Dear George:

Allen Paulson who is the Chief Executive of the Gulfstream Aerospace subsidiary of Chrysler Corporation, spoke with me last week. He has been talking with the Russians and has signed a contract with them to provide U.S. systems for a Soviet SST corporate jet that would carry about twelve passengers.

Secretary Skinner and Vice President Quayle have told him that they will support a bilateral agreement and certification of the aircraft by the United States. Allen believes that there is a large U.S. corporate market for this sort of aircraft, which would cut the flight time between the U.S. and the Orient, and the U.S. and other parts of the world, substantially.

Allen would like to discuss this with you when you return from vacation if you can fit it in and would like to see him. His phone number is 912/964-3000.

With affectionate regard.

Rough Draft

Dear Governor Sununu:

This is a follow up to our recent conversation regarding the ABC television project BUSH: THE WAR YEARS. I understand completely that the President cannot endorse such a project especially without seeing it first. However, ABC is anxious to go forward anyway, and they have asked me to be involved as a Producer. The Executive Producers would be Brandon Stoddard, President of ABC films for television, and Ilene Berg who has produced many movies. They are good people and since Dan Burke is also anxious to see this project done, I feel confident that it will be a quality product. I, of course, will be involved to help oversee such areas as taste, casting, and accuracy. They have requested two meetings with President George Bush and First Lady Barbara Bush. The first being a short initial meeting with the producers simply to explain the project in detail and to clarify some questions for accuracy.

They would not be seeking permission, or an endorsement. Once the writers have been hired they would like the writers to meet with President Bush and First Lady Barbara to discuss the story treatment and details of production. That is all the involvement we need and I feel that it would be very good for them to do this. This is the best chance that we have for quality control that we will ever have on the President's story. If it is not done accurately it could live forever as an inaccurate account. I am convinced that the goal of ABC is to present a positive story of a nation pulling together and I will insure that this happens. Once the film has been shot we will be happy to set up a screening for the White House, but once again nobody is under any obligation to support, endorse, or promote the film. Governor, I would really appreciate your assistance in helping set up the meetings that I have requested.

Besides with the hammering that I have been taking in the political realm I may need a new career in movies anyway. Thank you for your assistance.

Please let me know as soon as is possible because ABC has already begun with writers and there is a production meeting scheduled in early September in LA.

Sincerely:

Roger Ailes

Attached is a memorandum which outlines the procedure for a waiver of the Civil Service requirements for Census hiring. The memorandum outlines the rationale, precedent, legal authority, and implementation.

As we discussed, it is probably best for the public announcement to come from Commerce, however, notification of the appropriate Congressmen will be handled by you personally.

At the request of David Bates, I have spoken with and sent a copy of the attached to Frank Hodsoll at OMB.

Thank you.

GENERAL COUNSEL OF THE
UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
Washington, D.C. 20230

MEMORANDUM TO: Wendell L. Willkie, II

FROM: Lynn S. West LSW

DATE: September 6, 1989

RE: Presidential Authorization of Patronage Hiring for the 1990 Decennial Census

Traditionally, temporary hiring for decennial censuses was accomplished largely through a system of political referrals from members of Congress and state legislators. That system was rendered vulnerable in 1978 by the enactment of the Civil Service Reform Act, which prohibits consideration of political affiliation in most personnel decisions. However, the Act authorizes the President to exempt certain positions from this prohibition where it is warranted by administrative needs. I recommend that the Secretary request such an exemption from the President in preparation for the 1990 census.

Rationale

Temporary hiring for the 1990 census is not yet complete. Several thousand employees, including managers and enumerators, are needed in district offices throughout the country. These jobs are relatively low-paying and often involve work in neighborhoods which make recruitment difficult. An exemption allowing referrals from political sources and civic organizations would augment existing hiring plans and would greatly facilitate recruitment of responsible individuals who would be mindful of the Bureau's obligation to conduct the most accurate census practicable.

Legal Authority

The Civil Service Reform Act precludes personnel action on the basis of political recommendations unless the recommendation is based on personal knowledge of the person furnishing it or an evaluation of the performance, qualifications, and character of the individual recommended. 5 U.S.C. § 2302(b)(2). This provision applies to "covered positions," which include most excepted service positions (such as those utilized by the Census Bureau). However, the President is authorized by subsection 2302(a)(2)(B)(ii) to exempt positions from coverage based on his determination that it is "necessary and warranted by conditions of good administration."

Precedent

In anticipation of its hiring needs for the 1980 census, the Department in 1979 obtained a determination from President Carter that exclusion of temporary census employees was necessary and warranted. The determination was based on a justification forwarded by the Secretary of Commerce. The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) was delegated authority by the President to implement the exclusion. In 1979, Democratic members of Congress were given priority over Republican members in the referral process.

Implementation

An exemption allowing referrals from political sources and civic organizations would supplement existing recruitment rosters and would not affect the positions of existing employees. The exemption would potentially impact approximately 500 management positions and several thousand enumerator positions. Personnel indigenous to an area would receive priority placement. The Bureau would retain the authority to assign or release personnel consistent with existing administrative policies.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE HONORABLE JAMES A. BAKER III
SECRETARY OF STATE

THE HONORABLE NICHOLAS F. BRADY
SECRETARY OF TREASURY

FROM: ELIZABETH DOLE

SUBJECT: OECD Role in Polish Economic Reform

Yesterday I spoke at some length with Lane Kirkland, and he raised certain matters concerning Poland which I believe we should take into account in the future development of the Administration's action plan.

Lane feels very strongly that the OECD should take on a much more prominent role in coordinating western actions concerning economic reform in Poland. He stressed, in particular, the fact that the OECD has a broad country membership (most notably including Japan) which could be drawn upon to augment the overall level of western assistance. Further, the OECD already has business and trade union advisory committees (Kirkland is the chair of the latter) which can help in identifying the most promising areas for assistance and ensuring proper follow through with the business and labor communities.

