Dear John:

I would like to invite you to be a guest speaker for a meeting of the S.O.S./Chowder & Marching Republican clubs.

As you may know, SOS was founded in 1953. Chowder & Marching (C&M) is over forty years old, founded in 1948. These two clubs meet together every Wednesday morning for breakfast when Congress is in session at 8:00 A.M.
SOS/C&M membership includes many members of the Republican Leadership, both past and present, such as Gerald Ford, John Rhodes, Jack Kemp, Bob Michel, Dick Cheney, Jerry Lewis and Guy Vander Jagt, to name a few.

*Capital

If your schedule is open May 22, 29, June 5, 12, 19, 26, July 17, 24, or 31, we would very much like to have you speak to us at any of these times. Please contact Marcia Summers in my office to let her know if you will be able to be with us.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

John J. Rhodes, III

DAILY AGENDA

12 noon - 1 PM

The Honorable John Sununu
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Governor Sununu:

We have joined together to request your assistance in an endeavor that is of extreme importance to the four of us, as well as important to this administration. With major changes in our Congressional districts next term it is very likely that this next cycle may become difficult for some of the Republican Members of Congress in Louisiana, so we are turning to you, our friend, for assistance.

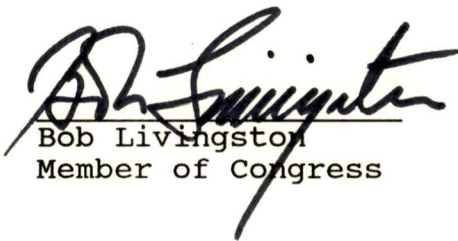

During the month of June we are planning to bring to Washington our major donors from Louisiana. While they are in town, we would consider it a great honor if you could make your schedule available to meet with us and our friends from Louisiana.

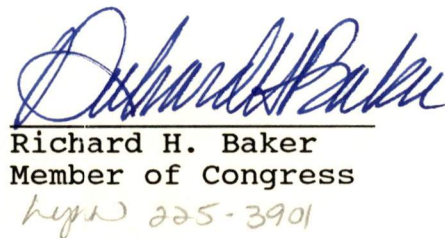

Your efforts in working out such a meeting are greatly appreciated. At this time Lynn Kirk in Congressman Baker's office is coordinating many of the details on this trip. If you could have someone follow up with her as soon as possible, we could begin to finalize all plans.

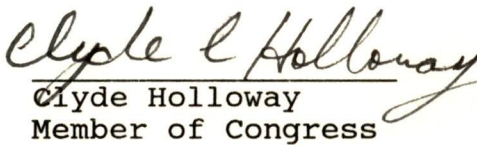

The Honorable John Sununu

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

FROM: NICHOLAS F. BRADY NFB

RE: Meeting with Business Leaders on Condition of the U.S. Economy

In compiling the attached list, I have emphasized the importance of the consumer sector of the U.S. economy which accounts for roughly 2/3 of the GNP. It is becoming more apparent that the road back out of recession will be led by this sector when it occurs.

Also, I have attempted to stay away from the usual characters in heavy industry who as you know are "blue" bigtime and have included some smaller company representatives.

The USCA Profile is an annual publication of the University of South Carolina-Aiken, produced by the USCA Public Information Office.

The University of South Carolina-Aiken adheres to the principle of equal educational and employment opportunity without regard to race, sex, creed, handicap, age, religion, or national origin. This policy extends to all programs and activities supported by the University. The University of South Carolina-Aiken is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award associate and baccalaureate degrees.

INSTITUTIONAL PURPOSE

The University of South Carolina-Aiken is a senior institution in the University of South Carolina's nine-campus system and one of four campuses offering four-year degree programs. Since its beginning in the renovated mansion, Banksia, in downtown Aiken in 1961, the college has grown to a total undergraduate enrollment of 2,967 and now occupies a 144-acre campus. After a very favorable review in 1981, Aiken received a ten-year accreditation by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. The mission of the institution is stated as follows:

The University of South Carolina at Aiken is a public senior institution of the University of South Carolina System. Attracting a racially and culturally diverse student body of varying ages and experiences, USCA draws its population primarily from South Carolina, and from other states and foreign countries as well.

USCA is an academic institution devoted primarily to scholarly and creative pursuits. It seeks to advance student and faculty knowledge through a wide range of experiences in the liberal arts, sciences, and in the professional programs. As an academic community, it serves the public by fostering cultural appreciation and by making available its resources, including its programs, its services, and the expertise of its faculty, staff, and students.

USCA strives to provide the members of its academic community with the knowledge and means required for intellectual, professional, aesthetic, and philosophic pursuits, as well as personal development. Thus, USCA seeks to create an educational atmosphere that encourages:

- Thinking critically and analytically, questioning, searching out concepts;
- Communicating effectively using numerical, notational, and other symbolic systems;
- Appreciating cross-cultural perspectives;
- Exploring values openly and critically;
- Finding and examining relationships among disciplines, concepts, and areas of study;
- Developing depth of knowledge within chosen fields of interest.

In fulfilling its role as an institution for higher learning, USCA is building a community of active scholars, artists, professionals, and intellectuals engaged in broadly-based educational experiences necessary for fostering an enlightened society.

USCA STUDENTS

As one of the fastest growing institutions in the USC system, USCA has consistently recruited traditional and non-traditional students, i.e. those who are married, senior citizens and persons who are returning to school after an extended absence. Thirty-nine percent of the student body is considered non-traditional (Age 24 or older). Over one-half, or sixty-two percent, of the students are female, and fifteen percent of the students are black.

Undergraduate Student Profile

The average combined SAT score for entering students through regular admission (Fall 1990) at USCA is 922. All entering students are required to take placement examinations in Mathematics and English courses. USCA is primarily commuter-oriented, however, 13% of the students live at our student apartments, Pacer Downs, located adjacent to the campus. Approximately 39% of USCA's students receive financial aid through federal and/or private sources.

Annual Graduate Regional Studies Enrollment

Headcount, Summer I, 1989 - Spring 1990 - 1,100*

**This number is an approximation. A student is not counted twice in one semester.*

Annual Continuing Education Profile:

July 1, 1989 - June 30, 1990      Enrollments in courses and seminars and Public service participants - 11,000*

**This number is an approximation and does not include Etherredge Center, athletic, or academic department events.*

Nationally Recognized Academic Advisement Center

Crucial to the student's decision making process of choosing a major and having a successful college career are the activities of USCA's Student Advisement Center. The Center was selected by the American College Testing Program and the National Academic Advising Association (NACADA) as the 1988 Outstanding Institutional Advising Program for public colleges. This award, made after national competition, honors institutions which make significant contributions to the improvement of academic advisement to its students. In addition, one of USCA's faculty advisors, Dr. Trudy Henson, was selected as the 1988 NACADA Outstanding Advisor for the midsouth region. In 1989, Dr. Kutty Pariyadath received a NACADA Certificate of Merit as an outstanding advisor.

Career Planning and Placement

The Office of Career Planning, Placement and New Student Orientation is committed to helping students and employers meet their occupational needs. Employers may request credentials of USCA's graduating seniors or alumni kept on file in the office. After receiving an employer's criteria, the office will select students meeting these criteria and forward their credentials to the employer. Job Vacancy books also offer employers an opportunity to advertise full time positions. Career Days in the spring semester enable employers to talk with students through individual interviews or informational tables. In addition to assisting in the employment search, the office maintains a Career Library for students about careers, occupations, graduate schools, and organizations. Students can also utilize two computer databases for further assistance in gathering information about themselves and occupations. The office also offers career development, leadership training and team building workshops for organizations on a consultative basis. As a member of the College Placement Council, the office adheres to the ethical and professional standards of that organization.

The University of South Carolina-Aiken Undergraduate Enrollment Growth (1984-1990)

USCA FACULTY

The 106 full-time teaching faculty and 43 (full-time equivalent) part-time faculty at USCA for the year 1990-91 hold degrees from major institutions across the United States and abroad. Approximately 68% of the full-time faculty have earned a doctorate or terminal degree in their field of expertise. Approximately 56% of the faculty have achieved tenure. Increased efforts to expand USCA's role as a major resource for the region and the community have been emphasized this year. Outreach efforts include an increased emphasis on the evening program, continuing education, and use of facilities and faculty expertise by community groups and agencies. Emphasis on computer literacy on the Aiken campus has continually increased with the upgrading of our present system to meet the more advanced needs of our faculty and students. USCA has vigorously pursued an affirmative action policy which has resulted in the best hiring record of minority faculty in the USC System.

USCA Professor Named South Carolina Professor of the Year

Dr. William S. Brockington, USCA professor of history, was named the 1990 South Carolina Professor of the Year by the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE). The CASE Professor the Year program is designed to salute the most outstanding undergraduate instructors in the country, those who excel as teachers and influence the lives and careers of their students and former students. The award is recognized as one of the most prestigious awards honoring professors. Dr. Brockington was also a finalist in the South Carolina Commission on Higher Education's 1990 Professor of the Year program.

In 1988, USCA political science professor, Dr. Robert E. Botsch, was named the CASE South Carolina Professor the Year and a national CASE gold medalist.

Five Professors Selected for USCA Awards

Five USCA professors were recognized for their excellence at the annual 1990 USCA Honors and Awards Convocation. Dr. William S. Brockington, professor of history, received the Teaching Excellence Award; Dr. Robert E. Botsch, professor of political science, received the Research Excellence Award; Dr. William Marsh, professor of business, received the Alumni Award; Dr. Valdis O. Lumans, professor of history, received the University Service Award; and Prof. Frederick P. Huston III, professor of computer science, received the Community Service Award.

USCA ALUMNI

The Office of Alumni Affairs coordinates the efforts of the USCA Alumni Association. The Association began in 1974 with the mission to support the interests of USCA and its alumni. The Association is governed by the Alumni Council, a 24-member body composed of alumni representatives from each of the academic areas, minority affairs, athletics, non-traditional students, and members-at-large.

Alumni membership, determined as those alumni who make a financial contribution to the University, is currently 306. Benefits of joining the Alumni Association include advance notice of University events and programs, invitations to alumni functions, use of the library, outdoor facility use, discounts to the USCA Bookstore and on Continuing Education courses, and receipt of the USCA Magazine. All alumni receive a quarterly alumni newsletter called the "USCA Alumni Update." Current addressable alumni total 3,344 in 34 states, Canada, Europe, Korea and Egypt.

The year 1991 will be a special one for USCA and the Alumni Association as USCA turns 30 years old, and the Alumni enact a 30-Year Anniversary Campaign to raise $30,000 and contact 3,000 alumni. Alumni events in the coming year will include Homecoming in February, the Annual Meeting in May, and the annual Fall event called the "Juke Box Jam." Ongoing alumni programs include Adopt-A-Highway, Alumni/Admissions, Senior Picnic, and Student Alumni Ambassadors.

The Alumni Association presents four awards each year: (1) Alumni Faculty Award, which goes to a faculty member who has made an impact on the lives of students beyond graduation, (2) Honorary Alumni Award presented to a non-alumnus who has shown tremendous loyalty to the University, (3) Outstanding Alumni Service Award, and (4) Distinguished Alumnus Award.

