MEMORANDUM FOR THE CHIEF OF STAFF

FROM: DAVID Q. BATES

When you meet with the President in the morning, would you please get a sense from him on how long he would like to talk on the speech to the Joint Session. As we discussed, after he speaks in broad terms on the speech, you can follow-up on details and tell the Cabinet members what we want them to be saying after the speech. We will have talking points from Dave Demarest at the meeting.

President Johnson spent many an evening on the Presidential yacht hauling members of Congress up and down the Potomac River and, as he put it to his aides, "pattin' 'em, huggin' 'em and talkin' to 'em about some damn bill."

Jimmy Carter sold the Sequoia, the Presidential yacht, when he became President. The act came to symbolize what many in official Washington said was his lack of understanding about pride in historic trappings and the human element in politics.

Being Down-to-Earth

Mr. Bush has long understood how being down-to-earth in an upscale atmosphere can help make a good impression. As Vice President, he often offered rides on Air Force Two to Congressional allies, and he allowed advisers to bring in busloads of key constituents for campaign receptions, complete with upstairs tours, at his home in Kennebunkport, Me., and his official residence in Washington.

While the Reagans used Camp David, the rustic Presidential retreat in Maryland's Catoctin Mountains, to shut out the world for weekends of movies and horseback riding, Mr. Bush saw his first weekend as President as an opportunity to foster bipartisan spirit. He invited Jim Wright, the Texas Democrat who is Speaker of the House, and his wife, Betty, to Camp David. The President had to cancel the plans because of a bad cold, but he plans to reschedule soon.

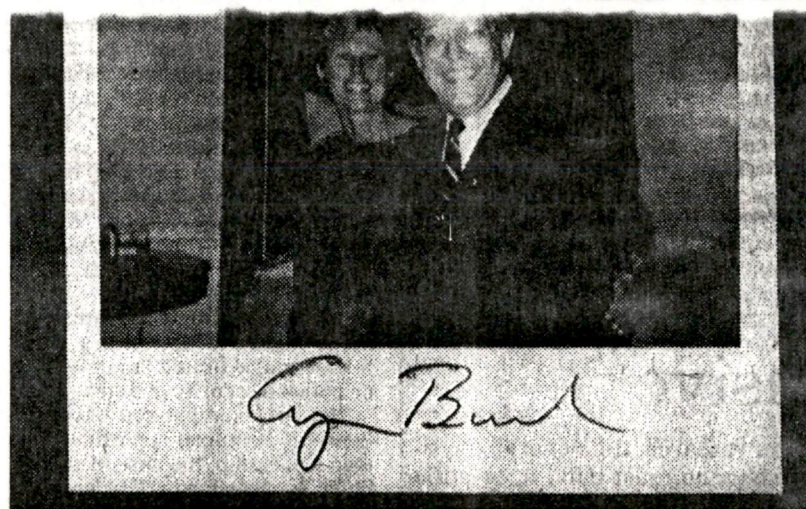

The children in Theodore Roosevelt's White House may have had pony races in the ballroom, but most modern Presidents have spent quiet evenings in the family quarters unwinding from the pressures of the office. President Nixon sat alone there, reading and listening to a recording of "Victory at Sea" or visiting with his friend, Bebe Rebozo. The Reagans watched television and ate alone, or occasionally had close friends in for private suppers.

But like President Johnson, Mr. Bush is a man who hates to be alone and who is able to relax and recharge in the company of others. Other politicians may draw a line between real friends and political friends; the Bushes do not.

'Isn't This Beautiful'

Mr. Bush repaid Representative Bob Dornan of California for being one of his earliest supporters in the 1988 campaign by giving him, during a reception for a core group of Republican supporters in the House and Senate, the first chance to see the Truman balcony off the residence's rooms.

"When I stepped out here on Inauguration day, tears came to my eyes and I thought, 'Isn't this beautiful,'" the

George Bush

A Polaroid snapshot taken and signed by President Bush of Representative Don Sundquist and his wife, Matha, on the giant Victorian bed in the Lincoln Bedroom at the White House. Legislators attending a reception for longtime Republican supporters lined up as if it were prom night for such snapshots by the President.

The President understands the value of the personal touch.