Importantly for Lane, the EC consults with the European Trade Union Confederation (ETUC) which does not include the AFL-CIO or other non-western European unions. Indeed, historically there has been some friction between the AFL-CIO and the ETUC over the latter's relations with Communist unions. From Lane's perspective, as Chairman of the OECD's Trade Union Advisory Committee, the OECD has the potential for more direct American labor influence over aid programs to Eastern Europe than through the EC. The AFL-CIO has, of course, provided a great deal of assistance to Solidarity through the dark days of the past, and we are currently working with the unions on the labor technical assistance programs announced by the President in July.

I understand our position already calls for work on Polish issues through the OECD, but I believe that there may be an opportunity here to raise the profile of overall western assistance at the behest of the United States and more fully to draw in Japan as a wealthy partner in this effort.

Lane also raised one other matter. The National Endowment for Democracy is a Congressionally-created entity that has undertaken a substantial number of free trade union-related projects throughout the world. Lane would like the Administration to support his efforts to secure several million dollars more in funding from the Congress for this body. In particular, Lane apparently envisages the National Endowment for Democracy undertaking new free trade union-related efforts in Communist countries, using the Polish experience as a successful model. I have directed my International Labor Affairs Bureau to raise this matter with your Departments through the National Security Council process, so that we have the benefit of a full analysis before determining how I should respond to Lane's request.

Mr. Ed Rogers
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Ed:

Attached in case you have missed it is the complete A.P. story . I thought you and John might be interested in seeing it in light of the favorable comments by two key members of the American Jewish Leadership, Seymour Reich and Abraham Foxman.

Sincerely,

Frederic V. Malek

9-BA-09-11 0858

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) Jewish leaders are backing Frederick V. Malek for a White House role after hearing the business executive's apology for an incident in the Nixon administration with anti-Semitic overtones.

The White House said Sunday that President Bush wants Malek to run next year's economic summit of Western industrialized nations, expected to be held in Texas.

Malek, 51, a central player in three major business deals this year, including the nearly $4 billion takeover of Northwest Airlines, said he still must make arrangements with his partners before taking on the part-time White House post.

But Malek has cleared one possible hurdle in a series of private, fence-mending meetings with leaders of major Jewish organizations.

Malek said he both explained and apologized for his role in the 1971 incident in which he complied with a Richard Nixon request to find out how many top Bureau of Labor Statistics officials were Jews.

Malek resigned as a top Bush campaign adviser and deputy Republican chairman last Sept. 11 after reports about the memo resurfaced.

He denied charges of anti-Semitism, but said then he was relinquishing his posts "because of my belief that nothing should interfere with the vice president's victory in November."

Seymour D. Reich, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, said Malek "made a mistake 18 years ago when he agreed to a regrettable request by President Nixon."

But Reich added that Malek "has taken pains to assure the Jewish community that he realizes his error and that he intended no harm. I believe he is sincere ... and that he intends to serve the president and the country with integrity and with respect for all Americans. We wish him good luck in his new assignment."

"He did make one mistake and he's apologized for it," said Abraham H. Foxman, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith. "I think he's put it behind him."

White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk said: "The president has spoken to Fred Malek about (the summit post). The president would like him to do it. No final decisions have been made. We do expect it to occur."

Malek, 51, who ran last year's Republican convention in New Orleans, said he wrote the memo only after ignoring several earlier demands from Nixon for the information.

Nixon had complained to aides that a "Jewish cabal" within the bureau was trying to undermine his economic policies, and demanded to know how many top officials were Democrats and Jews.

Malek said he provided the data on Democrats after a check of voter registration rolls, but balked at fulfilling the rest of Nixon's query.

"I refused four times," Malek said Sunday. "The fifth time he came back and gave me a direct order through (chief of staff H.R.) Haldeman, so I gave him a number."

"I regret my compliance. It was a mistake," said Malek, a West Point graduate who was a special assistant to Nixon in 1970-73 and then deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget until 1975.

"I don't think anyone has ever found any shred of evidence of bigotry or anti-semitism in my life, except this footnote," Malek said in a telephone interview from his McLean, Va., home.

Before accepting Bush's offer, Malek said he first must make sure his other business obligations allow him to take on the job of summit coordinator and that there are no conflicts of interest.

Malek is a former Marriott Corp. executive and president of Marriott Hotels.

In addition to the Northwest Airlines takeover, he was a principal in two other recent major business deals: the purchase of Coldwell Banker's commercial real estate operations from Sears for $300 million and the $800 million sale of Marriott's airline catering business to Malek and executives of the catering division.

Bush attended a party at Malek's home overlooking the Potomac last month to mark the first anniversary of the GOP convention.

The last summit was in Paris in July. Bush is believed intent on holding the next in Texas — probably San Antonio or Houston — in late spring. Neither the date nor site is firmly set.

DRUG ABUSE CONCERN SOARS,
TIMES MIRROR NEWS INTEREST INDEX FINDS

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- A new Times Mirror News Interest Index finds that drug abuse and the Colombian drug war have developed such an extraordinary hold on the public consciousness that it is impossible to provide "too much" coverage of drug-related stories.

The new survey of public interest in various news stories, conducted for Times Mirror by The Gallup Organization from September 7 through 10, shows that despite an explosion of drug-related news in recent weeks, less than five percent of the public thinks there has been "too much" coverage of such news.

Instead, forty percent of those surveyed said they were following drug-related news in the United States "very closely," while 34 percent were following news of the drug war in Colombia "very closely." Another 43 percent said they were following each of these stories "fairly closely."

In a companion poll, 63 percent of the American public now volunteers drug abuse as the nation's biggest problem -- a rise of 36 percentage points in just three months. Only wars and economic disasters have registered such large numbers in the past.

As recently as May, only 27 percent of the public listed drugs or drug abuse as "the most important problem facing this country today," while 34 percent cited economic problems. Today, only 16 percent of the public says economic problems are most important.

- more -

An indication of press influence on public opinion may be found in the fact that news coverage of the drug story has increased dramatically since May, with 90 drug-related stories being published by major American media in June, 156 in August, and 99 in just the first ten days of September.

