BRENT SCOWCROFT

FROM:

ROGER B. PORTER RBP

SUBJECT:

Preparing for the Paris Economic Summit

As we have agreed, the three of us have the responsibility for preparing for the President's participation in the Paris Economic Summit on July 14-16. We have an immediate need to provide the U.S. Sherpas with instructions for their international meeting on June 2-4. This will require obtaining the President's guidance on objectives before he departs for Europe on Friday, May 26. The President's guidance will be particularly important on issues such as global warming that will be evolving rapidly both before and after the Summit.

I suggest that the three of us meet for a half hour as early as possible next week to discuss next steps. The attached agenda indicates issues I believe need to be addressed.

Appointment with Scowcroft for Johnson

Florence,

I received a call from Father Kerr at Catholic University. He was calling for Mrs. Barbara (Boshcka) Johnson, the Johnson Wax heiress and a Polish-American. Mrs. Johnson is returning tonight on the Concorde from Warsaw and has a letter from Lech Walesa to the President. She wants to deliver it directly to the President. That is, of course, impossible. We think it best if she delivers it to Brent or to Bob Gates tomorrow morning. I'll call but wanted to prof you with the information in advance. I need to get back to Father Kerr as soon as possible. Thanks.

General --

Secretary Baker is calling an IEP (International Economic Policy) breakfast for this Friday, June 9 at 7:30. It was originally going to be a luncheon but they changed it to a breakfast. You can bring one person -- I have passed on Deane Hoffman's name. I have further explained that mornings/breakfasts are bad for you since you have a regularly scheduled meeting with the President at 8:00 and a regular senior staff meeting at 7:30. Sec Baker's intent is to have these every TWO WEEKS. How do you wish to handle.

I'll go on Friday at 7:30 but leave at 7:50-7:55 to get back for the 8:00 meeting with the President _____

Ask Deane to attend in my stead; I will go to some of them but will pick and choose

I just can't do breakfasts, let's see if we can change them to a luncheon beginning with the next one _____

SUBJECT: Your meeting with Barbara (Boshka) Johnson

Barbara Johnson, heiress to the Johnson Wax fortune, is coming to see you to deliver a letter from Lech Walesa to the President. She wanted to meet with the President but we told her that this was not possible.

Mrs. Johnson emigrated from Poland in 1968, worked for the Johnson family and later married into the family. She is a supporter of Solidarity and has offered to buy the Gdansk Shipyard for a reported $100 million dollars. The regime has, to now, been cool toward the idea but may ultimately accept.

Mrs. Johnson will want to talk about the situation in Poland and the President's trip. She may press you to arrange a meeting for her with the President.

SUBJECT:

Meeting w/Mr. Deshmuk from India

The plot thickens. State has advised that Mr. Deshmuk is carrying a letter for the President from PM Gandhi that he wants to deliver to the President (we told them no way), Brent or Gov Sununu.

Mr. Deshmuk, as Gandhi's principle secretary (aka chief of staff) apparently has ministerial rank. Since his lineup still includes Eagleberger, Carla Hills and a tentative Wolfowitz, I think he can deliver the letter to you (currently scheduled for 1100 am Friday) without any major breach of protocol unless you think Brent should see him. Another option would be to schedule a courtesy call with Sununu. Guidance please?

Biographical Profile of Mrs. Barbara Piasecka Johnson

Barbara Piasecka Johnson was born in Staniewicze, Poland, on February 25, 1937. Her parents, Pelagia and Wojciech Piasecki, were landowners. Mr. Piasecki was an officer in the Polish Cavalry during World War I and an officer in the National Army during World War II.

After completing college-preparatory high school, Mrs. Johnson obtained her Master's Degree in Art History from the University of Wroclaw. She continued her study of art history in Rome. Mrs. Johnson came to the United States in 1968.