He showed them, with an astonished note in his voice, the Monet and Cezanne paintings that hang in the family quarters. In the sitting room, he proudly exhibited the blue needlepoint rug with birds, flowers and Chinese symbols that his wife worked on for a decade.

He pointed out the picture of his mother above his bed and the radio tuned to a country music station and the bedroom wallpaper of exotic birds that does not repeat the same bird. Whispering "Bar will kill me" to the Congressmen and their spouses, he opened closed doors and showed them the Western art he was removing from his study, and the three-story-high magnolia tree that obscures the view to the west.

When he showed them their private bathroom, with Mrs. Bush's glasses and face powder on the sink, his wife teasingly retaliated by asking the group, "Do you want to see where George dresses?"

Mr. Bush told his guests he was as excited as they were to be cavorting about the family quarters because he had rarely been allowed up in the Reagan era, except to an outer reception room where foreign dignitaries like Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain were greeted.

The high point for many members of Congress who came to the reception for longtime Republican supporters was Mr. Bush's grabbing a Polaroid camera and taking snapshots of Congressmen and senators and their wives sitting on the giant Victorian bed in the Lincoln Bedroom.

The legislators lined up for couple of shots as though it were prom night. "The President was like a little kid with a toy, cranking away, taking pictures, having a ball," recalled Representative Guy Molinari, a New York Republican who was there.

Republicans and Democrats agree that, while legislators would not vote against their consciences, such evenings inspire a loyalty that will pay political dividends for Mr. Bush later.

"He builds personal bridges, and that makes the margin of consideration for him broader," said Representative Charles (Chip) Pashayan Jr., Republican of California. "It's harder for someone who has some personal affinity with George Bush to deny him when he makes a request."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 — Four days after it began, the process of choosing a jury for the criminal trial of Oliver L. North indicates some of the strategy Mr. North's lawyers may use in his defense.

In hours of interviews with potential jurors last week, the lawyers for Mr. North pressed vigorously to weed out people with virtually any knowledge of their client.

One result has been to exclude from the jury some people who, knowing something of the Iran-contra affair, might sympathize with Mr. North.

The lawyers' blanket objections applied to anyone who might be tainted by Mr. North's televised testimony before Congress in 1987, but the judge, Gerhard A. Gesell of Federal District Court, has rejected most of those objections.

All this might seem to be dangerous defense tactics. But several Washington criminal lawyers say such tactics while they could backfire, lay the groundwork for any appeals or for an effort to shift the trial.

Mr. North's principal attorneys, Brendan V. Sullivan Jr. and Barry S. Simon, asked last year to have Mr. North's criminal trial moved from Washington because of the extensive local publicity surrounding the case. Judge Gesell, who successfully conducted some of the most publicized criminal trials after the Watergate scandal, rejected the motion.

A Very Shrewd Lawyer

Mr. Sullivan could renew the request once jury selection is complete in about a week, arguing that an impartial panel has not been drawn from the pool of candidates assembled.

It could also be that Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Simon simply see opportunities in the jury selection process that outsiders do not see.

"Brendan is a very shrewd lawyer," one Washington defense lawyer said, "and he knows in his bones the psychology of the situation. He knows his case, and he knows the tactics."

Mr. North's lawyers will not discuss strategy beyond their courtroom statements, in which they insist that an impartial jury can be made up only of people who know virtually nothing of the case.

The two lawyers supported Judge Gesell's efforts to bar jury candidates who say they watched Mr. North's televised testimony. This eliminated two of every three people summoned. But the lawyers have gone beyond that, arguing vigorously to exclude anyone even dimly aware of Mr. North's role in the Iran-contra affair.

Jury Selection Continues

ington's most hallyhoooded political of the decade.

And in the judgment of many criminal lawyers, the jurors will be less kindly on Mr. North's White activities than would a jury from the city's governing element, or even one randomly drawn from the city's mixture of poor, white and black.

The most visible signs of an are race and sex. Although Washington is one-third white, all but one of people chosen so far are black quarters of the 32 are women.

That makeup is a functional economics. Those least informed of an Iran-contra affair and most likely to accept acceptable jurors have come from the city's lower economic which are heavily black and female.

In the selection of any jury, already got the deck and the field in it," said Plato Cacheris, a Washington defense lawyer who sends Fawn Hall. Ms. Hall is North's secretary at the National Security Council when he was on.