EXTERNAL SUPPORT

The total of external support for USCA in 1989-90 was $2,773,000. This total reflects both private giving and grant activity.

Private Giving

The annual Aiken Partnership Drive begins in March of each year. The total amount raised in the 1989-90 Giving Campaign was more than $363,000, surpassing the goal of $250,000. The Giving Campaign raises money for scholarships and programs not currently funded or inadequately funded by state appropriations. In addition, special and designated gifts, endowments and chair gifts, and gifts-in-kind added more than $1,218,312 for a total of private giving in excess of $1,581,000.

Endowed Chair Campaign

In 1989, USCA initiated a Chair Campaign to endow 25 academic professorships on the campus. The Chair Campaign will allow the University to attract and retain the finest faculty to this campus. Nine chairs were endowed in 1989, valued at $900,000. The following chairs were endowed in this campaign: the Mary D. Toole Chair in Art, the SCANA Chair in Physics, the Ida Crawford Stewart Chair in the Sociology of Maturity, the G.L. Toole Chair in English, the June Rainsford Henderson Chair in Southern History, the Cleora Toole Murray Chair in U.S. History and the Walter F. O'Connell Economic Enterprise Institute Director's Chair, the Chair of Entrepreneurship, and the John Olin Chair of Enterprise Development. Each chair is endowed at a level of at least $100,000 to create an annual income which is used to supplement a faculty member's professional expenses.

Private Gifts to Ruth Patrick Science Education Center

The Ruth Patrick Science Education Center at USCA is a model for a successful partnership between universities and the private sector. The Center itself is a unique cooperative effort between USCA, local industry and the public school district to enhance the science and math education opportunities for students in this area. Funds for this 8,000 square foot facility have come exclusively from private individuals and corporations. Mr. Crawford Greenewalt, former president and chairman of the board of the Du Pont Company, contributed $100,000 in 1989 to support construction of the Center, and the Westinghouse Corporation made a corporate contribution of $250,000 in December of 1988. At the groundbreaking ceremonies for the Center in February 1989, Apple Computer, Inc. also announced its support of the Center by donating two computer laboratories valued at $350,000. In addition, NCNB of South Carolina has pledged $25,000 to the project, and the Westinghouse Foundation has set aside a portion of the $100,000 it recently contributed to USCA for support of programs and scholarships associated with the Center. Aiken County has also committed to complete a significant portion of the landscaping for the facility, valued at more than $50,000.

Grant Activity

The number of grants being submitted by USCA faculty has increased steadily. The USCA Science and Technology Enrichment Program (STEP) received a $58,432 grant for 1990-91. The STEP Program provides instructional programs in science, mathematics and engineering to academically talented high school students from socioeconomic backgrounds that normally do not produce large numbers of engineers and scientists.

Dr. Nieves McNulty, math, received a grant for "Parallel Methods of Constrained Optimization" for $11,976 from the National Science Foundation. Dr. Henry Gurr, physics, received a grant for $12,000 for "Neutrino Physics." Dr. Jack Ward, biology, received a grant of $73,000 for "Photomineralization Degredation of Halocarbons."

The Symphony in the Schools concerts in the Etherredge Center by the Augusta Symphony Orchestra and concerts in the local schools by Orchestra ensembles were supported by a grant of $3,750

Several grants were awarded through the South Carolina Universities Research and Education Foundation. Prof. Dennis Rogers, business, received a grant for $122,000 for the "1990 Summer Institute for Technology Transfer." Dr. Jim Yates, biology, received a $32,244 grant for "Degrading Trichlorohlytne in the Environment." Dr. Allen Dennis, geology, was awarded a $197,594 grant for "Compilation of Regional Geology." Dr. S. Van Ooteghem, biology, received $34,538 for "Genetic Stock Center for Paramiscus."

ACADEMIC PROGRAMS

Undergraduate Programs

USCA offers baccalaureate degrees in Biology, Business, Chemistry, Elementary Education, Early Childhood Education, Secondary Education, Physical Education, Political Science, Psychology, History, English Language and Literature, Nursing, Sociology, Interdisciplinary Studies, and Math/Computer Science. Associate degrees in Nursing, Criminal Justice, and general Liberal Arts and Sciences are also offered. Substantial course work in the Allied Health Sciences, Engineering, Media Arts, Journalism, Geology, and many other subject areas is available--allowing students to complete most of their college career at Aiken before transferring. The general education program and all majors are under review in anticipation of the reaccreditation visit by SACS in the Spring of 1991.

Graduate Regional Studies and Continuing Education

USCA offers graduate courses locally in Education, Business, Administration, Engineering, Library and Information Science, Public Health and Social Work under the auspices of the USC-Columbia Graduate School. Utilizing the entire range of educational technology, from live instruction to television and taped course work, the residents of this region are able to take advantage of the resources of a much larger university without leaving the area. Additionally, a number of non-credit, continuing education programs are offered for personal and professional development/recertification.

Cooperative Education Program

USCA also has an active and ongoing Cooperative Education Program that provides students with professional training and experience consistent with their academic pursuits, while earning an income to assist with their expenses. The program offers two plans that can be tailored to fit the needs of the student and employer. The Co-op office has worked with employers in the Aiken/Augusta area and throughout the southeastern states for students that are interested in relocating for a summer. Internship information and part-time job placements are also available through the Co-op office.

Gregg-Graniteville Library

Our faculty and students are supported in their academic pursuits with a modern library, the Gregg-Graniteville Library. The library is a two-story, 41,120 sq. ft., fully carpeted building with a seating capacity of over 300 and shelving space for over 200,000 volumes. Our present collection contains more than 127,000 monographic and microform volumes plus subscriptions to 16 newspapers and over 1,000 periodicals. Special collections include the Federal Government Documents Depository, the Department of Energy technical reports reading room, and the Graniteville Company historical records.

Off-Campus Programs

As a member of the USC System, USCA strives to offer cooperative programming for students on other campuses. The School of Business Administration, in addition to its status as largest major on campus, offers management, marketing and finance options to two of the two-year campuses so that students there can complete coursework for the baccalaureate degree. These students are served by a full-time faculty member in residence from Aiken and other faculty approved by the School; the syllabi for their courses and curriculum as a whole is exactly the same as those on the Aiken campus. Since 1985, both USC-Sumter and USC-Beaufort have had this option and the graduates are proud of their system degree. In addition, Beaufort has an early childhood education baccalaureate degree and USC-Salkehatchie has been able to offer upper-division courses delivered by Aiken faculty. The USC-Beaufort campus has a full-time member of the Aiken faculty in residence to coordinate its rapidly growing enrollment in professional education.

As well, USCA offers limited programming at its North Augusta site. In addition to expanded evening course offerings at the Aiken campus, adults who are employed full-time can enroll in offerings nearer their homes in North Augusta.

PARTNERSHIPS WITH THE COMMUNITY

Etherredge Center Chamber Orchestra

The new 36-piece Etherredge Center Chamber Orchestra (ECCO) is a professional regional musical ensemble supported by private and corporate gifts to USCA. The orchestra presents a concert series and will begin to bring excellent instrumental music to the schools of our area.

Ruth Patrick Science Education Center

The Ruth Patrick Science Education Center is a cooperative efforts between USCA, local industry and the public schools to enhance science and math education in the elementary and secondary schools in the area. During the 1989-90 fiscal year, more than 12,789 people attended 237 events sponsored, or co-sponsored by the Ruth Patrick Science Education Center at USCA. The National Science Foundation has named the Center one of the best pre-college programs funded by NSF and funded the Center with $288,501. Additional funding came from Westinghouse ($34,500) and the Department of Energy ($39,165). The Aiken County School System also funded the Center with $30,698 to provide programs for teachers and students in the county.

The Science Education Center is in the process of completing architectural drawings of a physical facility that will house the Center's activities. The $1.2 million facility will be constructed in two phases. The first phase, to be completed by the end of 1991, will consist of two multi-purpose classrooms, two computer classrooms, office space, and the Du Pont planetarium. The second phase will consist of a hands-on science hall, workshop area, animal room, and possibly a greenhouse. Both phases will be constructed with private funds. Funds to equip the Du Pont Planetarium are being raised by the Greater Aiken Chamber of Commerce.

Walter F. O'Connell Economic Enterprise Institute

The entrepreneurial spirit is the cornerstone of the Walter F. O'Connell Economic Enterprise Institute at USCA. Founded in 1986, the Institute is a unique center for the study and promotion of entrepreneurship and a leading force in the resurgence of small business formation as a means of economic development. The Institute provides a variety of services to area business persons through the Small Business Development Center and the Private Investor Network. The Small Business Development Center (SBDC) assists small business owners with business counseling, management training and procurement technical assistance. The Private Investor Network (PIN) is a confidential computerized matching service that brings together entrepreneurs and investors in the state of South Carolina.

ATHLETICS

1990-91 marks USCA's debut into the NCAA Division II and the Peach Belt Athletic Conference (PBAC). The PBAC is a newly formed NCAA II conference consisting of Armstrong State College (Savannah, GA), Columbus College (Columbus, GA), Francis Marion College (Florence, SC), Georgia College (Milledgeville, GA), Lander College (Greenwood, SC), USC-Spartanburg (Spartanburg, SC) and USCA.

According to NCAA rules, during an institution's initial year of NCAA membership, that institution is ineligible for any NCAA post-season play. For that reason, USCA will hold dual affiliation with the NAIA and compete for NAIA championships.

Once again, USCA will have more than 150 student-athletes participating in our various sports programs -- volleyball, soccer, men's and women's cross country, men's and women's basketball, golf, softball, and baseball.

Highlights from the 1989-90 year included the women's cross country team competing in the NAIA National tournament; women's basketball playing in the district championship game; baseball and golf being ranked among the nation's top 10 teams; the golf team winning the District Six championships and finishing fifth in the national tournament; and a host of Pacer athletes being selected for All-District and All-Tournament.

FACILITIES

Facilities at USCA are modern, well designed, and attractive. They have been added consistent with a master plan developed soon after the present campus was occupied, and which has recently been updated for the next 15 years.

A. Present facilities include the following:

Classroom/Administration Building	56,000 sq. ft.
Gregg-Graniteville Library	41,120 sq. ft.
Student Activities Center	52,200 sq. ft.
Classroom Building	41,000 sq. ft.
Etheredge Center	48,384 sq. ft.
Sciences Building	56,000 sq. ft.
Supply & Maintenance Center	15,484 sq. ft.
Children's Center	4,000 sq. ft.
Mobile Units	3,765 sq. ft.
Auxiliary Buildings at the ballfield	1,512 sq. ft.
Sports/ Recreational areas:
- Satcher Baseball Field
- tennis, volleyball, basketball courts
- soccer/all-purpose intramural field with a quarter-mile track

B. Student housing, adjacent to campus, consists of 90 apartments with four students to an apartment, which allows campus living for up to 360 USCA students.

C. Facilities under design/construction:

Ruth Patrick Science Education Center	8,000 sq. ft.
Restoration of the Pickens-Salley House	5,285 sq. ft.
Business & Education Building	92,000 sq. ft.

