AMBASSADOR OF THE HUNGARIAN
PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC

55902
July 20, 1989

Dear Mr. Sununu:

Arriving back from Budapest after the historic event, President Bush's visit to Hungary, I write to you to express my thanks and appreciation for your outstanding work and role in preparation and for your active participation in the whole program.

I am more than happy that I also have had the possibility to add my modest contribution to the success of the highest event between our countries. I can not imagine any more important or more valuable achievement for a Hungarian Ambassador than to assist the top leaders to meet for promoting the international and bilateral relations.

Now, as I mentioned it to you personally, my mission in the United States will be terminated soon. After nearly six years service here, I plan to leave for good on August 16. Till that time I would like to have the opportunity to pay a personal visit to President Bush to express my thanks for the favourable treatment what I continuously enjoyed here together with my wife during our stay in the United States.

Dear Reverend Clark:

Thank you for your invitation for the President to attend and address the opening ceremonies of St. Paul's Advanced Studies Program on June 24, 1990.

We appreciate your extending this opportunity. We hope you will understand we are unable to make a commitment for the President this far in advance. In order not to delay your planning, we suggest you proceed with your program not counting on his acceptance. If you wish, you may then feel free to renew your invitation closer to the date -- perhaps eight weeks in advance -- for consideration at that time.

With best wishes,

Re: An Institute for Moral Education and the Teaching of Ethics in our Schools

Dear Mr. President,

I am writing to extend an invitation to you to attend and address an institute on moral education and the teaching of ethics which St. Paul's School is planning for the middle of June, 1990. I know how committed you are to the promotion of excellence in the schools of America and how hard you are working to nurture a better, more honest and more humane society. My own hope is that our institute, following the patterns and purposes of Exeter's Bicentennial Institute of 1978, as described in Knowledge Without Goodness Is Dangerous, will represent a significant contribution to the achievement of your expressed goals as well as our own.

The institute we are planning to hold here during a ten-day period, although modest in size, will involve significant representation from thirty of the nation's leading independent schools, including Phillips Academy, Andover, and leadership by recognized authorities in the field of ethics, education and adolescent development.

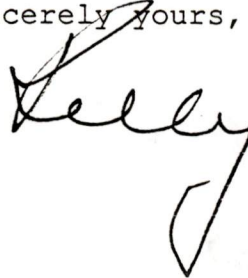

A visit with and address to those representatives in a meeting which, if you wish, could be substantially augmented by inviting the principals of New Hampshire or greater New England public high schools, might be an ideal platform for you and your vision for the nation's youth in an era of severe challenge to traditional American values and morality.

Would it be possible for you and Barbara to stop here briefly on your way to or from a weekend in Kennebunkport? We are planning the institute for the middle of June in order to obtain the best kind of representation from schools whose faculty members will probably be making other arrangements for July and August. We also want to avoid too much overlap with our annual Advanced Studies Program for two hundred of New Hampshire's brightest and best 11th graders. It strikes me, however, that one calendar option for your proposed visit and talk would be the occasion of the opening ceremonies of our Advanced Studies Program on June 24, 1990. You would have a splendid group of New Hampshire high school students as part of your audience.

I do hope that this proposal and invitation will appeal to you. We wish you well in the monumental tasks before you and would, of course, be greatly honored to be of service to you and the nation in the crucial arena of secondary education.

With best wishes to you and yours from your many friends at St. Paul's School, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Chairman:

I am pleased to transmit the Administration's proposal for Enterprise Zones, which contains tax-based incentives for new enterprises and new jobs in distressed urban and rural areas of this country.

As the Committee works to achieve the 1990 budget and revenue targets, I urge you to include Enterprise zone incentives as part of the Reconciliation package currently being considered.

Enterprise Zones are a priority of my Administration and I appreciate your favorable consideration of this request.

Sincerely yours,

George Bush

HQS OFFICE OF LEGISLATION
JUL 200

THE PRESIDENT'S ENTERPRISE ZONE INITIATIVE

The President's enterprise zone initiative includes three tax incentives that will be available to workers and investors in 50 zones. The 50 zones will be phased-in 15 in 1990, 15 in 1991, 15 in 1992 and 5 in 1993. The characteristics of the zones will be consistent with the distress requirements contained in Title VII of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987.

1. Refundable Wage Credit for Low-Income Zone Employees

A 5 percent refundable tax credit for the first $10,500 of wages will be provided to individuals working in a zone and having total wages below $20,000. The maximum credit will be $525, and the credit will phase out between $20,000 and $25,000 of total wages.

2. Expensing of Investor Purchases of Small Zone Corporate Stock

Investors may deduct currently ("expense") investment in newly issued corporate stock of qualified small subchapter C corporations.

Expensing will be available for investments in corporations having less than $5 million of total assets, so long as the investments coincide with comparable increases in the corporation's tangible zone assets. Substantially all the activity of qualified corporations must be located in zones.

Expensed corporate stock will be available up to $50,000 annually per investor, with a $250,000 lifetime limit. Expensing will be available to individuals, and gain attributable to expensed stock will be taxable at ordinary rates. Amounts expensed will be subject to existing Code limitations, including the alternative minimum tax, and no "double dipping" with other tax subsidies will be permitted where the result is more than a 100 percent tax subsidy.

3. A Zero Capital Gains Tax Rate on Tangible Zone Assets

A zero tax rate will apply to capital gains realized during zone designation periods on qualified assets.

Qualified assets must be tangible, located in zones and used in qualified businesses which have operated in zones for at least two years prior to gain realization.

Gains qualifying for exemption must accrue after zone designation and before termination of the designation. Assets already located in a zone must be appraised at the time of zone designation, as must existing assets relocated into zones following designation. All qualified assets must be appraised at the termination of zone designation.

