Dear Governor Sununu,

From every indication, President Bush has one of the most competent staffs in memory. I think the people of our country, in large measure, have you to thank for that.

Over the past months, the rhetoric has been fast and fierce as both the Congress and the Executive Branch have been trying to resolve the budget deficit dilemma. As a result of the fiasco witnessed over the past ten days, I have lost confidence in our system to be able to make tough decisions. Clearly, our forefathers never intended the federal bureaucracy to ever become this large and this cumbersome. As a student of organizational systems and management for the past 22 years, I have some thoughts concerning easy ways of reducing the budget without killing programs, and they are within the power of the Executive Branch to implement without the good counsel of the Congress.

First, reduce the human resource cost of implementing programs. This can be achieved by limiting the number of layers of decision making levels in each Department by flattening the organization structure. Sears and Roebuck, for example, has only five layers of management between the individual sales clerk and the President. This is an intentional violation of the management principle of Span of Control, however it speeds decision-making, forces delegation, and eliminates thousands of "hanger-ons." It need not be painful, in that it can be achieved through normal attrition, forced retirement of eligibles, and a three year moratorium on federal hiring.

Second, implement W. Edwards Deming's statistical quality control methods. Each federal program passed into law has some purpose, whether it be social, foreign policy, defense, environment, health, etc. At the time the law is passed, the Department responsible for implementing the law should develop specific statistically valid outcome measures to gauge the effectiveness of the legislation implementation. Mr. Deming, despite being 90 years of age, is still quite a powerful thinker, and lives right there in Washington, D.C.

Dear Governor Sununu:

By way of reintroduction, we met at Kitty and John Jr.'s wedding in Charleston. Although I have played golf with John Jr. on several occasions, I hear about you through Tom and through the media.

I am recommending Forest J. Bowman, Professor of Law at West Virginia University for an appointment to one of the two United States District Judgeships which will be created for the Northern and Southern Districts of West Virginia by the Civil Justice Reform Act of 1990, S.2648.

As a former Republican office holder, I believe that Jack Bowman's selection as a federal judge would reflect positively on the party, the state, and the nation.

Attached is curriculum vitae for Forest Jackson Bowman.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Re: Middle East

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I believe you are more intelligent than most of the characters running around Washington on the loose, so I will address my remarks to you with the hope that common sense will prevail regarding Iraq situation.

Some years ago I spent time in Southeast Asia, and I have a general insight regarding the areas and the peoples therein. In my opinion, the real danger in the Persian Gulf crisis is that there will be a phony settlement as a result of external pressures on President Bush to avoid war at any cost.

Any such deal will leave unsolved the basic the true threat the Iraqi war machine. The only way to remove this terrible threat to the Middle East, to the United States and to Israel is to destroy Iraq's war machine its nuclear facility, its chemical facility, and all the infrastructure dealing with Iraq's war capability.

In Saddam Hussein you have a mad man, and half hearted efforts won't fill the bill. He needs to be eliminated along with the entire military structure.

I was a P-51 Group Commander in WW II, so I do have a background of military experience. I wonder why we hesitate to execute the task against Iraq. Are we waiting for the November elections or what? To tarry is folly because the longer you wait the greater the risk of reduced effort by our allies plus the decreasing approval at home.

DEAR MR. SUNUNU,

THE SEPTEMBER 5th, 1990 REPORT OF THE 10 YEAR NATIONAL ACID
PRECIPITATION ASSESSMENT PROGRAM (NAPAP) STUDY EXPLODES THE MYTHS
THAT HAVE CREATED EXCESSIVE FEAR OF ACID RAIN. THE CONTROLS PROPOSED IN THE CLEAN AIR ACT TO DEAL WITH THIS PROBLEM WERE BASED ON THOSE MYTHS AND FEARS.

THEY WILL BURDEN THE CONSUMERS OF ELECTRIC POWER WITH COSTS OF AS MUCH AS $4 BILLION A YEAR TO SOLVE PROBLEMS THAT DO NOT EXIST, OR CAN BE REMEDIED FAR MORE CHEAPLY.

THE MEDIA HAVENOT DELIVERED THIS VITAL MESSAGE. PRESIDENT BUSH
MUST USE HIS "BULLY PULPIT" TO TELL THE NATION WHAT NAPAP HAS REPORTED AND TO PERSUADE CONGRESS TO DROP THE COSTLY ACID-RAIN MEASURES IN THE CLEAN AIR BILL.

PLEASE ASK THE PRESIDENT TO DO THIS.

Subject: More Active Competent
Leadership needed in the areas of Energy, drugs, crime, including city street violence, domestic violence.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

May I congratulate you for the commendable
job you are doing as the President's Chief of Staff, while the President is occupied with the Persian Gulf Crisis and Iraq's President's reactions to the embargo.

It may be too much for the President to deal with both the international and the domestic crises, with equal aptitude and success.

In addition to the budget and deficit crisis, right now people are most concerned about the cost of energy and crime and drugs. They want to know if the Administration has an energy plan in case the Persian Gulf Crisis worsens. They want to know if the Administration has any able leadership to deal with city street violence and drug abuse, and short and long range plans for reducing both.
How can the President be alerted to the need for able leadership in the above areas? Whatever is being done now is not working to any appreciable extent.
Things are worsening from my observation, perhaps because only the symptoms are being addressed.

Mr. John H. Sununu -
The White House

Dear Mr. Sununu:

First, taxes. The Star Chamber proceedings at Andrews--however justified as an arrangement for efficient deliberations--was alien to the bumbling, open, accepted, jealously guarded and quite wonderful methods of legislation that characterize our democratic republic. Surely you know better now that it is dangerous to stray off a reservation with boundaries established by Constitutional separation of powers. Executive Branch relationship with Congressional leaders should be friendly, cooperative and at arm's length.

It is hard for me to understand why I pay 33% when people who make more than I do pay 28%. If this disparity is to continue, a credible explanation for the strange arithmetic in terms of conventional progressive tax rates would be helpful. Requirement for the middle class to pick up the tab is a public relations loser without persuasive presentation. The "bubble" must go.

I concur in efforts to reduce capital gains taxation. The fairness of such reduction is highlighted by long-term effects of inflation. Merely to say that it would provide jobs is not enough. ~~Contra~~ arguments about favoring the rich have made "trickle down" a pejorative metaphor. The substantive argument for capital formation in a free market environment should be effectively presented.

Second, Arabia. Crosscurrents in the Middle East at times seem overwhelming. Islam is so different that we (infidels) do well to get involved no more than we have to. We got burned in Iran and Lebanon. Yet, if we are to prevail, the oil must be available and Saddam must be at least caged.

Problems arise if you keep the troops away from women, booze and the ways of home. A pivotal issue: on whose side is time?

Our strategic aim has been stability because with stability we remain in the ascendancy. Although a Pax Americana may be desirable, it is now doubtfully doable. In the last half of this century, our capabilities including education of the young and domestic infrastructure deteriorated.

Unfortunate references to Presidential advisors as "handlers" recently appeared in the media. Derogatory inferences about decision making in the White House emerged. This is not acceptable. Suitable action to prevent malaise and erosion of confidence is needed.

The net of all this, Governor, is that it could be worse. As it gets colder on Wall Street and Main Street, the winter of discontent may be coming. May it not.

I'm rooting for you.

Sincerely,

Richard G. Augenblick

On behalf of the Engineering Management Technical Committee of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers Section of American Society of Civil Engineers (BSCES/ASCE), I am writing to extend an invitation to Mr. John Sununu, Chief of Staff, to speak at the 1991 Lawler Lecture. The Lawler Lecture is an annual event sponsored by the Engineering Management Technical Group of BSCES/ASCE. This year, the Lecture will be held on 7 May 1991 at a prominent hotel in the Boston area.

The Joseph C. Lawler Lecture was established in memory of ASCE Civil Engineering Management Award Winner Joseph C. Lawler to provide a forum to discuss important aspects of engineering management. These aspects include management of projects, general management of engineering organizations and the management of engineering education and professional development.

A prominent speaker is typically chosen for the Lawler Lecture. Past Lecturers have included:

- o Senator Paul Tsongas
- o Dr. Lester Thurow, Dean of MIT Sloan School
- o Dr. Thomas Larsen, Secretary of Pennsylvania Department of Transportation
- o Arnoldo Hax, Assistant Dean of MIT Sloan School
- o Ken Olson, President of Digital Equipment Company.

Dear Governor Sununu,

MS-9
r. Glikes
... advanced publication of Ben Wattenberg's The First Universal Nation.

Enclosed is an advance set of bound pages of a book we believe challenges all the conventional wisdoms and is most probably right, once again, on all counts, Ben Wattenberg's The First Universal Nation.

It will not be the first time a book of Ben's has done this. In 1970, The Real Majority (in collaboration with Richard Scammon) shaped the political dialogue. Other seminal books of his include The Good News is the Bad News is Wrong and The Birth Dearth.

In The First Universal Nation, Ben explores a new America whose people now come "from everywhere," growing through healthy new immigration, while its competitors are demographically frozen. It is a nation that is universal, too, in its growing worldwide potency in the realm of popular culture, including television, music, movies, language, VCR tapes, higher education, tourism, as well as elections, lifestyles and political values.

It is not a nation "in decline" as Paul Kennedy maintains. Wattenberg says America may well be on the way toward becoming "the most influential nation in history" (despite budget bickering).

It is not a nation that should pull back from its global role as Pat Buchanan maintains. Wattenberg says American foreign policy ought now be "neo-manifest destinarian." He notes that the Great Seal of the United States reads "a new order for the ages." If that sounds like President Bush's "New World Order," so be it.

It is not a nation that must retreat because of environmental constraints. Ben takes on Paul Ehrlich and Lester Brown.

On the domestic political side, Wattenberg offers the most comprehensive rebuttal of Kevin Phillips. Wattenberg says that the case that the poor and the middle class lost ground during the 1980s is dubious or minimal. He thinks "political cycles" come only to those that earn them. He says that if the Democratic party looks to class combat, is afraid to debate with Jesse Jackson, and endorses legislation that can lead to quotas -- it will lose. As in The Real Majority, his views are of value to both Democratic and Republicans.

Wattenberg's view is expansive. He thinks the best is yet to come, and the primary threat to our well-being comes from the pinched visions of those who tell us all the things we can't do.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Sununu,

E. Saenger
Edward W. Webster
Nuclear Regulatory Commission
Dr. Webster
This letter is written in support of the candidacy of Edward W. Webster, Ph.D. of Boston, Massachusetts for the currently vacant position of Commissioner for the U. S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Dr. Webster is uniquely qualified for this appointment. In addition to his initial education as an electrical engineer and his intimate knowledge of the technical issues of power, he has had a unique career in the safe utilization of ionizing radiation. He has made significant contributions in every aspect of the uses of radiation, particularly in education and scientific research. His particular forte has been in the development of sound radiation standards and public health policy for the responsible agencies of the United States. He has also served through the Department of State as a member of the U.S. Delegation to the United Nations Scientific Committee on the Effects of Atomic Energy. Many distinguished international standard setting agencies including the International Atomic Energy Agency and the International Commission on Radiological Protection have benefitted from his advice. He serves on the faculties of distinguished academic institutions including Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Of particular importance, Dr. Webster would bring to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission a sound, well-recognized yet conservative viewpoint on the safe uses of ionizing radiation. His experience, scientific judgement and practicality would not only continue to protect the citizens of the United States but would also make the important advances and utilization of nuclear energy available to the citizens of our great country.

Dr. Webster enjoys the support and confidence of many professional and scientific societies of this country. His appointment to this position would greatly enhance the ability of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to perform its assigned duties and would enhance its standing and abilities to maintain support by the citizenry of the United States.

Sincerely,

I am writing you this letter because I have a message for you. In every system God put someone in the system to break the system. You are the one that God put in the system. How do you break the system? By not going along with it. You will be challenged to do something that is wrong and against your system. Stand up for right and God will be with you. This is the time to stand up and be counted.

God's plan is for everyone. To experience the good way and the bad way then choose which way you want to go. The good way promises you nothing and gives you everything. Freedom. The other way promises you everything and gives you nothing but despair. God is for everyone. The other way benefits no one.

God knows you can do it. You have been tested many times and have come through for good ways. We know that fear knocks out God and this is what will be used on you when you feel this coming on. Ask for God's help. He will send help from above. A guardian angel.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I am writing you as a fellow engineer regarding my deep concern for our country. Our mutual friend, Ivan Grotenhuis, assures me that you are a pragmatic technical man of great capability and foresight. I am writing in this regard as I believe it imperative that we start to implement sound practical engineering solutions to our national problems. Our politicians have amply demonstrated they will not face reality, even when confronted with crises.

Regarding the Middle East, we have had essentially no national leadership regarding energy usage for ten years. Now it appears we may have to sacrifice thousands of our young people on the altar of "energy gluttony".

