excellent gentleman, Mr. Peter Barr Robb, who is being considered by Monie Righter, Deputy Director of Personnel, to be General Counsel for the National Labor Relations Board. I understand he is one of three being seriously considered for this position.

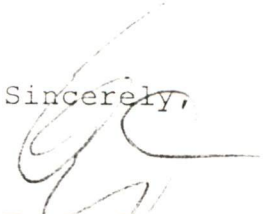

From what I know, he is imminently qualified, his character is impeccable, and he comes from a very fine and wonderful family. His brother, Paul Robb, has been associated for several years with our company as Senior Vice President of Marketing and Merchandising of our Womens Wear Division.

If you feel this appropriate, any good word you can put in for Peter will be greatly appreciated.

I'm very, very sorry I was unable to make the party honoring you and John Mitchell recently. Congratulations on being named White House Chief of Staff - we're so proud of you.

Warmest best wishes.

Sincerely,

Dear Governor Sununu:

I have just returned from a trip to four West African countries and Ethiopia. Knowing your deep commitment to Africa's economic and social development, and the importance of your responsibilities in the administration, I am writing to share my observations with you.

Accompanying me on this trip were Dr. Peter G. Bourne, a member of our global board of directors and the former UN assistant secretary-general responsible for establishing the International Decade for Drinking Water Supply and Sanitation, and Dr. Fitigu Tadesse, director of the Hunger Project's Africa Division and former Ethiopian ambassador to Rome.

During this trip, we had the opportunity to meet with heads of state, ministers, leaders of intergovernmental and nongovernmental organizations, farmers associations and individual farmers.

We found that, overall and despite a broad range of difficulties, there is now widespread recognition that the solutions to Africa's problems rest with Africa itself. The energy, courage and unity that for the past generation have been devoted to political liberation for the nations of Africa, are being increasingly directed today at achieving economic viability for the people of Africa. This commitment, so well articulated by leaders at the OAU Summit in 1985 and the UN Special Session in 1986, is now being put into action at virtually all levels of society.

The nations we visited are grappling with extremely difficult problems. A major issue is the lack of access to rural credit. Environmental concerns such as desertification and deforestation remain overriding concerns in these countries, and the importance of addressing environmental sustainability is increasingly recognized.

We were struck by these and other profound challenges Africa continues to face in trade, public health, education and population pressures; and by how extremely difficult it is to institute the long-term solutions necessary, while at the same time carrying out a rigorous structural adjustment program. The solid achievements in these areas by Africa's leaders and people are inspiring; they illuminate the fact that sustained and increased support from the international community for these efforts is both needed and deserved.

SENEGAL: Our trip began in Dakar, at the invitation of H.E. President Abdou Diouf. President Diouf continues to be deeply committed to the path he pioneered in the UN Special Session on Africa in 1986, for which leadership he was awarded The Hunger Project's 1987 Africa Prize for Leadership in recognition of his continent-wide commitment to economic reform and increased emphasis on agriculture.

To date, the indicators of economic recovery are positive; the challenge now is to overcome the constraints on extending the benefits of Senegal's implementation of structural adjustment to the wider population. Leaders are convinced that greater efforts are needed to strengthen the health infrastructure, increase access to rural credit and improve literacy.

Many people with whom we met suggest that a key to providing many of these important services such as credit, training and marketing infrastructures is local farmers' associations and their national and regional networks. I had the opportunity to visit these associations at both the village and national levels, and was inspired by the breadth of human services and agricultural-policy influence they provide. By way of example, the "good reputation" of these associations may soon become sufficient collateral, in the absence of private ownership of land, for farmers to obtain needed credit. The government is committed to encouraging such activity. NGOs and farmers' associations are now being actively consulted by government ministries in the development of national agricultural plans. This is a reflection of an increasing willingness of policy makers in much of Africa to listen to the concerns of farmers.

Within this climate of encouragement for farmers' associations, one committee of farmers we met with is Colufifa -- the committee for the struggle to end hunger. Colufifa members have declared their own responsibility to ensure the end of persistent hunger in their villages within five years. They are doing this through improved community food storage and processing, increased food production, and other programs to ensure ample food between harvests and thus eliminate seasonal hunger.

One way that Senegal is acknowledging the critical importance of farmers to the nation's future is through a presidential prize for outstanding small-scale farmers. I was privileged during my visit to participate in the inaugural ceremony for this prize, which President Diouf established with the prize money awarded him as the winner of the 1987 Africa Prize for Leadership.