In 1971, Mrs. Johnson married her late husband, J. Seward Johnson, Sr., one of the two brothers responsible for building Johnson and Johnson into the international medical supply and pharmaceutical firm that it is today. After their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Johnson set as their goal the sponsorship of arts, sciences and humanitarian projects around the world. They proceeded to create several foundations and charities to sponsor oceanographic research and studies of the arts, as well as building a significant personal art collection.

In addition to serving on the Boards of several philanthropic organizations, Mrs. Johnson actively supports many other charities and research projects. Through her own personal donations and through charities that she controls, Mrs. Johnson actively supports several research programs at The Wistar Institute of Anatomy and Biology. She contributes significant sums to the Medical Center at Princeton Foundation, Inc. in Princeton, New Jersey, as well as to other medical facilities throughout the world. Mrs. Johnson's sponsorship helps many Polish students and professionals continue their study of the arts and sciences in the United States and abroad.

Since 1971, Mrs. Johnson has served in various capacities on many major philanthropic organizations. From 1972 to 1985, she served as Trustee and Director of The Atlantic Foundation and Harbor Branch Foundation, both created for oceanographic research. FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

STATEMENT ON JACKSON-VANIK AMENDMENT
ADOPTED BY NCSJ'S BOARD OF GOVERNORS

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- June 13, 1989...At a meeting of the Board of Governors of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry (NCSJ) today, the following statement was agreed upon:

The National Conference on Soviet Jewry, recognizing the positive trends in Jewish emigration from the Soviet Union, initiated last January a process of review and reassessment of its position toward US-Soviet trade policy. This process has been thorough, and has included the widest possible range of consultations with representatives of the Administration, the Congress, Soviet Jewry advocacy groups, present and former Soviet Jewish refuseniks and activists, and the business community. In addition, a leadership delegation of the National Conference visited the USSR in May for formal discussions with senior Soviet officials, and the National Conference co-sponsored an academic seminar in Washington recently which defined policy options for consideration.

The NCSJ welcomes and is encouraged by the improvements in Jewish emigration from the USSR and the environment in which such emigration is taking place. Yet, it also recognizes that the Soviet reform process is in a self-described state of definition and experimentation. The USSR today is suspended between the oppression of its past and the promise of its future. The extension of new freedoms and democratic reforms coexist with old patterns of behavior and authority.

Recognizing this fluid combination of new policies and continuing problems for Soviet Jewry, if the President receives appropriate assurances from Soviet authorities of significant progress on the following four priority concerns: a sustained level of emigration, strict limits on the "state secrets" restriction, resolution of the "poor relatives" problem, and progress on the cases of long-term refuseniks, then, the NCSJ is prepared to support a waiver of the Jackson-Vanik Amendment. The criteria for these assurances are set forth in the legislative history of the waiver provisions of the Jackson-Vanik Amendment, which specifies that the assurances must relate to the removal of "unreasonable impediments" to or against persons wishing to emigrate.

Having reached this juncture, the NCSJ recognizes that it must continue to advocate aggressively on behalf of Soviet Jews, particularly those in long-term refusal, and to monitor overall Soviet performance in the area of emigration policy, including especially, efforts to institutionalize emigration under law and in practice. Furthermore, in recent years, the Soviet Jewry advocacy movement in the United States has shown itself capable of adopting measured responses to constructive changes in Soviet action while continuing to press for progress in problem areas. We remain as strongly committed as ever to this course of action.

The NCSJ represents 47 national Jewish organizations and 300 local Jewish federations and community councils.

RE: MEETING WITH LEADERSHIP OF NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF SOVIET JEWRY

On June 12 and 13 the Board of Directors and Executive Board of the National Conference of Soviet Jewry (NCSJ) will meet in Washington to formulate and announce their official position regarding the Jackson-Vanik Amendment. The leadership of NCSJ has requested a meeting with General Scowcroft late in the afternoon of June 13 or the morning of June 14.

The National Conference for Soviet Jewry, created in 1971, is the central coordinating agency of the organized Jewish community for policy and activities relating to Soviet Jews. Membership in NCSJ includes 50 national Jewish organizations and over 300 local federations, community councils, and committees. All of the Jewish organizations and 17 of the largest communities are permanently represented on the Board of Directors.