"The trick is to keep them there. For Mr. North, the aces would be conservative, middle-class, the bedrock of his vocal political support. But many such candidates not make it past Judge Gesell's objections to anyone who follows North's televised testimony.

Glimpse of North on TV

Often, the people chosen by Gesell can recall glimpsing Mr. North on television or in newspaper graphs but remember little else. In virtually every instance, Simon has argued that even the people know too much of Mr. North.

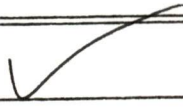

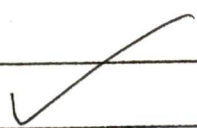

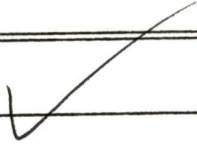

The lawyers may be laying the groundwork for any appeals.

gressional testimony, in which damaging admissions about his Mr. North gave that testimony receiving a pledge that his work not be used against him in a seat jurors who may recall those who would violate the Amendment. THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

February 14, 1989

MEMORANDUM FOR GOVERNOR JOHN H. SUNUNU
CHIEF OF STAFF

FROM: C. BOYDEN GRAY cmh
COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Labor Dispute Between Eastern Airlines and International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers

The above-referenced labor dispute may soon reach a crucial juncture, at which the President will have to decide whether to intervene under authority given to him by the Railway Labor Act. The purpose of this memo is simply to give you a sketch of the background, along with some information about the upcoming critical dates and about the preparations that are being made to enable the President to make an informed decision.

After lengthy and well-publicized attempts by the National Mediation Board to resolve this labor dispute, the Board has released the parties from mediation. Unless they settle, or further government actions are taken, the parties will be free to engage in self-help beginning on March 3; a strike would probably ensue. We believe it is likely that the National Mediation Board will, on February 21, recommend to the President that he appoint a "presidential emergency board" to investigate the dispute. The most important effect of such an action by the President would be to preserve the status quo for an additional 60 days; we also believe that the union has a strong preference for preserving the status quo, and that the carrier has a strong preference for immediate freedom to engage in self-help.

If the President declines to create a presidential emergency board by the March 3 deadline, the carrier would probably impose new work rules and the union would respond with a strike. There is some possibility (we do not yet know how great) that the Machinists and other unions would then picket other airlines and railroads, and that the nation's transportation system would be substantially disrupted for some period of time.

I have begun coordinating an effort by the relevant agencies - Labor, Transportation, Justice, and OMB - to develop analyses and options for the appropriate Policy Council to consider if and when the National Mediation Board throws the decision into the President's lap. The political and legal background to this problem is quite complicated, and I recommend that the White House avoid making public statements (beyond indicating that we are monitoring the situation closely) until the National Mediation Board completes its deliberations. | 0

MEMORANDUM

TO: DAVID DEMAREST
ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR COMMUNICATIONS

FROM: JEFF VOGT JW
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR, PUBLIC LIAISON

DATE: FEBRUARY 13, 1989

SUBJECT: BUSINESS LEADERS FEBRUARY 3 LUNCHEON FEEDBACK

DAVE, FYI, THE FEEDBACK FROM THE FEBRUARY 3 BUSINESS LEADERS LUNCHEON WAS EXCELLENT, IF NOT EXTRAORDINARY.

I SPOKE WITH SEVERAL OF THE CEO'S WASHINGTON REPRESENTATIVES TO ASK FOR THEIR IMPRESSIONS. ROGER SMITH OF GM WAS VERY PLEASED. HE NOTED WHAT A GREAT OPPORTUNITY IT WAS TO MEET SUNUNU AND THE WHITE HOUSE STAFF.

BOB MALOTT, CHAIRMAN OF FMC CORPORATION SAID THE CONTRAST BETWEEN THE REAGAN AND BUSH WHITE HOUSE WAS REMARKABLE. DURING THE REAGAN YEARS, THE FORMALITY AND STRUCTURE OF THESE TYPE EVENTS DID NOT ALLOW ATTENDEES TO TALK WITH THE PRESIDENT. IN THIS CASE, PRESIDENT BUSH "SLIPPED IN THROUGH THE BACK AND WORKED THE CROWD...IT GAVE THE WHOLE EVENT A NICE, LOW-KEY, CONFIDENT AND BALANCED FEEL."