The prize has been established in a way that permits it to be internally financed as a continuing annual award.

An important issue confronting Senegal at present is its vulnerability to attack by desert locusts. Last May and September, Senegal was unexpectedly hit by swarms of locusts for the first time in 30 years. The country is ill-prepared for another attack. President Diouf demonstrated his international leadership once again by organizing a meeting of experts and ministers of agriculture, followed by a head-of-state conference to address the need for preparedness. The conference resulted in an international appeal as well as a major financial commitment to revitalizing OCLALAV's regional anti-locust activities, which in recent years had become less active.

GHANA: We then traveled to Ghana, a country that is attracting enormous international attention for its success at implementing structural adjustment, via its "Economic Recovery Program."

In the early 1980's, Ghana confronted a near-total collapse of its economy. One of the most dramatic occurrences in recent African history was the successful repatriation of 1.5 million Ghanaians from Nigeria, and their integration into society, primarily in the rural sector. Since then, in the words of its secretary of finance, Ghana has "bitten the bullet" and instituted wrenching economic reforms. In Ghana today we found an extraordinary new spirit of dynamism and unity of purpose in the face of serious hardship.

Although Chairman Rawlings was in Japan at the time of my visit, I had the opportunity to meet with many of the nation's leaders, including the first lady and president of the 31st December Women's Movement, Mrs. Rawlings; the chairman of the Committee of Secretaries, Mr. P. V. Obeng; and Ghana's secretary of finance, Dr. Kwesi Botchwey. The enthusiasm and drive of Ghana's leaders are exhibited by individuals we met throughout the society. Ghana's commitment to agriculture is paramount; Ghana too, for example, has a very prominent national prize for farmers.

The role of women, and in particular initiatives to encourage leadership for women, was a theme that recurred throughout our trip. In Ghana, the 31st December Women's Movement, under the direct, hands-on leadership of Mrs. Rawlings, is carrying out a wide variety of training and income-generating programs. "When you empower the woman," Mrs. Rawlings told us, "you empower the whole community."

I traveled to Ghana with the express intention of visiting the Global 2000 agriculture and guinea worm eradication projects there. Global 2000's work to "create the green revolution in Africa" has met with spectacular success in Ghana, resulting in increased yields of as high as 400 to 500 percent for some 16,000 farm families. Global 2000 is not "bringing something from outside" -- rather, as we heard from both farmers and government leaders, it has provided a successful methodology that is being carried out by Ghana's agricultural ministry and through the "word-of-mouth" referrals of Ghana's small-scale farmers. This is clearly one of Africa's success stories of the decade. Dr. Martinez, the project director, told me: "When I came, I thought technology was the answer. Now I am clear that it is only the smallest part. The largest part is the political climate. Without the political will, there is nothing."

BURKINA FASO: From my meetings with President Blaise Compaoré and several ministers of government as well as with the farming community, I feel that the government's strong commitment to literacy and agricultural productivity, while attracting less international publicity than during my last visit in 1984, seems to continue to be at a high level. There is also a continued commitment to local self-reliance, coordinated planning at all levels and cooperation with NGOs and peasant movements.

A highlight of our time in Burkina Faso was our visit to the headquarters and projects of the Naam movement, founded by Bernard Lédéa Ouédraogo. This remarkable peasant movement evolved from careful study of existing, traditional structures and has identified several principles that have not only produced tremendous success locally, but have been adapted by similar movements (through the international 6-S association, also headquartered there) in other West African countries.

A unique and pioneering aspect of 6-S is its focus on "utilizing" (rather than fighting) the dry season of the Sahel. Its programs mobilize the available time of the farmers to develop vegetable gardens, income-earning skills and greater overall food security. We observed many of these activities and were struck by the enthusiasm, ownership and decentralized leadership evidenced by the participants.

The principles of trust and self-reliance are critical to 6-S: local groups are provided with completely unrestricted funds once they have attained a certain level of development. Six-S is a clear demonstration of Africa's responsibility for its own solutions: the movement is completely indigenously generated and self-sustaining.