In light of the President's recent announcement regarding the Jackson-Vanik Amendment and the upcoming Congressional debates, we recommend that General Scowcroft meet with the NCSJ leadership following their meetings here on June 12 and 13. The delegation from the NCSJ would include Shoshana Cardin (Chairman), Martin Wenick (Executive Director), Mark Levin (Director of the Washington Office) and possibly three others to be determined. We would like to be included if the meeting does occur.

SUBJECT: DoD Authorization Bill Arms Control Amendments

As you know, we have a 1:30-2:30 Monday, June 19, scheduled for General Scowcroft and a number of Republican House Members (Reps Bill Dickinson, Bill Broomfield, Bob Dornan, Jon Kyl, Duncan Hunter, and Porter Goss have confirmed). The topic of the meeting will be the probable arms control amendments to the DoD authorization bill.

The major amendments will probably include (with the likely sponsor):

1. ABM Treaty Interpretation.
 - Aspin (D-WI)
2. ASAT Test Ban.
 - Brown (D-CA)
3. Ballistic Missile Depressed Trajectory Flight Test Ban.
 - AuCoin (D-OR)
4. Chemical & Bacteriological Weapons Bans.
 - Fascell (D-FL), Owens (D-UT), Kastenmeier (D-WI)
5. Enriched Uranium, Plutonium & Tritium Production Controls.
 - Fascell (D-FL), Wyden (D-OR)
6. Nuclear Testing Moratorium.
 - Aspin (D-WI), Gephardt (D-MO), Schroeder (D-CO)
7. SALT II Compliance.
 - Dicks (D-WA)

Related programmatic amendments will include:

1. Binary Chemical Weapons Production Cuts (Bigeye & 155mm)
 - Fascell (D-FL), Aspin (D-WI)
2. D-5 Trident II Zero Funding.
 - Weiss (D-NY)
3. Peacekeeper Rail Garrison Zero Funding.
 - Hertel (D-MI)
4. SDI Programmatic Funding Cuts (Brilliant Pebbles, etc.)
 - Aspin (D-WI), Spratt (D-SC), Bennett (D-FL), Dellums (D-CA)

5. Small ICBM Zero Funding.

- Frank (D-MA)

While it is not certain that all of these amendments will be offered, it is highly likely that most will. In addition, several new proposals may be aired. I will keep you informed of probable amendments and will forward the language as it becomes available (the House Armed Services Committee has decided not to collect arms control amendments in advance and they may not be available for some time -- perhaps two to three weeks).

Nevertheless, we need to be prepared for the above amendments (I will get you the language for each from last year -- some will not change at all). Our meeting with the Republican Members is meant to focus their attention on arms control issues: first, to educate them on the Bush Administration's arms control efforts and national security priorities; secondly, to underline our positions regarding the preeminent Congressional arms control proposals; and lastly, to help establish a knowledgeable nucleus of Members upon whom we can rely to carry the Administration's message to their committees and the House Floor.

Phyllis wanted you to know that Ron will be on travel 3/19-3/23 -- perhaps you could work around those dates.

4. David Rockefeller: Gen Scowcroft spoke with him this morning and afterwards told me that David Rockefeller was meeting with Secy Brady at 10:00 am on March 28th and that we should schedule Rockefeller to meet w/him close to that appointment. I called Alice Victor to mention that the President is travelling on 28th but offer 11:00 am, subject to Gen S's being here. Alice said that Brady's office has now advised that Brady will be travelling on 28th. I suggested that when Brady appt was firmed up that she call you or me to work out a time on Gen S's calendar.
5. Justine, Cabinet Affairs (x 2800): Invites Gen S to EPC meeting chaired by Secy Brady on Tuesday, March 21 at 2:00 pm in Roosevelt Room. Justine mentioned that Dick Cheney's Swearing-In Ceremony is also scheduled at 2:00 pm and may present a conflict for Gen S but that the EPC meeting would in fact take place at 2:00 pm and would not be rescheduled for another time. Ask Yeo to come in for five minutes OK per GMD - scheduled 11:45 6/14

Congressman Gingrich's office called. A close friend of the Congressman, Jeanne Ferst, has called requesting an appointment with you. She wants a job in the Administration -- she is an old supporter, and according to Gingrich's secretary, has credentials. Has submitted her request through the usual channels but has not gotten anywhere. Wants an ambassadorship, something with the UN or something in foreign affairs. She has asked to personally meet with you so the Congressman's office is passing it to you!!!