Russia has enormous oil reserves and needs, more than anything else, hard currency. We have an oil industry in depression with the ability to dramatically increase Russian oil output for export purposes. I must believe Chairman Gorbachev would welcome such an effort. This requires national leadership but no tax dollars.

Canada and Mexico have enormous national gas resources. As you know, methane burns much more cleanly than all other hydrocarbons. Could we not implement a national policy to induce vehicles predominantly in large metropolitan areas to change over to burning natural gas. Detroit (and Japan) could follow with dual fuel cars, and service stations would then have a market and inducement to carry natural gas. This certainly reduces dependency on liquid petroleum, it would have a very beneficial effect on air pollution, and it would be a correct step regarding the greenhouse effect.

Ms. Browne ... the closing of Pease Air Force Base and environmental concerns in the surrounding area

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Governor Sununu:

As I am sure you are well aware we, in the New Hampshire Coastal Area, are facing a real environmental crises triggered by the closing of the Pease Air Force Base. Problems surrounding the Air Force withdrawal have been mounting steadily during the past month peaking this past week with the long awaited release of the Bechtel Report.

Bechtel's plans for the future of New Hampshire's small and fragile coastline has our citizenry up in arms. Not since the Onassis threat of an oil refinery in Durham has there been such a public outcry.

I was a founder, a President for two years and secretary for four years of the organization - The Great Bay Estuarine System Conservation Trust. As a present member of the Board of Trustees I assure you we are doing everything in our power to inform our constituents and the general public of the inherent danger to the quality of life we value so highly through - out the state itself but in this case and ESPECIALLY the Seacoast Area.

The Trust's main focus is the designation of 1,100 acres over a mile of which fronts on both Great and Little Bays as a Wildlife Refuge. This designation has been approved by Governor Gregg. But the Bechtel Report gives no guarantee that this site on prime land will saved as a Refuge.

I am inclosing a letter written By Emma Rous, wife of our Trust's President which clearly details some of the dangers we are facing.

As a former Governor who understands this state so well, I urge you to assist us in any way you can to curtail the plans of Bechtel to turn this jewel of Land on the Bays into a megalopolis.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Browne

Dear Mr. Sununu,

You may never see this letter, but I'm writing it in case you might. I'm including background information about my husband and myself so you can understand a little more as I write.

My husband came from a very poor family. There were times when he remembers going to bed hungry. He went to a technical high school and was a draftsman for a short time before being drafted into the Army. After being in the service, my husband used the GI Bill (plus scholarships and board jobs) to go through college.

He received a BS degree from The College of Wooster (Physics & Math), an MS degree in Physics from Ohio University, an MS and PhD from The University of Massachusetts, Amherst. I grew up in a middle class family and received my BS degree from Ohio University. He is 57 and I am 50. He is teaching in the Physics and Astronomy Dept. of a medium sized university and I work part-time in a planetarium.

We feel as though the average American citizen has ABSOLUTELY no voice in the political process. The news media is so biased and TOTALLY in charge of what and how the news is disseminated that we don't have a chance of having any input into decisions made by Congress, for instance (right now), the Budget mess. The politicians (once called Public Servants-Hal) have only THEIR interests at heart, i.e., being re-elected in order to receive all the accompanying prestige, power and perks. They are totally out of touch with the average American.

What this country really needs desperately is to limit the terms of congressmen. Since they would have to do it, it will never happen. Before the S & L Disaster, I thought there might be some merit in having long term "experienced" congressmen, but have changed my mind.

So, as two lowly tax paying citizens, we would like to express some opinions. We voted for Reagan-twice. He stood up and did what he thought was right and didn't worry about what the news media or noisy minorities were saying about him-via the news media.

We voted for President Bush, but have been disappointed recently. We know people with severe crippling arthritis, a couple with two children with Cystic Fibrosis (their daughter has died), a couple with a child who has juvenile diabetes. WE ARE TIRED of the president giving in to the people shouting for more money for AIDS when there is more being spent on AIDS than any of the other major diseases already. And especially since there is a fairly simple way to stem the tide of AIDS, but those in the media and politicians are too scared or dumb to promote it. (I'm talking here about abstaining from dangerous methods of sex.)

Dear Mr. President:

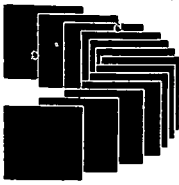

Is send copy outgoing to:
Hon. Jesse Helms
S.S.
As President and Chairman of GVK America, Inc., I would like on behalf of myself, our organization, and our community and State, to extend an invitation to you and Mrs. Bush to be our honored guests at the official Plant Dedication Ceremony of our industry in the Spring of 1991.

GVK America, Inc. is the first American venture of the parent Indian Company, the GVK group, and is one of the first manufacturers of its kind from a developing country establishing itself in a highly developed country.

The combination of Indian and American technologies is an example of the many benefits to be derived from continued and improved Indo-American relations. The State of North Carolina and its Honorable Governor James G. Martin as well as dignitaries from our county have repeatedly shown great interest in the successful implementation of our enterprise. Further demonstration of this commitment was shown on two occasions previously. The Groundbreaking Ceremony was held on September 29, 1989 by the then Honorable Finance Minister of India, Sri S. B. Chavan and the Governor of North Carolina. This was followed by a Foundation Laying Ceremony by Honorable Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh, Dr. M. Channa Reddy on June 5, 1990. This marked the first occasion on which the chief dignitary from our state visited the United States to show support for any industrial enterprise from India.

Your active interest and support will strengthen further investment in the United States by other Indian industrialists. Given the tremendous progress in international democratization and intercourse under your administration, I feel strongly that both our great nations can benefit immeasurably by your participation in this event.

Dear Mr. Bell:

Thank you for your recent letter inviting the Chief of Staff to ^{visit} North Carolina for an event in your behalf sometime in the days and weeks ahead.

Unfortunately, the budget matters have taken much more time than anticipated and, coupled with other pressing matters, Governor Sununu is forced to decline your invitation. He asked me, however, to convey his appreciation to you for your kindness in thinking of him.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Jacqueline A. Kennedy

Now, as we begin the final five weeks before election day, our campaign is benefitting from a number of trends, both national and local.

We are, of course, benefitting greatly from the anti-incumbent sentiment that is sweeping the country this election cycle.

Steve Neal has always had soft support from the electorate, reflected in his painfully thin margins of victory.

As his role in the S&L scandal becomes an increasing liability and the recent disclosure that he received PAC money from an anti-tobacco Congressman affects his image as a protector of the district's interests, he becomes more vulnerable than ever before.

However, the momentum is more than simply anti-incumbent or anti-Steve Neal. Since mid-June, I have run an aggressive, seven-days-a-week campaign, touring the district from morning to night, speaking before gatherings of four to four hundred people, and always taking time to listen to their concerns.

Governor Sununu asked me to respond to your invitation for him to be a special guest at a November meeting of your Finance Committee and other invited friends and supporters in Seattle.

Sincerely,

Dear Governor Sununu:

On behalf of the United States Olympic Committee and Financial World magazine, I would like to extend an invitation to you to be the guest keynote speaker at our 1991 CEO of the Year Awards Banquet being held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City, on March 21, 1991. This promises to be a most important occasion since the banquet will serve as a Olympic fund-raising event.

By way of background, the goal of the joint USOC/FW undertaking is to raise $1 million for our 1992 Olympic teams. Unlike many other fund-raisers, this one is targeted specifically at the chief executive officers of some 3,000 U.S. companies. Tied into FW's prestigious CEO of the Year banquet, attended annually by 600-plus top executives, the fund-raiser is sure to attract widespread attention. Historically, we have had many outstanding speakers, including former President Ronald Reagan.

Considering that President Bush is also the honorary president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, we felt it especially appropriate that you deliver the address. Your presence would not only be of great importance to the event itself, but would undoubtedly aid our fund-raising efforts as well.

To provide you with further background on the overall program, I've attached a press release. We hope that your schedule permits you to participate. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

MJM:JS

Dear Governor Sununu:

On behalf of the National Press Club, I would like to invite you to speak again at a National Press Club luncheon.

A lot has happened since you last spoke to the Press Club a year ago. There has been, among other things, the Persian Gulf crisis, the budget fights, legislative victories and defeats, and, by the time of your appearance, the elections.

Last December you gave us a review of President Bush's accomplishments in his first year of office. We would like a similar assessment from you this year, perhaps focusing on the budget battles that have so captivated Washington -- and the nation -- this summer and fall.

I look forward to a favorable response from you soon. We can then arrange a mutually convenient date in November or December.

With all best wishes,

Dear Mr. Rópley:

Governor Sununu asked me to respond to your kind invitation to join with you and Dan Namowitz for lunch sometime in the near future.

While the Governor's schedule is very crowded at the present time, we will certainly keep your offer in mind should the Chief of Staff happen to travel to your area.

With the Governor's appreciation and best wishes,

Sincerely,

Jacqueline A. Kennedy

... to participate in your lecture series sometime in November
or early December

September 27, 1990

Mr. John Sununu
White House Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington D.C 20501

Dear Mr. Sununu,

In celebration of Indiana University of Pennsylvania's twenty-fifth anniversary as a university, the IUP Political Science Council is sponsoring a lecture series dealing with contemporary social and political issues. To date, we have tentatively planned presentations on the national "war on drugs", the environment, American foreign policy, and the direction of American domestic policy under the Bush Administration.

Your understanding of the domestic policy field - as a distinguished university professor, member of the New Hampshire General Court and Governor of New Hampshire, and now as White House Chief of Staff - establish you as a foremost authority who can properly address this issue. The IUP Political Science Council wishes to draw on this understanding.

Writing for the Council, Mr. Sununu, we would be honored to feature you as the speaker for our planned presentation on American domestic policy.

We would enjoy hearing an address on the policy goals and accomplishments of the Bush Administration and, more directly, your role as White House Chief of Staff in regard to these goals and accomplishments.

To date, we have no scheduled date for this event. We are tentatively planning for this event to occur during either the first two weeks of November or the first two weeks of December. Of course, Mr. Sununu, we can surely accommodate any other date your office may suggest if our proposed dates are inconsistent with your schedule.

Finally, should you accept our invitation, this event will take place on the campus of Indiana University of Pennsylvania. The audience will approximately number from 500 to 700. And, the general audience makeup will be students, faculty members, university administrators, and citizens of Indiana, Pennsylvania. Additionally, before the event we would enjoy hosting a small reception in your honor - if your schedule allows for it.

The IUP Political Science Council would be honored by your acceptance

Dear Governor Sununu:

In 1973, Dr. John G. Neihardt passed away. Dr. Neihardt was and is a highly respected authority on the Plains Indians, the history of the development of the trans-

has been held in high regard by historians, writers, theologians,

As Chairman of the Neihardt Stamp

... possible changes to the capital gains tax

Mr. Sununu:

RE: Capital Gain Tax.

A capital gains tax should encourage long term investment for real growth and efficiency, discourage speculative investments, not reward traders and computerized trading systems as they now function, and give the "poor" a break as well as the "rich". A proposal that would tend to accomplish this follows:

Start taxing capital gains the same as income.
Reduce the rate of taxation by one per cent (1%)
for every six months the investment is held.
Thus for investments held seventeen (17) years, or longer, there would be no tax, assuming an initial rate of thirty-three per cent (33%).

Since a significant portion of the country's capital is now held by pension funds, which largely take care of the "poor", and since the gains they make are now not taxed until distribution is made, the method of taxing pension funds should be revised. Tax the pension funds on a current basis, and do not tax distributions. This would encourage pension fund managers to invest for the long term, and would give the "poor" an equal chance for low tax or tax free gain.

Respectfully Yours,

George B. Brands

our nation's oil
reserves

Dear Chief of Staff Sununu,

DOE
Hello, my name is Felli Marie Savoie. I am a native of Houma, Louisiana. I am a concerned student attending Nicholls State University in Thibodaux, Louisiana. My major field of study is Home Economics.

I am writing to you in reference to Congressman
Billy Tauzin's proposal to use the oil reserves located in Louisiana and Texas in order to give American consumers lower fuel prices as well as pay for the military buildup in the Gulf. This proposal would mean more jobs for the people of Louisiana.

My state has been in a slump ever since the energy crisis of 1975. We could gain some of what has been lost. Louisiana could meet some of the demand to replenish the oil reserve. The oil will need to be stored; therefore, it would provide an income for Louisianians owning land that can be leased for storage facilities.

Money that is earned from the oilfield can be spent to create new industry as well as give a boost to the stagnated industries present at this time in Louisiana.

I would greatly appreciate a reply indicating your position regarding this issue. Thank you Chief of Staff

The Hon. John Sununu
Chief of Staff to the President of the United States.

Dear John:

Realizing that the President is too busy to take under consideration a suggestion that might solve our future budget 'contests', even from a 4th generation Republican of 79 yrs. old, like myself, and an Honorary member of the Presidential Task Force since its inception, I am taking the liberty of writing to you for that consideration.