ECONOMIC IMPACT

In following its mission, USCA has actively solicited public involvement. The $5 million Etherredge Center on campus has done much to attract citizens to USCA for cultural events. The recent addition of a new $7.9 million Sciences Building will bring even more interaction between USCA and the scientific and business communities. Our outlook for the future is to establish stronger bonds with the area businesses and industries to bring more expertise to our existing academic programs.

In addition to the programs and opportunities at USCA, we feel that our campus has a major economic impact on the community. An example is the fact that USCA has an annual operating budget of more than $14 million based upon the revenue from the following sources:

USCA 90/91 Educational & General Revenues

State Appropriation	$ 7,711,880	53.9%
Student Fees	3,939,928	27.5%
Miscellaneous	87,200	.6%
County Appropriation	353,064	2.5%
Grants & Contracts	1,192,000	8.3%
Sales & Services	464,000	3.3%
Athletic/Activity Fees	557,000	3.9%
	$ 14,305,072	100.0%

Employment at the campus includes 230 permanent employees and 120 part-time staff and faculty. Students receive in excess of 3 million dollars each year in federal and private aid funds. The annual payroll for the campus is $8 million. This, along with 2,967 undergraduate students, more than 1,100 graduate students, construction and contractual activities, gives an estimated community economic impact for the total campus in excess of $60 million.

To Our Guests

Welcome to the University of South Carolina-Aiken on this day of special achievement and recognition of our graduates. We hope you will find these ceremonies, which are a culmination of the efforts of faculty, staff and, of course, our students and their families, both meaningful and impressive.

The commencement program begins with an academic procession to the platform. You are asked to rise as the procession enters, and remain standing until the platform party has taken its place, the national anthem has been sung, and the invocation has been given. After the benediction has been given, please rise and join in singing of the Alma Mater. First to exit will be platform guests, followed by faculty, followed by students.

Citation for the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Public Service Gasper Loren Toole, III

Gasper Loren Toole, III, is a native of Aiken, South Carolina. Mr. Toole currently serves as chairman of the Aiken County Commission for Higher Education, a position he has held since 1986. He has been a member of the Commission since 1965 and formerly served as secretary of that organization.

Mr. Toole is credited with being one of the major forces behind the development and growth of the University of South Carolina-Aiken campus.

Mr. Toole is a graduate of Aiken High School. He attended USC-Columbia and earned a bachelor's degree in Naval Science and Tactics. He served for three and a half years on active duty in the United States Navy in World War II and for more than twenty-six years in the Naval Reserve, retiring as a Commander. After his active military service, he continued his education at USC-Columbia. Mr. Toole graduated from the School of Law in 1948 and joined the Aiken law firm of Toole and Toole, where he is currently a senior partner.

He is active in a number of civic and professional organizations. He is a member of the Aiken County Bar Association, the South Carolina Bar Association, the American Bar Association and is former president of the Aiken County Bar Association. He has also served as former chairman of the Aiken County Chapter of the American Red Cross; a founding trustee and member of the Board of Directors of Mead Hall School; a member and secretary of the Aiken County Planning and Development Commission; a member of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Aiken; and a member of the Board of Directors of the Citizens and Southern National Bank of South Carolina. He was one of three founders of Security Federal Savings Bank of South Carolina which was organized in 1958. He has served as vice president and has been on its Board of Directors and Executive Committee since 1958.

Mr. Toole is a member of Saint Thaddeus Episcopal Church of Aiken and has served for more than twenty years on the Vestry. He has also served both as junior warden and as senior warden. He is married to the former Mary Durban, also an Aiken native, and they have three children.

For his leadership and many contributions to the field of higher education, for his enduring commitment to the highest standards of his profession, and for his untiring efforts on the behalf of the citizens of Aiken County and the University of South Carolina-Aiken, the University of South Carolina, with the approval of its Board of Trustees, now presents Gasper Loren Toole, III, for the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service.

Commissioned Chief of Staff to the President of the United States on January 21, 1989, the Honorable John H. Sununu has more than twenty years experience as a political and community leader, educator, engineer, and small businessman.

As Chief of Staff to President Bush, Mr. Sununu is responsible for the daily operations of the White House. He played an influential role in President Bush's New Hampshire Primary victory in 1988 and served as the national co-chairman of the Bush/Quayle campaign. In this capacity, he was one of the most active surrogate speakers on the campaign trail, traveling extensively across the country.

Mr. Sununu became New Hampshire's 93rd governor on January 6, 1983, and served three consecutive terms prior to joining the White House staff. As governor, he gained both regional and national recognition through his chairmanship of the Coalition of Northeastern Governors, the chairmanship of the Republican Governors' Association, and his election in 1987 to the chairmanship of the National Governors' Association. Within the National Governors' Association, he served as chairman of several committees and was particularly active as chairman of the New Technology Education Task Force. Two years ago, this task force issued "Time for Results; The Governors' 1991 Report on Education." Also through his efforts, the National Governors' Association and later the New Hampshire Legislature endorsed innovative acid rain legislation.

He is a member of the National Academy of Engineers' Committee on Public Engineering Policy and has served as a member of the President's Council on Environmental Quality Advisory Committee, the New England Regional Energy Advisory Council, the Board of Trustees of the Northeast Solar Energy Center, and as chairman of the Board of Directors of Consumer Alert.

He attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at both the graduate and undergraduate levels, and earned his doctorate there in 1966 in mechanical engineering. From 1968 to 1973, he was associate dean of the College of Engineering at Tufts University where he had been an associate professor of engineering since 1966. He was invited to join the Advisory Board of the Technology and Policy Program at MIT in August 1984. From 1965 until his election as governor, he served as president of JHS Engineering Company and Thermal Research, Inc. In addition, he helped found and served as chief engineer for Astro Dynamics, Inc., from 1960 to 1965.

He married the former Nancy Hayes in 1958. They have eight children.

For his leadership in politics and public policy at the regional and national levels, for his ceaseless quest for excellence, and for his commitment to high ideals in education for all Americans, the University of South Carolina, with the approval of its Board of Trustees, now presents John H. Sununu for the honorary degree of Doctor of Public Service.

Academic Costume

Academic gowns represent a tradition handed down from the universities of the Middle Ages. These institutions were founded by the church; the students, being clerics, were obliged to wear the prescribed gowns at all times. Round caps became square mortarboards; the hoods, originally cowls attached to the gown, could be slipped over the head for warmth. Many European and some American universities have distinctive caps and gowns which are different from those commonly used in this country. Some of the gowns are of bright colors and some are embellished with fur.

The usual color for academic gowns in the United States is black. The bachelor's gown is worn closed, the master's and doctor's gowns may be worn open or closed. The shape of the sleeve is the distinguishing mark of the gown: bachelor - long, pointed sleeves; master - oblong, square cut in back with an arc cut away in the front; doctor - bell shaped, usually with horizontal velvet stripes.

Caps are black. The tassels for the Ph.D. degree are gold, and those for graduate and professional degrees may be the color corresponding to the trimmings on the hoods. The color of the tassels for bachelor's degrees indicates the curriculum of the graduate: Arts, Letters, Humanities, white; Business and Commerce, drab; Education, light blue; Engineering, orange; Fine Arts, brown; Journalism, crimson; Law, purple; Library Science, lemon; Medicine, green; Music, pink; Nursing, apricot; Pharmacy, olive green; Philosophy, dark blue; Physical Education, sage green; Public Health, salmon pink; Public Service, peacock blue; Science, golden yellow; Social Science, cream; and Social Work, citron. The tassel is worn on the right side of the cap until the bachelor's degree is attained. Thereafter, it is worn on the left side.

The hoods are lined with the colors of the institutions from which the wearer received his or her degree. The color of trim on the hood is the color which designates the degree. There are also numerous hood colors associated with honorary degrees.

The list of candidates for graduation was prepared before final grades were reported and inclusion herein does not constitute evidence of graduation and honors. While every effort was made for clearance prior to the printing deadline, final action to insure an accurate listing of the names of all persons qualified for degrees cannot always be taken before the program goes to printing. Therefore, errors are possible, and the listing of a name in this program should not be construed as an indication that the person will in fact receive a degree from the University of South Carolina-Aiken at this commencement. Conversely, the absence of a student's name from this list does not necessarily mean that the person will not be awarded a degree.

The Carolina Mace

The University's Mace, designed and fashioned by the world famous English silversmith Leslie Durbin, is the symbol of the University's corporate entity and authority as well as of the endeavors of the entire University community.

It was created and dedicated in 1967 and is carried in procession on occasions of outstanding importance, such as degree-granting ceremonies or formal dedications. Placing the Mace on its stand is a signal that the proceedings are about to come to order; its retirement indicates that the exercises are concluded.

When not "on duty," the Mace can be seen up close in a special case in the University's Treasure Room in the McKissick Library (now the University Archives and Museum Center, Columbia campus). There visitors can examine the fine workmanship of its gilt head on which are mounted the seals of the University, the state of South Carolina, and the great seal of the United States. From the middle of these arises a stylistic representation of the State Tree, the Palmetto, the fronds of which are formed by a group of thirteen stars, representing the founding colonies of which South Carolina is one. The long shaft - nearly four feet - is decorated with eight stars, reminding us that South Carolina was the eighth state to enter the Union. Due to its special associations the Mace is priceless, but in everyday monetary terms, because of its precious metals and rare craftsmanship, its value has tripled since it was presented to the University a little more than twenty years ago.

As the Mace represents the entire University community, it is carried in procession by Mr. Kelvin Coleman, the President of the USCA Student Body, escorted by a member of the faculty, representatives of the Faculty Emeriti, the Alumni, and of Carolina's Board of Trustees.

The USCA Double Knot

The "Double Knot," a free-form bronze sculpture that serves as the centerpiece of the USCA Administration Building courtyard, is a fitting symbol for this institution. It represents the interlocking ties between the University and its community as well as the seamless bond between the two. The artist, Charles O. Perry, presented the work to USCA in memory of his father, Owen H. Perry, and his stepmother, Florence E. Perry.

Dear Governor Sununu,

MR HESELTINE'S VISIT TO WASHINGTON: 5-7 JUNE

We had a word on the telephone recently about the visit to Washington of Michael Heseltine, Secretary of State for the Environment in the British Government. He will be coming on 5-7 June. One of his principal objectives is to have a good discussion with you.

I know that 6 June is no good for you, because of your son's graduation. You must be greatly looking forward to that. You kindly offered, however, to come to my house for a quiet supper with Michael Heseltine on the evening of Wednesday 5 June: perhaps drinks at 7:00pm and dinner at 7:30pm. As I mentioned, I am in some embarrassment that evening as the German Ambassador is giving a large farewell dinner for Jenny and me. But Christopher Meyer, the very able Minister (Commercial) in the Embassy, will take my place, and is very familiar with the subjects.

I realise how difficult it is for you to give an absolutely firm answer this far in advance, because of the inevitable uncertainties over the President's programme. But, in terms of planning the rest of Mr Heseltine's visit, it would be very helpful if your office could confirm to mine (Pauline Calder: 898-4292) as soon as possible that dinner on the evening of 5 June still looks feasible for you.