(Media surveyed were the Los Angeles Times, New York Times, Washington Post, USA Today, Time, Newsweek, U. S. News and World Report, People, Associated Press and United Press International.)

The latest wave of news coverage was prompted in part by President Bush's nationally-televised speech on drug abuse September 5 and by the war in Colombia between the government and the Medellin drug lords.

Thirty-nine percent of the News Interest Index respondents said they had watched all or part of the President's address, and 52 percent could correctly identify the cause of the Colombian war as the wave of assassinations in that country.

But only 24 percent of respondents could correctly identify William J. Bennett as director of the Bush Administration's "war on drugs."

The third most closely followed story during the latest survey period was the banishment of Pete Rose from baseball. Thirty percent of respondents said they had followed this story closely, but an almost identical percentage said they thought there had been too much coverage of the Rose story.

The discoveries of Voyager II and the trial of television evangelist Jim Bakker were followed closely by only 20 percent of respondents, yet about seven in 10 could correctly identify Voyager and its mission, and a similar number knew that Bakker's trial had been temporarily suspended after he suffered an emotional breakdown.

Incidents of racial violence in New York City and Virginia Beach, Virginia, were also followed very closely by about 20 percent of respondents. Among non-whites, only the drug stories were followed more closely, and there was a significant "eastern" tilt to public interest in these racial stories.

The tax evasion trial of New York hotel magnate Leona Helmsley was all but ignored by the American public, with only nine percent of respondents saying they had followed this story very closely.

When asked if any of the September stories had been covered in a biased or unfair way, respondents cited the Pete Rose and Jim Bakker stories most often, with 7 percent sensing bias in reporting on these stories. The racial incidents and the Bush Administration's anti-drug campaign were next, with 4 percent seeing bias in these reports. Sixty-six percent found no bias in any of the stories surveyed.

Asked about overall press performance in covering the story which respondents followed most closely, 19 percent rated the coverage "excellent," 50 percent "good," 22 percent "only fair," and 7 percent "poor." Two percent said "don't know."

And while previous Times Mirror News Interest Indices have found generally low levels of public interest in foreign news, the September Index nevertheless finds that fully 57 percent of the American public knows that the new Prime Minister of Poland is a member of Solidarity and not the Communist Party.

The survey results are based on telephone interviews with 1,238 adults, 18 years of age or older, during the period of September 7 - 10, 1989. The margin of sampling error is ± 4 percent.

Dear Patty:

I listened with great interest and tremendous pride to President Bush's Oval Office address last night. Like me, I'm sure the 140,000 members of the National Federation of Republican Women (NFRW) are anxious to assist the President in his war against drugs.

When NFRW holds its 25th Biennial Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, October 6-8, community leaders from virtually every city, county, and state in the nation will be present. These leaders are eager to take a presidential message on drug prevention back to their hometowns.

As you know, President Bush has been invited to address NFRW's biennial convention. I cannot think of a more receptive audience for a grass roots appeal on the drug initiative than the members of NFRW.

Knowing the national media's short attention span, I won't hesitate to guess that in a month the drug war will be replaced with another issue. However, at the grass roots level, the issue will just be beginning to pick up steam. That momentum will be kept alive through the members of the Federation. I see NFRW's convention as an excellent grass roots catalyst for President Bush and his outstanding program.

Patty, when I met with the President back in May, he told me that if I ever needed anything from him, to contact you first. A presidential visit to our convention is extremely important to our membership. I hope that you and the President will continue to give our request every possible consideration.

Dear Mr. President:

I know you will soon be determining your October schedule.

With this letter is my personal and respectful plea to include on your calendar NFRW's big biennial convention in Baltimore, October 6-8.

The 3,000 women in attendance are representative of our 140,000 women in the campaign trenches around this country. They aren't seeking political appointment or jobs - they just believe in you, Mr. President, and the Republican cause.

A United States President has not addressed NFRW since 1983. If at all possible, please arrange a brief trip to Baltimore so we can show you our enthusiasm for your administration.

Dear Mr. President:

The National Federation of Republican Women will sponsor the largest national gathering of Republicans from throughout the country during its 1989 Biennial Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, October 6-8, 1989.

It has become a tradition for the President of the United States to attend NFRW Conventions in recognition of grassroots volunteer efforts in Republican campaigns. As Vice President, you have faithfully appeared at our convention and we are eternally grateful for that.

As you know, at our convention we will have some 3,000 in attendance representing over 160,000 local club members. In 1988 our members volunteered about 4.5 million hours to your campaign and to hundreds of other campaigns across the country.

We have always appreciated the tremendous support you and Mrs. Bush have given to NFRW. Your participation in our convention is very important to our members across America. Our members wish the opportunity to show you their enthusiastic and continued support of George and Barbara Bush.

We would like for you to address either of the general sessions of the convention at your convenience either on Saturday or Sunday between 8:30 and 11:30 in the morning. The convention ends after lunch on Sunday, October 8th.

We look forward to hearing from you soon concerning attendance at NFRW's 25th Biennial Convention.

Dear Jim:

As you know, the National Federation of Republican Women's Biennial Convention will be October 6-8, 1989 in Baltimore, Maryland. This will be the largest national gathering of Republicans from throughout the country this year.

This convention is especially important to us because we will be celebrating our 25th Biennial Convention. It will mean a great deal to the 3,000 women in attendance for President Bush to address them there.

It has been traditional for the President to appear at our Convention and as Vice President, George Bush has generously been in attendance at many.

Attached you will find a letter to the President regarding our request. You will notice that we would like for the President to address either of the general sessions: Saturday morning, October 7th, any time between 8:30 and 11:30 a.m.; or Sunday morning, October 8th, any time between 8:30 and 11:00 a.m.

The Convention will be at the Baltimore Convention Center. If you have questions, please call our convention director, Melinda Farris at (202) 547-9341 or (202) 546-0577.