JOHN PHELAN, CHAIRMAN OF THE NYSE, WAS VERY ENTHUSIASTIC. HE "CHATTED" WITH THE PRESIDENT, SUNUNU AND PETERSMEYER. HE WAS ALSO VERY MOVED BY THE PRESIDENT'S WORDS AS WELL AS MRS. BUSH'S REMARKS ABOUT DYSLEXIA. MR. PHELAN HAS A DYSLEXIC CHILD AND IS INTERESTED IN PROMOTING CORPORATE INVOLVEMENT TO HELP ASSIST EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS FOR CHILDREN WHO SUFFER FROM DYSLEXIA. HE HAS OFFERED THE NYSE AS A FORUM FOR ANY MESSAGE THE PRESIDENT OR MRS. BUSH WOULD LIKE TO CONVEY TO THE CORPORATE WORLD. IN ADDITION, HE WILL WORK TO GET THE 1,600 MEMBER COPORATIONS OF THE NYSE INVOLVED IN CORPORATE SPONSORSHIP AND "THOUSAND POINTS OF LIGHT" WORK.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

February 9, 1989

MEMORANDUM FOR GOVERNOR SUNUNU

THROUGH: DAVID Q. BATES

FROM: PHILLIP D. BRADY

Please find attached a memorandum from Director-designate Bennett (a copy of which was sent to your attention) seeking to summarize the principal points discussed during his February 8, 1989 meeting with the President. It would appear that the most pressing action item is scheduling a meeting between the President and Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Biden regarding the Cabinet status issue. As you know, the Director-designate's confirmation hearing is set for March 1 & 2, and given the President's travel schedule and the upcoming Congressional recess, this matter may require early consideration.

In that regard, we would suggest bringing the Director-designate's proposal to the attention of Legislative Affairs to obtain the benefit of their thoughts on the advisability of the meeting and potential attendees (i.e. whether Senator Thurmond should also be invited as the Ranking Minority Member of the Committee, whether Chairman Rangel could be included or should participate in a separate meeting, etc.) Your guidance on proceeding as above would be appreciated.

With respect to the other matters set forth in the attached, we will continue to work with the Director-designate and the National Security Advisor to follow-up as appropriate.

Thanks for your help.

MEMORANDUM

FOR: Phillip D. Brady
Deputy Assistant to the President and Director of Cabinet Affairs

FROM: William J. Bennett WJB
Director-Designate
Office of National Drug Control Policy

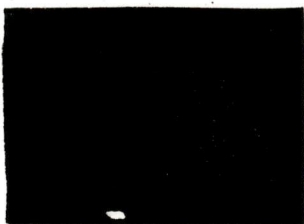

I just wanted to summarize the points raised in our meeting today with the President.

1. You will handle the President inviting Congressman Rangel and Senator Biden to visit with him regarding the Cabinet status issue. I would urge that his conversation reflect the understanding on the reporting structures discussed as set forth below:
2. The reporting and coordination structure we discussed today would have three parts. First, I think we all agreed that we should use the NSC structure for those matters relating to national security issues. This will permit us to employ the stature and the structure of the NSC to undertake planning and make the necessary decisions with Defense, State, the intelligence community and DEA. Second, we will use the Domestic Policy Council structure to coordinate planning and decision-making on the domestic side of the drug effort (HHS, Education, Transportation, etc.). Any major disagreements among the principal members of the Domestic Policy Council we will undertake to resolve through one on one meetings, or if necessary, meetings among myself, other members of the Domestic Policy Council and the President. Third, we will establish a series of regular meetings that will allow me to brief the President on our efforts and progress. I would propose 15 minutes every two weeks.
3. John Walters will be in touch with you shortly with suggestions regarding two drug policy issues where we can establish early successes.

Please call John or me if you have any problems with any of this, and thanks very much for your help.

cc: John Sununu

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS

February 9, 1989

THE PRESIDENT HAS SEEN
2/12/89

TO: The President

FROM: Mike Boskin MB

Subject: January Producer Price Index

This is the beginning of the price increase you anticipated reflecting the recent sharp rise in crude oil prices. It will likely be reflected in the CPI as well in the next couple of months.