COTE D'IVOIRE: During a brief stop-over in Abidjan, we met with Babacar N'Diaye, the president of the African Development Bank. Mr. N'Diaye shared with us his views on a range of issues related to Africa's economic viability. He is convinced that the free-market route, in the long run, is the only path of economic development that will be sustainable. He discussed with us the crucial role of African women in the field of agricultural production; in his opinion, any government policy that does not give the proper attention to this role will not succeed. We discussed the difficulties of international commodity markets, and he stressed that the only meaningful structural adjustment program, that is, the only ones that will alter the structure of a country's economy, would be those that eliminate single-crop dependency by diversifying agricultural production to other cash and food crops. He also feels that Africa's future economic viability depends primarily on regional cooperation. In the final analysis, Mr. N'Diaye is very optimistic about the future of Africa's economic development.

ETHIOPIA: Our trip concluded in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, which we visited at the invitation of Professor Adebayo Adedeji, UN under-secretary-general and executive secretary of the Economic Commission for Africa (ECA). We had the opportunity to meet with Professor Adedeji and many of ECA's senior staff. Professor Adedeji is well known for his analysis of Africa's economic situation, for his advice to African states on economic policy and for the personal role he played in the preparation of the Lagos Plan of Action and Africa's economic recovery program.

We also visited the Organization of African Unity (OAU), where we met with Mr. Idé Oumarou, OAU secretary-general, and his deputy, Ambassador Ahmed Haggag. Mr. Oumarou is an articulate spokesperson for Africa's aspirations and commitment to take charge of its economic destiny; he is personally responsible for building a base of international supports for these efforts.

These Pan-African agencies have played a pivotal role in the design and implementation of Africa's economic recovery. As Mr. Oumarou told us, "For so long, the OAU focused on decolonization. Now that this work is nearly complete, you are seeing the OAU direct itself towards economic development, the true form of independence."

Practical strategies for Pan-African economic and agricultural development were being worked out in departments we visited throughout ECA. One particularly impressive team we visited was the Women's Center. With only four professional and four part-time staff, the Women's Center has identified high-leverage actions to enhance national and regional programs in support of Africa's 270 million women.

In our discussions with Mr. Oumarou and Professor Adedeji, we exchanged views on the importance of strategic thinking and planning for the end of hunger in Africa. Both indicated their organizations' readiness to participate in a multi-sectoral process to develop such a strategy.

Although the primary purpose of our visit to Addis was to conduct meetings with OAU and ECA, we did have brief meetings with Mr. Berhanu Jembere, chief commissioner of Ethiopia's Relief and Rehabilitation Commission (RRC), and with Mr. Michael Priestley, the UN secretary-general's representative in Addis. Mr. Jembere spoke at length about the success of efforts to avert famine in 1988, how this success depended on early and effective mobilization of the international donor community and how grateful the government and Ethiopian people were for this partnership. He spoke openly of mistakes that had been made during the 1984-85 relief effort and of the tremendous education in emergency prevention and preparedness that has taken place. It was our sense that this self-criticism was sincere and that the Ethiopian government is very open to working with the donor community not just to avert famine but to improve agricultural productivity overall.

These few observations would be incomplete without acknowledging the extraordinary cooperation and assistance provided by the governments and organizations we were privileged to visit. In addition to providing the generous and gracious hospitality for which Africa is so well known, exceptional personal efforts were made by dozens of officials to facilitate our meeting the maximum number of people in our limited time.

No report of the substance of our meetings, or of the genuine hardships faced by the people of this region, would properly convey the dynamism and determination I experienced in the people of the countries I visited. Far from the malaise one might expect in the face of what continue to seem impossible economic and environmental obstacles, we saw a growing confidence, strength, spirit and creativity in the people and leadership of Africa.

In the coming months, The Hunger Project will continue to expand its efforts to mobilize greater international support and partnership for Africa, its people and its leaders, and we will launch several new initiatives based on what we have learned on this trip. I will inform you of these as they are developed, and, as always, I value your advice and suggestions.

With best regards,

MINISTRY OF TRADE AND INDUSTRY

KWACHON, KYONGKI-DO 427-760

REPUBLIC OF KOREA

March 24, 1989

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
Executive Office of the President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I am pleased to enclose a copy of the new report entitled "Responsive & Responsible: Korea's Trade Partnership with the United States." This report is an abstract of the comprehensive white paper "Free and Fair Trade: Korea's Record and Commitment" dated March 1989. It provides an overview of the Korean Government's market-opening program for imports of products and services.