Thank you for assistance and I look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Judy Hughes, President

Dear Patty:

There seems to be some confusion as to whether or not the President was invited to NFRW's 25th Biennial Convention in Baltimore, Maryland, October 6-8.

As you can see from the attached, the President was invited, and we have corresponded frequently with members of his staff regarding the invitation.

Again, I appreciate anything and everything you can do to help us ensure the President's attendance at our convention.

Sincerely,

Judy Hughes
President

Dear John:

On August 4, 1989, nine Senators, twenty-four House members and I sent a request (request attached) to the White House. Specifically, we requested a meeting with the President regarding fetal tissue experimentation.

On September 5, 1989, I received a response from Fred McClure. In his letter, he said "...you may be assured that I have brought your request to the attention of the President's Scheduling Office."

We who share the President's position on the right to life feel that this meeting is of vital importance. Respectfully, John, I ask that you personally give attention to our request.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

The President
The White House

Dear Mr. President:

You have spoken out against abortion, and once again we commend you for your courageous moral leadership. We ask you also to speak out against the medically unnecessary destruction of prenatal infants.

Towards the end of the last administration, at the President's request, an Executive Order was drafted that would, "to the extent permitted by law, protect unborn or newborn children from experimentation, research and organ transplantation, except in cases where the unborn or newborn child would itself directly benefit by any such procedures to which it was subjected." Tragically, time ran out before this directive could be implemented.

Using the organs and tissue of aborted infants is the latest extension of the utilitarian ethic which is responsible for the widespread practice of abortion in the first place. It is just plain wrong, in that it further violates the human rights and the dignity of the victim of abortion. And the use of aborted infants for medical purposes will lend the appearance of respectability to abortion, in the sense that some will say that abortion, however unfortunate, at least improves the health of those who benefit by transplants. This rationalizing of abortion will embed the procedures ever more deeply in our society.

Absent an Executive Order, the Federal government will continue to fund fetal experimentation. In 1987, the last year for which data are available, the National Institutes of Health spent $11.2 million. The bottom line is, Federally funded fetal experimentation will continue unless you take action.

Respectfully, we ask for a meeting with you at your earliest convenience to explain our concerns and discuss several policy options.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT
FOR SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY Dr. Friedman

SUBJECT: LAUNCH APPROVAL FOR NASA'S GALILEO
MISSION TO THE PLANET JUPITER

REFERENCE: PRESIDENTIAL DIRECTIVE NSC-25

The GALILEO mission will explore Jupiter and its environment and is scheduled for launch during the period which extends from October 12-November 24, 1989. This mission will begin a new era in scientific space exploration, GALILEO will be the first spacecraft to orbit one of the giant outer planets. The GALILEO mission has a long record of support by Congress, by the successive Administrations, and by the science community.

Because of the environmental safety concerns associated with the use of nuclear isotopes on space missions (Attachment I), Presidential Directive NSC-25, dated December 14, 1977, requires the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to request your approval of the launch through the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP). The Directive also delegates authority to me for approval or other appropriate action (Attachment II).

Prior to, and following the receipt, on July 25, 1989, of the NASA launch request, the OSTP staff has extensively reviewed the technical aspects of risks associated with the proposed mission. In support of the GALILEO mission, the Department of Energy has prepared the Final Safety Analysis Report, and the Interagency Nuclear Safety Review Panel has prepared the Safety Evaluation Report. The OSTP has reviewed these reports with the help of a panel of Consultants selected by myself.

On the basis of these reviews, I have concluded that the risks of accidental release of radioactive material in the course of the GALILEO mission are infinitesimally small and certainly well below the tolerance levels accepted in other applications involving nuclear radiation. I am furthermore satisfied that the precautions against radioactive contamination of the environment or health hazard to human populations are adequate.

I intend, in my capacity as Director of the OSTP, to approve the launch request, as per the attached text (Attachment III). In addition, I shall request that NASA present a short information briefing on GALILEO for you, the Vice President, the Members of the National Space Council, and the White House Staff in mid-September.

ATTACHMENT I

NUCLEAR MATERIAL IN GALILEO SPACECRAFT

The GALILEO spacecraft requires a power system that uses nuclear isotopes. This type of power system is required because the mission will operate at great distances from the Sun, in the vicinity of Jupiter for several years. Such nuclear isotope power systems have been used on space missions since 1961. Indeed, this type of system continues to power the Pioneer missions, launched in 1972 and 1973, and the Voyager missions launched in 1977. The Voyager-2 spacecraft enabled remarkable discoveries as it recently flew past the planet Neptune on its way to the edge of the solar system.

SUBJECT: Scientific or Technological Experiments with Possible Large-Scale Adverse Environmental Effects and Launch of Nuclear Systems into Space

Two earlier Presidential memoranda dealt with the conduct of scientific or technological experiments that might have large-scale or protracted effects on the physical or biological environment (NSAM 235 of April 17, 1963) and the launching into space of systems involving nuclear power (NSAM 50 (revised) of April 10, 1965). These two NSAMs are hereby rescinded. The general purpose, however, behind these two directives--to give the President the opportunity to consider all factors before any such experiment is carried out--remains valid. The President has approved the policy and procedures below to accomplish that purpose.

It should be understood that experiments which by their nature could reasonably be expected to result in domestic or foreign allegations that they might have major and protracted effects on the physical or biological environment, or other areas of public or private interest, are to be included under this policy even though the sponsoring agency feels confident that such allegations would in fact prove to be unfounded.

Where such experiments constitute major action either licensed or funded by Federal Agencies that significantly affect the quality of the human environment, an environmental impact statement will be prepared. The data from such statement may be used in complying with the following procedures which do not affect the requirement to comply with the provisions of the National Environmental Policy Act:

1. The head of any agency that proposes to undertake a large-scale scientific or technological experiment that might have major and protracted effects on the physical or biological environment, or on other areas of public or private interest, will call such proposals to the attention of the Director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy (hereafter the Director). The Director will consult with the Chairman of the Council on Environmental Quality (hereafter, the Chairman). Notification of such experiments will be given sufficiently in advance that they may be modified, postponed, or cancelled, if such action is judged necessary in the national interest.