The increase was perhaps double what financial markets expected. It will add fuel to the controversy over appropriate monetary policy by the Federal Reserve.

It is very important we discuss inflation and the FED soon. Secretary Brady and I are meeting on this next week and I will set up an appointment with you soon afterwards.

Michael J. Boskin
Chairman

THE CHAIRMAN OF THE
COUNCIL OF ECONOMIC ADVISERS
WASHINGTON

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: MICHAEL J. BOSKIN mb

SUBJECT: Producer Price Indexes for January 1989, Labor
Department Release, Tomorrow Morning, 8:30 A.M.

Producer price inflation increased sharply in January, with food and energy prices accounting for most of the increase. The Producer Price Index for finished goods rose 1.0 percent in January, while the index for non-food, non-energy items increased by 0.4 percent. Over the past 3 months, the Producer Price Index for all finished goods has risen at a 7.2 percent annual rate, while that for non-food, non-energy items has increased at a 5.5 percent annual rate. (All rates are seasonally adjusted.)

Food prices increased by 1.1 percent in January, while energy prices (led by fuel oil) increased 4.9 percent. Over the preceding 3 months, the average monthly increase in food and energy prices was about 0.2 percent. Intermediate goods prices (also led by food and energy items) rose 0.9 percent in January, compared with an average monthly increase of 0.3 percent over the previous 3 months. Crude materials prices (led mainly by energy items) increased 3.9 percent in January. Excluding energy, crude materials prices increased at a lower rate of 2.2 percent in January, but still well above the average monthly decline of 0.3 percent seen over the previous 3 months.

The annual rate of increase in the finished goods price index for the 6 months ending in January was 5.2 percent, compared with 4.7 percent for finished goods excluding food and energy. As shown in the chart below, inflation rates are less volatile for the latter group, but even for this group, large month-to-month changes are not uncommon.

HILL TO GET MORE DETAILS ON BUDGET, DARMAN SAYS

OMB Director Darman assured Democratic congressional budget leaders Monday that the White House will provide Congress with additional details on its spending priorities beyond the somewhat vague call for a freeze on $136 billion worth of domestic programs that President Bush outlined in the $1.16 trillion budget he presented last week.

Darman made the assurances at an hour and a half meeting with Rep. Foley, Sen. Sasser and Rep. Panetta. In the meeting, the four men set an agenda for further, more detailed discussions beginning today.

"I think we feel we are going to get additional information," said Foley, who characterized Monday's talks not as the beginning of a budget summit but as a "very satisfactory discussion."

"The leadership's instruction to us was to engage in some fact-finding," said Panetta. "Today's meeting was to set that kind of agenda."

(Tom Kenworthy, Washington Post, A6)

Budget Negotiators Schedule Another Meeting

The Administration and Democratic congressional leaders opened negotiations on President Bush's proposed 1990 budget, a plan defended by Bush as "realistic" but criticized by some lawmakers as vague.

Budget director Darman came to Capitol Hill, where he met Monday with Sen. Sasser and Reps. Panetta and Foley.

The discussion basically involved procedure rather than specific budget items, the four later told reporters. Darman said the issue of taxes did not come up.

"It's been...a fairly fruitful discussion," Sasser said. "Some constructive suggestions were made on both sides."

Sasser said talks would resume Tuesday when budget "specialists" from the two committees and OMB would attend. He described the first session as "simply a discussion about procedure, setting in place the procedure for further discussions."

BUSH FACING FIRST TROUBLE IN HOUSE

Democrats Set Vote On Foreign Investor Bill He Opposes

The House Democratic leadership is loading up for its first major political salvo at President Bush -- scheduling a certain to be partisan vote next week on a controversial provision to require the registration of most foreign investment in the U.S.

The move was ordered by Speaker Wright despite assurances by Wright and other House leaders that Democrats will cooperate with Bush in hammering out bipartisan solutions to such problems as reducing the federal budget deficit.

News of the move took the Bush Administration by surprise, angering White House officials, who had expected the Democrats to hold back on overtly partisan gestures until the negotiations over the federal budget were well under way.