I am an addict of CNN, which thank God, has given the public a true picture of the clowns we have in Congress whose knowledge of economics is commensurate with all education in our country. As I stayed up until 3 AM last nite my confidence was augmented as I heard the remarks of our citizens from all parts of the country, some of them first time callers, who learned for the first time how inefficient our government has become.

A few days ago, between quorum calls which take about a half hour each, I happened to catch the meeting of the Freedom 2, who suggested that we should stop spending instead of income. This thought was considered and poo-pooed here in East Hampton about 8 years ago. Yet when I

Dear Governor Sununu

RID, its chapters in 41 States and members in every State and millions of anxious parents are waiting impatiently for you to act decisively to raise taxes on beer, indexing them to inflation, and taxing alcohol in beer at the same rate as the alcohol in distilled spirits. This would bring in $20.6B, and the number of 18-21 year olds killed could be reduced by 54%.

I know that 75% of all the teenage alcohol-related crashes involve the drug beer, and that 80% of all campus date rape crimes involve alcohol abuse, mainly beer.

Younger teens would not purchase beer in bulk if each sixpack costs 80 cents more this year, rather than the sale price of 29 cents a can I saw at the supermarket last month. No can of soda could be had for 29 cents. Higher alcohol taxes will decrease consumption among the poor, youth and heavy drinkers, a situation that will improve their health and public safety. (Six per cent of the population purchases over 50 percent of all alcohol mainly beer.)

Raising the tax on a sixpack from 16 cents to 32 cents is not nearly enough. The cost to society due to alcohol is $135B annually, but the government collects only $5.7B in taxes.

Concern for the drug beer, that has robbed Americans of 800,000 years of life last year should overcome the blandishments of the alcohol industry, and the Beer Drinkers of America, heavily subsidized by Miller Brewing Company. Polls show that a great majority of Americans, parents, families support raising the taxes on alcohol to reduce the Federal deficit. HOW LONG MUST WE WAIT FOR THIS LONG OVERDUE CRUCIAL TAX REFORM? NOW IS THE TIME. PLEASE RESPOND.

Sincerely,

Doris Aiken

Dear Mr. Sununu:

*Dear Dennis

*... goodwill greeting of
a candy jar*

Halloween is just around the corner. It gives us visions of pumpkins, witches and children dressed up in scary attire to have fun calling on families, friends and neighbors. While traditionally celebrated with these eerie costumes, it is also remembered for candy treats. It's a time to "Meet and Treat." That's why Halloween is a great time for candy. In fact, it's so much fun, you can have a Candy Carnival.

The confectionery treats in the candy jar you receive have been donated by manufacturers to extend to you greetings for a happy and safe Halloween season. The National Candy Wholesalers Association (NCWA) is pleased to share this goodwill through the candy industry's "Meet and Treat" program. Pass it around the office and share it with your staff. That's the positive message that's more appropriate to greeting new friends and renewing past acquaintances.

NCWA is the national trade association representing the wholesale-distributors of confectionery products, snack foods, tobacco, health and beauty aids and other convenience items. Our membership includes over 2800 firms from all segments of the industry including manufacturers, brokers, retailers and 1,000 wholesale distributor firms. Our members contribute to the economy and fulfill the Candy Carnival fantasies of consumers in communities throughout the country.

Your candy jar of treats should arrive under separate cover within 5 days. If it fails to arrive, blame it on some early goblins and give Michelle Motture in my office a call to coordinate another delivery.

Best wishes for a carnival of safe Halloween fun.

Amidst the many difficult decisions facing your office there easily appears an opportunity to solve several problems with a single policy action. The environmental crisis of water flow to Florida Everglades is made worse by the sugar cane growers who selfishly protect change to protect their unnatural profitable industry. US residents are forced to an outrageous indirect tax of paying over double world price for sugar to support the political power base of this needless sugar industry, which now is also destroying the Everglades. The many bold actions by President Bush are finally doing away with expensive farm subsidies. Hopefully the opportunity to remove a needless indirect tax on sugar, via immediate import quotas, can reduce US food prices while saving the Everglades; while also helping the depressed economies of Latin American sugar growers. A happy outcome for all!

Respectfully,

W Briggs

Honorable John Sununu

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I am writing to voice my support for Mr. Charles M. House who has been nominated to be Director of the Office for Victims of Crime.

Charles House has earned the reputation as a man with great concern for the community. Here in Los Angeles, he has been deeply involved in community and church activities which have strived to improve the quality of life. His credentials are impeccable, and his background in law enforcement provides him with a perspective on crime that cannot be gained in any other way. He is also an individual who can be trusted to make decisions that are both moral and ethical. This alone sets him apart from the rest of the crowd.

Charles House is an outstanding choice for Director of the Office of the Victims of Crime, and I fully support his nomination.

Very truly yours,

Dear Dr. Sununu,

I understand that Professor Ted Webster has been nominated for the position of NRC commissioner.

Ted would be an outstanding choice. He has spent his recent years keeping physicians at Massachusetts General Hospital under control, as far as their uses of radiation and radioactivity are concerned. This is an aspect of their job the commission could well pay attention.

At the same time he understands well the crazy claims of some who would shut down nuclear power plants. He was willing to appear on TV after Three Mile Island and Chernobyl to explain the facts carefully and repudiate nonsense. For example, he joined me in repudiating the nonsense surrounding Seabrook.

I hope that his candidacy will be considered seriously, and that you will pass this letter on to whoever is concerned.

Yours sincerely,

To the President
White House

Dear Hn. Sununu,

Now is the time for all of us to do what's right for the long term economic well being of our children and grand children. Our unwillingness to make personal sacrifices in the face of extraordinary structural economic problems, I'm afraid, will insure our long term decline as an economic force and as a culture.

Actually, I believe most Americans are willing to put our own self interest aside to help fix our deficit. I believe it's time for our elected leaders to set the example and put their fears behind them and push for real deficit reduction. Everyone must make real sacrifices; the old and young, the military and entitlements, Texas and California, rich and poor, federal and state, oil companies and smaller companies, you and me.

So, I'm asking you to raise my taxes and cut my services, raise the top tax rate, forget capital gains, raise sin taxes, forget oil company breaks, forget forgiving foreign debt, forget small company tax breaks, forget breaks for any constituency. I also believe that all government spending by all departments and agencies should be cut, then frozen for five years with absolutely no cost of living increases and absolutely no exceptions, including social security and medicare and military.

Sincerely and in Friendship,

LET'S SAVE THE COUNTRY - AND GEORGE BUSH

JHS-6
Mr. Root

Our President was climbing to unprecedented acclaim as he opposed the concept of hostages rather than reason to acquire gains contrary to the interests of others. This clarion call to "due process" became clear at both individual and national levels in the coersions of the Gulf.

It's the utmost of irony that he should himself be perceived as now holding our own nation hostage to the benefit of a select few. But this problem might be reversed were he to suggest a creative means to stimulate the country in a manner to benefit all. I hope that, through your office, the following thoughts might be considered as one alternative to controversial insistence on further reduction in so-called "capital gains."

Slowdown is self-reinforced by its resultant slowing of new investment. As demonstrated by Taiwan's historic explosion, a beneficial tax plan for industry can be an incredible booster of benefit to all. We might approach the problem in a more tailored manner, still addressing new construction as opposed to non-productive trading in the old.

We might visualize a newly generous depreciation scheme for self-balancing of the national economy. Very rapid declining-balance depreciation would appeal to those concerned with inflating costs as well as their own future posture. And we might add an artificial increase in the allowable depreciated balance commensurate with current inflation.

But we should build in an assured immediacy of effect. An economic flywheel could be provided by another device, which would increase benefits during slowdown from an optimal growth, reduce them while recovery is underway, and phase them out as we pass that hypothetical ideality. Structuring such formulae would inevitably bring on another political controversy, but stepping away from the present confusion plus general recognition of these new goals should alone stimulate the country.

With great sincerity,

Al Root

Dear Mr. Sununu,

Please tell President Bush to veto the so-called Civil Rights Bill. It definitely is a quota bill and a financial enrichment bill for all those minorities which it is supposed to cover.

It would require an employer to have a fixed percentage of the racial, sex, religious, etc. makeup of the community for a workforce. (Or else the employer would be subject to continual lawsuits.) Because: Apparently no job qualifications are allowed, and when one of these "minorities" has only to claim discrimination--does not have to give any proof whatsoever, (the burden of proof is on the employer entirely) but can then go directly to the nearest lawyer and sue for any amount of money! The employer would be forced to hire a less or totally incompetant employee instead of a well qualified one who was the wrong sex, color or religion needed for his for his quota percentage so that he could avoid huge legal fees and "compensation". What a terrible bill!

Also, I'm upset at President Bush for his stand on obscene "art". He is for full funding for five years for National Endowment for the Arts. It's outrageous that taxpayers should be forced to pay for obcenity! Those so-called artists now believe it is their "right" to get this money, and that its their "first amendment right"!!! My Dear Governor Sununu:

I have two points of view to express to you as White House Chief-of-Staff.

I

I would like to express an opinion concerning the so called BUBBLE in the tax rates.

I make over $75,000.00 a year, but not over $150,000.00 . I do not object to paying the 5% surcharge on the income over $75,000.00

B U T

I DO OBJECT TO HAVING THE RATE DROP BACK TO 28% FOR THOSE FAT CATS WITH INCOME OVER $150,000.00/

Let's be realistic in this. There can't be any rational reason for having those that have paying a lesser percentage than those of us that are in the MIDDLE section.

II

Why can't something be done which actually penalizes the defense contractors that take the pentagon for a ride, such as :

1. Get rid of present purchasing agents
2. Really sock the companies with a punitive fine

Besides that, keep up the good work.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I wish to support the candidacy of Edward W. Webster, Ph.D. of Boston, Massachusetts for the position of Commissioner for the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Dr. Webster is extremely well qualified for this appointment. He is an electrical engineer and physicist with a national and international reputation in medical physics and in radiation safety. His extensive contributions in research and in education in these fields have resulted in his being selected for many key roles both nationally and internationally. Nationally, he has served on the Council, on the Board and on many committees of the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements (NCRP) and is now a most active honorary member. His contribution to sound standards of radiation protection for radiation workers and the public have been of outstanding service to the Council and to the nation. He has also served on a variety of important committees of the National Academy of Sciences and contributed especially to the well known "BEIR III" report on radiation risks of a decade ago.

Internationally he serves on the U.S. delegation to the United Nations Scientific Committee on Atomic Radiation, the premier world body dealing with radiation levels and effects, worldwide, and both the International Atomic Energy Agency and the International Commission on Radiological Protection have benefitted from his advice through service on their committees.

Dr. Webster is Professor of Radiology at Harvard University and has been very active in education and research, not only for the University but also for such professional organizations as the Health Physics Society and the American Association of Physicists in Medicine. He has also served the federal agencies, including the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the Veterans Administration and the National Institutes of Health, in a variety of capacities.

Dear Mr Sununu:

Never did I dream there'd be reasons to praise you. But your performance yesterday, and that of Mr. Dorman, summed up the hard, intelligent, and devoted work you, he, and your associates did on the "summit" negotiation to arrive at budget and deficit compromises.

Ungrammatical lack of sleep not with standing, together you manifested clarity, force, and grace.

We still disagree with much of the President's demagoguery. Yet we must take our hats off to such exceptional Administration people as the Secretaries of Energy and State -- doing their jobs at least as well as any of their predecessors.

Congratulations. Now if you will get rid of the utter, mindless waste on Star Wars and the Shuttle, both wholly inconsistent with your scientific literacy, the country's solvency, sanity, and chance for a future will improve.

Memo

Re: Final Synopsis of a draft toward new developments toward a five-year plan.

This report is quite important and dedicated to the President and Budget Summit staff, all whom gave a very august touch of class at the Rose Garden, and I mean, very fine speeches in which the language gave the highest testament of senior management putting the package together brilliantly. This letter highlights really astonishing discoveries to which my main thrust is the President making discussions in reports toward a careful progression into something fashioned in love; yes, a renaissance, even if it's just for the backrooms of high office. Indeed, vision with attention to the budget and economy, can be precisely honed to hard-work realizations.

I commend your approach in backing off the Graham-Rudman stipulation, because I feel we can demonstrate cost savings to not just make up the differences, but, become very important options which Congress can debate and decide upon. It is hard work, yet I'm finding that what my time and personality can give, sometimes rushed, is extremely rewarding—that I tried. Indeed, I tried to give the Navy and Air Force a renaissance, and then, too, the NASA people. Progression is the key demand that senior management has always trusted me with, and I simply don't always get it right the first time, but they know I'm working a very difficult problem—fashioned in faith, a faithful application of arrived at experience, as, the building block theory.

Management walkthroughs in report form is very difficult, yet the renaissance goal formation for the President despite tremors of a recession, is one of considerable tenacity and belief in you, sir. There are small paragraphs that simply must be given a fuller accounting by alert division managers, etc., and honestly, what can I do but give page by page scenarios, sometimes, highly speculative, yet important to me, as having tried.