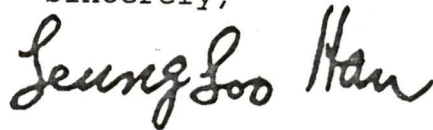

While trade relations with Korea are receiving an unprecedented amount of attention in the United States, much of this attention has focused on periodic bilateral negotiations on individual items. The bigger picture is often overlooked. As a result, Korea is judged on the basis of isolated sectors or issues which do not reflect the full record of Korea's trade policies and practices. A comprehensive review of Korea's record on trade is therefore appropriate. Korea's progress in trade liberalization is impressive, achieved in a short period of time amid social and political challenges which might have stymied a less committed nation. This report should provide a broader perspective and serve as a timely reference for you and your staff as the U.S. begins to assess the U.S.-Korean trade relationship.

The Korean government shares the U.S. view that free trade benefits all participants and must be practiced as well as preached. While full trade liberalization cannot be accomplished by any country overnight, Korea asks that the United States put our trade relationship into its full context and recognize the significant progress already achieved as we work together to overcome remaining obstacles.

We hope that this report will serve to strengthen the foundation which has enabled our two nations to come so far together.

If you have any questions or would like to receive additional copies of this document or a copy of the comprehensive white paper mentioned above, please contact Mr. Hee-Bum Lee, Commercial Attache, Korean Embassy, Washington, D.C. at (202) 939-5600 or Mr. Jong-Kap Kim, Director of the Trade Cooperation Bureau, Ministry of Trade and Industry, Korea, at 011-822-504-0105. We would appreciate receiving any comments that you might have on this report. Your comments may be directed to Mr. Hee-Bum Lee, Korean Embassy, 2362 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20008, who will convey them to me.

Sincerely,

Chief of Staff
The White House

Dear Gov. Sununu:

For your leadership and outstanding presentation in the March 16, 1989 White House briefing for Center Fellows we are most grateful, believe me. May I also say how much it means to the Center having the Bush Administration continue the briefings which, beginning in the first Reagan Administration, have become a major feature in the Fellowship year.

Your own cogent remarks are indicative not only of a distinguished Chief of Staff but also of an inspiring educator. It is our hope that a year hence the new 1989-1990 Fellows may have a similar opportunity.

Our thanks additionally to your deputy, Andrew Card, and his assistant, Linda Gambetesa, for their roles in planning and carrying through the briefings under your direction.

You and the President may find especial interest in the enclosed two copies of Presidential Studies Quarterly. We are placing your name on the mailing list for future issues of the Quarterly and other Center publications.

Again, our warm thanks.

Sincerely yours,

R. Gordon Hoxie

Attn: Jackie Kennedy

Dear John:

I enjoyed our conversation over the holidays concerning the appointment of well qualified individuals to the critical scientific and engineering positions in the Bush Administration. I am writing, on a personal basis, to call your attention to the candidacy of Lowell T. Harmison for the position of Presidential Science Advisor. Dr. Harmison is an exceptionally well qualified individual for this position. His academic career bridged the areas of science and technology with training as an engineer, a physicist, and a biophysicist, receiving his B.S. and M.S. degrees from West Virginia University in 1960 and 1961 respectively; a Ph.D. from the University of Maryland in 1965; and a post doctoral program at the University of Michigan in 1966. He has also received Management training, graduating from the Federal Executive Institute (1973) and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Senior Executive Program of the Sloan School of Management in 1985.

Dr. Harmison's professional career reflects his unique background in both science and technology. His experience includes the development and testing of the first completely implantable device to augment the function of the diseased heart and the totally implantable artificial heart; he directed the Public Health Service team that translated the laboratory test for the Aids virus antibody into an EPA approved and commercially available screening test for our blood supply; he has served as Science Advisor to the Assistant Secretary for Health and the Deputy Assistant Secretary of the U.S. Public Health Service. He currently serves as Chief Operating Officer for the Maxwell Foundation which operates internationally with assets that place it among the largest private philanthropic organizations in the world.

As I have followed your recent appearances on nationwide television you have effectively clarified the different roles of scientists and engineers. It is my opinion that Dr. Lowell T. Harmison, a Registered Professional Mechanical Engineer, understands these roles and would make an outstanding Presidential Science Advisor who must also serve as Director of the White House Office of Science and Technology.

If you have any further questions concerning this candidate where I might be of assistance, please feel free to call on me at any time.

Best personal regards.

Dear John:

Some time ago I mentioned to you that ICS had created a National Leadership Network. The purpose of this network is to extend the reach and impact of ideas in our policy books. It is designed to be a non-Washington forum targeting issues and focusing on Congress, bringing intellectual, business, and citizens pressure on government. It is composed of young successful entrepreneurs who want to have an impact on public policy.