Democratic strategists said that the Speaker hopes to use the vote to "draw a battle line" early on between the Democrats and the Administration. They said that Wright wants to portray the Democrats as populists who care about such items as foreign investment, while Republicans ostensibly do not.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES TIGHTENING OF CREDIT -- A STEP FED IS TAKING

President Bush said he is opposed to the Federal Reserve Board tightening credit to fight inflation, even as the central bank was taking modest steps to do just that.

In an Oval Office interview with the Wall Street Journal, Bush insisted he isn't "overly concerned" about inflation, despite a report last week showing that producer prices rose faster in January than they had in more than three years. The President suggested that the latest inflation report could be an "anomaly."

When asked whether it would be a mistake for the Fed to tighten credit now, Bush replied: "I would not like to see it.... I don't think the growth is excessive at all."

NORTH TEAM OBJECTS TO SECRETS PACT
Prosecution Accused Of Trying To Hide A Reagan Cover-Up

Oliver North's lawyers angrily accused the independent counsel Monday of trying to prevent North from establishing the existence of a cover-up ordered by president Reagan and his top advisers to hide the arrangements they made for secret third-country contributions to the Nicaraguan contras.

In papers filed in federal court here, North's defense attorneys objected to a weekend agreement between independent counsel Lawrence Walsh and Attorney General Thornburgh governing the use of classified documents in North's scheduled trial on 12 felony charges....

The defense team asserted that the agreement would "gut" North's effort to prove that Reagan "and other top administration officials" took part "personally and directly" in getting other countries to support the contra rebels during a period when U.S. funding was prohibited by Congress, and that they "established a policy that those arrangements would not be disclosed outside a limited group of executive branch officials."

Sometimes, the defense said, support from other countries was obtained on a "quid pro quo" basis, that is, in return for favors from the U.S.

Among those taking part in securing military support for the contras when such assistance was banned by Congress, North charged through his attorneys, were former national security adviser Robert McFarlane, the late CIA director William Casey, former secretary of state George Shultz, former secretary of defense Caspar Weinberger and Gen. John Vessey, former chairman of the JCS. (George Lardner, Washington Post, A1)

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear John:

Last week at the White House reception, I had the welcome opportunity to speak briefly with the President about our family's interest in the disabled, including my sister Jean Smith's work with the "Very Special Arts," which provides opportunities for the disabled to participate in the arts.

On June 14-18, 1989, Very Special Arts is sponsoring an arts festival in Washington that will draw more than a thousand participants from all fifty states and fifty foreign countries.

Jean has written personally to President Bush to invite him to attend the Closing Ceremony Gala which will be held at the Kennedy Center on June 17. Jean has also expressed her hope that the President and Mrs. Bush might host an activity at the White House for the children during the festival. An event at the White House has been a highlight of previous Very Special Arts International Festivals.

I wanted to follow up with you on Jean's letter to the President. I know it would mean a great deal to all those attending the Festival if President and Mrs. Bush were to participate in this way, and I hope that his schedule will permit him to do so.

I appreciate your interest and courtesy, and I look forward to hearing from you. Please let me know if I can provide any other information which would be helpful.

Sincerely,

Edward M. Kennedy

I need your help. The American people need your help. We're off to a good start in our conversations with Congress. You can make a positive contribution to that effort because you can see the effect of good government where it counts -- in your communities and in your neighborhoods.

Share with the Congress, and with us, your insights and your expertise in how to make government really work for the common good. And do it now; we can't wait until we're under the gun to get our house in order. There will be plenty of credit to go around when the job gets done.

March 1, 1989

MEMORANDUM

Re: A Plan for Establishing Priorities and Staying on the Offensive

As we continue to refine our operations, we should centralize the White House Staff approach to upcoming domestic agenda items.

I. The Administration Action Committee

We will create an Administration Action Committee (AAC) of White House staffers to help us establish priorities and advance the President's agenda. By necessity, this working group must be kept small, yet it must also include the people who can actually make decisions and deploy Administration assets.

II. AAC Methods of Operation

Once the President has articulated his specific goals, it will be our responsibility to follow-through. The AAC will develop an implementation strategy, set the day-to-day agenda, assign responsibilities, determine a timeline, monitor progress, and generally shepherd a given mission through to successful completion.

III. AAC Agenda

We expect the AAC to meet at least twice a week, with each meeting lasting at least an hour.