Please phase social security from those on "fat" private pensions, to National Health Insurance, in phase in, so that we meet head on Pre-Natal Care Emergencies (to the tune of $500 million) and we must lower birth costs to $500, on the basis of a waiver,

... the management
of our nation's forests

USDA

Dear Mr. Sumnu;

Perhaps you remember my letter of August 21st. I asked then for a balance in the Northwest forest situation. I was hoping you'd remember.

You see, these misguided individuals are trying to lock up our forests. It's so easy for people in other parts of the country to say "Sorry, we're setting all this land for those poor little owls" when it doesn't affect them. They have no idea that these silly little owls are in our back yards - literally! Only in old growth - poo! They nest all over the place out here, they're not that particular.

But the owl is not the issue here. It's the environmentalists themselves. They've become veritable political giants. And their philosophies are quickly reaching the point of absurdity. But what is most disturbing about their philosophies is not that they exist, or that they have no basis in science or reason. What is most disturbing is that

Dear Mr. Britton:

Thank you for your recent letter inviting the Chief of Staff to the Third annual Illinois Hispanic Family of the Year awards banquet on November 15.

Your invitation is appreciated, but Governor Sununu will be traveling to other destinations at that time and is forced to decline. Nevertheless, he asked me to thank you for your kindness in thinking of him and you have his best wishes.

A non-profit organization, the foundation is devoted to fostering the image of the Hispanic American family as a positive role model for youth and adults in an often turbulent society. The annual awards program in four states raises awareness of the family as a vital element in every community, honoring families whose members are successful in a variety of endeavors -- business, education and community service.

The awards program offers several opportunities for corporate involvement, which your organization may be interested in:

Gold Sponsors. A $3,000 donation includes:

- * A gold table for 10 at the November 15 banquet
- * A full-page black & white ad in Hispanic American Family magazine, a quarterly publication
- * The opportunity to present one of the Illinois finalist families with its $1,000 scholarship

Silver Sponsors. Your $2,000 donation includes:

- * A silver table for 10 at the banquet
- * A full-page black & white ad in the magazine

Dear Mr. Ambassador:

Thank you for your recent letter inviting the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Sununu to a reception at the Turkish Embassy on October 29 to celebrate the 67th Anniversary of the Turkish Republic.

Regrettably, they must decline your gracious offer due to a previous commitment for Governor Sununu to travel out of Washington.

Nevertheless, the Governor and Mrs. Sununu asked me to convey to you their appreciation for your kindness in thinking of them and you have their best wishes for a delightful celebration.

I am interested in the applying for an entry-level administrative position at the White House. As you may note from the enclosed resume, I worked as an intern in the White House in 1983 and 1984. I also worked at the Republican National Committee during the summers of 1984, 1985, and 1986.

My qualifications include strong interpersonal, organizational, and writing skills. I have experience working with several wordprocessing systems including Wordperfect and have excellent administrative skills. I have supervised interns and part-time employees. In addition, I have extensive experience dealing with the public.

Perhaps most importantly, however, I am very supportive of President Bush. At your request, I would be happy to forward letters of recommendation. Thank you very much for your consideration.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I write to you because you seem to be sensitive to political issues, and may have the ear of President Bush.

With crude oil prices going down the last few days, my service station raised fuel prices 2 cents per gallon again today.

All of us know what the major oil companies are doing, and our President is going to cause Republican candidates, at all levels, to lost lots of votes in November, if he does not go public and chastise the industry for what it is doing.

I am sure you know that most Democrats, and now some Republicans and Independents, are charging that he is more concerned about the oil industry than the economy and the consumer. I don't believe that, but know that Republican votes are going to move over what I'm sure is a bitter issue. All my friends talk about the problem daily.

As a long-time Republican voter and supporter, I am convinced the issue has to be faced by the President. The alternative is to pay a high price in November.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

In my letter to President Bush dated September 26th I strongly encouraged him to speak with a professor of engineering at Princeton University who had just completed a year's sabbatical devoted to alternate energy issues. This man, Enoch Durbin, contributed the enclosed article in yesterday's Op-Ed section of the New York Times.

The article describes a presently feasible way to knock the socks off the escalated gasoline prices. All you would have to do is order all government motor pools to convert their vehicles to natural gas by the end of 1991 -- and you would save budget money in the process. It would have an immediate impact on the market which is driven on whims far less substantial than this would be. Further, the government move in this direction would be a bell cow for countless other car fleets in the country to follow. The impact in real terms could be enormous in terms of turning the tide in our foreign energy dependence.

Please give this opportunity a full hearing. I am certain that you will then feel confident to recommend it.

Mr. John Sununu

Dear John:

Several years ago, I spent several months on a committee set up by Karl Bendetsen to consider how our country could be defended from ballistic missiles. Ed Teller and Joe Coors served on the committee with me. The defense department made classified information available to us. We all came to the conclusion that it was entirely possible to defend our country from ballistic missiles with weapons already created which would be available for deployment at an entirely affordable cost. This is even more true today. Therefore, I was distressed that the budget proposed by Congress eliminates funding for SDI. It appears to me that only a presidential veto of the Defense Authorization Bill can prevent Congress from destroying SDI. I mentioned to President Bush when he was in San Francisco recently how important I felt it was to continue SDI. I hope you will encourage the President to exercise his right of veto.

Kind regards.

Dear Mr. Sununu,

Attached is a copy of a letter I recently wrote to the Editor of the Laconia Citizen outlining my concerns regarding our abilities to continue providing family practice services to the elderly in the rural areas of New Hampshire, given current reimbursement rates and the inherent dangers of mandatory assignment.

I feel there is a lot of misinformation out there about what doctors are actually making and I would hope this information would be useful in your decision making process as policy matters come before you, especially at this moment of record deficits and the need to cut costs. Clearly Medicare will be a favorite target for that, but we need to make sure that we don't hurt the less advantaged members of our State.

... Dr. Mr. Burleigh Holder and the current situation in Liberia

Governor John Sununu
Chief-of-Staff
Executive Office of the President
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue N.W.
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Governor Sununu:

I have a suggestion which may be useful to the situation in Liberia, and particularly to food distribution in and around Monrovia. I have had occasion to work with a mature woman physician from Liberia who is the daughter of the last democratically elected president, Mr. William Richard Tolbert, Jr., who was assassinated in 1979. Her husband was Minister of Defense in that government. In that capacity, he met, among others, the then head of our CIA, now, President, George Bush. Dr. Holder is a bright and thoughtful, compassionate woman, who is getting her Ph.D. in public health here at the University of Minnesota with a special focus on AIDS and children. I have not met her husband.

My suggestion is that they might be useful in stabilizing the situation in Liberia. I have not discussed this with her. If they were returned to Monrovia, she could take charge of the food distribution situation, and he might be useful in setting up a popular, transitional government, in cooperation with the Multinational Peace Force. A review of their enclosed credentials for such duty might be appropriate. That judgment is yours.

I thought this might be a somewhat simpler problem for you than either the Gulf or the budget.

Keep helping the president. Considering that I did not vote for him, he seems to be doing a pretty good job. You might let him know that.

Yours sincerely,

Dear John:

You are in tortuous deliberations over resolving the federal budget deficit. I have written a short article, "Why Limit Indexing to Capital Gains," which appeared in The New York Times on September 30, 1990. The article addresses the need to encourage more saving and investment in the United States. This need should be addressed to a greater extent in tax policy proposals than it is now.

In formulating federal tax policy for the coming years, I hope you will take into consideration this article and its recommendations for increasing savings and investment in the United States. With greater savings and investment in the United States, generations of Americans should enjoy a continually improving standard of living and quality of life.

Sincerely,

We have just received word that the Congress has passed the Immigration Reform bill, H.R. 4300, this morning. ADC, along with all other Arab-American organizations supported this legislation particularly the temporary protected status provision which grants safe haven to Lebanese and Kuwaiti nationals currently stranded in the United States due to the civil strife in their respective countries.

Given the humanitarian nature of the bill and the great impact it will have on those innocent Lebanese and Kuwaiti nationals now in our country, we respectfully seek your support of this legislation and your assistance in obtaining similar provisions in the Senate companion bill.

As I've only recently assumed the position of President of ADC in September, I would appreciate and opportunity to meet with you to discuss this and other issues of common concern at your convenience.

Saddam Hussein and the crisis in the Gulf
Laurie Mylroie
and Judith Miller

Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait has plunged the world into its most severe crisis since the end of the Cold War. American troops have been deployed in the largest military action since Vietnam. How the confrontation in the Persian Gulf will end is unknown, but it seems to us, as publishers, that the underlying issues prompting our intervention demand the kind of thorough examination that only a book provides. Therefore, we asked Judith Miller of The New York Times and Laurie Mylroie of Harvard University to write a book that would give the public the historical and political background necessary to understand this unfolding conflict. The result is the enclosed 85,000-word primer on the crisis.

We believe we have accomplished something virtually unprecedented in the annals of American publishing. Almost all previous "instant books" have been written either by teams of journalists, or they have simply reprinted government documents or reports. By contrast, Saddam Hussein and the Crisis in the Gulf is a wholly original work of incisive scholarship and superior journalism written in 21 days by two gifted writers. We hope you will share our conviction that the book will make a significant contribution to a deepening public debate over our aims and policies in the Middle East. // book

If you have the time and inclination, we should be grateful for any thoughts you care to share with us regarding the publication of this book. We hope of course to attract the widest possible readership.

Dear Sir,

I am one tax-payer that has had enough of my hard-earned money going to support complete dead-beats on society. Why won't you be honest enough to admit our problems in education, crime, and drugs are for the most part due to women having children just to get government support? These pitiful children are unloved, uncared for, and certainly not instilled with any morals or values that make them a contributing member of society.

I invite you to come to the rural south and see first-hand the numbers of young men and women on foodstamps, getting free medical care, and unwilling to work even if they have a job for fear of losing their benefits.

This problem has reached crisis levels and until you take the leadership role you were voted on to assume, and instigate drastic cutting to the bone reforms, our society will further deteriorate.

Here are two suggestions that could make a big difference in our country.

1. Our nursing homes, hospitals, social programs, and municipalities are all in dire need of more workers. If they don't work, they don't get aid of any kind.

2. One illegitimate child would be eligible for all benefits, the second one 50% of benefits, and the third one none.

You have got to realize and accept the fact that there are millions of young able bodied men and women who have never worked, and never will because they live on give-a-way programs that you have installed and that tax payers support.

Where is the equity for people like us who work ourselves to death to support those that will not work?

Yours truly,

Peggy Perkins

Dear Governor John Sanitiz:

May I extend to you heartfelt greetings, and with praise for the work you have been doing. I also wish President Bush well, even though I am a confirmed Democrat in all issues.

I am sending you an article by a noted scholar at the University of Chicago (Rashid J. Khalidi Assoc. Dir. Centre for Middle Eastern Affairs) and I believe ideas have much merit. I do not support U.S. never to send troops in the Middle East at this time, for any reason. I believe Israel and the American military have suffered a crushing defeat. The result will be a massive crisis for America, and a crisis for the U.S. and the world.

I was for 20 years in Hyde Park near the University of Chicago, and I have long observed the world scene. And so in that context, I send this article to a wise man, a man of intellect and action level. I respect, but who is also a source of proud Arabic and debased propaganda. I will apply strong objective sanction for a record of peace in their whole crisis, and at this matter of continued insensitive choice a matter military, I do support the President's policy.

Dear Governor Sununu:

Yesterday I had a very pleasant phone conversation with Jack Rosenthal, and I was reminded that the enclosed auction catalogue should be sent to you. It's like a capsule history of the United States told by postal markings and the contents of the letters.

Two groups of New Hampshire covers, Lots 603-625 and Lots 857-863, may strike a nostalgic note for you.

Thank you for your recent letter inviting the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Sununu to a fund-raising event on October 25 for Harry Singleton.

Unfortunately, the Chief of Staff is expected to travel with the President out of Washington at that time so they are forced to decline your invitation. The Governor asked me, however, to convey his appreciation to you for your kindness in thinking of them.

Sincerely,

In this election, Singleton's high ethical standards and impressive background make him the only choice for both Democrats and Republicans. This is a unique opportunity to elect someone who can begin to brighten the future of this city.

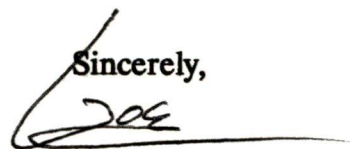

Republicans running for election in Washington always have a tough time raising money --- that is exactly why we are helping, and hoping you will help too! Please join us Thursday for a wine and cheese get-together, to hear and meet Harry Singleton, and help him with a donation of $100 per person or $150 per couple.

Both Democrats and Republicans need a candidate with integrity and credibility --- Harry Singleton is qualified and ready to fight for D.C.'s future. Let's ensure that Harry has enough money to run a victorious campaign!