This year we will hold our first National Leadership Network annual meeting in Taos, New Mexico, June 15-17. The purpose of this meeting is to discuss upcoming issues in domestic policy; the goal is to select the issue that the Network will focus on for the coming year. Once the issue has been selected, we will write a CEO policy book, similar to Winning the Brain Race that contains a clear and concise agenda for reform. The Network will then start to work on generating local support for the agenda that can then be focused on Washington and the states.

We would like you and you wife to be our guests at the conference and for the weekend. We plan to get most of our work done Friday and Saturday morning, allowing participants to also enjoy Taos. We would like you to make a presentation at our first panel on the key domestic policy issues as a means of focusing the discussion of the Network. You would also be our Guest of Honor at the dinner on the night of the 17th.

I hope you will be able to join us. This group could play a significant role in focusing the Administration's attention on important policy initiatives in the coming year.

Sincerely yours,

Robert B. Hawkins, Jr.

It was again an honor to have been able to attend the banquet in your honor last Saturday, March 18th.

As a member of the American Task Force for Lebanon and active in ALSAC, I am proud of you and your efforts on behalf of our people.

The reception and banquet ended with tremendous excitement, not only because of being able to be with you and hearing the President, but because we now believe that we are not alone in our efforts to help the Lebanese people.

May God Bless You in your efforts.

Sincerely,

Emil Haddad
President

The Honorable John H. Sununu
Chief of Staff to the President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear John:

The United States is presently facing very critical competitiveness challenges which will shape America for years to come. If we do not successfully come to grips with these challenges, our economy will be further weakened, and the American public will be confronted with the prospect of a lower growth in our standard of living than we have been accustomed to expect. In your capacity as Chief of Staff, you have a major opportunity to help the President take a leadership role in strengthening the U.S. economy -- leadership is what is needed.

John, I would like to invite you to participate in our second forum on U.S. Competitiveness and Capital Policy Options on Monday, May 22d, from 1:30 p.m. until 5 p.m. at the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston. A cocktail reception will follow the forum at 5 p.m. We would welcome Roger Porter at the forum as well.

Like the first highly successful forum, this event will be sponsored by members of the Massachusetts business community and the Congressional Economic Leadership Institute (CELI) in association with the bipartisan Congressional Competitiveness Caucus. The forum will include no more than 50 participants and will provide an opportunity for 6 to 10 members of Congress from both parties, 25 to 30 Massachusetts CEOs, several economists, and Administration officials to discuss a number of defined solutions to our capital policy problems, specifically, legislative options designed to deal with critical areas such as U.S. national saving and investment. There will be no speeches, only moderated dialogue among the participants.

The enclosed publication describes the first competitiveness forum held at my home in the fall of 1987 with attendees listed on the inside back cover. I am also sending the final copy of our newly released study with the American Business Conference on national saving and an article on competitiveness that I co-authored last summer for SCIENCE magazine.

We would welcome your leadership on behalf of the President and hope that you will be able to attend. Dr. Ralph Landau has offered to make his plane available to fly you and others from Washington to the forum on the 22d, returning to Washington after the forum.

There are many of us who are eager to assist the Administration to help make this country more competitive, and I believe you would find the forum to be a lively and constructive dialogue concerning policy options now before us.

Sincerely yours,

George N. Hatsopoulos

Dear Dr. Sununu:

I urge you to consider Mr. Edward L. Flippen for a seat on the Federal Communications Commission. I understand that his candidacy has been endorsed by the National Telephone Cooperative Association and by the President of the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissions.

I have known and admired Mr. Flippen throughout his distinguished career as Assistant General Counsel for the Duke Power Company, as an attorney for the Virginia State Corporation Commission, and in private practice. He is extremely knowledgeable in utility law and has lectured extensively at the University of Virginia and the University of Richmond.

I can only conclude that Mr. Flippen would make significant contributions to the vital decisions that must be made by the Federal Communications Commission. In the process, he would strengthen the credibility of the Commission and create favorable public support for the Administration.

Best regards.

Cordially,

Dear John:

It has come to my attention that David Klinges, who is a candidate for a senior position at the Department of the Navy, is seeking a meeting with you to discuss the circumstances of the shipbuilding industry.

Mr. Klinges is currently President of Maritime Construction for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Shipbuilders Council of America. To the extent it would be appropriate for you or a member of the White House staff to discuss this issue with him, I can vouch for Mr. Klinges professional background and very thorough knowledge of the domestic industry's strengths and weaknesses.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

John Heinz