The AAC will address the major items on the President's domestic agenda. Key White House and Administration officials will be invited to participate on an ad hoc basis. For example, we would envision having Boyden Gray participate in all discussions of ethics matters, Richard Breeden for all discussions of science and technology issues, and so on. In this manner we could cover more than one topic in a single session, with participants shuttling in and then shuttling out once their subject matter has been addressed.

Below is our suggested "missions list" for the first AAC meetings:

1. Tower Nomination
2. Budget
3. Education add: Secretary Cavazos

A key to the effectiveness of the AAC is flexibility. Any Assistant to the President will be welcome to attend, but an emphasis will be placed on creating a tight decision-making unit.

IV. Presidential Themes

One of the AAC's most important on-going functions will be assisting in the development of key Presidential themes. These include:

1. Presidential Leadership
2. Building a Better America
3. New Priorities
4. A Kinder, Gentler Nation

5. The Education President
6. No New Taxes
7. Thousand Points of Light/YES
8. Reform
9. Invest in Our Children
10. New Breeze Blowing
11. New Day in Civil Rights/Tolerance
12. Ethics
13. Faith and Family
14. Bipartisanship

WESTERN HEMISPHERE CONFERENCE ON THE ENVIRONMENT

Proposal: The President would convene a high-level conference of Western Hemisphere leaders to discuss common environmental problems and measures to address them.

Objectives:

- To foster hemispheric cooperation and initiative on environmental concerns common to the nations of North, Central, and South America.
- To demonstrate U.S. leadership and commitment to improving the life of people throughout the Americas.
- To advance the case that conservation and environmental protection are requisites for sound, sustainable economic development.
- To provide a forum for exchanging information and ideas, for developing solutions to hemispheric environmental problems to supplement ongoing regional and bilateral activities.

Participation: The President would invite heads of state with expectation they would send their ministers of environment, energy, natural resources, economic development, planning and agriculture.

The President would open the conference with a major address, and if in Washington, D.C. (see below), close it with remarks and host a White House dinner for conference participants.

Permanent co-chairs of the conference could be the Secretary of State and the EPA Administrator. If cosponsored (see below), co-chair could include head of one of the cooperating groups.

Participation of conservationists, industrial leaders, press, scientists, academicians, environmental officials encouraged.

Caveat: Decision about participation of Cuba and Nicaragua.

When: Announce conference in 1989, to be convened for 3-5 days in spring 1990. Planning sessions would take place throughout 1989.

Where: Possible sites: Miami, Florida (called the "real" capital of Latin America); San Juan, Puerto Rico; Los Angeles/San Diego, California; Houston/Austin/San Antonio, Texas.

Conference could be held in Washington, D.C., where visibility would be highest; if OAS was a cooperating organization, then this would argue for Washington, too.

Cosponsorship: Possible conference partners/cooperators: Organization of American States, Pan-American Health Organization, Inter-American Development Bank, U.N. Economic Commission for Latin America. At very least, useful to involve these groups in planning the conference.

Issues: Focus on common environmental problems that can best be addressed through regional cooperation. Discuss global issues important to Western Hemisphere.

- sustainable development: To compel attention of Latin Americans, this must be orientation of the conference. Aid and investment policies which recognize that development without natural systems protection is counterproductive, wasteful, and not sustainable.
- deforestation: Escalating problem must be reversed (reforestation encouraged) if rural poor are to have economic hope, if biological diversity is to be preserved, if weather and water cycles are to be protected, decertification checked.
- pesticides: Need for cooperation to enable regulatory officials, farmers, growers' associations to reduce misuse of pesticides. Pesticide accidents in Central America are very high and residues on exported foods a major concern.
- biological diversity/sensitive ecosystems: Protecting wildlife and critical habitat, migratory flyways, coral reefs; now embodied in U.S. foreign assistance, needs practical review and understanding.
- treaties: Revive and strengthen existing hemispheric treaties such as the 1949 Convention on Nature Protection and Wildlife Preservation in the Western Hemisphere, and identify gaps and needed improvements.
- debt for nature swaps: Forgiveness of debt in exchange for a commitment to protect important environmental resources; Bolivia, Costa Rica, Ecuador have pilot programs, countries like Brazil have expressed interest. Can pay for pollution control and accomplish other purposes.
- waste management: Sharing of information and technologies for collecting and disposing of mounting wastes, particularly hazardous wastes around Mexico City and other large cities.
- air pollution: Discuss strategies/technologies for curbing air pollution problems, which are threatening severe social and economic disruptions in Mexico City, Santiago, Sao Paulo.
- global environment: Discuss regional interest in climate change, energy efficiency, ozone depletion, sea level rise.