Checks should be made out to Singleton '90, and you can either send them to the above address or bring them on Thursday.

Looking forward to seeing you on October 25th, I am,

Sincerely,

P.S. Please bring a friend to help elect new voices for the 90's!

priority issues likely to be on the agenda for the 102nd U.S. Congress.

For example, we would be especially interested in hearing Secretary Mosbacher give an update on the administration's export promotion plans, and United States Trade Representative Carla Hills discuss the legislative changes which the Uruguay Round Trade Agreements will require. It is expected that a policy statement on these changes will be presented to the NAM Board of Directors at their February 8, 1991 meeting.

In addition, we would find the Administration's views of anticipated labor issues, energy policy and clean air legislation and regulations of great interest. Finally, we would be very honored if President George Bush could participate for a few minutes.

Thanks for considering this request. We had a similar meeting last year that was quite helpful in understanding administration priorities.

Thank you for your recent letter inviting the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Sununu to a meeting of your Trustees on November 13 at the New England Center.

Unfortunately, due to the limitations on the Chief of Staff's availability to participate in many out-of-Washington events, the Governor and Mrs. Sununu must decline your invitation. They asked me, however, to convey their appreciation to you for your kindness in thinking of them.

Our program will begin at 4 p.m. when Chancellor Van Ummersen will join me in reviewing some of our recent accomplishments and in outlining our goals as we embark upon the 1990s. This meeting will also provide you with an opportunity to meet UNH President Dale Nitzschke and the new Dean of the School for Lifelong Learning, Victor Montana. They will be joined by Plymouth State College President William Farrell and Keene State College President Judith Sturnick in updating us on the new and exciting developments on each of their campuses. After these presentations, Former Trustees Council Chairman Francis Robinson and I will lead a follow-up discussion.

At 5:45 p.m. we will have a reception followed by dinner at 6:30.

We do hope it will be possible for you to join us on November 13. To assist us in planning for this event, we would appreciate receiving the enclosed reservation card by October 25.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

On behalf of the Yale Political Union, I have the honor of inviting you to keynote a student debate at Yale this fall. I already sent you this invitation last spring, but your secretary has advised me to write back offering some dates. Here are some dates that would be great for our organization: October 16, 25, 31, November 8, 13, 26, 27, 28, 29, December 3, 5, 6.

The Political Union, comprised of over 1,700 members, is the largest undergraduate organization at Yale. Founded over a half century ago by McGeorge and William Bundy in conjunction with Dean Acheson, the Union serves as a unique forum which enables students to meet with and debate America's most prominent, interesting and provocative political figures. In 1965, Senator John Kerry (D-MA), then Union President, expanded the program by inviting leaders of national stature to either debate students, prominent Yale faculty or other guests, or to give a keynote address. Since that time, Union guests have included the likes of Ronald Reagan, Jimmy Carter, George Bush, George McGovern, Geraldine Ferraro, Jesse Jackson, and Molly Yard. Recently, a cabinet officer described the Union as "the most prominent campus forum for political ideas in America."

A typical visit to the Union includes dinner at Mory's with the Union executive board, a keynoted debate on the Union floor, and either a press conference or an informal reception with students following the meeting. Although the Union does not offer honoraria as a matter of policy, we will be happy to cover your travel expenses to and from New Haven, as well as provide lodging should you choose to spend the night at Yale.

If you have any questions, I would be happy to answer them. I can be reached at (203) 436-2933. I sincerely hope that you will be able to join us this fall.

Sincerely,

Erika L. Blumberg

October 9, 1990

Honorable John Sununu

Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

Even if it is necessary to agree to slightly higher rates for high income taxpayers in exchange for lower capital gain rates, I believe it would be beneficial. The enclosed article from the Wall Street Journal of September 17, 1990 shows that the real capital gains rate is nearer to 75% than 28% because of inflation, when the asset is held for many years. A bill differentiating between length of period of time held, that is, a lower rate for an asset held for 10 years than 5 years or 3 years, would unlock billions in frozen real estate and other assets. Obviously, this will increase revenues for the first year or two, and probably on a permanent basis. I hope that you concur.

Thanks and best wishes.

Dear Governor Sununu:

I personally would like to support the nomination of E. W. Webster, Ph.D., for a Nuclear Regulatory Commission Commissioner. Dr. Allen Brodsky initiated Dr. Webster's nomination.

Dr. Webster has a long and notable reputation in the fields of Health Physics and Medical Physics as evidenced by his Curriculum Vitae which I assume was submitted with his nomination. He has the professional and personal attributes which would make him a knowledgeable and objective commissioner.

I have known Dr. Webster for almost a dozen years primarily through his contributions nationally as a speaker on the health effects of ionizing radiation. He has given much of his time and talent by means of television, radio, and newspaper interviews in an effort to present the facts about nuclear energy, medical radiation, and other radiation related fields in a responsible and informative manner. His ability to relate difficult technical information at the appropriate level to the public and his distinguished appearance make him a valuable speaker on these important topics.

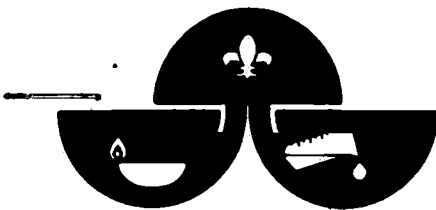

Dr. Webster is recognized nationally for his contributions to the National Council on Radiation Protection, to the NRC, to the NAS/NRC, and for his active role in his profession at Harvard. Internationally, he has been active in the IAEA, the ICRP, UNSCEAR, and the RERF. Professionally he is to be envied for being chosen as a part of these influential and prestigious organizations.

The Health Physics Society gave him one of the highest honors and responsibilities by nominating him as the Sigma Xi National Lecturer for the Society for the 1988-89 year.

Dr. Webster is an energetic and enthusiastic person who will be able to contribute to the NRC for many years. I encourage you to consider him very seriously.

Sincerely yours,

Re: Re-nomination of Charles M. House
Director of the Office for Victims of Crime

Dear Mr. Sununu,

I am a 31 year career law enforcement executive who has had the distinct honor and privilege of knowing and working with another distinguished law enforcement veteran and citizen, Mr. Charles M. House.

I would like to endorse the re-nomination of Mr. House for Director of the Office for Victims of Crime. He is a 24 year veteran of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department and twice a candidate for Congress in California's 34th District. He would be an asset to the Bush administration and an outstanding member of the Justice Department.

I first became acquainted with Mr. House during his six years as International Liaison Officer for the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department. He was highly respected among his peer liaison officers and most certainly among the 72 consulates with whom he exchanged sensitive information and cooperation on a variety of other matters of mutual concern in Los Angeles County.

Mr. House's long and diverse law enforcement career has given him great insight into the pervasive gang and drug cultures which has become the number one criminal justice and mutual problem. His job exposure has provided him extensive contact with crime victims, as well as various victim advocacy groups and organizations both within and out of the criminal justice system.

Dear Mr. Sununu,

I am writing to ask you to advise the President to veto the Civil Rights Act of 1990.

The bill would allow juries to award whatever monetary damages they think are deserved. I have a deep concern about the spiraling costs of our civil justice system. We need reform in the area of non-economic damages, not more legislation promoting it.

The bill would also make it difficult for us to defend ourselves in charges alleging that a particular job requirement or practice, even if inadvertent, has a discriminatory effect. For this reason we would be forced to consider adopting quotas in hiring and promotion. This is a result that Congress expressly rejected when originally drafting Title VII.

Houston's has nearly 2300 employees. Of these, 27% are minorities and 48% are women. We have always had a strong commitment to the protection of civil rights for our employees and job applicants. The restaurant industry is, in fact, the largest employer of minorities in the country. However, the Civil Rights bill is flawed and should be vetoed. Please convey these thoughts to the President.

Sincerely,

George W. Biel

RE: Civil Rights Act of 1990

THE WHITE HOUSE

LEGIS-2

(P/C/N)

WASHINGTON

October 1, 1990

Dear Mrs. Bell:

On behalf of President Bush, thank you for your recent message concerning the Civil Rights Act of 1990. The President believes that every individual should have an equal opportunity to participate fully in our society and that no one's race, color, national origin, religion, sex, or disability should be a barrier to advancement. To that end, the Administration has worked vigorously to enforce existing laws against discrimination and has carefully studied those areas where change has been proposed.

President Bush supports civil rights legislation that meets three basic principles: it must operate to obliterate the consideration of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin in employment decisions; it must reflect the fundamental principles of fairness and due process that apply throughout other areas of our legal system; and it should provide an adequate deterrent against illegal harassment in the workplace. In making clear his strong support for legislation that meets these principles, the President has stated that he will not sign a bill that he believes would lead to quotas.

Thus far, the Congress has been unable to agree on a bill that the President can sign. The Administration hopes that the Congress will be able to send him an acceptable bill before adjourning.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Sununu,

In my capacity as Business Manager for The Blair Breeze, I am writing to you to explore the possibility of your speaking at our annual banquet in January 1991. With this banquet, the student-run newspaper is attempting to revive a tradition which once used to be a major event of our school year. We have decided to write to you, Mr. Sununu, due to the important role you have played in American society.

The Blair Breeze is the student newspaper of Blair Academy. Blair Academy is a private, coeducational boarding school in Blairstown, NJ. The school is composed of approximately 360 students and 60 faculty members.

We can offer you an honorarium, a considerable amount of money which has been raised by the students over the past three years, for your appearance. Additionally, we are capable of picking up your traveling expenses.

Should you decide to accept our offer, you would be addressing students, parents, alumni, and faculty of the school. Please let us know if this possibility is of any interest to you, and we will then pursue the matter further. Thank you for your attention and we shall look forward to your reply, which you can mail to me:

Dear Governor Sununu:

The New Hampshire Police Association is celebrating it's fiftieth year of service in the profession of law enforcement in New Hampshire. Our Organization is dedicated not only to improve the lot of its members, but also, to improve the quality of life in our State by supporting legislation designed to impede the progress of crime, especially the insidious growth of the illicit drug trade. Our views on these subjects are consistent with your position in these areas.

We would be honored to have you and Mrs. Sununu attend our 50th Anniversary Ball scheduled for the 3rd of November. The function is scheduled to take place at the Center of New Hampshire, Holiday Inn, Manchester, N.H. Social hour from 6 pm to 7 pm with dinner following at approximately 7:30 pm.

This event will be attended by law enforcement officers from throughout the State of New Hampshire who have dedicated their lives to upholding the principles which you so eloquently advocate.

Dear John Sununu,

Reception
Committee:

On Sunday, December 2, 1990, Monadnock Worksource will be hosting its second annual celebrity-champagne reception from 2:00 - 5:00 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Wade (formerly known as the Parker Brother's Estate) in Peterborough, New Hampshire.

Laura

Debra
Cilley

The Parker Brothers used this mansion and surrounding gardens as the design for their CLUE game. The house has a lovely ambience and is the perfect setting for our reception.

Denise

Monadnock Worksource has been providing vocational and residential services to adults with developmental disabilities for over twenty years. We promote independent living skills and self-esteem development.

Amy

This reception is our major fundraising event of the year and is by invitation only. The proceeds will help us to improve the lives of the people we serve. Last year's reception was highly successful, because it provided new employment opportunities as well as recreational and cultural enhancement for our clients in the community.

Barbara

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I am writing to you urge you to ask President Bush to take a public stand against the gun-control sections of S.1970 and H.R. 4225 and to veto both or either of them should they reach his desk in their present form. Needless to say, those portions of the respective bills will do nothing to curb crime in the United States. Both will, however, seriously undermine the Second Amendment to the United States Constitution and directly infringe upon the rights of present and future firearms owners. The Liberals in Congress would love nothing more than to see this bill signed into law and declare in the next election that they have done their part to control crime even as they create new loopholes for the true criminals to escape punishment (as for example, the restrictions on the death penalty contained in the very same bills).

Please don't let the Liberals criminalize a constitutional and natural right. Ask President Bush to veto S.1970 and H.R. 4225.

Yours sincerely,

Edward A. Ipser, Jr.

Dear Dr. Sununu,

I met you when you spoke at a meeting in New York at a meeting sponsored by Metropolitan Life on Education. You were then the governor of New Hampshire.

I have been impressed by your candor and your action over the years. The attached volume of "IMPRIMIS" looks at the record in New England and focuses on what happened in New Hampshire, Vermont and particularly in Massachusetts.

I am the kind of person who must pass things on to action types in hopes something will happen. Most of us are not against tax increases if they lead to positive results as shown in New Hampshire. But to consider them just to increase spending with catastrophic possibilities as seen in Mass. makes us all cringe.

Keep up the good work.

Sincerely.

RE: ADDITIONAL THOUGHTS AND SUGGESTIONS FOR PRESIDENTIAL, CABINET VISITS.