Sincerely
Antony

MEMORANDUM TO THE CHIEF OF STAFF
FROM JACKIE KENNEDY
SUBJECT LIBRARY COURT LIVE

The scenario for your appearance on "Library Court Live" this evening is as follows:

Gary Foster will accompany you to the show

8:00 pm Arrive at Heritage Foundation (202) 546-3003
717 Second Street, NE
Met by: Eric Leicht

The Program actually starts at 8:00 pm and runs until 9:30 pm the first 25 minutes you can watch and get a feel for the format of the show, it's quite similar to the Larry King show. There is a live audience of about 30 people.

8:30 pm Paul Weyrich is the host - you are asked to speak for 5 minutes, 6 minutes at the most, about conservative family issues. This will be followed by calls from the viewing audience.

9:00 pm Conclusion

This show runs LIVE across the country but is a satellite up-link and the code is only given to their conservative coalition.

MEMORANDUM FOR JACKIE

FROM: MIA

6/11 @ 10:30am

SUBJECT: INTERVIEW REQUEST

Jack Fowler, a contributing reporter for the National Catholic Register, would like 20 minutes with the Governor to discuss "Catholic-related matters". Per Ed, the Governor agreed to do it. Fowler's not on a tight schedule, but obviously, sooner is better than later for him.

Please let me know, and I'll contact Fowler.

THE FACTS: Once dismissed as a political lightweight, Dan Quayle has built the best staff in Washington, turning his office into a center of conservative thought and policy-making.

THE IMPACT: Raising $1 million a month for Republican candidates, the vice president has built a strong network of support among grassroots GOP leaders. He's unlikely to be dumped in '92, and his future may be brighter than any of his critics thought.

WASHINGTON — Dan Quayle's office in the Old Executive Office Building here, a huge parquetry and gilded hall that once served as quarters for the Navy secretary, is said to be the most beautiful in the capital. But its reputation will have to suffice — the vice president is so down-to-earth a host that a visitor can forget to notice the surroundings.

On this pleasant late-July afternoon, Quayle is relaxed and cheerful — his usual self, according to people who know him well. He's not, however, full of political happy-talk.

Take his comments on what's become a defining issue of his vice presidency, the future of the traditional family. Given today's numbers on divorce, teen pregnancy, fatherless homes and other social ills stemming from fragmented families, the troublesome subject is one most in public life shy away from.

Not Quayle. His message is frank — the American family is "weakened" and "has been taking a beating." And his objective is clear — to make the institution's condition a "focus of national debate."

He hammers away at the topic before audiences ranging from the likely-to-be-receptive, such as last year's Knights of Columbus convention in Baltimore, to the unsuspecting, like the Republican congressmen's conference at Princeton University this February.

Last month, for example, at ceremonies marking the centennial of Dwight Eisenhower's birth in Abilene, Texas, Quayle chose to forego nostalgia about "Ike," and instead gave a major domestic policy speech on the family's crisis. He wasted little time getting to his main argument, that "The one institution we must rely on to produce good citizens — the American family — is in trouble," a victim of "the

HIBERNIANS REQUIRE PROLIFE STANCE FOR MEMBERS.

Publicly favoring abortion disqualifies a man from membership in the Ancient Order of Hibernians in America, the Irish-American group resolved last month at its 85th national convention. According to the resolution adopted by more than 500 attending the convention in Arlington, Va., the new rule applies to renewal of membership as well to new applicants.

BISHOPS URGED TO SCRAP WOMEN'S PASTORAL.

The Washington-based Center of Concern has urged the U.S. bishops to scrap their proposed pastoral letter on women's concerns, citing "inconsistencies" in the document's second draft. The fundamental contradiction shaping the document, it says, is that while the document affirms the equality of men and women, gender differences are used to justify differences in Church policy toward men and women. The Center of Concern report says that while ordination is "not the primary concern" of the majority of women in the Church, it "remains the key symbolic and structural barrier to the full realization of women's equality with men."

ing the pastoral, Friend said the Klan meeting was "an 'honor' we could do without."

Chicago church loses

Vatican appeal. The pastor of St. Rocco Parish in Chicago Heights, Ill., said July 24 the Vatican Congregation for the Clergy has turned down his parishioners' appeal to keep their church open. Franciscan Father Wilfrid Logsdon said his parish would have its final Liturgy sometime in August. Two other Chicago Heights parishes closed July 1. Last January 28 parishes in the archdiocese including St. Rocco were ordered closed as an economy measure by Chicago Cardinal Joseph Bernardin.

at the Church's main center, adjoining Saint Joseph's Cathedral. In his first pastoral letter in mid-July, he also protested the anti-student measures and called for fair treatment of those under arrest — giving notice that the Church would not ignore injustices, despite its vulnerability to state pressure.

But in Romania's predominantly Orthodox society, the Church's influence remains uncertain. When a version of Franco Zeffirelli's film, "Jesus of Nazareth," was shown on state-run television last Easter at Catholic initiative, many Romanians got their first taste of religious ideas and images. And when Catholic university students are allowed to study theology for the first time this fall, the Church Hopes of possible compromise on the Orthodox side were raised by the July 1 installation in Iasi of a new and youthful Metropolitan of Moldavia and Bucovina, Archbishop Daniel Ciobotea, who's tipped as a likely successor to the unpopular Patriarch Teoctist.

Last January, Ciobotea cofounded an Orthodox Church reform group, whose moderate members upheaval of the '60s, the permissiveness of the '70s and the sophistication of the '80s."

The challenge for the nation, said the vice president, "is to rebuild American family life," not to seek solutions in government programs which "have a difficult time compensating for a lack of family structure when it comes to fostering family values and character."

Many believed that Quayle had emerged from the 1988 elections — when he endured an onslaught from the national media and political pundits — as a shell-shocked lightweight whose future would be limited to attending funerals and campaign fund-raisers.

Quayle, however, had other plans: namely, to turn his office into a conservative policy factory.

So while TV talk-show comics joked nightly about the vice president-elect, Quayle busily assembled a staff of intelligent (Ph.D.s abound), Washington-experienced conservative activists; people as adept at policy-making as they are at political infighting.

Dubbed "independent superstars" by one Capitol Hill official, the vice president's top staffers include national security adviser Carnes Lord, a conservative hardliner; press secretary David Beckwith, a former Time magazine White House correspondent; and two men highly rated by social conservative leaders — chief of staff William Kristol and legislative affairs assistant William Gribbin.

Kristol, a 37-year-old academic who taught political science at Harvard before serving as chief of staff to former Education Secretary William Bennett, signed on with Quayle despite entreaties from the White House and a number of cabinet secretaries. He's affable, approachable, a leader in the movement to bring minorities into the GOP and committed to the pro-family agenda.

He's held second only to Gribbin in esteem among social conservatives. A former college history professor who worked as a top-level official in the Reagan White House and on the Senate Republican Committee, Gribbin, a Catholic, is best known for authoring the strongly prolife and pro-family Republican platforms of 1980, '84 and '88.

Adept at playing political hardball whenever possible (for example, the 1988 platform contained a plank that blasted the ACLU for supporting a suit to deny the Church's tax-exempt status), Gribbin, 46, is a mix of the ultimate insider and an articulate policy-maker.

His is the name found in the question most asked by conservatives — "What's Gribbin say about it?" Like Kristol and other staffers, he is without airs and accessible — qualities that have made the Quayle team the Bush administration shop which conservatives, including many in Congress, turn to for assistance.

The presence of such top-flight personnel, combined with the vice president's desire to formulate policy, to use his powers of office to help the troubled (he pressed Chinese officials last year to relax their long-running campaign against Catholic priests), to publicly take on tough issues (he was the main speaker at the Rally for Life in Washington this April) and to bring his message to often-overlooked constituencies (he made an impressive showing at a Greek Orthodox dinner last month) have made this an office concerned with substance, not ceremony.

It has also made the Quayle team a power center within Washington political circles.

That fact helps explain the decline in media preoccupation with Quayle. Indeed, one aide says "I'd be hard pressed to find a recent case of bias. The [recent] treatment from the key national media has been much more respectful."

As for his future, few believe Quayle will be absent from the 1992 Republican ticket. Earlier this year, rumors claimed that President Bush might dump him to make room for Secretary of State Jim Baker as his running mate. The reports were soon quashed by Bush, who by most accounts is deeply satisfied by the performance of Quayle, whom he sees as a loyal confidant.

But other reasons suggest shy Quayle will be a Republican force for some time to come. By taking to the campaign trail for GOP candidates (to date he's been on the hustings in 42 states) and attending party fund-raisers at a wicked clip, the vice president has become a hit with Republican bosses and party regulars nationwide.

A recent Washington Times story estimated that he raises $1 million monthly for the GOP — much of it for needy (and often neglected) non-congressional candidates who lead the party at a local level. That's earned the vice president a growing number of political IOUs.

"They'll remember me. I'll remember them," he says. Expect the remembering to take place in 1996.

Vice President Dan Quayle was a little known Indiana senator when George Bush selected him as his running mate during the 1988 elections. Staunchy prolife and pro-family, Quayle spoke with the Register in his Washington office late last month.

Dan, Marilyn and Tucker Quayle

Register: You've made the crisis in the American family a focal point of many of your recent speeches. What can be done to improve the situation during the next decade?

Quayle: Since 1960 the divorce rate has gone up something like 300 percent. Child abuse is a major problem. If you look at the number of U.S. families with a single parent, in 1960 it was 20 percent to 25 percent. Today, 60 percent of our kids, by the time they reach 18, will live in a single parent home.

Yet the family continues to be the nucleus of civilization. When I'm talking about a family I'm talking about a mother, a father, a child — that is a family. The president's child care bill will help strengthen the family. It allows the parent to make the determination on how the child is to be provided for, not the government.

Vice President Dan Quayle on family issues

Register: Your goal is to make the family the focus of national debate?

Quayle: I've made a concerted effort to point out the difference between the Eisenhower era and where we are in the 1990s. There are some fundamental differences. It gets at the family, it gets at our values, and we shouldn't shy away from talking about that.

Register: Do you consider over-taxation a serious "family" problem?

Quayle: The federal government — and state [government's] too — have needed more and more money to run more and more programs that are supposed to help families: health programs, social services, welfare, education and so forth. But the costs of the programs are borne by — you guessed it — those same families.

That's why the administration wanted to increase the earned income tax credit, to free from taxation hundreds of thousands of low-income, working families.

It's important, when government officials examine their revenue numbers, that they look at where the revenue comes from. The money that funds one or another government program might otherwise be buying braces for a child, home improvements for the whole family or better living conditions for grandma.

Register: What are the essential differences between Republicans and Democrats in the way each party approaches the family?

Quayle: The Democrats focus on government. For example we're having a huge debate on the so-called family leave bill. The Democrats feel that, if the government mandates certain benefits for employees, this is somehow a "pro-family" bill. But that's not the case, because it's taking the choice away from the individual as far as benefits.