- 1/ 50 Zones phased-in: 15 in 1990, 15 in 1991, 15 in 1992 and 5 in 1993.
- 2/ Refundable wage credit for zone employees equal to 5% of FUTA wages up to 1.5 times the FUTA cap ($16,560). Credit phased-out between $20,000 and $25,000 of wages received.
- 3/ Proposal would permit expensing of investment in newly issued corporate stock of EZ subchapter C corporations. Expensing limited to $50,000 per year with a lifetime cap of $250,000 per individual. Limited to investments in corporations with total assets of $5 million or less and limited to corporate stock representing increases in tangible assets of the corporation held in the zone. Limited to investments by individuals. Gain on expensed stock will be subject to ordinary tax irrespective of other tax law provisions.
- 4/ Exemption from tax on gain accrued during zone designation on enterprise zone tangible business assets. Assets in the zone prior to the date of zone designation must be appraised as of such date to receive tax benefits, although tax is deferred until realization. Only gain accruing after the date of designation qualifies for tax exemption. Asset must relate to an enterprise zone business which has operated in the zone for at least ten years prior to gain realization. Estimate is stated before President's capital gain rate reduction proposal.

NOTES: Most revenue loss from elimination of tax on capital gains will occur outside the budget period. Over a ten year period, this proposal will cost approximately $5.0 billion.

Estimates assume 50 zones phased-in in accordance with the pattern described in 1/ above. Estimates also assume the characteristics of zones will be consistent with the district requirements contained in Title VII of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987. Any deviation from these assumptions may materially impact the revenue estimates.

RE: August Activity

Mulroney

Guard

I wanted to follow up on an idea I mentioned briefly to you last night, that of bringing the Cabinet/Cabinet Councils/White House Senior Staff to Maine for a series of briefing sessions.

This idea has several advantages:

- It focuses positive attention on the President and his leadership during a period of traditional downturn in public opinion;
- It will provide an opportunity for greater comraderie and personal interaction among members of the Cabinet with each other and with the President;
- It will provide a highly visable and united front as the Administration prepares to joust with Congress in September on budget, clean air, and drug initiatives;
- It is something that was not done during the Reagan years and provides a fresh, "new" topic for the media to cover.

I hope the above helps.

Time Magazine Interview

TIME Magazine White House correspondents Michael Duffy and Dan Goodgame have been interviewing for a forthcoming story called "How Bush Decides." The story is expected to appear on the cover of TIME sometime in early to mid-August.

Mike and Dan have requested a 20-30 minute interview with the President to get his own assessment of his decision-making process and some reflections on his first six months in office.

I recommend that we grant the interview sometime next week.

Dear Marlin,

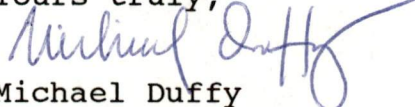

Dan Goodgame and I have conducted most of our planned interviews for the forthcoming story which we call, "How Bush Decides." We are grateful for the assistance you have provided to this project, but we believe we need some help from the President himself.

Naturally, any story about the President's decision-making process is best told in the commander-in-chief's own words. Hence, we are formally requesting a 45-minute interview sometime between now and August 2 in order to get the President's own assessment of his decision-making process, as well as some reflection on his first six months in office.

The resulting story, the first full explication of the President's decision-making process, is expected to appear on the cover of TIME sometime in early to mid August.

If you have further questions or comments about this project, please don't hesitate to call. Thank you very much.

Yours truly,

Michael Duffy
White House Correspondent

The President

Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

We are writing to urge you to publicly declare prior to any congressional floor votes on SDI funding measures that you will veto the FY 1990 Defense Authorization Bill should the House of Representatives adopt amendments reducing the budget for the Strategic Defense Initiative Organization (SDIO) to the point of disabling the Administration from achieving your announced intentions.

As you know, a funding level of $2.8 billion, or only 60 percent of your amended fiscal year SDIO request of $4.6 billion, is proposed in the Bennett amendment. House acceptance of the $2.8 billion figure will result in such serious underfunding of SDI in conference as to guarantee the postponement, if not the ultimate cancellation, of your goal to deploy an operational strategic defensive system by 1993.

In a July 7, 1989 letter to Senator Pete Wilson, Lt. General George L. Monahan, Jr., Director of SDIO, stated that even a 30 percent decrease in his agency's budget "could not support the research and testing needed to make an informed deployment decision within four years."

Furthermore, General Monahan asserted that a 30 percent budget reduction would threaten the termination of U.S. funding of most Allied cooperative programs in the area of Anti-Ballistic Missile (ABM) defenses.

Our joint ABM development programs with Great Britain, West Germany, and especially Israel depend directly on the viability of the American SDI system. Indeed, given the existing missile capability of several Arab states, Israel's very survival is contingent upon the timely completion of the Arrow ATBM project. But if the SDIO budget absorbs even a 30 percent cut, the continuation of Arrow would fall into question. House adoption of the proposed 40 percent reduction in the SDI budget, then, clearly makes the State of Israel dangerously vulnerable to a hostile nuclear or chemical warhead attack. Courage is no substitute for ATBM defenses.

The President
Page Two

Mr. President, it is imperative that you make clear immediately your intention to veto any authorization bill containing irresponsible cuts in SDI funding so that House members cannot claim ignorance in voting for them. You have our solid commitment to work to sustain such a veto in the Senate.

Sincerely,

Pat Wilson

TAX TREATMENT OF ETBE

Issue: IRS has been asked to rule that ethanol used in the production of Ethyl Tertiary Butyl Ether (ETBE), an octane enhancer for gasoline, qualifies for the 60-cents-per-gallon income tax credit allowed by Code section 40.

