Dear Mr. President:

As you know, Senate procedure provides for the sending of a "blue slip" to each Senator in the state in which a person has been nominated to be a federal judge. There have been occasions, albeit quite infrequent, when home state Senators have returned a "negative" blue slip to express their opposition to the nomination. I am writing today to apprise you of the blue slip policy I recently announced, which will be followed by the Judiciary Committee for all nominations from this point forward.

By way of brief background, the practice of the Judiciary Committee with respect to a negative blue slip has varied historically. For many years -- under both Democratic and Republican chairmanships -- the return of a negative blue slip meant that the nomination simply would not be considered. That policy was modified under Senator Kennedy's chairmanship, so that the return of a negative blue slip would not preclude consideration of the nomination. A hearing and vote would be held, although the return of a negative blue slip would be given substantial weight.

At the Judiciary Committee's business meeting on May 18, I articulated the blue slip policy that the committee will follow under my chairmanship. The return of a negative blue slip will be a significant factor to be weighed by the committee in its evaluation of a judicial nominee, but it will not preclude consideration of that nominee unless the Administration has not consulted with both home state Senators prior to submitting the nomination to the Senate. If such good faith consultation has not taken place, the Judiciary Committee will treat the return of a negative blue slip by a home state Senator as dispositive and the nominee will not be considered. In cases in which there are no home state Senators, such as Puerto Rico, the sitting governor should be consulted.

Est. Late

The President
Page 2

I have long emphasized the need for consultation, which, in my view, is part of the "advice" component of the Senate's advice and consent responsibility under the Constitution. I believe that the nominations process will function more effectively if consultation is taken seriously.

I look forward to continuing to work with you in the judicial nominations process.

Sincerely,

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.
Chairman

Dear John:

Delighted to see you and Nancy a couple of times briefly last week. Thought the entire Inaugural celebration went splendidly from start to finish.

This note is to let you know that I'd like to be appointed to the Advisory Committee for Trade Negotiations (ACTN). This is the Presidentially appointed private sector advisory committee which offers trade policy advice to the President and the U.S. Trade Representative.

I am already quite familiar with the workings of this group, having served two terms as a Reagan appointee (1982-86). Following this, Clayton asked me to join the Services Policy Advisory Committee (SPAC) where I currently serve. I would propose to join the ACTN and vacate my seat on SPAC. This is a long way of saying that re-joining the ACTN is simply a continuation of an activity in which I am already involved, and would not fall into the category of the "special assignment(s)" that I'd be delighted to undertake for President Bush.

In the last Administration, the ACTN's membership was decided through negotiation between Presidential Personnel and the Trade Representative. Although I'm not sure how you intend to operate, I have taken the liberty of talking with Carla. My appointment would be fine with her, and of course, I'll be supportive of what she's doing. I'll be pleased to pursue this in whatever way is best.

The Honorable John Sununu

A bit of humor: somewhere during the past few days, I met a Commissioner-of-something in New Hampshire, Linda somebody, who was appointed by you. She indicated that a part of your reputation was inaccurate -- specifically, that you do not suffer fools gladly. Her view is that you do not suffer them at all!

Hoping to see you again soon, and in the meantime, sending thanks and warm wishes,

Sincerely,

Barbara

COUNTRIES LIST

NOTES:

1. This list contains 47 countries (plus Bermuda) that either have non-career ambassadors now or have career ambassadors whose 3-year tours expire in 1989.
2. The list does not contain those countries with ambassadorships previously decided by the President.
3. A month in parentheses indicates a country with a career ambassador whose 3-year tour expires that month.
4. As of the end of the Reagan Administration, the division of bilateral ambassadorships was:

Career: 89 (64%)
Non-Career: 51 (36%)

5. Of 21 previous presidential decisions (including the EEC), the division is:

Career: 7 (+4)
Non-Career: 14