2. In support of proposals for such experiments, the sponsoring agency will prepare for the Director a detailed evaluation of the importance of the particular experiment and the possible direct or indirect environmental effects that might be associated with it. The data from an environmental impact statement may be used in complying with this procedure.

3. The Director in consultation with the Chairman will review the proposals and supporting materials presented by the sponsoring agency in order to assure that the need for the experiment has been properly weighed against possible adverse effects.

4. On the basis of this review, the Director in consultation with the Chairman will recommend to the President what action should be taken on the proposed experiment. If the Director, in consultation with the Chairman, judges that inadequate information is available on which to make a judgment, the Director may request that additional studies be undertaken by the sponsoring agency or may undertake an independent study of the problem. Agencies will be notified if an extended delay is anticipated in approval.

5. In the case of experiments that have major national security implications, the head of the sponsoring agency will notify me so that I may determine on an individual basis the procedure to be followed in reviewing these experiments.

6. While the final decision to conduct such experiments must continue to reside with the government, the National Academy of Sciences and, where appropriate, international scientific bodies or intergovernmental organizations may be consulted in the case of those experiments that might have adverse effects beyond the US. When experiments are expected to have such impacts in foreign countries the Secretary of State will be notified. In arriving at decisions on specific projects, foreign policy considerations should be taken into account. Recommendation on the advisability of the courses of action will be made by the Director in consultation with the Chairman and with the sponsoring agency and the State Department as appropriate.

7. Any large scale scientific or technological experiment that may involve particularly serious or protracted adverse effects will not be conducted without the President's approval. Any experiment that may involve serious or protracted adverse effects will not be conducted without the approval of the head of the department or agency involved, with, in appropriate cases, the advice of other concerned agencies.

8. To the extent that it is consistent with national security, and subsequent to approval of the experiment, there should be early and widespread dissemination of public information explaining the purpose, benefits, and assessments of impacts.

9. A separate procedure will be followed for launching space nuclear systems. An environmental impact statement or a nuclear safety evaluation report, as appropriate, will be prepared. In addition, the President's approval is required for launches of spacecraft utilizing radioactive sources containing more than 20 curies of material in Radiotoxicity Groups I and II and for more than 200 curies of material in Radiotoxicity Groups III and IV (as given in Table I of the NASC report of June 16, 1970 on "Nuclear Safety Review and Approval Procedures." An ad hoc Interagency Nuclear Safety Review Panel consisting of members from the Department of Defense, Department of Energy, and National Aeronautics and Space Administration will evaluate the risks associated with the mission and prepare a Nuclear Safety Evaluation Report. The Nuclear Regulatory Commission should be requested to participate as an observer when appropriate. The head of the sponsoring agency will request the President's approval for the flight through the Office of Science and

My dear Mr. President:

Clare Boothe Luce was a good friend of The Heritage Foundation as trustee, benefactor, advisor and participant in our programs. We have mourned her loss for the two years since she passed away.

Before she died, Clare and I had a number of conversations about the necessity for participants in the foreign policy arena to think about basics -- "strategic concerns, not the tactical issues that overwhelm everyone in Washington," she once told me. Her concern was at least partly due to her long-time membership on the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

We have given a great deal of thought and consideration to Clare's wishes, and have decided that they can best be carried out by an annual lecture, to be designated the Clare Boothe Luce Lecture on Foreign Policy. She was particularly keen that the dimension of foreign intelligence should be considered in these lectures. The lecture will be delivered annually in Washington before a selected audience of the foreign policy community and key Heritage supporters. The stipend for the lecture will be substantial and will be accompanied by an appropriately engraved plaque.

We anticipate that the lecture will receive significant media attention and, of course, it will be published as a Heritage lecture shortly after it is delivered.

You would honor us, and Clare, Mr. President, if you would deliver the inaugural Clare Boothe Luce Lecture, preferably on December 5 or 6 at a luncheon or dinner at an appropriate location in Washington, D.C.

I will contact your staff to determine your availability for this invitation.

EDITORIAL ROUNDUP FROM REGIONAL NEWSPAPERS
September 7, 1989

Drugs

"Full funding of state and local treatment and educational programs are a must." -- Michigan Chronicle, 8/26/89

"First of all, funding the $7 billion plan remains a mystery . . . without raising taxes, the government will have to reallocate funds, as Bush has suggested, and that could mean cuts for other crucial programs.

"The second and perhaps more important problem with Bush's national drug plan is that it doesn't go far enough." -- Las Vegas Sun, 8/17/89

"It is not a perfect plan. One flaw is Mr. Bennett's proposal to coerce states into imposing some of the penalties he prescribes for drug users." -- Richmond Times-Dispatch, 8/20/89

"If the United States really wants to reduce drug abuse, it seems clear that more effort will have to be shifted to decreasing demand and discouraging consumption." -- Argus Leader, 8/17/89

"We're glad to see that the plan also doubles spending for substance-abuse treatment programs and increases funding for drug education and prevention programs." -- The Courier Journal, 8/19/89

Nicaragua

"The best option for the United States now is to encourage long-term stability in Central America by letting the war in Nicaragua end. The United States should embrace the Central American president's accord." -- Argus Leader, 8/18/89

Poland

"President Bush's administration has hailed developments as 'history-making' and politely urged the Soviet Union not to interfere. But Bush has been appropriately careful to avoid saying anything that could upset the transition." -- Argus Leader, 8/21/89

"Mr. Bush must make good on some promises made when he visited Poland in July.