General --

Mr. Yeo called from New York. He says that Mr. [^]Cordoba, Mexican President Salinas' Chief of Staff, has a message from Salinas to the President which Cordoba would like to deliver to you today. This is something he must do "with a person that has the President's ear." He will only need 10 minutes and has an aircraft standing by to whisk him to Washington once we can give him a time to see you. I asked Mr. Yeo if someone else could receive Mr. Cordoba. He said it must be you -- our relations are strained and this is something important for you to receive. Mr. Yeo said he felt confident this was something you would want to do. It takes five hours to fly from Mexico to D. C.

- Mexicans experiencing acute financial pressures on Foreign Exchange Market.
- Expect that Cordoba wishes to discuss this with you and the steps they are thinking of taking.
- Mexicans won't discuss their perspective steps with anyone but you, and that includes me. They are planning something and don't know what it is.
- Mexican sitting in airplane waiting to come to Washington as soon as he has confirmation you will see him today.

SCHEDULE PROPOSAL

TO: JOSEPH W. HAGIN, II, Director
Presidential Appointments and Scheduling

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT

REQUEST: Meeting with Israeli Defense Minister Rabin

PURPOSE: To discuss the peace process and elections in the Occupied Territories.

BACKGROUND: As Defense Minister, Rabin holds the portfolio for the Occupied Territories in the Israeli Government. He is a member of the inner Cabinet that controls all of Israel's sensitive foreign and defense policy decisions. Rabin was also the original proponent of the elections idea; he tends to be both forthcoming and pragmatic on elections modalities.

Rabin will play a key role in the internal Israeli deliberations about the peace process. Our effort to promote an Israeli-Palestinian dialogue via elections depends on getting Rabin on board with our ideas and on building up his role in the internal Israeli process.

THROUGH: ~~4.5~~ RICHARD N. HAASS

FROM: ~~6~~ SANDRA CHARLES

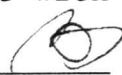

SUBJECT: Request for Appointment for Ambassador Oakley

Bob Oakley, our Ambassador to Pakistan, will be in Washington next week, May 15-19 for consultations. We and State plan to discuss a number of issues with him that arose during the Deputies Committee meeting on South Asia, specifically some actions for Prime Minister Bhutto to consider as she prepares for her visit. These include further confidence-building measures on the nuclear program and GOP assurances to preclude modification of Pakistan's F-16s.

If you have time available, I think a discussion with Bob on these and other issues will be useful as we prepare for both the Prime Minister's visit and the upcoming NSC meeting on South Asia. If you are unavailable, perhaps Bob Gates could see Ambassador Oakley.

That you agree to meet with Bob Oakley.

General --

I passed your message to Sir James, explained your compressed schedule that you might be able to see him for 5-10 minutes this week or that you hoped maybe it could wait until next time he was in town and at which point you might be able to offer him a longer visit. As I suspected, he jumped at the 5-10 minutes. Also asked if a meeting with the President might be in the offing -- I said I doubted that very much at this time.

Gen Woerner cancelled out on his mtg today (not coming to town) so I have placed Sir James at 6:00 tonight. Roy Godson planned to come with him. I told them that wasn't in the initial request and I would get back to them.