What's interesting is that, as this debate goes on, people say that "we're one of the few countries that don't have the government mandating certain leave policies." Well, that's good. A lot of other countries wish that they didn't have those government mandates so they could create more jobs for more families and be more competitive. So the Democrats use government as a way to inject themselves into the family. We take a different approach. Like our child-care bill. We feel that choice should be left with the parents, that strengthening the family depends upon religious institutions, neighborhoods, the people themselves. So our faith is more in people, while the Democrats' faith is in government. That's a huge philosophical difference.

Register: The U.S. Catholic community is currently embroiled in a controversy about the role of Catholic politicians who support abortion. What do you think of the "personally opposed, but..." position taken by politicians such as Mario Cuomo and Ted Kennedy?

Quayle: Well, I don't ascribe certain motives to certain politicians, but anyone that uses this line "I'm personally opposed but I don't think it's right for me to get involved" is trying to finesse a difficult situation. They just don't want to admit that they're pro-abortion. You can't have it both ways, but politicians like to have it both ways. So this is a typical political response to a substantive social issue; they're trying to be on both sides of the fence.

I don't think you can be on both sides of the fence about abortion: Either you're for it or you're against it. I happen to be for life and opposed to abortion. Others are for abortion.

Register: The last three Republican platforms have strongly opposed abortion. In light of the recent emphasis upon "the big tent," which would embrace all points of view on this issue, what do you think the Republican platform will look like in 1992?

Quayle: I'm sure it will reflect the prolife position. The Republican Party is not going to change just because there's a perception that the political winds have changed. This isn't an issue where you stick your finger in the air and decide which way you go. This is a matter of principle.

We understand that reasonable men and women can disagree on this. We're not going to run people out of the party who have a pro-choice position. As a matter of fact, they're welcome in the party, but we disagree with them on this issue. And they know that.

We're not going to deviate from our firm beliefs in trying to protect innocent unborn children. I would imagine that, though there will be many in our party who disagree, the 1992 platform will continue to have the basic position that we've had in the past.

Register: You've been the administration's point man in Latin America. What would you like to say to the U.S. Catholic community about the situation, especially in Central America, and about the role of Catholic groups in that region?

Quayle: What we're trying to achieve in Latin America is peace with freedom, and unfortunately any Church affiliation with groups like the FMLN [the Marxist-Leninist guerrillas in El Salvador] is not on the side of peace. The people who associate with those extremist organizations are really doing a disservice to the cause of peace.

We've got a real problem in El Salvador, for example, where we're trying to turn back the Cuban-sponsored FMLN guerrillas who want to overturn a democratically elected government. Anybody choosing to associate with revolution in El Salvador rather than democracy, I just think they're misguided. They may not be revolutionaries per se, but they certainly are supporting people who want to achieve power through killing rather than through peace and democracy.

Look at Nicaragua. You've got a very courageous cardinal down there, Miguel Obando y Bravo, who's done a lot for the cause of peace. He's taken his lumps trying to see democracy come to Nicaragua. He's been a real hero, a model for trying to bring constructive change and to advance social justice.

I would hope that all people would see what he's achieved, and then look at the problems we have in El Salvador and reflect upon what our goals are there before they side with the FMLN.

Register: Last year, you gave one of the leaders of China a list of imprisoned clergymen, both Catholic and Protestant. Have you had any feedback on that list? What do you see as the prospects for religious freedom in China?

Quayle: No, I haven't had any direct feedback. In the case of China, it's sometimes difficult to trace direct results of what we do. It's even harder to predict the future course of events. But we have to keep up hope — and keep up the pressure.

Register: Catholic voters tended for years to support Democrats. But they've become an important part of the Reagan/Bush coalition since the 1980 election. What do you see as the reason for this major shift in behavior, and do you think it has resulted in greater influence for Catholics in the Republican Party?

Quayle: Yes I do. The reason for the shift is clearly the abortion issue. It's been a galvanizing force for Republicans, especially with the Catholic constituency. But beyond that, family issues, family values, an emphasis on morality and tradition — these help Catholic feel far more comfortable today in the Republican Party than they did, say, several decades ago.

As a matter of fact I think many are feeling very uncomfortable in the Democratic Party, because the Democrats are becoming so single-issue when it comes to questions like abortion. They're the ones who have applied a litmus test. Look at their presidential candidates. You cannot be a serious contender for the presidency in the Democratic Party if you have anything but a pro-abortion position.

Register: Your eldest son attends a Catholic high school in Washington. Have you been pleased with his education? Has anything about it surprised you?

Quayle: We've been very pleased with the education our eldest son, Tucker, has received at Gonzaga, a Jesuit-run school just a few blocks from the Capitol. It offers both a solid academic program and a good athletic program. And it has a good mix of students from different backgrounds. This year, our second boy, Ben, will be joining his older brother there.

Register: Catholic school systems in our nation's major cities provide alternative education opportunities for hundreds of thousands of minority children. Do you support a system of education vouchers for those and other youngsters whose parents aren't satisfied with the public schools?

Quayle: Let me tell you: The reform of the 1990s in education will be choice. Choice in our education system is imperative.

Choice will enhance competitiveness. Choice will give us a quality education rather than the mediocrity we have right now. I'm convinced that this is going to be one of the reforms of the 1990s — notwithstanding the huge political pressure from the NEA [National Education Association] and other teacher unions that will oppose this.

Register: The administration has stood firmly against child-care proposals that would discriminate against religious day care. You visited a Catholic day-care institution in New York. Why, in your opinion, do liberals object so vehemently to helping parents who want Church-based care for their children?

Quayle: You'd have to ask them that. But I can assure you that the Bush administration will not tolerate that kind of discrimination against families who prefer Church-based care for their kids.

"NOTHING IS POLITICALLY RIGHT WHICH IS MORALLY WRONG."

— DANIEL O'CONNELL

AN INSIDER WITH MORAL VALUES

BY JACK FOWLER

But then Weber knows that, unlike the president, he is not in a position to make such decisions. And he has praise for the way President Bush has handled the situation. "The president must pre-

A WALL STREET JOURNAL profile on him is headlined "The GOP's Pragmatic Ideologue." To the Washington Post, he is the "consummate insider," while the National Journal describes him as a "policy maven" and "a behind-the-scenes problem solver."

The owner of these political monikers, the kind which Capitol Hill lawmakers dream of, is Vin Weber, the conservative Republican representing Minnesota's 2nd Congressional District. He is, in the words of colleague Henry Hyde, "one of the brightest, most creative and principled people I know. Vin is a perfect blue-white diamond in a sea of zircons."

Though not yet 40, Weber has already had a long political career. In 1978, at the age of 26, Weber, then co-publisher of a family weekly newspaper, managed the successful senatorial campaign of Republican Rudy Boschwitz. After a short stint as his senior aide in Minnesota, Weber decided to launch his own bid for Congress, and in 1980 was elected to the House, one of a large crop of fellow conservative fire-breathers swept into office with Ronald Reagan.

Ten years later, Weber finds himself both toned down in rhetoric (but not in ideology) and immersed in power. As Republican conference secretary he is the fifth ranking member — and the only Catholic — in the House GOP leadership. He has co-founded, with GOP whip Newt Gingrich, the Conservative Opportunity Society, the caucus that has spearheaded policy attacks that have unsettled both Democrats and moderate "Old Bull" Republicans alike. A recognized campaign pro, last year he became the vice chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee. And he possesses a seat on the influential Appropriations Committee.

Despite his partisan bent, Weber's amiable personality, high political position and bridge-building abilities make him the man lawmakers seek out in order to break through legislative logjams. Weber is often incorrectly characterized as Gingrich's sidekick, but, unlike the GOP whip, the Minnesotan is respected and trusted by his Democratic colleagues.

NOON ON JAN. 15, the day of the United Nations' deadline for Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, finds Capitol Hill with its security tightened and its mood somber. Weber, who days earlier voted for the House resolution giving the president a green light to attack Iraq, is nevertheless pensive and troubled. "I've never voted to send people to war before. I certainly don't enjoy it." Personally, Weber says he didn't "think we need to commit 400,000 troops to adhere" to objectives like ensuring "that Hussein does not become a nuclear power." Describing himself as thinking "more like an Israeli on this," Weber believes the United States "should have used air power to take out Iraq's nuclear and chemical weapons and then negotiated."

sent a stark option to the public, and he has," says Weber. "That's the way a democracy has to work."

WEBER IS A DEVOUT Catholic who finds himself on the front lines of Congress' abortion wars, saying he has "worked closely" on the issue with the U.S. Catholic Conference (USCC). He regards Mark Gallagher, its chief lobbyist, as "very effective" and "a good friend." Weber and the USCC have, however, had their confrontations, most notably when, in the mid-1980s, Weber emerged a vocal critic of the U.S. bishops' much-publicized peace pastoral.

Weber has also had his run-ins with fellow conservatives, who still bristle when recalling his support for U.S. economic sanctions against South Africa's apartheid government. But Weber doesn't regret his vote. "South Africa was heading for a race war that would have had devastating consequences for the U.S." His reason for supporting sanctions — "which, to my surprise, have had some success" — was the goal of a "peaceful transition for their society that allowed it some option other than a race war." Today, says Weber, "there's at least a chance that we could avoid the ultimate conflagration."

Weber believes that the South Africa sanctions fight exposed a benign deficiency held by some usual ideological allies. "There was a moral issue involved — some of my conservative friends go bonkers when I say that racism is a legitimate issue. The fact that the left has appropriated racism and applied it incorrectly to every issue doesn't mean actual racism doesn't exist."

WEBER AND HIS WIFE Cheryl recently added the first new member to their immediate family, Lauren Foster Weber. The Congressman, half joking and half earnest, says that her early October birth, smack during the raging campaign season, "was not optimal." But he has more than compensated for the then-heavy demands made by his job, having "taken the last few months off and spent them with my family."

As for the future, Weber — fatherhood aside — says he "has no burning desire to run for the Senate," and sees himself as staying in the House, where he finds he is "having some kind of impact." To pundits, that self-assessment would be viewed as an understatement. Given the limited means the highly outnumbered House Republicans have to influence Congress, they believe that Weber has indeed made a big impact. So big that many would wager, should the Republicans somehow find themselves a decade from now in the majority, that Weber will have a new title — Speaker of the House.

The Honorable Edward M. Rogers
Deputy Assistant to the President and Executive Assistant to the Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Mr. Rogers:

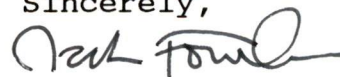

At the House Republican's recent Princeton retreat, I asked Governor Sununu if he would be amenable to my interviewing him for the National Catholic Register, a moderate-to-conservative, Los Angeles-based weekly for which I am a regular contributor. The Governor said he had no problem with doing an interview, but said I should contact you about it.

My desire is to do a 20-25 minute interview on Catholic and Catholic-related matters (i.e., abortion, child care, Central America, etc.), in addition to a personal question or two, and that the Q&A would be reprinted. Accompanying this would be a 900-word profile of the Governor.

Enclosed is a copy of a similar profile/interview that I did with Vice President Quayle last year, and a profile of Congressman Vin Weber. As you will be able to see, these profiles are positive pieces. Indeed, the intention of the Register's editors is to portray positively Catholics (the Vice President is an exception) in Washington who are playing an important role in shaping our national policies.