DEAR MR. SUNUNU:

... several issues to consider in the months ahead

WITH CAMPAIGN 90 RAPIDLY APPROACHING IT'S CLIMAX HERE IN MASSACHUSETTS, AND WE PROCEED ONWARD TO REPUBLICAN VICTORY, I THOUGHT IT APPROPRIATE TO BRING TO YOUR ATTENTION A FEW SUGGESTIONS WHICH MAY BE USEFUL IN THE CURRENT CAMPAIGNS, AND FOR LONG TERM STRATEGY AS WE PROCEED ONWARD TO VICTORY IN 1992!

THE DEMOCRATS HAVE AMERICANS SUFFERING FROM "PARALYSIS OF ANALYSIS" WITH THEIR USUAL EXCESSIVE, MISMANAGED, SPENDING APPROACH THAT HAS THE AVERAGE WORKING CLASS AMERICAN VOTER WONDERING IF THEY HAVE TO "PASS THE FAT" EVERY TIME THERE IS A FIRE, POLICE, OR PUBLIC SAFETY MATTER. WITH THEIR CONSTANT "GO TO THE WELL POLITICS", VOTERS HAVE BECOME INCREASINGLY ANXIOUS FOR AN ALTERNATE APPROACH, AND MY INSTINCTS TELL ME THAT THEY KNOW THE "WELL IS DRY", AND WILL VOTE REPUBLICAN IN NOVEMBER, ALL THE WAY, FOR CHANGE, COMPETENCE, AND CHARACTER. HERE ARE A FEW THOUGHTS ON SOME MAJOR CONCERNS I HEAR THE VOTERS EXPRESSING IN MASSACHUSETTS WHICH ALSO HAVE NATIONAL IMPLICATIONS:

- 1) DRUGS ARE A MAJOR CONCERN, AND IT IS THE "CASUAL" DRUG USER, IN THE BOARDROOM, BACKROOM, AND THE BEDROOM, WHO ARE PAYING LIPSERVICE TO ANTI-DRUG SLOGANS YET PARTICIPATE IN THE BEHAVIOR THAT IS DESTROYING THE VERY FABRIC OF OUR SOCIETY. WE HAVE A STRONG DETERRENT TO "CASUAL DRUG USERS" IN MASSACHUSETTS, WHEREIN INDIVIDUALS ARRESTED FOR POSSESSION LOSE THEIR DRIVERS LICENSE FROM ONE TO FIVE YEARS. OTHER STATES HAVE SIMILAR LEGISLATION, BUT MASSACHUSETTS IS THE ONLY STATE, THUS FAR, TO ENFORCE IT. WHETHER THE OFFENDER IS DRIVING OR NOT-THEY WILL LOSE THEIR LICENSE FOR ONE TO FIVE YEARS! THIS IS AN EXTREMELY STRONG AND COST EFFECTIVE DETERRENT TO DRUG USE, PARTICULARLY TO TEENAGERS. IF WE COULD GET THE APPROPRIATE NATIONAL LEVEL OFFICIALS INVOLVED, WE COULD PUT A STRONG DENT IN DRUG DEMAND. WE MAY BE ABLE TO GET SOME PSA'S DONE ON THIS.
- 2) PERHAPS WE COULD GET SOME VOLUNTEERS FROM THE KENNEDY SCHOOL OF GOVERNMENT TO UNDERTAKE A STUDY OF MASSACHUSETTS BUDGETARY PROBLEMS AND RECOMMEND SOME FEASIBLE SOLUTIONS TO OUR FISCAL "MESS", USING THEIR SOLUTIONS IN MASSACHUSETTS, WE MAY BE ABLE TO APPLY SEVERAL TO A NATIONAL STRATEGY. I CAN RECALL HAVING TO RETURN AN AVERAGE OF 10-20 MILLION DOLLARS PER YEAR BACK TO THE FEDERAL AND STATE GOVERNMENT WHEN I MANAGED THE ACCOUNTING DEPARTMENT FOR THE BOSTON SCHOOL COMMITTEE BECAUSE CONTRACTS, PERSONNEL, AND MATERIALS WERE NOT DELIVERED IN TIME.
- 3) CONSIDER THE APPOINTMENT OF ALBERT "DAPPER" O'NEIL TO THE FEDERAL MARSHAL'S POSITION HE WAS PREVIOUSLY OFFERED, WHEN IT BECOMES AVAILABLE. THERE IS SOME LONG STANDING RESENTMENT THAT WE DID NOT KEEP OUR PROMISE, AND SUCH A "SMALL GESTURE" WOULD GO A LONG WAY IN FOSTERING OUR GROWING RELATIONSHIP WITH DEMOCRATIC VOTERS. WOULD ALSO OPEN UP A CITY COUNCIL SEAT IN BOSTON, WHICH PROPERLY TIMED, COULD BE WON BY A REPUBLICAN!

Dear Mr. Sununu:

Despite the pressure you must be experiencing to quickly enact a budget, please take the time to read my concerns for America's proven small businessman as outlined below.

PLEASE AMEND THE STARTING DATE FOR CAPITAL GAINS TAX CUT!

Certainly, I applaud the overall concept of the proposed tax breaks as they provide incentive for the future development of small businesses! I agree that the proposal would provide aggressive incentives for those wishing to "get in" to business, and would eliminate penalties for those who later wish to sell. However, by proposing that the tax become effective for purchases and sales which take place after 1990, only future businessmen benefit.

Congress has a history of "backdating" the effective date for taxes. I propose to "backdate" the effective date for this tax break. By doing so, those of us who entered, developed, and then sold our businesses prior to the December 31, 1990 date would receive the same benefit as those who choose to take future business risks.

Backdating the capital gains tax break to July 1, 1990 would allow my family greater benefit from the July 1990 sale of our business that we worked long and hard to build. The tax savings would allow us additional resources to reinvest in another business. We are proven, successful small businesspeople, but because our success was culminated in July and not next January our profits available for reinvestment may be substantially, and unfairly, diminished.

PLEASE PROVIDE TAX EQUITY FOR PROVEN BUSINESSPEOPLE.
NOT JUST INCENTIVES FOR FUTURE INVESTORS.

PLEASE BACKDATE THE EFFECTIVE DATE FOR THE CAPITAL GAINS TAX CUT TO JULY 1, 1990.

Congress

September 24, 1990

Mr. John H. Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, DC 20270

Dear Mr. Sununu,

Normally I would contact Rep. John Rowland on the the matters about which I am writing, however, John is very involved in his campaign to be the next Connecticut Governor which we hope will be successful.

One of the very effective ways of conserving fuel during World War II was maintaining daylight saving time all year. As I recall, even double day light saving time was employed. I think that it is an action which would now be appropriate to consider.

It's troubling to me and all those who attempt to live within their earnings, to see our Congress's complete disregard for fiscal responsibility by continually spending us farther in debt. Equally distressing, is to see the enormous estimated figures of unpaid taxes on the non-reported earnings of organized crime and businesses dealing only in cash and virtually paying no taxes.

Not much can be done about Congress in the short term, but if income taxes were eliminated, or kept very low, and all purchases, savings, stock, real estate, etc were taxed instead, everyone would pay their fair share whether they reported their income or not. Obviously, allowances would have to be made for the poor and low income groups, but I feel that this system would be far more equitable for the majority of taxpayers by eliminating the cheaters. I feel that it's a program worth studying for consideration.

Thank you for your time, and for the stupendous job you are doing.

Sincerely,

JHS-6A Ms. Lee ... student financial aid Sept. 27

Dear Chief of Staff Sununu,

ED

A magazine article - People - prompted this letter along with a recent newspaper editorial I read concerning Financial Aid to college students. That author was president of De Paul University.

I realize the large financial burden you are facing in educating a large family. Our family is not as large. We are teachers and our income is not as large either.

The magazine article was the one that featured you. The newspaper article was explaining one of the reasons that financial aid is less available: funds for college are pooled with funds that go for "for profit" trade school financial aid. College financial aid has about 3% nonpayment; trade school financial aid is at about 7% nonpayment. Also some of the governing requirements are less stringent and the article illustrated one trade school with about a 75% dropout rate and huge administrative income. Basically the financial aid is paying

The members of the Federation of Republican Women of California are proud to have working with us and for us MR. CHARLES HOUSE. In 1986 and again in 1988, he carried the Republican banner into the precincts and ran for Congress. It was then that I met him and became impressed with his many qualifications.

On May 14, 1990, President Bush nominated him to serve as the Director of the Office for Victims of Crime. He did not receive a confirmation hearing date prior to Congress adjourning for the summer recess; consequently, he must be renominated.

He fully understands and knows well the necessity of interacting with victims and victim groups, for he has been a member of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department for the past twenty-four years.

But more than all his qualifications for this office is the fact that he is a man of integrity, of dedication to law and order and of strong moral values.

It is with no hesitation that I and many more Federated Republican Women ask that he be renominated for the position of Director of the Office for Victims of Crime. In the words of former President Reagan, "Charles House symbolizes some of the finest traditions of public service. He has a strong sense of compassion for others, and an abiding faith in the future of our country. He shares with me a belief that America's best days are ahead." This Office needs CHARLES HOUSE!

We have been watching Cong. hearings throughout this week to our dismay on C-Span in Washington, DC; and we are certainly disgusted with all those Democrat Rep's wasting time trying to get their favorite pork barrels filled to overflowing. And how they yearn to blow more of the Federal income! Business, as usual, is to inflate the various bureaucracies in the next budget! Keep their kingdoms growing and their citizens busy and happy dreaming up new, and unnecessary projects! Whatever happened to states doing their own studies, solving their own problems and financing their needs from the local or state government agencies without Fed. grants?

The Corps of Engineers is a prime example. They have too much power and force projects on the various states which the people oppose -- and many of their projects prove to be harmful to various communities. Now the C.E. is trying to foul up the waterways in the lower Missouri River basin. As you know, we who live near the New Madrid fault expect a serious earthquake probably in the near future. Dear Sir:

When I had television on yesterday, and heard that our Chicago Mayor was in Washington with the rest of the mayors, to get more money, my blood boiled.

How on earth do these people know that the census taken was not right, and want more money. At the rate we are going, we will never, and I mean never, balance the budget.

Let me say something that you may know and again not know. You are a lot younger than I am. When I came to this country from Switzerland in 1922, I was 16 years old. America was run pretty much the way Switzerland was run. And believe me that country is well run. Sure it is a much smaller country, and we cannot compare it to ours. Then, I remember very well that the states of the United States were self-sustained, they did not get a red cent from the U.S. Government, and I ^{am} not wrong about that. Since then, things changed drastically. I am not going to mention the other party.

Another thing, that this country should not do is this. Yes, we are the best people on this Earth, the most compassionate people I have ever known. I am not talking about people who hold "GREEN CARDS" for many years, and never become citizens, because with the green card, they get housing, food, stamps, and almost anything they need, the best doctors, while the poor American has to pay and pay, even tho he is a poor man. That is absolutely wrong. That is where most of our money goes. I know people who have lived in the good U.S.A. most of their lives, had 4 to 6 children who are Americans, but the father and mother still carry a green card, and get all the good of the land. This is entirely wrong. We must be stronger, and put a stop to that. Why should one get a green card with all the benefits for the rest of his life, and never ever pay one penny of income tax. With things like that going on, we will never balance the budget, it cannot be done.

One more thing, when President Harry S. Truman changed the law to give all unemployed 26 weeks pay without ever paying a penny in income tax, I thought my husband would hit the ceiling, he was so angry. All he said, was "of all the dumb things, there goes our country." I know people who are on that unemployment pay, and could get a job, but they, then, would have to pay income tax, and simply stay on the dole.

Re: The Savings and Loan Crisis

Dear Governor Sununu:

I was an 8th grader at LaSalle Military Academy when you were the Cadet Battalion Commander. Then, as now, you lead by example. I have watched the present Savings and Loan crisis continue to show signs of being out of control. Does the leadership at FDIC have a handle on the problem? Why do the estimates of the cost of the bail-out keep rising? Can accountants & bankers understand the many variables that effect real estate?

I am now writing to ask your assistance. On August 27, 1990, I applied for a position with The RTC as Assistant Director, Contractor Oversight and Surveillance. I am enclosing a copy of the advertisement for this position, my completed Application for Federal Employment, SF171, and my resume.

I have followed the hearings in both The Senate and House Banking Committees concerning the Savings & Loan Crisis with considerable interest. In The Washington Post on Monday, September 24, 1990, The General Accounting Office was quoted as 'warning' The Resolution Trust Corporation to do a better job of monitoring the private contractors it hires.

The Savings & Loan crisis is indeed a banking and regulatory problem, and insuring that it does not reoccur will require banking and regulatory solutions. However, The RTC has become a very substantial landowner, and as such, should be seeking real estate expertise to provide guidance. The taxpayers deserve to have their real estate holdings managed by real estate experts, and I don't see this happening. Illegal activities aside, the banking community was ignorant in the belief that they knew all about real estate development, and exacerbated the problem through poor real estate lending practices and the inability to understand real estate market dynamics. The initials "M.A.I.", that appear after an appraiser's name, came to be known as "Made As Instructed".