FROM: BARRY F. LOWENKRON BN
SUBJECT: Response to Letter from Roy Godson

At Tab I is a letter from you to Roy Godson of the National Strategy Information Center informing him that the President will not be able to meet with British financier Sir James Goldsmith. (Godson's letter is at Tab II, Goldsmith's biographic data is at Tab III). Godson also suggested a meeting for Goldsmith with yourself or Bob Gates. Although Goldsmith is an impressive individual, we do not think a meeting with you or Bob would be useful.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

Dear Roy:

Thank you for your letter informing me of the upcoming visit to Washington of Sir James Goldsmith. I could not agree more with your assessment of Sir James as an extraordinary individual. Unfortunately, due to scheduling demands, the President will be unable to meet with him. I have looked at my calendar and am facing similar problems. I hope that Sir James will have a productive visit to Washington.

Sincerely,

Brent Scowcroft

Dear Brent,

I am writing to enclose a short biography of an extraordinary European whom I believe could be of considerable interest to the President and to you.

I have known Sir James for nearly a decade. He is a most unusual person in that he combines a brilliant intellect with a great capacity for forceful action and the traditional British quality of discretion. He visits Prime Minister Thatcher with some frequency and had a very productive meeting with President Reagan several years ago. Sir James will be in Washington May 20-24, speaking at NSIC's Defense Strategy Forum on the evening of May 23. If the schedule permits, I would recommend a meeting with the President during this period. I also believe you and Bob Gates would find him most interesting and helpful.

Please let me know if this sounds worthwhile to you. I think the President would enjoy such a meeting.

With all best wishes,

Sincerely,

Roy

MEMORANDUM ON SIR JAMES GOLDSMITH

Sir James Goldsmith is one of the West's leading financiers who also devotes his considerable talents and resources to enhancing public understanding of major geo-political issues. Many regard him as one of the most brilliant and resourceful spokesmen for the strengthening of the Western alliance and the regeneration and enhancement of the Western economies.

Sir James was born in France February 26, 1933. He has dual citizenship as his father was a British Conservative Member of Parliament and his mother was French. He retains abiding interests and detailed knowledge of major personalities and developments in both countries. Sir James was knighted in 1976. In 1978 he received the French Legion of Honor.

Raised in Britain, Sir James has pursued business interests primarily in Britain, France, and the US. He is the founder, chief executive officer, and major owner of a number of leading industrial, commercial, and financial enterprises. Among them are General Occidentale and Cavenham, Ltd. He has been a director of several of France's leading banks and owns a major share of several US interests including 50 percent of The Grand Union Company, one of the largest supermarket chains in the US. In March 1989, jointly with the Rothschild interests, he has reentered the British financial markets.

Since the 1970s, Sir James has been one of the most important supporters, both intellectually and financially, of public policy centers in France and the United Kingdom, and since the early 1980s has assisted many similar organizations in the US. His main interest has been support for the regeneration of private enterprise and the enhanced cooperation among the Atlantic democracies. He is well-known to many key European and American industrialists, intellectuals, philanthropists, and politicians, including Margaret Thatcher in the UK and Jacques Chirac in France.

Sir James has made numerous speaking appearances on both sides of the Atlantic and has written extensively on geo-political issues of importance to business and government. His articles have appeared in leading newspapers and magazines, and have been anthologized in books both in English and French (Counter Culture--Volume I (1985), Volume II (1988)); Pour la Revolution Permanente (1986). Formerly Sir James was the publisher of France's leading newsmagazine L'Express, and its leading book review journal Lire. A well researched and favorable biography of him has been published in the US and the UK by Geoffrey Wansell (Tycoon: The Life of James Goldsmith (Grafton Books, London, 1987)

Most recently he has been concerned with diagnosing the important economic, political, and military challenges facing the Western democracies. Attached is an article he wrote in April 1988 which appeared both in The Wall Street Journal and LeFigaro Magazine.

Europe Under a Pax Sovietica ?

The New Europe would unite military power with economic strength. It would emerge as a global superpower at a time of danger and uncertainty. It would constitute a marketplace of 780 million people that stretches from the Atlantic to the Urals.