"Mr. Bush also must be concerned with the Soviet response to Poland. But ultimately he must decide how this country will supply the carrot he so deftly offered when he held out the meager $100 million stick." -- Grand Rapids Press, 8/23/89

Poland (continued)

"They also will have limited aid from the West, including emergency food aid and, Congress willing, the $100 million President Bush has requested for Poland's private sector. They deserve more." -- The Commercial Appeal, 8/21/89

"We hope the President listens to Mazowiecki's appeals, and that the United States responds with what aid it can. Even if current events are just a calm before yet another storm in Poland's history, the opportunity to nourish the seeds of democracy is too great for the world's greatest democracy to pass up." -- The Bismarck Tribune, 8/21/89

William Lucas - Race Relations

"Mr. Bush has ended this mini-crisis in the best possible light." -- The Tennessean, 8/17/89

"It is interesting that the Republicans who supported Lucas ignored the issue of qualifications and made their defense of him on the basis of color." -- Michigan Chronicle, 8/26/89

"For those monitoring the Bush administration's civil rights enforcement performance, facing a qualified assistant attorney - black or white - on the other side of the trenches is more satisfactory than confronting one likely to be only a puppet or figurehead." -- Lincoln Journal, 8/14/89

"Bush's speech before the Urban League Aug. 8 offered no fresh solutions to the historic problems that he declared were his problems." -- Oregonian, 8/22/89

"In any event, Bush can consider himself on the notice that the Urban League and other minority advocacy groups will be carefully scrutinizing his record." -- Spokane Spokesman Review, 8/14/89

"Though rhetoric and action don't intersect, Bush has taken the GOP show on the road and has found a bigger audience in eight months than Reagan did in eight years." -- The Kansas City Times, 8/17/89

"Even with all of this fine talk, I would have felt a whole lot better if the president has said something about those affirmative action rulings handed down by the Supreme Court." -- Robert C. Newberry, The Houston Post, 8/12/89

General Colin Powell

"Gen. Colin Powell . . . is an excellent choice to perform that [chairman of the JCS] task." -- Sacramento Bee, 8/15/89

" . . . has built a reputation as a cool-headed, intelligent officer who would serve the country well." -- Omaha World Herald, 8/15/89

"Without intending any knock on the military academies, it also helps the larger American experiment occasionally to have a JCS chairman who broke into uniform ranks some place other than West Point, Annapolis, or Colorado Springs." -- Lincoln Journal, 8/11/89

Hostages

"The message from the White House is all too clear to the hostage takers: Don't worry, the United States won't strike back." -- Richmond Times Dispatch, 8/23/89.

"President Bush is pursuing a sensible strategy: focus unmistakable pressure on the new government of Iran to lubricate the release of the eight American hostages in Lebanon." -- Lincoln Journal, 8/16/89

"But the Bush administration cannot ignore the hazards inherent in allowing the country's [Lebanon] slide to continue unchecked." -- The San Diego Union, 8/16/89

"At his news conference this week, a gingerly President Bush tiptoes all around the hostage crisis, raising first one option and then another and fleeing from them all." -- Arizona Republic, 8/17/89

"Mr. Bush's assertion that Iran could secure the hostage's freedom seems plausible." -- Detroit Free Press, 8/19/89

"For their part, Congress and the White House should turn to pressing tasks needed to keep all financial institutions healthy: a modernization of banking laws and an overhaul of the deposit insurance system." -- Minn Star Tribune, 8/19/89

"Now there's something else to be mad about: President George Bush and Congress added about $3 billion to the cost of the bailout just to make the federal budget look better." -- Argus Leader, 8/12/89

George Bush Style

"On the links, the president calls himself, 'Mr. Smooth' and gets off-the-record extra putts (which he won't back in Washington). Maybe it's the late August atmosphere, but so far most Americans like the Bush style." -- Christian Science Monitor, 8/28/89

War On Legal Services

"Few things make conservatives see red like the Legal Services Corporation (LSC). They sputter at the very thought of the quasi-independent federal organization that dispenses about $300 million a year to 325 providers of legal services to the poor." -- Christian Science Monitor, 8/28/89

Flag Burning

"The fact is it just won't work, this emotional attempt to amend the Constitution by prohibiting the public desecration of the American flag.

"President Bush should therefore forget about a flag amendment. History shows it may well be a futile, wasteful task." -- Christian Science Monitor, 8/25/89

"Like the ABA, we deplore flag burning as a political statement but we adore the constitutional amendment that permits it to happen." -- The State S.C., 8/20/89

Fairness Doctrine

"The President's scenario, with the fairness doctrine attached as a proviso to a budget bill, boxes him into a corner. Without line-item authority, he would be obliged to approve or veto the measure in toto." -- The State, 8/21/89

Arms Control

"Bush should provide stronger leadership on arms control. He also should stop shying away from sensitive issues. Now is the time to take them on." -- Argus Leader, 8/16/89

Dear Mr. President:

It is my pleasure to invite you and Mrs. Bush to attend and address the first Annual American Cardinals' Dinner, sponsored by and for The Catholic University of America, on December 12, 1989 at the Pension Building in Washington, D.C.

This unique event will honor all five of the American Cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church who are presently Bishops of Dioceses. The list includes Cardinal Joseph Bernardin of Chicago, Cardinal John O'Connor of New York, Cardinal Bernard Law of Boston, Cardinal James Hickey of Washington and Cardinal Edmund Szoka of Detroit.

In addition to honoring the Cardinals, the first annual Cardinals' Award will be presented to an outstanding humanitarian. Our mutual friend, Cardinal Law, has agreed to speak on behalf of the Cardinals and I know he and his fellow prelates would be delighted to have you participate.

Prior to the dinner, a Mass will be concelebrated by the Cardinals at the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. The Mass is scheduled for 4:00 P.M.

A special reception will be held for the Cardinals, Dignitaries and Patrons of the event from 6:00-6:45 P.M. in the Reception Suite of the Pension Building. A general reception will be held in the Great Hall from 6:00-7:00 P.M. The receptions will be followed by dinner at 7:00 P.M. The presentation of the American Cardinals' Encouragement Award should take place at 9:00 P.M. The evening should end no later than 10:30 P.M.

The President

You honored us, Mr. President, at the opening of our University Centennial in 1987 and we would be doubly honored if it were possible for you to be with us for any or all of the events of this historic occasion. We would be most pleased to have you address the nearly two thousand guests expected to attend. We look forward to welcoming you at this special celebration.