Legal Considerations: Under a strict technical construction of section 40, ethanol used to make ETBE seems not to qualify. Section 40 allows a credit for ethanol used to make a mixture of ethanol and either gasoline or another motor fuel. ETBE is a compound that is produced in a chemical reaction between ethanol and isobutylene (a petroleum product) and then blended with gasoline. Because ethanol loses its chemical identity in this process, no such mixture is ever produced. A tariff provision enacted at about the same time is consistent with this strict interpretation. ETBE supporters argue that the credit should be construed broadly to accomplish its purpose and that the chemical transformation of ethanol in making ETBE should not matter.

Policy Considerations: ETBE supporters argue that its use would reduce air pollution, conserve gasoline, and help farmers by increasing demand for ethanol, which is made from corn. Opponents argue that ETBE would merely displace MTBE, a competing octane enhancer which is made from methanol and is not eligible for any credit or other subsidy. MTBE also reduces air pollution and saves gasoline. (It is understood, however, that EPA believes ETBE has some slight environmental advantage over MTBE.) Opponents of a ruling argue that allowing the credit would, by subsidizing a product that could not compete in the free market, distort the economy and misallocate resources. Unless tariff laws are changed, much of the benefit of extending the credit may go to imported ETBE, because it is not subject to the duty that offsets the credit for imported ethanol.

Political Considerations: More than 70 Senators wrote to Secretaries Baker and Brady last year to urge a favorable ruling. However, some later informally withdrew their support. It is understood that Presidential Counsel Boyden Gray and Agriculture Secretary Yautter support a favorable ruling. EPA Administrator Reilly and Energy Secretary Watkins have contacted Treasury to describe the benefits of ETBE use. Some original supporters (including Sen. Dole) now do not want a ruling unless tariff laws are changed to keep out imported ETBE. Finance Committee members Bradley and Rockefeller, and Ways and Means members Archer and Schulze, oppose a ruling. Chairman Rostenkowski has stated that the ETBE issue should be resolved legislatively rather than by a ruling and wants to hold hearings. Producers of methanol (which is made from natural gas) oppose a favorable ruling because they fear that the credit would permit ETBE to displace MTBE.

Estimated Revenue Loss: $574m (FY90-94). The loss would increase if clean air requirements are expanded, and also is sensitive to changes in the prices of ethanol, methanol, and petroleum.

MEMORANDUM FOR GOVERNOR SUNUNU

FROM: Marlin Fitzwater

SUBJECT: Press Plan: Now through September 15th

The following press plan would generate attention involving the President in two press events per week through September 15th. This plan follows your guidance to provide media activities for the President during his stay in Kennebunkport. The purpose would be to give the President a national presence during this period.

Also attached is a press plan which follows the President's guidance to keep the Kennebunkport stay free of extraneous activities.

We therefore propose the following events:

July

25th Knight-Ridder Interview
26th Time Magazine Interview
28th Cal Thomas, LA Times Columnist, Interview
31st National Governors' Association Speech
31st Disabled American Veterans Speech

- 1st Presidential Foreign Policy Speech on Worldnet Television, broadcast from Walker's Point to Europe, would be replayed on U.S. TV/Radio during the Labor Day weekend.
- 3rd/ Press Picnic in Kennebunkport with the President
- 4th
- 6th Bill Bennett Drug Plan Announcement How?
- 7th ABC-TV "Prime-Time Live" with Donaldson/Sawyer yes

Plan B would be the same as above with the elimination of Maine Media on August 24th and the Worldnet Speech on September 1st. Remember also that President Bush will provide pictures from Kennebunkport for the news everyday via jogging, golfing, fishing, and other movements. These are all covered by pools. Therefore, the President will have a daily media presence which can be exploited at any time by the simple action of addressing the pool.

The most interesting feature of this plan would be the Worldnet Speech on September 1st. This speech, prepared in advance, would satisfy Bob Teeter's interest in a foreign policy speech. It would be broadcast via USIA to their Worldnet audience in Europe, but in practice all American networks pirate the show from the satellite feeds. Thus, we might be able to produce a speech that meets the objectives of Teeter without the concerns raised by Secretary Baker.

THE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
TO THE
UNITED NATIONS

July 5, 1989

Dear Governor Sununu:

This letter follows up our telephone call of last week and our contact at the Cabinet dinner concerning the President's attendance at the United Nations General Assembly. We are currently inscribed to speak second on Monday morning, September 25th, at approximately 11:00 a.m. The exact time for the President's speech can be adjusted slightly to meet any special needs he might have.

In the past, the President has come up that morning, travelled by motorcade to the United Nations, been met at the entrance by the UN Secretary General before he speaks and calls briefly on the new President of the General Assembly also before he speaks. The new President of the General Assembly must be elected, but the leading candidate is the Permanent Representative of Nigeria, Joseph Garba.

Following the speech, the President would probably want to consider having a substantive bilateral meeting with the Secretary General.

The remainder of that day, should the President choose to remain in New York to conduct further bilaterals, should be built around a dinner that evening which he would host for our NATO Allies and close friends such as Australia and Japan. The attendees would be the Heads of State of those countries or Foreign Ministers, whichever were present in New York. This would be a social occasion, but there would be room on the edges for bilateral and personal contacts.

The Honorable
John Sununu
White House Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D. C. 20500

In the past, the President has also held a substantive meeting with the close Allies in which he speaks for fifteen to twenty minutes following which there is then a session, moderated by the Secretary of State, in which each of the countries is given an opportunity to comment on the major themes touched upon by the President.