NEW YORK. — Some days ago, France's most influential daily, Le Monde, published an editorial stating that the good idea to emerge from the current French presidential election campaign is the creation by Western Europe of a Marshall Plan for the Soviet satellite states. The editorial concluded that Europe should be « enlarged to the East ».

The proposal is in harmony with General Secretary Gorbachev's public statements. In his book, he writes : « Europe is our common home » ; « It is only together, collectively, and by following the sensible norms of coexistence that the Europeans can save their home, protect it... » ; « the idea of a common European home finds understanding among political and public figures of not only Eastern but also Western Europe... thus Foreign Minister Genscher of Federal Germany has declared a readiness to "accept the concept of a common European home and to work together with the Soviet Union so as to make a really common home" ; ... other leaders have spoken to me in the same vein. »

It is probable that to further such a concept, and within a few years, the Soviet and American leaders will meet in Berlin with the heads of the two Germanys. The Soviets will announce the removal of the Berlin Wall and the withdrawal of their troops from East Germany ; the U.S. will announce a counterbalancing withdrawal from West Germany — another form of the double-zero option. Conversations will begin on the ways to reunite East and West Germany.

EUROPE UNDER A PAX SOVIETICA ?

and the U.S. was irrigating the world with a massive trade deficit, Europe could tolerate the consequences of its industrial faults. But now, it has to face three new challenges. Exporting profitably to the U.S. will become progressively more difficult ; the U.S. will be able to export more readily to Europe ; and Europe will be considered by the Pacific nations as the soft underbelly of the world economy. They will target the European markets to replace the profits that they will forgo in attempting to maintain their market share in the U.S.

In such circumstances, the Soviet bloc would be perceived as a privileged marketplace for Western Europe's goods, which would relieve its economic pain.

Furthermore, it is unlikely that Europeans would make the sacrifice needed to build a credible defense system. Sheltering under the U.S. nuclear umbrella, they have become accustomed to protection. If they lose confidence in their existing protector, they will be tempted to seek another.

When they look to America, they will see a nation deeply divided, a nation which is questioning its traditional values. Such a nation tends to withdraw from a world role and turn inward. And they can read the recent Ikle report on « Discriminate Deterrence » and receive confirmation that commitment to the defense of Western Europe is no longer a top U.S. priority. They can see that even on its own continent America's allies are trembling.

In the Pacific, Europeans would see Japan emerging as the dominant world economic power. Japan's problem is the mirror image of that of the Soviets. Whereas the Soviets must convert military supremacy into economic power, Japan must convert economic supremacy into military power. There are many who will question the relevance of the figures usually cited on Japan's defense spending, i.e., 1 % of Gross National Product. But let me quote from a January issue of The Economist: « Defense spending measured in dollars will be higher in Japan in the fiscal year starting in April than in any other nation, except America and Russia... » « The current program expires in 1990... its successor... will raise spending on defense considerably. » There seems little doubt that Japan could aim at leapfrogging current military technology.

Against such a backdrop, the New Europe could become a

EUROPE UNDER A PAX SOVIETICA ?

Vietnam, Watergate, the Iran hostage crisis, the economic slump, all contributed to the perception that America had been gripped by a suicidal urge. During his early years in office, Mr. Reagan changed all that. Pride returned. America fulfilled its most important role, that of being an example to the world. Democracy, individual freedom, free enterprise began to return to favor. There was a great surge of enthusiasm and optimism. America had come back. And then, tragically, perhaps weakened by his illness, Mr. Reagan threw away his compass in exchange for a platter of easy popularity. Once again, America, which for most of the century has been the guardian of world freedom, would look like a confused bull having difficulty in distinguishing between right and wrong, friends and enemies, short term and long term national interests, between the superficial perception and the fundamental reality.

