I am sorry I did not respond to your letter sooner. I have kept very busy travelling with the President this past month.

You asked me how to be successful. I can tell you that I am very lucky to have gotten a very good education and training as an engineer. Also, I have been blessed with a wonderful family who has been very supportive of me.

If you want to be successful, my advice is to study hard in school and try to learn a subject that you enjoy.

Happy holidays to you and your class. Thank you for writing.

Dear Larry,

I want to personally thank you for all of your hard work during the Fall campaign cycle.

You sacrificed a great deal of time and energy for our candidates and I wanted to stress to you how critical it was to our efforts.

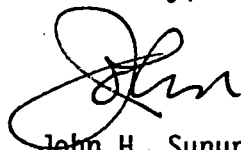

During the past year, Administration officials participated in nearly 900 events on behalf of Republican candidates. We can all take pride in this achievement.

You personally made a difference for more than twenty-five candidates. Overall, during this election year, more Republican candidates received more help from more top Administration officials than ever before. This would not have been possible without the dedication and commitment of you and your staff.

Please give our special thanks to Chino Chapa and his assistant Kurt Wall. They worked closely with the White House Office of Political Affairs and the Republican committees to make the political travel program an overwhelming success.

Thank you again for being a strong voice for our principles and for taking the message of the Bush Administration to the American people. Your dedication and hard work are very much appreciated.

Dear Don,

Thanks for your note concerning the Treasury Department's regulations project on regulatory commissions' treatment of the tax savings of regulated utilities that file consolidated federal income tax returns. I understand that this is a complex and controversial matter, raising difficult issues of law and policy that also may affect relations between the federal and state governments.

The Treasury Department informs me that the regulations have been issued in a proposed form in a manner designed to allow an opportunity for full consideration of comments on all sides of these issues. I have shared your letter with officials within the Department for their information as well.
