OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT-ELECT
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20270

December 5, 1988

Mr. Pat Robertson
Christian Broadcasting Network
Virginia Beach, VA 23463

Dear Pat:

Thanks for your kind words on my recent appointment as Chief-of-Staff.

I appreciate the great effort you put in during the campaign. I know me of the great results you achieved, especially in the area of voter registration. I know the President-Elect has expressed his thanks.

I received your recommendations for Randy Estes and Charlie Judd. Your support for them certainly reflects well on their qualifications and character.

I'm sorry that we didn't have a chance to meet when you were in Washington on Friday. I was enjoying a rare vacation in Colorado with my wife. But I understand that your meeting with the Vice President was very productive and worthwhile.

Pat, I personally look forward to a continued dialogue. Hopefully, we can call on your great talents and grasp of issues.

Thanks for your thoughts and prayers.

Best regards,

John H. Sununu

See you soon, I hope!

Dear John:

I hope all is going well and look forward to meeting with President-Elect Bush on Friday, December 2, 1988. I do hope while I am in D.C. that we might be able to visit for a couple of minutes.

I am forwarding a copy of my Personal Administrative Aides resume. I recommend Randy Estes, because of his continued desire to serve the Bush Administration. Randy is most capable of serving in Presidential Personnel and would be a great asset in the area of Boards and Commissions.

Randy has spent many hours coding and assigning political priorities to potential Presidential appointments. He certainly is organized and most willing to put in the long hours that will be necessary to continue to handle the influx of resumes.

John, I sincerely appreciate your assistance with this matter and believe that a proper place might become available for Randy.

Sincerely,

Pat Robertson

The Honorable John H. Sununu
c/o 1988 Presidential Transition Team
1825 Connecticut Avenue, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20270

Dear John:

Congratulations. As you requested I contacted one of the nation's Jewish leaders on your behalf, but I really don't believe it was necessary. I am simply delighted that you will be in this key position.

As I suggested when we talked on the phone this week, there needs to be a strong evangelical on the Transition Team to make sure that this very key component of the Bush coalition has representation.

I recommend Charlie Judd. Charlie has just run for Congress as the Republican nominee in Virginia's Sixth District. He has experience not only as the executive director of the Republican Party in Ohio, but as the assistant national finance chairman of the Party under Joe Rogers. He was executive director of the Moral Majority prior to his Congressional run, and, to the best of my knowledge, he enjoys respect and support wherever he is known throughout the evangelical community. I am enclosing his resume.

There are some very able evangelicals (who are very strong conservatives) already in key positions in the Reagan administration. I leave tomorrow for a week in South Africa where I will be broadcasting by satellite back to the United States. I will be back on the 28th, and hope that we can get together in Washington or New Hampshire so that I could point out several of these fine people to you.

In the meantime, thank God you are on board the team. With warm personal regards, I am

Your friend,

STATEMENT FROM PAT ROBERTSON
JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA

NOVEMBER 27, 1988

I came to South Africa with an experienced television news staff to learn the truth about South Africa and to report in a balanced fashion that truth to an extensive audience watching our television network in the United States.

Our staff journeyed from Angola to the border of Mozambique. Our television program was transmitted via satellite to the United States on successive days from Cape Town, Ulundi, Johannesburg, Soweto and the bush veld near Kruger Park. I talked to the leader of the Independent Party, the Conservative Party, the Labor Party, and key leaders of the Asian block in Parliament. We talked to Jonas Savimbi of UNITA and refugees from Mozambique. I spoke extensively to the key leaders of the Zulus and to key Xhosa leaders from Transkei. Our staff met with the leader of Venda. I had extensive dialogue with the black mayors of Soweto and citizens in Crossroads near the Cape. I met the leader of the Dutch Reformed Church and addressed the leadership of the Church Alliance of South Africa. We talked to businessmen, hospital personnel, and an expert on South African history. We visited mines and shopping centers and coastlines and game reserves. I met entertainers and journalists and shopkeepers and game wardens. Finally, I spoke at length with the Minister of Information, the Deputy Minister of Finance, the Foreign Minister, and the State President. Here are my feelings.

It is clear that the institutional and interpersonal apartheid of 15 years ago has changed dramatically. Although much remains to be done, it is my firm belief that the reservoir of goodwill that now exists in the political center of the South African population will lead in the next 5 years to the adoption of a democratic constitution for South Africa that will bring about full participation of all races in the highest levels of a new government organized to guarantee minority rights and property rights for its citizens. The new constitution will undoubtedly adapt to South Africa the best features of a federal system like that of the United States and a Canton system like that of Switzerland.

Secondly, I am persuaded that the majority of the South African blacks want peaceful change under a free enterprise system, not violent revolution and Marxist socialism. It seems that those leaders advocating violence will find themselves leading an ever decreasing minority. I am equally persuaded that the majority of whites in South Africa are committed to a process of political momentum that will result in a just and equitable sharing of political power with blacks. Therefore to the vast majority of South Africans a return to the oppressive racial policies of the past is unthinkable.

Finally, I have discovered that the overwhelming majority of blacks, coloureds, and asians oppose sanctions and disinvestment. Sanctions clearly are falling most severely on poor blacks. It seems ironic that the victims of apartheid are now being victimized again by the sanctions intended to help them.

Blacks need and want education, housing, and good jobs. Sanctions and disinvestment are counterproductive to the betterment of South Africa's blacks because on the one hand the withdrawal of investment capital makes further black economic empowerment almost impossible, while on the other hand sanctions harden the attitudes of those who resist change.

On Friday, I am scheduled for a meeting with President-Elect George Bush at which time I plan to share briefly my findings from my visit to South Africa.

I personally believe that the United States should recognize the progress being made by South Africa in the treatment of its black citizens and its relationships with its neighbors. Sanctions and disinvestment against South Africa should, in my opinion, be discontinued as a policy of the United States.

Above all else, I have come to South Africa to bring a message of hope, love and reconciliation through Jesus Christ. If my findings seem optimistic it is because of my deep faith in Him and because of the strong Christian faith I have Pat Robertson, just back from South Africa, gave me the attached paper. He did say that Pik Botha felt that he had a commitment to come either to Washington or the United Nations for a treaty signing regarding the Cuban troop withdrawal from Angola and the fulfillment of UN Resolution 435 on Namibia.

There was a big article in a leading South African paper saying that Pik had facilitated the Cuban troop withdrawal deal in order to help the new administration. This is a highly complex subject, but one that I am anxious to have reviewed at an early date, trying to find some way for the United States to play a constructive role.