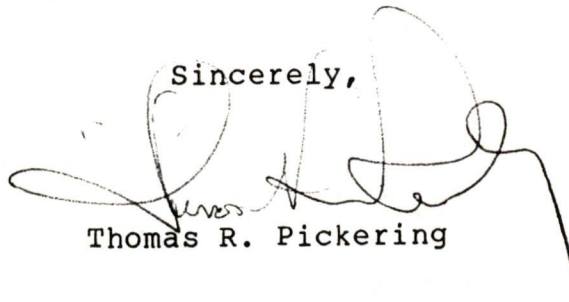

The remainder of the meetings which might be scheduled for that day and the day following would depend upon the attendance of other Heads of State with whom the President might wish to have bilateral contact. We will be monitoring closely that list of individuals and can pass on to you various attendees names for consideration.

The only other suggestions I have at the moment might be a brief opportunity for the President, possibly following the substantive meetings with the Allies in the afternoon, to meet very briefly with the U.S. Mission staff and the senior Americans serving at the United Nations. This would be a five to ten minute appearance in which he would say a few words and have the opportunity to shake hands with at least some of those working here at the Mission and at the UN. Since he has done this on many occasions in the past in his various overseas trips I would like to recommend that he also consider doing so here. It would be strongly and deeply appreciated and a tremendous morale boost to those who serve him here faithfully and have done so over a long period of time.

In order to be sure that Secretary Baker is being kept abreast of our contacts on this question, I am taking the liberty of forwarding a copy of this letter to Assistant Secretary Bolton in the State Department who is responsible for International Organization Affairs.

If there is any more information we can provide, please do let us know.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in dark ink, appearing to read 'Tom Pickering', with a large, sweeping flourish extending from the end of the signature.

Thomas R. Pickering

Dear John:

Two quick items:

1) Will GB attend fundraising events this Fall in D.C.?

2) Malcolm McIntosh - Sovietologist to the Queen of England, Emeritus, who has briefed the President as V.P. often, and is my good friend will be here the last two weeks of September. He will visit with Bill Webster and the Intelligence Community. He asked me to notify GB that he will be here and would like to visit the President if that is possible (I would not plan to accompany Malcolm - I have not done that before - unless you or the President think I should come, I do not include myself in this)

Best regards,

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT
THROUGH THE CHIEF OF STAFF

FROM: BETTY HEITMAN, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
PRESIDENT'S COMMISSION ON EXECUTIVE EXCHANGE

SUBJECT: EXTENSION OF VOLUNTARY SERVICE LEGISLATION FOR ONE YEAR

I. ACTION-FORCING EVENT:

- o Expiration of Legislative Authority
- o Hill (minority and majority) 100% behind program and one year extension - need nod from Administration.

II. ANALYSIS

- o 20 year old program of exchange with senior corporate executives to public sector and senior career federal executives to private sector.
- o State, HHS, Energy, IRS, USTR, Commerce, and other agencies are begging for the top level talent we provide.
- o Without authority for corporations to voluntarily continue their senior executives' salaries, we can not obtain the high level executives we need.
- o Present legislation allows corporations to pay salaries (limited to 10 executives per year).
- o Support for extension from Connie Newman, GAO audit, as well as the Hill.
- o Initial Justice contact concerned about "perception of conflict of interest" but had no firm legal basis.
- o Need a one year extension of this legislation to develop legislative package with this Administration's imprimatur.

III. RECOMMENDATION: SUPPORT A ONE YEAR EXTENSION IN ORDER TO GIVE ME TIME TO WORK ON DETAILS WITH OMB AND JUSTICE.

Comment

R.N.C. surveying finds no significant change in the President's job approval compared to last month. Despite a busy July featuring the President speaking out or reacting to a broad set of issues such as the desecration of the flag, abortion, civil rights, China's crackdown on dissidents, and campaign reform, as well as the recent trip through Europe, shifts of approval from every voter group are small.

The President continues to win strong approval, 86%, from Americans who consider the country to be going in the right direction, while those who think that the country is 'off on the wrong track' do not hold Bush responsible: their approval rate is 50% compared to 33% disapproval. Bush approval from both the optimists and the pessimists in terms of national direction has not changed appreciably from May's study.

Comment

The perception continues to grow among the public that economy today is at a plateau, no longer improving but not deteriorating either.

As Americans in growing numbers think the economy has settled into a holding pattern, their anxiety over the future economy grows. While a core of a quarter of the public holds on to its optimism and expects the economy to improve, a growing number of voters now expect the economy to worsen in the next year.

Americans are likely conditioned to be anxious and expect that an economic downturn must follow a boom period by both history and their own personal sense of financial exposure. The effect of history may be seen in the boundry at 35 years of age between younger voters who are relatively optimistic about the economy and older voters who are by comparison quite pessimistic.

Senior citizens are also comparatively optimistic about the economy. Since they are somewhat insulated from the hardships of economic downturns and probably quitted of major financial obligations, they have less to worry about in a troubled economy and so fear and worry about it less.

Perceptions of trouble lying ahead for the economy are also partly linked to partisanship.

NATIONAL DIRECTION

Do you feel things in this country are generally going in the right direction or do you feel things have pretty seriously gotten off on the wrong track?

1989 Trend	July	June	May	April	January
Right direction	39%	38%	41%	46%	53%
Wrong track	52	54	53	41	37
Don't know/NA	9	9	7	13	10

Women	30%	60	62%

Comment

An anxiety over the course of the country has been found since the Iran-Contra revelations of two years ago. Since that time, Americans have held approximately the same negative attitudes toward national direction as found today, with occasional upward spikes tied to specific well-covered events such as the Reykjavik Summit. Though subdued during the summer and fall of last year as the Bush Campaign successfully controlled the political agenda, this anxiety is seen now to have been unresolved by the last election.