Sincerely,

This kind of event would provide a non-controversial opportunity to recognize this unique sub-culture and shore up continued support for the President.

PARTICIPANTS: The President and Mrs. Bush

Selected popular Gospel singers and choral groups.

They support the war but . . .

By BOB KAPPSTATER
Daily News Staff Writer

President Bush's $7.8 billion declaration of war on drugs drew generally favorable responses last night from the city's mayoral candidates. But Mayor Koch called it "too little to fight a meaningful war against drugs."

Most candidates claimed a piece of it as their own, saying various drug-fighting proposals Bush made last night have been part of their campaigns.

"Regrettably, the President is proposing that the federal government 'bring up the rear' in the war against drugs precisely when we need it on the front lines," said Koch. "It's a war. Isn't it well past the time we fought it like one?"

Koch said the city's share of the increased federal funding to local law enforcement efforts would amount to 1% of the $500 million the city already spends annually fighting drugs.

'Fiscal hocus-pocus'

Koch's chief rival, David Dinkins, said that while he welcomed Bush's attention to the problem, he called the funding for it — taken from other "vital" programs — "fiscal hocus-pocus."

"He has unilaterally disarmed on the very day he had declared war."

Mayoral contender Richard Ravitch said he was pleased "that a large share of the President's program will be devoted to drug education and prevention."

Managing a sidelong swipe at Koch, Ravitch said city officials should "receive an engraved invitation from Washington so they don't forget to apply for new federal funds."

as they forgot to apply last year for federal drug education money."

Controller Harrison Goldin said he "wholeheartedly" supports Bush's call for increased drug testing for criminals and of the boot-camp model for incarcerating and rehabilitating drug users.

"It has been a cornerstone of my campaign," Goldin said.

Republican mayoral candidate Ronald Lauder called the President's war on drugs "good news for all New Yorkers" and "not unlike my own — education, enforcement and treatment."

GOP contender Rudolph Giuliani said Bush "has demonstrated strong leadership on this drug problem."

"New York City should join the effort to obtain a large share of the new money for enforcement, treatment and education," Giuliani said, "rather than being in the embarrassing position, as we have under Ed Koch, of having education and other money allocated which we were too incompetent to obtain."

NEW YORK POST, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1989

Most N.Y. pols damn plan with faint praise

The city's leading mayoral candidates split on President Bush's drug message last night — with Democrats Ed Koch and David Dinkins calling it too little and too late, and Republican Rudy Giuliani describing it as a major weapon in the war on narcotics.

Koch said the money Bush has pledged is "still too little to fight a meaningful war against drugs."

While the mayor praised Bush for increasing Washington's contribution, he noted that the city's share of federal drug-enforcement money would rise from $2.5 million to only $5.5 million under the Bush plan.

That is less than 1 percent of the amount to be spent annually in the city to fight drugs, Koch said.

Dinkins said he, too, was "glad the president is presenting his strategy to wage war on drugs."

"However," the Manhattan borough president said, Bush is "funding this war by taking money from desperately needed human-resources programs, such as law enforcement and juvenile justice."

Giuliani said the president had demonstrated "strong leadership" in establishing a high priority on anti-narcotic strategy.

He said the president had earmarked $300 million for state and local law enforcement.

"That's new money," he said, adding that, in the past, the city has often not been able to obtain its full share of such allocations.

The Republican front-runner also said it was "very, very good" for the president to target drug users rather than just suppliers.

The state's two leading Democratic office-holders found fault with Bush's figures.

Gov. Cuomo noted the president's spending projections — then contrasted them with the recent occasion "when the savings-and-loan industry was threatened [and] the federal government produced a $160 billion rescue plan."

Before Bush spoke, Attorney General Robert Abrams gave him "high marks" for focusing attention on drugs, but said the plan will provide an increase of just 2 or 3 percent in the numbers of those who can get drug treatment.

That comes to perhaps 47,000 across the United States — and "we probably could absorb that" in New York state alone, said Abrams.

Phoenix House founder and president Dr. Mitchell Rosenthal said "if the American public can get behind" the Bush plan "we can see a 75- to 80-percent reduction in drug use over the next 10 years."

The Honorable John H. Sununu
Chief of Staff
Office of the President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Governor Sununu:

Last Tuesday, New York Republicans overwhelmingly nominated me as their candidate for mayor of New York City. It was an exciting victory, but the real battle now lies ahead.

(1) The most critical need we face in this campaign is raising $3.5 million in the next 7 weeks. I am writing today to request President Bush's attendance at an October fundraising dinner. We are tentatively holding the date of Thursday, October 12 at the New York Hilton, as it is available that evening and has the largest ballroom in the city. Naturally, the convenience of the President is of our utmost concern. Ch. Summary

We can deliver at least 1,000 attendees at $1,000 per person. We are identifying approximately 100 Vice Chairmen to each make a commitment to sell one table for the dinner at $10,000. As incentive for them to meet that goal, I would like to request a 30-minute photo opportunity with the President on that evening.

(2) In a meeting with Roger Ailes yesterday, he indicated he feels it is critical we get on the air immediately. To aid in this endeavor, I would like your special consideration for a 30-minute reception when the President visits New York on September 25-26. We would ask approximately 50 individuals for the maximum $3,000 donation to attend this private meeting. fly down w. PRES. At to send a one for a purpose

I very much look forward to the chance to work with you and the President, not only in the coming weeks, but over the next several years. I intend to make New York the first and most successful city in the President's fight against drugs. There is much we can accomplish together, and I respectfully offer my help and support to the Bush Administration.

Sincerely,

R. Giuliani

Subj: Presidential Meeting with Appointees

As a healthy "team-building" session, I propose that the President meet with all his appointees (confirmed and maybe those pending confirmation, too) in the East Room sometime after everyone returns from the summer holidays. This was done spasmodically during the Reagan Administration, and it was always a success.

The format would be: Group gathers in East Room; Cabinet Secretary gives welcome and introduces Chief of Staff; remarks by Chief of Staff, who introduces President; remarks by President; and coffee/cookie reception in State Dining Room.