Naturally, I would be available at any time, and on whatever notice, should Governor Sununu agree to do this interview. Should you desire more information, please feel free to call. I thank you for your consideration of this request.

Sincerely,

Jack Fowler

TALKING POINTS FOR ED ROGERS

We are looking forward to having more than 400 people at the 3rd Andy Ireland Irish Picnic Dinner. Our previous speakers -- Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Marilyn Quayle -- were well-received, and offered keen insights into world affairs and national concerns.

Our audience is looking forward to hearing from Governor Sununu who is well-recognized as the "second most powerful man in Washington". The Governor certainly has the President's ear on issues of vital national concern, and we are hopeful that he can address some of those issues in his remarks.

It will best serve the Congressman's political interests if the Governor can share with the audience some of his thoughts on key parts of the Administration's domestic or foreign policy agendas. To the extent he is comfortable, we would appreciate the Governor pointing out the ways in which Congressman Ireland contributes to the accomplishment of those agendas through his vote, his work on the Small Business and Armed Services Committees and his efforts in behalf of the leadership as an assistant whip.

In short, we want the Governor's speech to be substantive in nature, and indicate that Congressman Ireland is a "player".

An issue to avoid discussing would be abortion. Congressman Ireland is very supportive of the President's position and has been "pro-life" for many years. It is not advisable in our district, however, to open this issue for discussion at this time.

On the way to the first event, Governor Sununu will ride with Congressman Ireland, Bobby McKown and Glenn Thomas, Executive Director and President respectively of Florida Citrus Mutual, the Florida citrus growers association. The discussion will center around trade issues and the Mexico-US Free Trade Agreement in particular.

You should know that Congressman Ireland is very supportive of free trade. He voted in favor of extending the President's "fast track" authority. However, he represents one of the key industries in this country which is most vulnerable under some trade proposals. He will be working closely with the Administration to fashion a final agreement which addresses the needs and concerns of this multi-billion dollar industry.

Enclosed are copies of correspondence we have had on this issue as well as a copy of the letter statement of Tom Lewis. Congressman Lewis and Congressman Ireland share similar views on this issue. Bobby McKown and Glenn Thomas will use this opportunity to simply discuss their viewpoint; they do not expect any commitment or guarantees from the Governor or the Administration at this time. Also enclosed is a copy of the latest Florida Citrus Mutual publication on this subject.

Dear Friend,

As you know, the United States Government has recently been granted the authority by Congress to negotiate trade agreements. This so-called "Fast Track" legislation passed, supported by a significant majority of the Members of the House of Representatives. "Fast Track" simply means that Congress must either vote these trade agreements "up or down". I want to assure you that I will oppose any agreement which does not provide a fair shake for Florida agriculture.

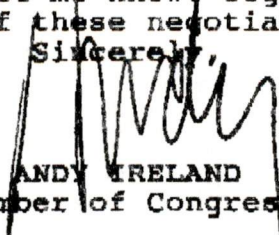

Negotiations on the U.S.- Mexico Free Trade proposal have not yet started and when they do it could take two years or more to complete. So, now is the time to make sure that any trade agreements between the United States and Mexico are in the best interests of Florida agriculture.

I have had many talks with Ambassador Hills, the U.S. Trade Representative, White House Chief of Staff John Sununu as well as the President and have received their personal assurances that Florida's agriculture producers will have extensive input in the negotiations. It is vitally important that we have this opportunity. It is obvious to me, and I am sure to you, that participation by our agriculture industry and its Congressional Representatives and Senators will be absolutely necessary if we are going to gain the necessary concessions in the agreement.

Over the past several months I have heard from many, many producers regarding the concerns you all have about the proposed agreement. I certainly understand those views and share your beliefs about the potential impact. At this time, I think we are in an excellent position to influence the course this or any other agreement might take. But, as I mentioned earlier, you can be sure I will oppose any agreements which do not provide a fair and level playing field for Florida's agriculture industry.

I hope this information is helpful. It's always good to hear from you so if you have any additional thoughts on this proposal, please let me know. Together we can have an impact on the outcome of these negotiations.

Sincerely,

ANDY IRELAND

Fast-track approval does not undermine FCM's position on North American Free Trade program

Florida Citrus Mutual Executive Vice President Bobby F. McKown assured citrus growers this week that the recent Congressional approval of a two-year extension of fast-track authority is not the end of the Florida citrus industry.

"The recent publicity concerning Congress' approval of the extension of fast-track authority for trade agreements has created some confusion as to whether this undermines Florida Citrus Mutual's efforts regarding the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement. Let me make this clear: it does not," McKown said.

"Florida Citrus Mutual supports the principles of free trade. Therefore we did not oppose an extension of fast-track authority as we knew that fast track simply means that Congress relinquishes the right to amend trade agreements once they are negotiated and must either vote them up or down. With this in mind, Florida Citrus Mutual has concentrated its efforts toward gaining an ex-authority for the Bush administration. The House approved fast-track on May 23.

Mutual is in favor of a level playing field, one in which the Florida and Mexican citrus industries would have comparable labor costs and regulations, similar worker health benefits and insurance programs, standardized food safety regulations and fully funded and operational environmental regulatory agencies. Currently, a level playing field does not exist.

"We must have more than assurances,"

McKown said. "Mutual believes the welfare of this industry is at stake and we've urged all of our members to contact their Congressional representatives and ask them to support an exemption for citrus. We want to make sure this free trade agreement results in fair trade for the Florida citrus industry," the Mutual executive concluded.

"Florida Citrus Mutual has concentrated its efforts toward gaining an exemption from the agreement for the Florida and U.S. citrus industries. And if the final agreement does not contain this exemption for citrus products, we must oppose it."

emption from the agreement for the Florida and U.S. citrus industries. And if the final agreement does not contain this exemption for citrus products, we must oppose it. We are adamantly opposed to the elimination or gradual reduction of the tariffs on imported citrus products," McKown said.

The Senate on May 24 joined the House in approving fast-track negotiating

Mutual's annual meeting is set

Florida Citrus Mutual Executive Vice President Bobby F. McKown reminded all growers this week to mark their calendars for Mutual's annual meeting.

The annual meeting will be held at 1 p.m., Wednesday, June 12, at Mutual's Lakeland headquarters.

Mutual's newly elected directors will be seated at this meeting and afterwards Mutual's Board of Directors will elect officers for the 1991-92 season.

During the annual meeting, an amendment will be voted on to extend Mutual's term of incorporation.

DOC proposes a $75.9 million budget for the 1991-92 season

Florida Citrus Mutual and other citrus organizations are in the process of reviewing the Florida Department of Citrus' proposed 1991-92 budget plan.

The proposed budget is based on a crop estimate of 168 million boxes of oranges and 53 million boxes of grapefruit. DOC officials said this may be a conservative estimate and that it could be adjusted after the October forecast is released.

The preliminary operating budget for the 1991-92 season is nearly $75.9 million, a slight decrease from the 1990-91 season budget of $76 million.

The proposed industry taxes to support the DOC's programs are as follows:

Fresh orange: 29 cents per box.

Processed orange: 16.5 cents per box.

Fresh grapefruit: 35 cents per box.

Processed grapefruit: 35 cents per box.

Fresh specialty: 35 cents per box.

Processed specialty: 16.5 cents per box.

One of the provisions in the 1991-92 budget plan calls for the elimination of the Symbol Incentive Program and the savings from the elimination of this program have been passed on to the growers in lower processed orange taxes. The processed orange tax was decreased from 18.5 cents per box to 16.5 cents per box. The tax on fresh specialty citrus was also reduced by 2 cents to the proposed 16.5 cents per box.

All other taxes remained the same as during the 1990-91 season.

The budget will come up for review again during the FCC's June meeting.

Dear Andy:

For your information, I have enclosed a copy of my letter to President Bush regarding my support for the extension of the fast track trading authority.

As we have discussed on several occasions, participation by Florida's agriculture producers is imperative to the composition of an agreement that will guarantee a fair and level playing field.

I appreciate your interest in the concerns of Florida's agriculture industry with respect to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). If I can be of any assistance to you regarding concerns or questions you may have on the agreement, please do not hesitate to contact me.

I look forward to working with you as we move through the negotiating process.

President George Bush
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

As Congress moves closer to floor consideration of the proposed "fast track" trading authority, I would like to express my appreciation for the interest you and members of your Cabinet have shown me regarding the deep concerns of Florida's agriculture industry with respect to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA).

Your personal assurances, as well as those I have received from Secretary Madigan, Ambassador Hills and Governor Sununu leave me comfortable that Florida's agriculture producers will have extensive input into the formulation and negotiation of a NAFTA. As I have stated many times, participation by the State's agriculture industry in the negotiations is imperative to the composition of an agreement that will guarantee a fair and level playing field. In addition, their involvement will continue to assure America's consumers that our produce supply is safe, healthy and abundant.

Mr. President, understanding the need for a negotiating mechanism to expand foreign markets and reduce internal trade-distorting policies, I intend to vote with you in support of extending the fast track authority. I stand ready to assist you in any manner possible to ensure that the concerns of Florida's agriculture producers are incorporated into the North American Free Trade Agreement.

I look forward to working with you and your Administration.

With warmest regards,

Tom

Mr. Ed Rogers
Executive Assistant to the
Chief of Staff
The White House
Washington, DC 20500

Dear Ed:

Enclosed is an invitation to our upcoming Irish Picnic Dinner, and some background materials which I thought would be helpful to you and the Governor as you prepare for his trip to Florida. I have included a proposed time schedule.

We are working on securing a private plane to pick John up at Butler Aviation at National Airport. Kathy Wood in my office will be in touch with your office to confirm these arrangements.

We would plan a short press availability at the airport.

Also at the airport, we would ask that John take 10 minutes to meet with Bobby McKown, Executive Director of Florida Citrus Mutual (the citrus growers association). As you know, citrus is a key industry in Florida and is predominate in my District. There is deep concern about the US-Mexico Free Trade Agreement. In the face of their opposition, I voted in favor of giving the President "fast track" authority, and will be working closely with the Administration in the months ahead to assure careful consideration of key details which effect Florida agriculture. This brief opportunity will serve to reinforce the Administration's awareness of the importance of the issues and my personal efforts in this matter.

We will drive from the airport to the home of my good friends, Dan and Glenda Miller. They are hosting a small reception for the 50 or so Dinner Committee members and their spouses. We would ask John to stand with Nancy and me in a receiving line to greet our guests. No remarks here, but we will have a photographer if you have no objection.

We will leave the reception and drive to the Manatee County Civic Center where the Irish Picnic Dinner begins at 7:00 pm. We are expecting approximately 3-400 people. I will introduce John and we would ask him to speak for approximately 20 minutes. We are not planning a question and answer period.

OK
We would say our goodbys immediately after the speech, and while Nancy and I would remain at the event, we would have a car waiting to take John back to the Sarasota-Bradenton airport. Wheels up would be 9:00 pm.