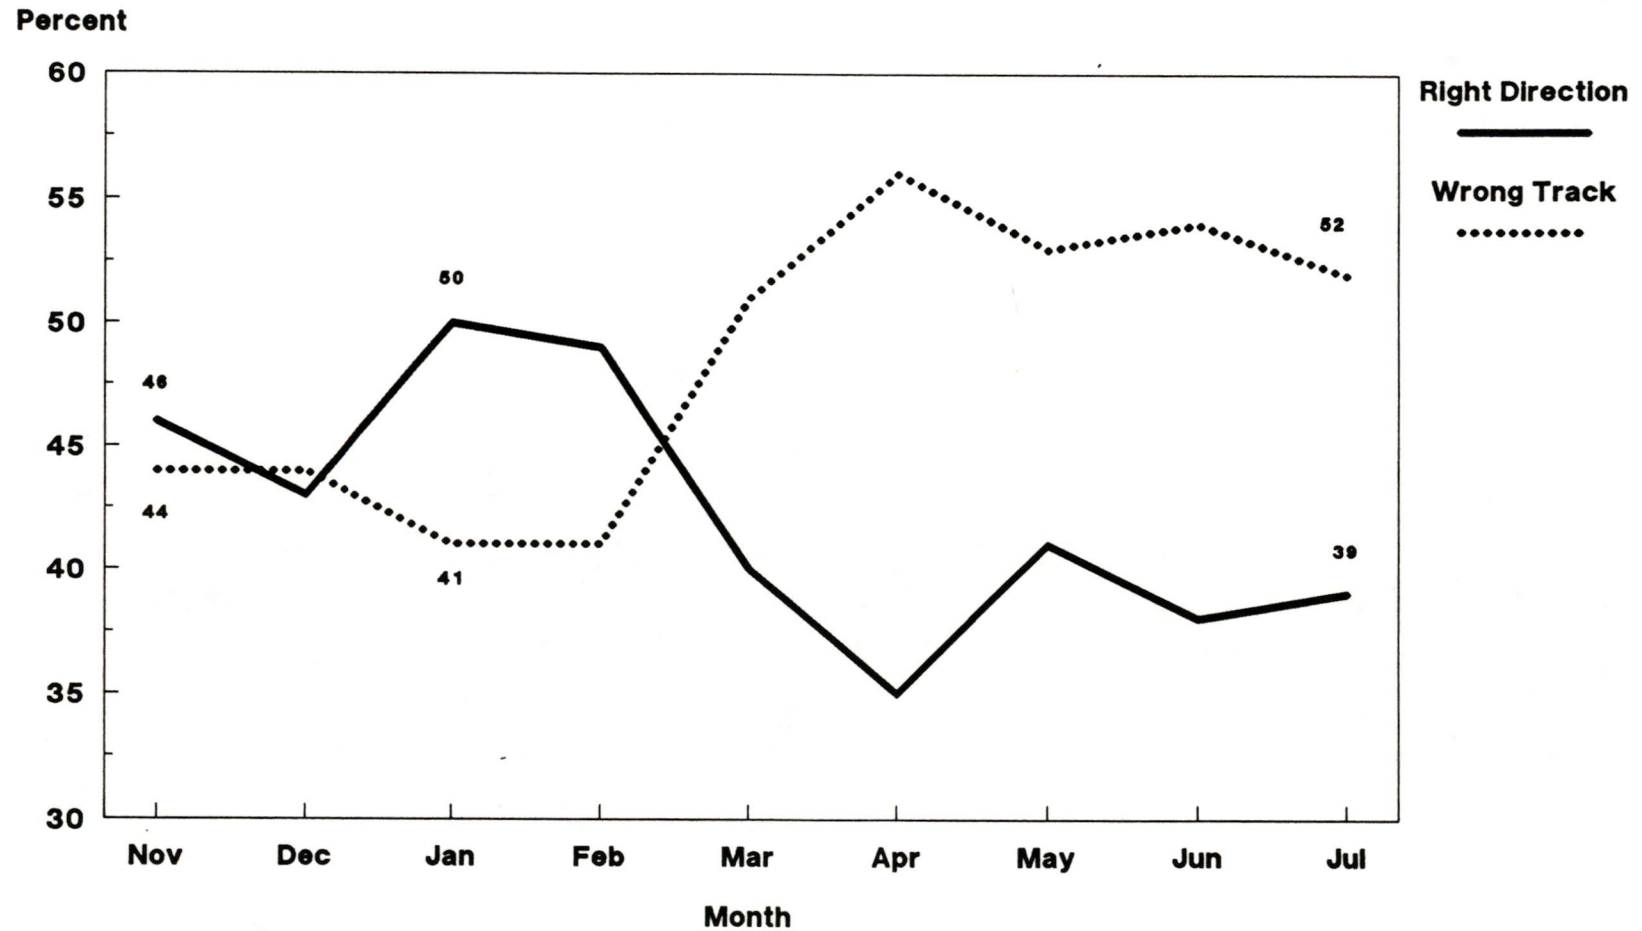

The public does not blame President Bush for their concern over the national direction as seen in, for example, his fairly consistent approval across regions of the U.S. which differ strongly in terms of right direction/wrong track.

There is an appreciable gender effect which has grown since April: what was once a twenty point 'gap' between women's and men's attitude on the national direction has now become a thirty-seven point gap. This gender effect is not new: it has been found in measurements of national direction throughout the decade.

Attitudes toward the course of the nation continue to be strongly influenced by partisanship.