Ideally, these sessions would be held regularly, such as once a quarter (and no less than once every six months).

What would be even more ideal is an assembly-line-like photo op with the President so that each appointee has a picture for display in the office while serving him (rather than having a farewell photo). This was done in the early Reagan years but for some reason was discontinued.

EDUCATION SUMMIT GETS A GOOD REPORT CARD WELL IN ADVANCE OF NEXT WEEK'S OPENING BELL

President Bush's education summit with the nation's governors is a week away, but it already is showing results. The mere preparations for the meeting have begun to produce a commitment to set national performance goals for education.

In planning sessions for the Sept. 27-28 summit in Charlottesville, Va., the White House and the National Governors Association have agreed to work together to draft standards for the year 2000. These would include benchmarks for reducing the high school dropout rate, increasing the percentage of students going on to college or post-secondary vocational training, boosting the scores of U.S. students on international math and science tests, and improving the readiness of preschoolers for first grade.

"I don't think you can overstate the political impact of getting the President and the governors to commit themselves to national goals," says Gov. Clinton. Such goals would give schools, parents, students, government and business something to aim for.

DEMOCRATS TO CHALLENGE BUSH AS TIMID Honeymoon Is Over, Party Chief Declares

DNC Chairman Brown said Tuesday that leaders of his party are ready to take a "much more aggressive posture" toward President Bush, challenging his "timidity" on foreign and domestic policies and drawing "a line in the sand" against his effort to cut capital gains taxes.

Responding to suggestions that Democrats' passivity has contributed to Bush's popularity, Brown told a group of reporters, "All new presidents have a honeymoon, but it's time for President Bush's to come to an end."

Brown said his statement represents a "consensus" of Democratic congressional leaders, governors and party officials. It came on the day that Speaker Foley was sharing the spotlight with the President at the Spokane event in the heart of Foley's congressional district, marking the centennial of the state of Washington....

And Wednesday congressional Democrats and governors are scheduled to hold a news conference at Eleanor Roosevelt High School in Greenbelt that is described as a "preemptive strike" on Bush's "education summit" with the nation's governors next week at the University of Virginia.

REPUBLICANS PRESENT ANTI-DRUG PLAN, BOOST SPENDING BY $800 MILLION

Senate Republicans presented Democrats with a revamped anti-drug proposal Tuesday night that would increase President Bush's proposed spending by about $800 million, said Sen. Hatfield.

After negotiators for the two parties met, Hatfield said "the ball is sort of in their court now," and Democrats planned to meet Wednesday to consider the GOP proposal.

"They made an offer, and we're going to respond to it," a Democratic source said. But he added that one part of the proposal -- additional selective cuts in discretionary programs -- was "totally unacceptable."

The Republicans proposed a .25 percent across-the-board cut in programs, with some flexibility, coupled with specific spending cuts to achieve the $800 million increase.

✓Poll shows Bush's approval rating just keeps rising
By Michael K. Frisby

WASHINGTON - President Bush reached a new high-water mark in popularity this week, as a poll gave him a 78 percent favorable rating and only 10 percent gave him an unfavorable rating.

The president received rave reviews from Republicans and independents, who gave him 94 percent and 80 percent favorable ratings respectively, according to the nationwide poll taken for The Boston Globe and WBZ-TV by KRC Communications of Cambridge, Mass., in conjunction with the American Political Network.

The poll of 1,002 persons also found a majority of Democrats, 65 percent, also gave Bush a favorable rating. It was taken between Sunday and Tuesday and has a three-point margin of error.

In 27 polls taken this year, Bush's approval rating has never dropped below 69 percent. The previous high had been 77 percent on several occasions.

With Bush leading the way, the Republican Party is now seen as providing better leadership for the country than the Democrats in Congress. Seven weeks ago, the Democrats were seen as better leaders. However, the Republican performance on the leadership question slipped slightly from last week.

On specific issues, the Republicans were seen as providing better leadership on drugs, the federal budget deficit and the economy. The Democrats were seen as better leaders at achieving a balance between domestic and defense spending and dealing with the problems of the middle class.

Bush received his high favorability rating even though 67 percent of those polled disagree with his position on assault weapons. The president opposes banning the weapons, but two-thirds of those polled said they should be banned and only 22 percent said they should not be banned.

In addition, less than four in 10 of those polled gave the administration positive marks for its handling of the economy and almost one in three gave the administration a bad grade.

The president, however, received good grades on his war against drugs, a dramatic shift of opinion over the last seven weeks. Initially, a 2-to-1 majority gave the administration failing grades, but that has now been reversed. By a 2-to-1 margin he now gets good grades.

Those polled gave solid support to the Senate's vote last week to ban smoking on domestic airline flights. Sixty-nine percent agreed with the Senate action, while only 29 percent disagreed.

Dick:

The Appropriations negotiations ended about 11:30 pm
Although I don't have all the details -- as close as I know the deal is as follows:

1. Fully fund the President, plus crime
2. $ 1 billion additional -- $800 demand, $200 state and local law enforcement.
3. Financed by a 3% across the board cut, plus an additional specified amount for each subcommittee. The Appropriations Cmt. table financing the increases is attached. Total cut .44%
4. Task force meeting ended after Dole talked to Sununu -- don't know if you were called
5. They are reviewing the legislative language to implement the drug strategy -- although I'm not sure I think the agreement is to include it.
6. There will be a time certain to report out the crime package. Note: the agreement is to report out of committee. Byrd pointed out that it was Mitchell who sets the floor timetable.
7. Dole strongly opposes accepting this. In his view Byrd gets everything he wanted. Defense gets too big a hit.
8. The written one page write up of the ^{proposal} agreement will be available 1st thing in the morning.
9. The Task Force meets again Friday at 10:30 am.
10. There will be an effort by Mitchell tomorrow to pass all the pending appropriations bills by a voice vote. (HUD/VA, HHS, Military Construction and Foreign Ops.)