Hopefully you will find my note to Henry Kissinger to be of interest.

Saddam Hussein must not continue to exploit the American Media as his 'Fifth Column!'

This central concern prompted my note together with the aim of sustaining the President's national, as well as international, support, while at the same time reinforcing the will of our citizens, indeed, people throughout the world to "Stay the Course."

Incidentally, I passed along a copy to Pat Buchanan to reinforce his faltering resolve to serve the 'National Interest.'

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I have been a loyal Republican since 1964, but I am so disgusted with the Bush administration current policies. President Bush has worked in the Federal Government for so many years, that he believes that BIG Government is the solution to America's problems rather than the cause of our problems. Basically, the President does not have a core philosophy for which he is willing to take an uncompromising position. Granted, we have a divided Government, but the President consistently compromises and accommodates his old friends in the Congress.

President Bush has reneged on so many of the Reagan principles since in office. For example:

1. Deregulation has brought reregulation to most American businesses.
2. No new taxes has brought $134 billion in new "revenues".
3. Conservative appointments to the Supreme Court has meant the appointment of a man with an unknown judicial philosophy.
4. Strong support for Israel has recently meant the possible "linkage" between Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait and the possible settlement of the Palastinian homeland issue (i.e. recent UN speech).

The Federal Government should be able to operate on 20% of the GNP. In difficult times, the size of Federal Government must shrink by 2% or 3%, particularly in the number of employees.

If President Bush told investors in a prospectus "there would be no new taxes", the S.E.C. could charge him with fraud and misrepresentation. The American people should hold President Bush accountable in that his words have not matched his deeds.

As a disgruntled Republican, I expect many American voters will come to the same conclusion that I have reached.

Sincerely,

Mark R. Shenkman

Good Morning President Bush,

There are many reasons the Budget and Summit Agreement failed to pass the House. Some of the more glaring reasons are:

*The increase on fuel was unfair to rural and low income Americans.

*It also singled out the trucking industry to bear a huge proportion of the costs of the $59.2 billion it would have raised over five years. The trucking industry would have paid $12 billion.

*There were too many exemptions, such as railroads, airlines, manufactures and farmers.

*Our retired citizens cannot afford to lose a large part of their income to pay this debt.

*The northern states would have bore more of this debt than the southern states.

*This is a national debt, and should be shared as equal as possible by all citizens and business's.

I would be amiss if I did not offer an idea of how to solve this difficult problem.

A surcharge on electricity along with tax cuts, with no exemptions, would be the fairest for all citizens for several reasons.

*Proportionality it would be as fair as we can be. The wealthy citizen with a mansion would pay more by using more electricity than a poor citizen living in his bungalow. The same would be true for business's.

*It would be easily administered based on a kilowatt hour of use. This is all metered.

As President of the George Mason University Alumni Association, I am writing to ask if you would honor us by being the speaker at our annual spring luncheon at the National Press Club in Washington, D.C.

George Mason University has almost 20,000 alumni in the Washington Metropolitan area and the alumni association is always seeking new events to meet their needs and interests. I believe it is important for an alumni association to offer its members a wide variety of cultural, educational and informative programs. An address by you to our alumni would certainly be a significant event for our association and one which would attract great interest.

Traditionally, our luncheon is held in the period between the first of March and the end of May. However, if you agree to join us, we would certainly expect to accomodate your schedule.

The National Association of Business Economists (NABE) is holding its annual Policy Seminar on March 13, 1991 in Washington, D.C. This meeting focuses on current economic issues and attracts several hundred business economists from across the nation. The 1991 meeting is being held in conjunction with the international federation of business economists, assuring an international audience.

One session during the conference will be on the emerging economic issues for the next Presidential election. The Board of Directors of NABE has asked me to invite you to speak on this issue. Typically, presentations consist of a short statement and questions and answers.

Emerging economic issues and their political context are important to our membership, and a discussion of it without you would be incomplete. I hope you will accept.

Dear Ed,

Wonder if you can help me track down two scheduling questions:

1. The U.S. Council for Energy Awareness has invited Governor Sununu to speak at their annual meeting on Tuesday, November 13 here in Washington. They would like the Governor to be the keynote speaker at the Banquet that evening.

I sent you a note early in the summer about this one and I spoke with one of your assistants on how we could list the Governor as an "invited guest." That got us over the first hurdle, now I'd like to get a handle on how likely you think it is that the Governor will be able to speak at this event.

2. We have not spoken about this one before. It is an invitation to the President from my client, the National Electrical Contractors Association (see attached), to speak at their annual meeting on October 22, 23 or 24.

This group should have some appeal from a political perspective. These are conservative small business owners who will be supportive of the President on economic issues. This would be an excellent opportunity to talk on these issues in the last few weeks you haven't already done so. Jackie: regret these events. And because they are small business owners, they need the need for the Capital Gains Tax Cut to stimulate the economy.

If you could help me determine the status of these two invitations and perhaps suggest how we might proceed, I'd appreciate it a great deal.

Dear Governor Sununu,

While the events of last winter continue to be discussed among industry, consumers and government, the National Propane Gas Association believes that government must work with industry to plan for this coming winter. The crisis in the Middle East has already disrupted energy supplies and energy prices have shown unusual gyrations for over a month.

The National Propane Gas Association (NPGA) is the national trade association of the propane gas industry with about 4,000 members including 43 affiliated state and regional associations. We represent all aspects of the industry including producers, transporters, equipment manufacturers, suppliers and retail marketers. Therefore the continued supply of product to the consumer at reasonable prices is of great concern to us.

Early inventory reports show that fewer barrels of propane are in primary storage now than the same time last year. With major reductions in worldwide supply due to the Iraqi embargo, it is possible that we will enter the winter heating season with these lower inventories. However, reports show that there may be substantial building of propane inventory at private locations that are not reported such as petrochemical, retailer and consumer storage.

In December we found the transportation/distribution system strained to the limit, causing regional shortages due to the inability of the system to move the necessary volume of product from point of production or storage to consumption with sufficient speed. Through planning, we can deal with this eventuality.

Although we in industry do not have a crystal ball, we bring this problem to your attention in September so that plans can be made to alleviate problems if they arise this winter. Last winter no one could have predicted the record cold that blanketed the nation in December; this year we can

Dear Gov. Sununu:

I have long believed that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission would function more ably if at least one of the Commissioners were a knowledgeable radiation physicist. I recently learned that Dr. Edward Webster has been proposed for this position. I believe that Dr. Webster would be an excellent choice.

I have known Dr. Webster for almost 35 years. He is considered to be one of the country's leading radiation physicists. His Garland Lecture published in the American Journal of Radiology in 1981 is a classic paper in our understanding of the biologic effects of low level radiation. He has served on numerous committees and agencies which have called on him because of his acknowledged expertise in matters relating to radiation safety and protection. On occasion I have served on the same advisory group with him and have been particularly impressed with his wisdom and competence in dealing with the scientific matters under discussion and their relationship to issues of public policy.

I have no doubt that if Dr. Webster were to be appointed to the Commission he would make significant contributions to the important work that needs to be done to assure the required excellence in the functioning of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I would like to endorse for re-nomination for Director of the Office for Victims of Crime, Charles M. House. He is a 24-year veteran of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department, and twice candidate for Congress in California's 34th District. He would be an outstanding asset in the Justice Department.

Mr. House served six years as International Liaison Officer for the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department. As such, his duties included the exchange of sensitive information and cooperation on matters of mutual concern with 72 consulates in Los Angeles in Los Angeles County.

Furthermore, his years in law enforcement have given him great insight into our gang and drug cultures. Mr. House has also had extensive contact with crime victims, victim groups and the Criminal Justice System.

He has recently been invited to briefings at the White House to familiarize him with the President's policy and expectation, and has attended a budget meeting with the Attorney General.

Mr. House would bring unique talents and experience to the Justice Department, and his presence would serve as a role model to many in this country.

This individual has gained valuable insight and experience from his involvement with law enforcement and is a strong leader in our community. There is no doubt that Mr. House would bring the knowledge and ability to serve the administration with distinction.

PRIVATE CORRESPONDENCE

Honorable John H. Sununu, Chief of Staff to the President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Governor Sununu:

I am writing to ask your commitment -- in exchange for mine -- with respect to assembling an elegant, effective solution to the problems now arising from the first try at the S&L bailout. I am confident that we have defined the proper framework for that solution, but that's my opinion, not yours. I am equally convinced that you, and only you, can command the resources necessary to determine whether we are correct.

I've spent a fair amount of time in government, including a bit at the White House. So if I say at the outset that I'm pleased to bring staff over and make a presentation, it is not because we want "bragging rights" but because I know that solving the S&L crisis is a high-stakes matter that has to be done right this time around.

However, you must understand something as well. Although the "complete" solution to the S&L bailout will in substance be "economic", the only way it will be brought about is if it is managed the right way politically. It is also my judgment that you have to manage it, which means that even if our framework is the right one, you have to understand it and agree with it from the very outset.

For that to happen, it is incumbent on people like us to be able to explain it to people like you succinctly and completely. If we can, then you can, and you will have the real answer you want: where you'll find the time and resources (including knowledge) to be certain that the solution -- in the formative stage and when the bureaucrats get hold of it -- stays on track.

You have my commitment to the following: if our approach is one you think will work and you agree to manage it, we will claim no authorship and help you get support for it within the financial community. I will be asking you to agree to something else: the necessity of forcing the preparatory work so that it can be completed before the next Congress begins; that way, the President can choose the timing of its announcement. We will certainly help you keep the wraps on it until you and he think the time is ripe. Be forewarned, however, that if you agree that this solution is the best, you will also see that the wraps will have to be kept on it almost to the day it is formally announced.

Dear Governor Sununu:

I would like to compliment you and President Bush on the exercise of leadership for our nation in connection with the Iraq crisis and also in connection with the very difficult budgetary issues facing us today. You have my support and the support of our nation in your endeavors.

I am writing to you today to recommend your consideration of John A. Kaye to be named United States Attorney for the District of New Jersey. John Kaye is an outstanding attorney and Prosecutor. He has been the Prosecutor for Monmouth County, New Jersey since December, 1983. Prior to that, he was engaged in the practice of law for 15 years, representing both public and private clients in a distinguished career. John Kaye enjoys the uniform high regard of law enforcement agencies at both the State and Federal level. He has been active in public life and served as a Bush delegate when President Bush first sought the Presidency years ago. He is a person of many attributes, including being an accomplished water color artist and award winning fisherman.

I have known John Kaye for 20 years, and I believe he is the most outstanding candidate for the post of United States Attorney in New Jersey. It appears from newspaper reports that

Dear Mr. Sununu,

Please accept the hearty endorsement of the members of the Walnut Republican Women Federated for the re-nomination of CHARLES M. HOUSE as Director of the Office For Victims of Crime.

Knowing Charles for many years has made us aware of his extensive background in law enforcement and his outstanding qualifications for this post.

During his twenty-four years with the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department he has been involved as an Operations Sargeant, in Court Services, Watch Sargeant, International Liaison Deputy, Patrol, Fraud Investigation, Court Bailiff and Operations Planning.

Charles is well known and respected in many areas because of his numerous community involvements and his devotion to Republican activities and philosophy.

Perhaps what is most notable about Charles is his unwavering loyalty to God, Country, Family, President Bush and Republican principles.

His moral character is above reproach.

Charles has every capability and desire to administer the responsibility and duties of Director of the Office for Victims of Crime.

Dear Mr. Sununu:

After consulting with Roger Ailes' office in New York, they recommended I write directly to you in regards to a possible position at the White House.

For the past five years, I have maintained myself as a sales manager for Airborne Express. I have decided to resign from my position and lend my talents elsewhere. One area I have always had a keen interest in is government service, specifically the White House.

Prior to my association with Airborne Express, I attended Iona College where I graduated Cum Laude with a Bachelor's degree in marketing. During my tenure at Iona College, I served in Student Government. Specifically, I acted as the student liason between the President of Iona and the boarding community. Here I fought for better housing, student rights, and for the betterment of all those who made Iona their home. Diplomacy and courage were two vital agreements I had to demonstrate to achieve my goals. I would use these and many other facets of my personality to be a forceful asset to your department, and the entire White House staff.

I ask that you please review my credentials, and I would welcome the opportunity to meet with a staff member to discuss a possible position in Washington, D.C.

I thank you in advance for your consideration and look forward to your response.

Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Governor Sununu:

The American Legislative Exchange Council (ALEC) will convene its Fifth Annual National Orientation Conference for New State Legislators in Washington, D. C., November 29 - December 1, 1990. On behalf of the Officers and Board Directors, and the entire ALEC team, it is my personal pleasure and honor to cordially invite you to be our featured speaker, either at breakfast or lunch on Friday, November 30, 1990.