Bereuter: White House Owes Me an Apology

David C. Beeder

WORLD-HERALD BUREAU

Washington — Rep. Doug Bereuter, R-Nebr., said he still is waiting for an apology from the White House because of the way he was treated June 13 when President Bush visited Lincoln.

"What happened was unprecedented," Bereuter said Friday. "I think I should have an apology. It will be interesting to see who it comes from."

Bereuter said he couldn't believe Bush would speak at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, Bereuter's alma mater, without inviting Bereuter to sit on the speaker's platform.

He said Gov. Orr was on the platform with university President Ronald Roakers and university Regent Nancy Hoch.

Bereuter

Others with platform seats were Secretary of Agriculture Clayton Yeutter, Secretary of Interior Manuel Lujan and Secretary of Energy James Watkins.

"There was room for 20 people, but I was seated with the Wyoming congressional delegation out in the crowd," Bereuter said.

He said he stood up in the audience when the president mentioned his name before speaking on the importance to the environment of UNL's ethanol research.

Bereuter said he had informed the White House staff well in advance of the president's visit that he was making a special trip to Nebraska for the president's speech in Lincoln, the largest city in Bereuter's congressional district.

He said the snub wasn't mentioned by Bush when Bereuter and the Wyoming delegation rode back to Washington.

with the president on Air Force One.

Bereuter said that when he returned to Washington he told a meeting of Republican House members about his experience. He said he learned he wasn't the only one with complaints.

"One member learned about the president visiting his district by reading about it in a newspaper," Bereuter said.

He said another member reported his wife attended a Bush event in an adjacent congressional district and was "treated like a bag of dirt."

Another congressman said Republican leaders from his district were denied permission to stand in a roped-off area so they could wave at the president when he departed by helicopter, Bereuter said.

Rep. Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, who is seeking the Senate seat held by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, was surprised to see in Iowa newspapers a news service picture of Harkin "bouncing on the Lincoln bed" in the White House.

"We'd rather bounce him somewhere else," said Alan Finch, Tauke's press secretary.

No Senate Bid

Bereuter said the Lincoln incident occurred after he decided not to to seek the nomination.

However, he said, "It did send a clear message of the kind of support I would get in the campaign."

Bereuter said Ed Rollins, a member of President Reagan's political staff, said Bereuter's experience in Lincoln couldn't have happened in the Reagan administration.

"Rollins said he couldn't have arranged that kind of treatment for his worst enemy," Bereuter said.

'Finger Pointing'

Bereuter said House Republican leaders who inquired at the White House about why Bereuter was left off the UNL speaker's platform were told that the arrangements were made in Lincoln.

"There has been a lot of finger pointing about who is to blame," Bereuter said.

He said "ultimately the White House" is responsible.

Bereuter said the White House staff should override local arrangements if, through "ineptitude or pettiness," they lead to the kind of humiliation he endured in Lincoln June 13.

Bereuter said his experience in Lincoln, together with complaints from other House members, could lead to a shake-up of White House staff.

"I don't mean fines," he said declined after he decided not to seek the 1990 Republican nomination for the Senate seat held by Sen. J.J. Exon, D-Neb.

Bereuter said Bush asked him why he didn't come to see him at the White House before making the decision.

"I told him I had been trying for seven weeks to get an appointment," Bereuter said.

He said his inability to see Bush "was not a factor" in his decision not

"I don't mean firings," he said. "But some think there is a problem that may go up to the chief of staff."

Bereuter said some Republican House members talked recently with Chief of Staff John Sununu, former governor of New Hampshire.

He said the House members reported Sununu views political questions from the perspective of a governor.

"They were not reassured."

MEMORANDUM FOR JOHN H. SUNUNU

FROM:

FRED McCLURE

SUBJECT:

D.C. Appropriations bill for FY 90

The D.C. Appropriations bill, as reported from the Appropriations Committee, did not include a provision that banned the use of local (D.C.) funds for abortion. The bill did include a ban on the use of Federal funds except where the life of the mother was endangered, and in cases of rape, incest, etc. The FY 89 D.C. Appropriations bill included a ban on both Federal and local funds with the "life of the mother" exception.

The Administration opposed the deletion of the language with respect to Federal and local funds use and urged the House to restore this language. Indeed, the Statement of Administration Policy noted that the absence of this prohibition would be viewed as sufficeint reason for the President's senior advisors to recommend that he veto the bill. As you know, the President sent a letter to the House to this effect.

Yesterday, Representative Bob Dornan proposed an amendment that would have banned the use of all funds in the bill -- Federal and local -- for the use of abortion, except when the life of the mother was endangered. When it became known that the Democrats would raise a point of order on his amendment, Dornan changed it to remove the exception. This measure was defeated by a vote of 206 to 219.

On June 13, 154 members of the House sent the President a letter saying that they would back up the President on a veto of any appropriations bill that weakened abortion restrictions, specifically including the use of D.C. funds for abortion. Seven of those individuals voted against the Dornan amendment. If those seven individuals change their votes (which OMB is working on) and other votes remain the same, the bill would fall on a tie vote on final passage.

The only action in the Senate to date is subcommittee hearings. No further action will occur until September.

July 28, 1989

Dear John:

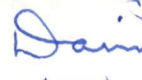

Many thanks for the opportunity to visit with you on Wednesday. I very much enjoyed the conversation, and particularly appreciated your willingness to explore the possibility of the Chase International Advisory Committee meeting with President Bush next spring. Our dates to visit Washington are from dinner on Sunday, April 29, through lunch on Tuesday, May 1. We would hope to be able to see the President during that time frame. The opportunity for the Committee to meet with the President would be very important for its membership. I believe perhaps it could also be of interest to the President given the caliber and diversity of the Committee.