OK
I have prepared a short background sheet on Bradenton and Manatee County which I hope will be helpful to you. While this is a political event, we would appreciate substantive remarks on a subject or subjects of the Governor's choice. Substance is John's strong suit, and this is exactly what we need.

Talking pts
You should know that I have represented Manatee County since I was first elected to Congress in 1976. After redistricting, I plan to continue this representation, and have announced that I am moving my residency from my home of Winter Haven in interior, central Florida to Manatee County on the Gulf Coast. I intend to run for re-election from the newly constituted district which includes Manatee County. While this incurs some risk for me, it should substantially help the Republican cause of redistricting in other parts of Florida.

We're looking forward to having John in Florida with us. Please be in touch with me or my Administrative Assistant, Kathy Wood, about these details. Many thanks for your great help.

Sincerely,

Outer Continental Shelf Oil and Gas Development - OCS activity in the Eastern Gulf of Mexico is a most contentious issue and has been a concern of Floridians for more than a decade. The President's decision to place off limits the area south of 26 degrees north latitude as well as the Florida Keys and the Straits of Florida until the year 2000 was a welcomed one.

Tourism is Florida's leading industry. Any degradation of our shores or emerald green waters would wreak havoc on the tourist and fishing economy. All but one Member of the Florida Delegation has signed a letter to the House Interior Appropriations Committee asking for a one-year ban on pre-lease steps, leasing, exploration, permits for Sale 137 (Current Program) or Sale 151 (Draft Program) in the Eastern Gulf of Mexico, and the issuance of drilling permits for any existing leases within the planning area. In addition, we have requested a 100-mile buffer around the State of Florida.

Trade Agreements- The Florida citrus industry has grave concerns about any free trade agreement with Mexico that either reduces or eliminates the tariffs on imported citrus products. This view is held by a majority of citrus growers, packers and processors. In addition to a free trade arrangement with Mexico, proposals are under consideration for duty reductions on farm and other products in the Uruguay Round of the GATT.

In addition to the livelihood of some 144,000 persons, these products are critically important to Florida's economy in other respects. The on-tree value of citrus in the 1988-89 season was $1.4 billion. Citrus accounted for almost 30 percent of the $5.8 billion in farm receipts in Florida in 1988. In the 1988-89 season, the industry is estimated to have generated receipts at the wholesale level in excess of $3.5 billion. The total capital investment in Florida is conservatively estimated at about $7 billion.

The honest concern in Florida is that the survival of the industry is at stake. A meeting with a key representative of the industry will go a long way towards reinforcing the appreciation of the Administration for their concerns.

Anna Maria Island Beach Renourishment - Since Manatee County is located directly on the Gulf of Mexico, beach renourishment has been a key issue in the last several years. Congress has appropriated funds for the Army Corps of Engineers to proceed with the plan for beach renourishment. The project has now been held up because of the need for revisions to the plan and the lengthy permitting process. Congressman Ireland has requested the Corps to expedite the project so it can begin prior the Fall hurricane season.

Other issues of concern

Civil Rights - H.R. 1, currently before Congress is clearly a quota bill. Quotas only serve to promote racial division, not civil rights. This year the Michel substitute retains the original intent of the 1964 Civil Rights Act -- to provide conciliation, prompt and equitable resolution of difference and reasonable restitution to an aggrieved employee.

This proposal will provide the best protection for workers from being judged by the color of their skin or the country fo their birth, whether male or female, instead of by how well they perform a job. At the same time, we protect small employers who would be trapped by the Democratic proposal between illegal quotas and costly damage awards that could force them to close their doors.

Education - The issue of choice in education is an increasingly popular one among parents and children alike. Secretary Alexander has mentioned many proposals that would bring our current system of education into a more progressive era. I believe that our present system certainly needs to be revamped to enable all children to obtain a quality education and an education that best suits their individual needs. As such I am a cosponsor of the President's recently introduced education package.

Striker Replacement - I believe that the current provisions under the National Labor Relations Act provide the appropriate framework for the resolution of labor-management disputes. H.R. 5, the House proposal, would establish two classes of workers for the first time in labor-law history. It would give union employees protections under the law that non-union employees would not have. All in all, this proposal is bad for small business.

REPUBLICAN GOVERNORS ASSOCIATION

MEMORANDUM

TO: Governor Tommy Thompson
Governor Jim Edgar
Governor George Voinovich
Governor John Sununu
White House Chief-of-Staff

FROM: Chris Henick, Executive Director

DATE: June 4, 1991

RE: RGA Chicago Reception

First and foremost, I want to genuinely thank you for agreeing to participate in this Republican Governors Association fundraiser. Governor Edgar of Illinois has agreed to host this event and I believe this new format will provide our donors with additional insight into the salient issues of the day. This event will be held at Spiaggia's Private Dining on Tuesday, June 11th.

Since this reception is a departure from a typical fundraising event, I thought a suggested format may be in order.

This is a two-tiered fundraising event. The first tier is a combination Reception and Open Forum Discussion. This reception begins at 5:30 p.m., with an informal mix and mingle lasting until roughly 6:00 p.m. to 6:05 p.m. At 6:05 p.m., Governor Edgar will open and serve as the moderator for the event by welcoming everyone and making the proper introductions - i.e., Governor Tommy Thompson of Wisconsin and Vice-Chairman of the RGA, Governor George Voinovich of Ohio and Governor John Sununu, White House Chief of Staff. Moreover, former Governor Jim Thompson of Illinois and RGA Director of Special Projects Nancy Sununu will be introduced and seated on the front row facing the dias. Conceptually, this format and seating arrangement will be similar to the "McLaughlin Group" set, hopefully however, minus the staged acrimony.

Governor Edgar will open the discussion by introducing the topic of improving the partnership between the federal government and state governments - the President's concept of turning over $15 billion in federal programs in a block grant to the states.

Governor Sununu will then present the administration's concept and design of this proposal submitted in the President's budget. Governor Edgar will then turn to Governor Tommy Thompson who could discuss how this transfer will impact the states politically. A suggested comment on past restrictive programs and lack of flexibility could be elaborated upon. Governor Voinovich would then follow by citing examples from Ohio and how this concept could improve the delivery of social services and the success of the states administering past block grants. Governor Edgar similarly could add additional insights and personal anecdotes in Illinois and then initiate a dialogue between the four participants. Each participant should plan approximately 5 minutes for their initial comments.

Close to 6:40 p.m., Governor Edgar will invite questions from the audience on this domestic topic or any other subject. The Forum discussion will conclude at 6:55 p.m.

Following the reception, the RGA will be hosting a small dinner to be held in an adjoining room beginning at 7:00 p.m. for our donors who contributed an additional $1,000. This dinner is the second tier of the two-tiered event. Before the dinner, a list of seating arrangements will be submitted to each Governor's office in advance. Prior to the conclusion of the dinner, Governor Edgar will make informal closing thanks to the participants and donors. The dinner should conclude around 8:30 p.m.

For your information, I have affixed a statement by Governor John Ashcroft which he delivered to the Budget Committee in the United States Senate during a hearing on block grants earlier this year.

RE: Confirmation of June 7th event

Jackie, I will update you as we make progress on all of the arrangements for Governor Sununu's visit to Maine. Here is a brief outline to date:

Friday, June 7, 1991

1. Cocktail reception; 100 attendees; $250/person
Portland Museum of Art Portland, Maine
5:30 PM - 6:30 PM
  2. Dinner; 350 attendees; $65/person
Sonesta Hotel Portland, Maine (just a brief walk from the Museum).
7:00 PM (Governor Sununu will speak before the dinner is served, as you mentioned he likes doing).
- No Formal Press Conference; informal picture-taking throughout the evening.
3. I am putting the formal invitations in the mail to you.
  4. We are expecting Governor Sununu, Mrs. Sununu and Mr. Ed Rogers. We would be happy to accomodate other staff persons also. We will have cars at the airport and will work out logistical details with you soon.

Thank you very much! I am doing site visits and reviewing menus tomorrow and will be in touch. Thank you again for all of your help.

*Marshall said

The student body at New York Law School is principally working/middle class. A large percentage of these students, both in the day and evening divisions, work full-time either for state or municipal government or on Wall Street. There is a strong tradition of policemen attending New York Law School. The school is located on Worth Street, adjacent to New York City Hall and is good for working, middle class people who want to get ahead. It has always had a strong representation of minorities and women (remember Harvard Law School only began accepting women in the 1950's. New York Law School accepted women from its early days.)

This is the 100th year of New York Law School -- its centennial. Some of the school's graduates will go to famous corporate law firms. But more will serve as District Attorneys, public defenders, corporation counsel - making the sinews of government work - or at small law firms - making small business work.

In light of this demographic profile of the student population, I suggest that you emphasize the following points.

1. You served as a Governor for 6 years and presently serve as the President's Chief of Staff, but you're not a lawyer.
2. You grew up in New York, and are the son of immigrants who came to America as a land of opportunity. [Note: Mayor Dinkins, who will follow you as a speaker, may hit on a "Save New York" theme. You may want to say a few words about what it was like for you to grow up in New York, and how much you care about what happens to New York.]

3. New York Law School is a school of opportunity -- providing working people who might otherwise not be able to attend law school, and who are willing to work hard, the opportunity to become attorneys at law, and to hopefully better their lives and the lives of their families.
4. Putting politics aside for a moment, receipt of an honorary degree from a school of opportunity by a man who is here because America is a land of opportunity is a very meaningful event.
5. You may want to discuss your perspectives on Federalism, which has the benefit of your personal insight from federal and state government service. Your perspective on Federalism as Chief of Staff in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government may differ from your perspective as Governor of New Hampshire. Then again, perhaps your experience as Chief of Staff has reinforced your conclusions about the role of Federalism in our society. The audience would probably be very interested in this topic.
6. You may also wish to discuss the problems of managing a Presidency with an imperial Congress. Boyden Gray may have examples which he can provide of Congress micromanaging the branches of the Executive through appropriations riders, etc. Putting aside questions regarding the constitutionality of some of this micromanagement (in the foreign affairs area, for example), you might want to talk about the basic problem of governing when Congress is on your back. The problem of base closings is an example of this, and the Presidents Commission is a creative effort to solve this by forcing Congress into an up-or-down vote.
7. A briefing paper on NYLS will follow.

BY FACSIMILE

OFFICE OF
THE CHAIRMAN

TO:	Ed Rodgers
FROM:	Marshall J. Breger MB
RE:	Briefing on New York Law School

As you know, I will be travelling to New York Sunday morning. Let me know if you want me to brief the Governor futher en route or otherwise.

As you are aware, there may be "ACT-UP" demonstrations on Sunday. The school feels that they will be in control of the situation and doubts, in any event, that their students or properly-invited guests will present much of a problem. You may want to have the New York police review what the outsiders are really up to.

The Dean is trying to have Mayor Dinkins speak first (he is resisting) and to find out what Dinkins is speaking on; that information will be relayed to you as soon as it is available.

As always, feel free to call about any of this; I will be in Williamsburg, Virginia, at the Williamsburg Lodge for a meeting of the Judicial Conference on Wednesday afternoon - Friday afternoon (804/229-1000). You can reach me there or at home (301/585-0511) until just before 8 pm Friday; in observance of the Sabbath I will be out of pocket until 9 pm Saturday evening, but can be contacted afterwards.