Results: An action plan, drafted beforehand, addressing the need for regional cooperation on environmental issues, including consideration of new agreements and new institutional arrangements. Proceedings would be published.

NOTE TO THE CHIEF OF STAFF

Attached, per our conversation of ten days ago, is a draft Executive Order creating a National Drug Policy Coordinating Committee.

I will leave it to you to decide whether you want to discuss this with Bill Bennett before I take the next step in processing the Order. In the meantime, I'll consider this to be on hold.

For what it's worth, I still think there is much to commend this idea, especially from a Congressional standpoint.

MEMORANDUM FOR JAMES W. CICCONI
ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT AND
DEPUTY CHIEF OF STAFF

FROM: C. BOYDEN GRAY om
COUNSEL TO THE PRESIDENT

SUBJECT: Draft Executive Order Establishing a National Drug Policy Coordinating Committee

Attached is a draft executive order which establishes a National Drug Policy Coordinating Committee. The draft is based on E.O. 12590 establishing the National Drug Policy Board. The draft takes into account the recently passed National Narcotics Leadership Act of 1988, Public Law 100-690, which set up the Office of National Drug Policy within the Executive Office of the President. Sufficient leeway has been included in the draft executive order to allow the Committee flexibility to perform its functions.

We also included a provision (e) that makes it clear that the Committee functions will not conflict with the duties of the Director of the Office of National Drug Policy. One last note -- if this draft executive order meets your approval, it still must be reviewed by and meet all the necessary clearances within the Office of Management and Budget and the Department of Justice.

DRAFT

DRUG POLICY COORDINATING COMMITTEE

EXECUTIVE ORDER _____

DATE:

By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America including the National Narcotics Leadership Act of 1988, Public Law 100-690, and in order to coordinate the performance of all drug policy functions of the Federal government, it is hereby ordered as follows:

Section 1. Establishment. (a) There is hereby established the Drug Policy Coordinating Committee ("Committee").

(b) The Committee shall be composed of the following members:

- (1) the Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy, who shall serve as Chairman;
- (2) the Attorney General;
- (3) the Secretary of Health and Human Services;
- (4) the Secretary of State;
- (5) the Secretary of the Treasury;
- (6) the Secretary of Defense; and
- (7) such other members as the President may, from time to time, designate.

Section 2. Functions. (a) The Committee shall facilitate the development and coordination of national drug control strategy and policy and shall coordinate activities of Executive departments and agencies to reduce the supply of and demand for illegal drugs, including international activities, enforcement, prevention and education, treatment and rehabilitation, and research relating to illegal drugs.

(b) In furtherance of its responsibilities, the Committee shall:

- (1) facilitate coordination of efforts of all Executive departments and agencies to halt national and international trafficking of illegal drugs and to reduce drug abuse; and
- (2) coordinate the collection and evaluation of intelligence necessary to implement United States policy with respect to the foregoing.

- (c) In order to help coordinate the activities of Executive departments and agencies with responsibility for interdiction, law enforcement and drug abuse reduction, and to supervise implementation of the determinations of the Committee, the Chairman shall:
- (1) advise the Committee in matters concerning its responsibilities;
 - (2) make recommendations to the Committee for the coordination of interdiction, law enforcement and drug abuse reduction activities;
 - (3) correlate and evaluate intelligence and other information to support the activities of the Committee;
 - (4) perform such other duties as the President may direct;
 - (5) in consultation with the Committee members, establish procedures for the Committee, and establish the agenda for committee activities.
- (d) The Committee shall carry out any other duties not mentioned herein pursuant to and consistent with the National Narcotics Leadership Act of 1988, Public Law 100-690, that the Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy deems appropriate.
- (e) Nothing in this Order shall be deemed to affect the authorities or responsibilities of the Office of National Drug Control Policy.

Section 3. Administrative Provisions. (a) The Office of National Drug Control Policy shall provide the Committee with such administrative support as may be necessary for the performance of its functions.