You will see in the material I left with you that when we have taken the Committee overseas, we have had the opportunity to meet for substantive discussions with the leadership of the countries we have visited. We hope very much that we might have a similar opportunity with President Bush.

At our next meeting in October in New York, we will focus on "International Industrial Competitiveness - The Pace to the Year 2000." This is an example of a subject on which we would like to get the views of President Bush. But the specific topic which might be most appropriate for discussion next spring could be determined at a date closer to the meeting. In any event, I believe the President will find the Committee membership both forthright and articulate. To the degree that our members do influence public policy in their respective countries, it is likely that President Bush's views on our meeting topic would be conveyed to many capitals around the world.

I look forward to hearing from you in due course whether in principle the President will be prepared to receive the Chase International Advisory Committee when we are in Washington next April.

Sincerely,

David Rockefeller

Discussion

The President's Commission on Executive Exchange (PCEE) administers a permanent program to foster cooperation and understanding between the Federal Government and the private sector. The program provides for one- or two-year exchanges of industry and Government personnel. The personnel who participate in the exchange program receive their pay and benefits from the organization to which they are assigned. Private sector personnel assigned to the Government are considered Federal employees during the period of their assignment.

A temporary exception to the normal exchange program was authorized by the Executive Exchange Program Voluntary Services Act of 1986 (Public Law 99-424). Under that law, up to ten private sector executives a year may come to work for the Government under an exchange assignment, and remain on their company payrolls instead of being paid by the Government. This experimental program, which began in FY 1987, expires on September 30, 1989.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) in a report (B-233769) of March 31, 1989, recommended that the voluntary services program be made permanent and that more than ten private sector executives a year be permitted to participate. GAO also found that PCEE's conflict-of-interest procedures appear to be adequate for private sector executives.

H.R. 2847, which passed both Houses by voice vote, would extend the temporary program for one more year, until September 30, 1990.

Administration Position on Extension of Program

The PCEE originally proposed legislation to OMB to make the voluntary services program permanent and to eliminate the ten-person annual limit on the number of executives who could be assigned from the private sector.

The Department of Justice, however, opposed the PCEE proposal in a letter of May 15, 1989, to this Office. In part, the Department opposed the proposal because it conflicted with Administration ethics principles. Justice was particularly concerned because the criminal conflict-of-interest statutes, which it enforces, include a ban on receipt of compensation by Federal employees from any source but the United States Government. Justice also questioned the methodology used by GAO in the aforementioned report to assess the conflict-of-interest aspects of the program.

The Office of Government Ethics (OGE) and the White House Counsel agreed with the Justice Department, and the PCEE proposal was not cleared by this Office for submission to Congress. In a June 2nd letter, the former PCEE Executive Director advised Congress that the Administration did not support extension of the temporary program.

Subsequently, this Office was advised that Governor Sununu, in response to a request from the new PCEE Executive Director, had agreed to support a one-year extension of the program. (We note that this extension will prevent two individuals currently assigned to the program from being affected adversely by its termination on September 30, 1989.) The PCEE, with the concurrence of this Office, then sent a letter on August 4th to the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee stating that the Administration supported H.R. 2847.

Agency Views

PCEE recommends approval of H.R. 2847, and notes that Governor Sununu supports the one-year extension.

Office of Personnel Management (OPM) also recommends approval of the enrolled bill. OPM states that, although it is aware of the conflict-of-interest concerns that have been raised about the program, it also recognizes the value of the program in attracting private sector participants.

Justice reiterates the concerns previously described and states that its position has not changed. The Department advises that its objections are not based on a strictly legal or constitutional perspective, but on the "apparent conflict with the President's proposed ethics legislation now pending before Congress." Justice concludes, however, that it would not object to the one-year extension authorized by H.R. 2847, in order to determine whether the program can be revised to avoid the conflict-of-interest problems that now exist.

OGE recommends that you veto H.R. 2847 on policy grounds and has prepared a veto message, which is attached to its views letter, for your consideration. The key points made in the message are addressed below.

First, all executive branch employees are prohibited by a criminal statute from receiving any supplementation to their salaries as compensation for government service (the theory being that executive branch employees serve only one master). Second, this standard should not be lowered for full-time employees or those who serve in the temporary program being extended by H.R. 2847. Third, the complaint that government salaries are too low for private sector employees to participate in the exchange program is a problem not limited to this program, but one experienced government-wide. Fourth, piecemeal exceptions to fundamental ethics restrictions in order to address a compensation issue are objectionable.

OGE recommends that you reconsider support for the one-year extension, and veto H.R. 2847 "as not being consistent with the strong and heretofore clear position" you have taken on ethics matters.

Conclusion and Recommendation

Prior to the enrollment of H.R. 2847, the Congress was advised that the Administration supported a one-year extension of the temporary executive exchange program. As Justice points out in its views letter, this additional year would permit a determination on whether the program can be revised to avoid the conflict-of-interest problems that now exist. In order to permit this determination to be made, we join the PCEE and OPM in recommending approval of H.R. 2847.

DRAFT VETO MESSAGE

To the House of Representatives:

I am returning herewith without my approval H.R. 2847, a bill to extend by one year a program under which the Government is allowed to accept the services of 10 individuals from the private sector in carrying out federal functions as participants in this program while remaining on the payrolls of private companies. This program, the President's Executive Exchange Program, is an important vehicle for allowing executives from the private sector an opportunity to experience service within the government and to allow government executives an opportunity to experience a year's service in the private sector, each to return to their respective employment with that experience. Such a program is a valuable tool in creating an appreciation of the views, responsibilities and experiences of one's counterparts in government and the private sector. That experience, however, should not come at a cost of lowering the standards required of individuals who carry out federal functions, be they full time employees or those in this program who serve in the government for only one year. Presently, all executive branch employees are prohibited by a criminal statute from receiving any supplementation to their government salaries as compensation for government service. I have sent legislation to Congress that would extend that coverage to the legislative and judicial branches. The concept that government employees serve only one master is as important in those branches as it is in the executive branch, and it is as important within one office or program of the executive branch as it is another.