The Conference is ALEC's premier event of the year wherein newly elected state legislators are first introduced to ALEC and its unique public and private sector partnership. More than 150 freshman lawmakers will join 300 veteran ALEC legislators and senior corporate executives to gain firsthand knowledge about those issues that will confront them throughout their public lives.

This event represents a rare opportunity for the Administration to present its position on the critical issues newly-elected state legislators will address in the forthcoming legislative session. Thus, the Administration will have "first crack" at these freshman legislators.

Governor, in view of your long-standing association with state legislators and belief in federalism, your participation will significantly ensure the success of the Conference.

Thank you for your considering this request. We look forward to your participation and the honor and pleasure of your company.

With best personal regards, I remain,

On behalf of the Morris County Republican Committee, I would be pleased to have the President's Chief of Staff honor us with his presence to be our special guest and featured speaker at our Annual Champagne Brunch on Sunday, October 28, 1990 from 11:30 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. This event will be held at the beautiful Parsippany Hilton Hotel with an expected attendance of 600 people.

As the only female County Chairman in New Jersey on both sides of the aisle, I would be pleased to have the President's Chief of Staff honor us with his presence.

We Republicans in Morris are extremely proud of our record of reliability. As the #1 Republican County in the State, we gave George Bush the largest plurality in New Jersey in 1988.

Now more than ever, we need your support. The tax increases by Governor Florio and his liberal Democrats have presented the Republican Party a great opportunity. It is our Party's long-term objective of reestablishing control of the Statehouse and the Governor's office - and as we all to well know, requires funding.

Your attendance would certainly guarantee the success of our Brunch both socially and financially.

I look forward to hearing from you soon so that we may finalize our plans.

Dear President Bush:

JHS-4
The Panama Canal Society of Florida, Inc., is an organization comprised of retirees and dependents of retirees who worked and lived in the Panama Canal Zone. In the 58 years of the organization's existence, our membership has swelled to approximately 6,000 household memberships all over the United States, many foreign countries and Panama, which equates to approximately 15,000 members.

Each year the Panama Canal Society of Florida holds a reunion and annual meeting. Traditionally, we have a luncheon each year and have a speaker with some ties to Panama. In 1990, we were very honored to have Congressman Philip Crane as our speaker. As you know, he is most knowledgeable about the history and issues of Panama. He made a wonderful presentation and, I must add, as a loyal Republican, I was so very proud of him. The luncheon this year went so well, that I was immediately asked how I was going to top it next year. My first thought, of course, turned to you. I would be extremely honored if you would be the guest speaker at the Panama Canal Society of Florida's Annual Luncheon on June 22, 1991 at the Twin Towers Hotel and Convention Center in Orlando, Florida. The members of our organization were most proud of your decision and action in Panama and would be so thrilled to have you as our speaker.

I do hope that your schedule will permit you to attend our Luncheon. I look forward to hearing from your office in the near future.

Dear Sir:

Please "hold out" and encourage President Bush to "hold out" for a reduction in Capital Gains Taxes. Several economists have indicated that it will be beneficial for the economy, and in the long run, increase tax revenues.

An additional related consideration should be that Capital Gains income should be excluded from the test to determine whether Social Security payments are taxable. Capital Gains income not only affects how much more tax one pays irrespective of Social Security, but unfairly penalizes the tax on Social Security income when retired people sell off resources.

Dear Mr. Sununu,

Regarding taxes, it may all be over by time you get this letter, but here is one middle-class opinion:

- * Stick with the capital gains tax reduction to 15%. There is much middle-class yearning for this.
- * Stick with the limit on deductions, except contributions, on income over $200,000.
- * If you have to, increase the top rate, even to 33%.....but, in any case, eliminate that damned bubble. There is great middle-class resentment of the preceived 28% top rate for the rich and 33% top rate for the middle-class.

As a middle class business man I cannot effectively convert my lifetime accumulation to a sufficient of us seniors (read - voters) in the same boat.

I believe a compromise on the sunset limit

sub: 1 - WHAT PRICE: WORLD PEACE, ORDER, SECURITY?

2 - A SCENARIO FOR WORLD PEACE, ORDER, SECURITY

re: GULF CRISIS: A blessing in disguise, as was Pearl Harbor

John H. Sununu
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Governor Sununu:

Enclosed is a copy of my September 10 letter to President Reagan, along with subject scenarios. This letter is intended to implement, with "HOW TO", President Bush's statement that we need "A new post-crisis world in which the U.N. Security Council can, at long last, fulfill its original mission of keeping world order".

Press and TV reports concern me by their lack of creative vision. We need to focus on the specifics of "HOW" to achieve world peace, order and security. The enclosed scenarios stem from my prognosis of the inevitable and reflect my thinking and front-line involvement in the "winds of war" and the war in Europe.

If a "new foundation for world order" is not built, Enrico Fermi's prophesy on the destiny of planet earth will surely come to pass. The current panic-crisis and uncertainties have generated a psychological maelstrom that can and should be used as the mortar for the foundation of world peace, order, security. The Security Council and most countries are primed for it. Such an opportunity and timing may never again present itself. Do you not agree that we should "go for broke" to make happen that vision of a new foundation for world order?

Sincerely,

David T. Colin

... the Federal budget deficit

Dear Mr. Sweeney: Treasury

Please excuse the hand written letter to you but I do not type and I feel this could not wait. I have been watching all of your efforts to balance our budget and am quite concerned by the fact that no one seems to see the cause of the problem.

In 1986 a new tax law was enacted which took away all benefits of owning Real Estate. The new tax law was supposed to correct all the inequities in the old tax code but what it did was cause everyone to abandon their Real Estate holdings causing not only an additional deficit but also the savings and loan crises. What ever small gains were made in additional taxes due to the new tax code are now lost in the shortfall caused by the Real Estate mess.

I do not profess to be an economist but anyone can see, why the problems we now have, started. Is it not better to admit the 1986 tax code regarding Real Estate holdings was wrong and maybe we can still rescue some of our funds. God knows we have enough other problems now that if we can identify one reason for the financial mess we are in perhaps you or someone like you can reverse some bad decisions.

I love my Country and it tears me up to see what is happening to it. Thank you.

Sincerely Yours,
John Rothschild

proposed legislation
in the Excellence in Education ActRE: REJECT THE DODD NB/PTS AMENDMENT OF S. 695

Dear Governor Sununu:

MS-6C
ED

We implore you to encourage the Excellence in Education Act conferees to follow the House of Representative's approach and eliminate Senator Dodd's amendment that grants $25,000,000 federal funds to the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards from final form of S 695/HR 5115. Recently the Council for American Private Education hosted national leaders of non-governmentally controlled education in Washington to discuss issues that affect our schools. During that time of meeting together the Excellence in Education Act became a point of no small discussion.

As we discussed our various points of view--all of which reflected our diversity in backgrounds and methodology in education--it became apparent that many of the organizations represented at the meeting held a similar opinion concerning this one aspect of the education legislation. Even though we differed on whether the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards would be helpful or not to American education, we agreed that public tax dollars should not pay the bill. It is inappropriate for the federal government to fund a private organization which proposes national guidelines for teacher certification. Federal funding is inconsistent with national certification committees which serve professional groups, such as doctors, attorneys and accountants.

We are disturbed that federal agencies, such as the United States Department of Education, would be prohibited from serving as a watchdog overseeing the use of this grant of millions of dollars. In light of the scandals of misuse of federal monies which we have recently observed, this is unconscionable. The National Board of Professional Teaching Standards has existed for three years with private foundation funding. The National Board will probably continue to exist, but it should not be funded by federal tax dollars. Federal funding implies a seal of approval by the government, which is just not true for the White House or the U. S. Department of Education--they oppose this as we do.

Thank you for taking our comments under consideration when working through the process of compromise on the Education Excellence Act.

Respectfully yours,

Dr. John C. Holmes

Governor John Sununu
White House Chief of Staff
The White House

Dear Governor Sununu:

Immediate action by our President, with the support of our government, and moving in concert with our allies and the United Nations, has stabilized the situation in the Middle East, at least for the time being. We can anticipate, however, that as the embargo tightens around Iraq, the Iraqis may respond by attempting to forcibly curtail oil shipments from other sources in the region. We must recognize that the oil production and transportation facilities in the region are quite vulnerable to damage, whether by direct attack, terrorist sabotage, or by missile attack from remote sites. Disruption of the oil supplies from the region could precipitate a crisis that could wreck the U. S. economy and the economies of many of our allies, once our reserves are depleted. It is estimated that a 10% shortfall in world crude oil supplies could lead to a doubling in oil prices. Further shortfalls could lead to a chaotic situation.

The purpose of this letter is to recommend several measures which may be implemented in response to the present emergency situation to reduce the U.S. demand for petroleum in an economically and environmentally advantageous manner. These demand-side measures would accomplish this goal in the following manner:

- o Replace as much existing oil-fired power generating capacity as possible by expediting the safe restart and operation of a number of existing idle nuclear units.
- o Reduce gasoline consumption by expediting the substitution of as much alcohol as is possible for gasoline motor fuel.
- o Reduce diesel fuel consumption by expediting railroad electrification.

These measures are explained in more detail below:

The first measure would be initiated by the government by assembling a task force of nuclear power plant experts from the electric utilities,

Dear Mr. Sununu:

I have a specific suggestion to allow the United States and its allies to regain the initiative in the Middle East. Now that our troops are in place, Saddam Hussein has been capturing the headlines and diverting attention to the hostages. This tactic can cause time to work against us in the minds of the impatient American public, the untutored but radical Arab masses, and even our European and Asian allies. There are actions that we can take, short of war, that will be seen as furthering peace and stability.

The right actions should get universal acclaim by working against Iraqi characteristics which are universally regarded as repugnant. I propose the following.

First, issue a joint announcement with other nations, stating that use of bacteriological warfare by any nation is totally unacceptable, and asking Iraq to prove that it is not preparing for this by allowing United Nations' inspection of all their locations which may be preparing this technology. A deadline should be set so that there would not be time for concealment. If Saddam Hussein refuses, take out those particular plants by pre-emptive strikes, such as the one that Israel used against Iraq's nuclear facilities. Announce that this does not constitute a declaration of war, and that we do not intend taking any other military action at this time; then go on to the next step. If Saddam Hussein does agree to inspections within our time limit, still go on to the next step.

Next, issue the same kind of declaration about either chemical or nuclear weapons, depending upon which one has fewer points to attack (so as to minimize military action). Proceed as in the bacteriological case.

Third, do the same for whatever facility (chemical or nuclear) remains. Then settle down for the embargo to work, or for a coup against Saddam Hussein.

I also endorse strongly the recommendation by Albert Wohlstetter and Fred Hoffman to reclaim Kuwaiti airspace without resorting to other hostilities, as published in the Wall Street Journal on September 12.

The aspect of eliminating Iraq's nuclear potential is the most important of all. Even if Saddam Hussein should give in to current pressure on Kuwait, there is real danger that he will lay low until he has a working nuclear weapon, and then will use it to deter retaliation against

Dear Governor:

Letters to the President probably do not get beyond his 18th secretary so I am writing to you in the hope that it does not suffer a like fate.

It seems to me that an anomalous situation exists in the present Gulf crisis. We are saving the Saudis while they, in turn, are devastating the U.S. economy. If my recollection is correct, they are pumping 7,000,000 barrels of oil a day, including the extra oil to compensate for Iraqi shortfall. At an extra $10.00 above the previous price, this amounts to an extra 70 million dollars a day, and 25 billion dollars a year, much of which constitutes a drain on our economy.

If Saudi Arabia were a true ally, it could and would reduce the price of crude arbitrarily to its former level. After all, OPEC arbitrarily set oil prices in the recent past. If the Saudis and the Emirates reduced the price of oil in order to help their American Saviour, they would be acting as allies should, instead of being profiteers.

It seems to me that the President should request, and yes, require that the Saudis disgorge their excess profits.

Dear Sir:

I am writing to urge you to support the Conference agreement on H.R. 4330 and S. 1430. This National Service legislation represents an important step forward in providing service opportunities to all citizens, particularly youth and older Americans.

As Executive Director of Families USA, an organization that advocates on behalf of low- and moderate-income senior citizens, I am especially pleased that the National Service legislation targets older Americans for community service.

In communities and towns across America, millions of older Americans are already contributing to their communities as volunteers. They serve in the Older American Volunteer Programs. They teach children and adults how to read. They provide home care to the disabled and the frail elderly. And they teach their job skills to young Americans preparing to enter the work force.

Still, there are millions of older persons not presently volunteering who are ready to be mobilized into community service. With years of experience and accumulated wisdom behind them, these older Americans represent a vast, untapped resource. By recruiting older Americans to serve as volunteers in schools, literacy programs, drug abuse programs, and the like, national service legislation would go a long way toward matching the skills of our nation's senior citizens with the unmet needs of our communities.

Your support for National Service legislation will be greatly appreciated. If we can be of any assistance to you, please feel free to contact me or my staff at any time.

Sincerely,

Ronald F. Pollack