MEMORANDUM

TO:	Governor Sununu
FROM:	Marshall J. Breger MB
RE:	Background on New York Law School

New York Law School (NYLS) is one of the few reputable free-standing law schools not associated with a university. It was founded in 1891 by a break-away contingent from Columbia Law School unhappy with curriculum innovations when Columbia shifted to the "case study method." This year is its centennial year.

The school had moments of glory (Woodrow Wilson and Charles Evan Hughes taught there and Justice Harlan graduated from NYLS in 1924), but after the Depression, it settled into a period of relative senescence. It served New York's lower middle class -- Irish, Italian and Jewish, and had a large number of night law school students (including many policemen and firemen). As New York's demography has changed, Blacks and Hispanics attend NYLS earlier and in greater numbers than other institutions.

NYLS graduates are not programmed for large corporate law firms. They provide the sinews that allow the machinery of justice to work: they staff prosecutors' offices, legal aid societies and the corporation counsels' offices. They work for the state attorney-general and staff city and state agencies. They are in small firms around the metropolitan area. Some of their number have reached high positions, including Congressman Gilman and former Congressman (now Staten Island Borough President) Molinari. But they likely started in humble circumstances. One born with a silver spoon in one's mouth does not come to NYLS.

There are 337 students in the 1991 graduating class, 251 in the day division, 86 in the evening program. Of the total graduates, 162 are women (about 48%), and 42 (about 12%) designate themselves as minority.

OFFICE OF
THE CHAIRMAN

MEMORANDUM

BY FACSIMILE

TO: Ed Rogers
FROM: Marshall J. Breger msb
RE: The Governor's trip to New York Law School

I have again spoken with the Dean of New York Law School and want to report to you regarding the Governor's June 9 trip.

1. It is my belief that if the Governor speaks first, before Mayor Dinkins, this will minimize disruption as malcontents will not want to walk out on Dinkins. The Dean is working to accomplish this.
2. Those faculty who intend to protest will likely remain seated when the Governor gets his degree. Some will not attend but their absence should not be noted because there will be no empty seats. It is unlikely that the faculty members will actively disrupt.
3. The situation is less clear regarding the students -- although many will be restrained by the fact that they have parents and relatives present. I have discussed with the Dean whether he intends to meet with unhappy students beforehand to draw out some of their frustration (the student body did not participate in the speaker selection process) and he assured me that he intends to do so.
4. I intend (subject to your veto) to visit the law school during the week of May 27 to "spy out the land."
5. The law school had invited the Governor to a dinner Saturday evening (June 8) with their Board of Directors and wanted to know if he wished to attend.

Ed Rogers
May 22, 1991

In the interim, I have some suggestions:

1. The fact that Dinkins is speaking in the context of the NYC fiscal crisis will heighten media focus on this event, since Dinkins has been pointing to federal cutbacks as the root of his problem. Query whether it would be a nice gesture to offer to meet with Dinkins for 10-15 minutes after the ceremony to discuss NYC. That way Dinkins will have an incentive to cool his rhetoric. I hope to be able to advise you of the topics of Mayor Dinkins' speech by the end of the month.
2. This will be a big media event for the Sunday evening news and Monday papers in New York. Should you set up another event for the Governor to provide a contrast to any negative slant from the law school story? Guy Molinari or Roy Goodman may have suggestions. Or I can work to get him into the "outer boroughs."
3. Real attention might be given to the speech which, because it is a law school address, ought to be a serious statement. A friend of the Governor's, George Salem, has spoken to me about developing a proposed text. Subject to hearing otherwise from you, I intend to work with Salem on this. It would be helpful, however, to speak with you regarding themes the Governor is most interested in, and points he wants to make.

I will check in with you later this week on all this.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Governor John Sununu

FROM: George Salem GS
Marshall Breger

DATE: June 5, 1991

RE: Suggested Themes and Talking Points for Accepting Honorary Degree from New York Law School on June 9, 1991

Marshall says there are 200 to 300 protestors.

*(Gau Taper)
ACTOP group
Jan.*

The student body at New York Law School is principally working/middle class. A large percentage of these students, both in the day and evening divisions, work full-time either for state or municipal government or on Wall Street. There is a strong tradition of policemen attending New York Law School. The school is located on Worth Street, adjacent to New York City Hall and is good for working, middle class people who want to get ahead. It has always had a strong representation of minorities and women (remember Harvard Law School only began accepting women in the 1950's. New York Law School accepted women from its early days.)

This is the 100th year of New York Law School -- its centennial. Some of the school's graduates will go to famous corporate law firms. But more will serve as District Attorneys, public defenders, corporation counsel - making the sinews of government work - or at small law firms - making small business work.

In light of this demographic profile of the student population, I suggest that you emphasize the following points.

1. You served as a Governor for 6 years and presently serve as the President's Chief of Staff, but you're not a lawyer.
2. You grew up in New York, and are the son of immigrants who came to America as a land of opportunity. [Note: Mayor Dinkins, who will follow you as a speaker, may hit on a "Save New York" theme. You may want to say a few words about what it was like for you to grow up in New York, and how much you care about what happens to New York.]

3. New York Law School is a school of opportunity -- providing working people who might otherwise not be able to attend law school, and who are willing to work hard, the opportunity to become attorneys at law, and to hopefully better their lives and the lives of their families.
4. Putting politics aside for a moment, receipt of an honorary degree from a school of opportunity by a man who is here because America is a land of opportunity is a very meaningful event.
5. You may want to discuss your perspectives on Federalism, which has the benefit of your personal insight from federal and state government service. Your perspective on Federalism as Chief of Staff in the Executive Branch of the Federal Government may differ from your perspective as Governor of New Hampshire. Then again, perhaps your experience as Chief of Staff has reinforced your conclusions about the role of Federalism in our society. The audience would probably be very interested in this topic.
6. You may also wish to discuss the problems of managing a Presidency with an imperial Congress. Boyden Gray may have examples which he can provide of Congress micromanaging the branches of the Executive through appropriations riders, etc. Putting aside questions regarding the constitutionality of some of this micromanagement (in the foreign affairs area, for example), you might want to talk about the basic problem of governing when Congress is on your back. The problem of base closings is an example of this, and the Presidents Commission is a creative effort to solve this by forcing Congress into an up-or-down vote.
7. A briefing paper on NYLS will follow.

MEMORANDUM

OFFICE OF
THE CHAIRMAN

TO: Ed Rodgers

FROM: Marshall J. Breger MB

RE: Briefing on New York Law School

As you know, I will be travelling to New York Sunday morning. Let me know if you want me to brief the Governor further en route or otherwise.

As you are aware, there may be "ACT-UP" demonstrations on Sunday. The school feels that they will be in control of the situation and doubts, in any event, that their students or properly-invited guests will present much of a problem. You may want to have the New York police review what the outsiders are really up to.

The Dean is trying to have Mayor Dinkins speak first (he is resisting) and to find out what Dinkins is speaking on; that information will be relayed to you as soon as it is available.

As always, feel free to call about any of this; I will be in Williamsburg, Virginia, at the Williamsburg Lodge for a meeting of the Judicial Conference on Wednesday afternoon - Friday afternoon (804/229-1000). You can reach me there or at home (301/585-0511) until just before 8 pm Friday; in observance of the Sabbath I will be out of pocket until 9 pm Saturday evening, but can be contacted afterwards.

June 5, 1991

MEMORANDUM

TO: Governor Sununu
FROM: Marshall J. Breger MB
RE: Background on New York Law School

New York Law School (NYLS) is one of the few reputable free-standing law schools not associated with a university. It was founded in 1891 by a break-away contingent from Columbia Law School unhappy with curriculum innovations when Columbia shifted to the "case study method." This year is its centennial year.

The school had moments of glory (Woodrow Wilson and Charles Evan Hughes taught there and Justice Harlan graduated from NYLS in 1924), but after the Depression, it settled into a period of relative senescence. It served New York's lower middle class -- Irish, Italian and Jewish, and had a large number of night law school students (including many policemen and firemen). As New York's demography has changed, Blacks and Hispanics attend NYLS earlier and in greater numbers than other in institutions.

NYLS graduates are not programmed for large corporate law firms. They provide the sinews that allow the machinery of justice to work: they staff prosecutors' offices, legal aid societies and the corporation counsels' offices. They work for the state attorney-general and staff city and state agencies. They are in small firms around the metropolitan area. Some of their number have reached high positions, including Congressman Gilman and former Congressman (now Staten Island Borough President) Molinari. But they likely started in humble circumstances. One born with a silver spoon in one's mouth does not come to NYLS.

There are 337 students in the 1991 graduating class, 251 in the day division, 86 in the evening program. Of the total graduates, 162 are women (about 48%), and 42 (about 12%) designate themselves as minority.

OFFICE OF
THE CHAIRMAN

MEMORANDUM

BY FACSIMILE

TO: Ed Rogers
FROM: Marshall J. Breger (MSB)
RE: The Governor's trip to New York Law School

I have again spoken with the Dean of New York Law School and want to report to you regarding the Governor's June 9 trip.

1. It is my belief that if the Governor speaks first, before Mayor Dinkins, this will minimize disruption as malcontents will not want to walk out on Dinkins. The Dean is working to accomplish this.
2. Those faculty who intend to protest will likely remain seated when the Governor gets his degree. Some will not attend but their absence should not be noted because there will be no empty seats. It is unlikely that the faculty members will actively disrupt.
3. The situation is less clear regarding the students -- although many will be restrained by the fact that they have parents and relatives present. I have discussed with the Dean whether he intends to meet with unhappy students beforehand to draw out some of their frustration (the student body did not participate in the speaker selection process) and he assured me that he intends to do so.
4. I intend (subject to your veto) to visit the law school during the week of May 27 to "spy out the land."
5. The law school had invited the Governor to a dinner Saturday evening (June 8) with their Board of Directors and wanted to know if he wished to attend.

In the interim, I have some suggestions:

1. The fact that Dinkins is speaking in the context of the NYC fiscal crisis will heighten media focus on this event, since Dinkins has been pointing to federal cutbacks as the root of his problem. Query whether it would be a nice gesture to offer to meet with Dinkins for 10-15 minutes after the ceremony to discuss NYC. That way Dinkins will have an incentive to cool his rhetoric. I hope to be able to advise you of the topics of Mayor Dinkins' speech by the end of the month.
2. This will be a big media event for the Sunday evening news and Monday papers in New York. Should you set up another event for the Governor to provide a contrast to any negative slant from the law school story? Guy Molinari or Roy Goodman may have suggestions. Or I can work to get him into the "outer boroughs."
3. Real attention might be given to the speech which, because it is a law school address, ought to be a serious statement. A friend of the Governor's, George Salem, has spoken to me about developing a proposed text. Subject to hearing otherwise from you, I intend to work with Salem on this. It would be helpful, however, to speak with you regarding themes the Governor is most interested in, and points he wants to make.

I will check in with you later this week on all this.