This Executive Exchange Program is experiencing difficulties in attracting participants from the private sector because the government salaries that can be paid to these individuals for the year that they participate in the program typically represents a substantial cut from the salary they receive in the private sector. That experience is not limited to this program, and I have submitted recommendations to Congress that would address the very serious difficulties that the Government is experiencing as a whole because of the level of pay for its senior employees. While I sympathize with the Program, I cannot support legislation that provides piecemeal exceptions to fundamental ethics restrictions on order to address a compensation issue. Lack of adequate compensation is not an excuse for weakening a fundamental conflict of interest requirement.

I call upon Congress to work with me to address the issue of adequate compensation for government service so that important and vital programs of this government do not suffer from an inability to attract the most qualified individuals to carry them out.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff for The President

FROM: Paul D. Coverdell
Director, United States Peace Corps

RE: Hungary Update

Since the President's announcement in Budapest that the United States Peace Corps will send Volunteers to teach English in Hungary, the program has generated tremendous interest both in Hungary and the United States. Here is a brief update:

- * The number of individuals requesting information about staff and Volunteer positions has been exceptionally large - even greater than what we experienced with China.
- * The Peace Corps programming team will be in Hungary by mid-September.
- * A private donation will fund a bi-national symposium to bring together experts in the field of English education in Hungary.
- * In a recent meeting, the Hungarian Secretary for Labor and Wages promised financial support for our Volunteers.
- * We now believe a small pilot group could arrive in Hungary this winter to be followed next summer by about 60 Volunteers.

Joke falls flat at Pacific Rim Summit

Soviet and Chinese delegates not amused by U.S. official

By Ron Redmond
P-I Pacific Rim Correspondent

8/9/89

A senior U.S. official managed to embarrass Pacific Summit organizers and offend the Soviet and Chinese delegations yesterday with a joke about Soviet women and a harsh attack on Marxism.

Fred M. Zeder II, head of the government's Overseas Private Investment Corp., made the comments in a speech that left organizers red-faced and many foreign delegates shaking their heads in embarrassment.

Zeder, 68, was the first speaker on the second and last day of the $1 million summit, the centerpiece of the state's Centennial celebration. He was appointed to head OPIC by President Bush earlier this year.

Zeder began his address with a joke in which China's late Chairman Mao Zedong is asked by a foreign journalist what "might have happened if Lee Harvey Oswald had assassinated Khrushchev rather than President Kennedy."

Mimicking a stereotypical Chinese accent, Zeder said Mao replied: "Only one thing certain. Aristotle Onassis would not have married Mrs. Khrushchev."

Few listeners were amused, delegates said.

"It was only a joke, but I don't like the joke," said Lu Zu-wen, commercial consul for the Chinese Consulate in San Francisco, when asked later about Zeder's comments. "He's a joker. I don't know what his purpose was."

Soviet delegate Vyacheslav Zilanov drew applause from other participants at a later forum when he criticized Zeder's remarks, particularly his harsh attack on Marxism.

"I don't agree with some of the opinions put forward by Zeder in his morning speech," Zilanov said. "I don't feel this Pacific Summit is the right place to discuss Marxist-Leninist theory and its position right now."

Zeder, whose agency provides U.S. investors overseas with political risk insurance, loan guarantees and other assistance, accused the Soviets of "marching into Poland, Hungary and Yugoslavia," of "bringing Castro's Cuban mercenaries into Nicaragua, Angola and Ethiopia," and of spreading Marxism "every place in the world."

"Everyone who has tried that Marxist-Leninist form of economy and ideology are now openly admitting that their system was a dismal failure," Zeder said. "Today, they are all talking and taking steps to embrace the concept of capitalism, free enterprise, privatization. . . ."

Zeder described how shortly after World War II he was approached by a German businessman who introduced himself and then said, "I never was a Nazi" while giving a Nazi-style salute.

"Now every place I go in the world, people said, 'I never was a socialist.' You know, they all want to get on the privatization bandwagon."

Zeder's speech received only scattered applause and left many participants clearly uncomfortable.

"It was occasion for some head-shaking by both U.S. and international participants," said a summit official who requested anonymity. "The speech was entertaining, but not 100 percent edifying."

One official said Zeder had actually toned down his speech from an earlier draft that he submitted to organizers for comment Monday night.

"You think this one was bad, you should have seen what he was going to say," the official said, adding that the speech had been heavily edited.

John Anderson, director of the State Department of Trade and Economic Development and chairman of the summit organizing committee, acknowledged that Zeder's initial draft had been toned down after officials felt "some points of the speech ought to be removed."

Anderson did not elaborate on the contents of the earlier draft, but said "we were looking at something that could have blown the conference up."

Zeder got into trouble when he strayed from his revised speech to make the Mao joke, Anderson said.

"But I'm confident he didn't intend to cause embarrassment," Anderson said, adding that Zeder had earlier been under the impression he was addressing a business group rather than foreign policy makers.

"It was not well received, but the affected delegations dealt with it with some humor and diplomacy."

Anderson said summit organizers had employed a careful screening process when inviting speakers. He said Zeder was among those invited, but "I don't know who invited him."

Zeder left town shortly after the speech and was not available for comment.

Today, the summit is breaking up into four symposia studying forestry, fisheries, agriculture and technology in Tacoma, Bellingham, Yakima and the Tri-Cities.