Now only strong leadership in America and Europe with an unerring sense of mission will be able to maintain a Western alliance of free and independent nations. The alternative will be the emergence, after the turn of the century, of two superpowers : Soviet Europe and Japan's Pacific. To be sure, the North American common market would be a large and no doubt prosperous marketplace, but it would cease to be a major geopolitical factor. And the world would be a sadder and more dangerous place as a result of America's withdrawal. ■

SUBJECT: EPC on Super 301

I was told that the EPC secretariat plans to hold an EPC with the President on Monday at 11:00 to discuss the Super 301 issue. We will warm talkers. FYI, the draft decision document circulated today for comment did not reflect the consensus that seemed to be emerging from Friday's meeting nor the Justice Departments opinion that it was legal not to name countries. DOD was not given the draft and may not be invited Monday.

A second point, the economics directorate is sending the first of a series of ticklers on pending actions. Present plans are for a Tuesday Tickler and a Friday Kicker.

The White House and the Greenhouse

The world has started to take very seriously the established threat to the life-protecting ozone layer from industrial chemicals. Many countries are now eager for President Bush to take the lead on another threat to the global climate — the feared warming of the earth's atmosphere by pollutant gases like carbon dioxide. But despite Mr. Bush's ringing campaign pledge to do just that, his Administration flounders in confusion and timidity.

This week, the U.S. is chairman of an international meeting in Geneva to discuss the greenhouse effect. Yet Washington's various bureaucracies have not agreed on a position, and the American delegates will sit on the sidelines.

Leadership on the issue has thus fallen to Europe. Last month Prime Minister Thatcher made her Cabinet sit through a daylong briefing on the greenhouse effect from climatologists. And yesterday the British delegate to the United Nations called for a new international convention to deal with global warming.

Washington's only recent activity on the greenhouse effect seems to have been the Office of Management and Budget's decision to soften public testimony on that subject by a Government scientist. James Hansen, a NASA climatologist, complains that the O.M.B. toned down his conclusions about the severity of global warming before he presented them yesterday to a Senate committee headed by Albert Gore. The O.M.B.'s duty is to coordinate Government policy. But its heavy-handed intervention sends the signal that Washington wants to go slow on addressing the greenhouse problem.

This contrasts strangely with Mr. Bush's campaign oratory last summer. "Those who think we are powerless to do anything about the greenhouse effect forget about the 'White House effect'; as President, I intend to do something about it," he said in Michigan on Aug. 31. Mr. Bush promised to convene an international conference on the environment. "We will talk about global warming," he said, "and we will act."

Mr. Bush has not acted. He hasn't called for an international conference or even arranged a conference of his own policy makers to resolve their differences. Hence he is hearing no clear advice.

The threat is clear enough, even though experts disagree on how immediate it is. Pollutant gases do indeed trap the sun's heat and might seriously warm the earth's climate. It's far too soon to advocate the most direct and drastic remedy, which is to stop burning coal. But it makes eminent sense to buy insurance against global warming with steps that are worth taking in their own right, from raising auto efficiency to protecting tropical forests.

The threat cannot be addressed unless America assumes a major role. Far from leading the charge, the White House hasn't even joined it.

White House Admits Censoring Testimony

Climate expert says changes involved
more than policy.

By PHILIP SHABECOFF

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, May 8 — The White House confirmed today that it had censored Congressional testimony on the effects of global warming by a top Government scientist, but it insisted that the changes reflected policy decisions, not scientific conclusions.

Marlin Fitzwater, the White House press secretary, said the Office of Management and Budget had changed conclusions about global warming data contained in the testimony of Dr. James T. Hansen, director of the space agency's Goddard Institute for Space Studies. He said the action was taken because the ideas presented were "not necessarily those of all scientists who have considered this matter."

In his original text, before it was changed, Dr. Hansen asserted that computer projections showed that global warming caused by pollution from human activity would cause upheavals in the earth's climate. He warned of substantial increases in temperature, drought in mid-latitudes, severe storms and other stresses.

But his testimony was changed to make his conclusions seem less certain.

In response to questions at the regular White House briefing this morning, Mr. Fitzwater said that an official of the Office of Management and Budget "five levels down from the top" had changed Dr. Hansen's testimony to reflect that "there are many points of view on the global warming issue and many of them conflict with those stated by Dr. Hansen."

But Dr. Hansen, appearing today before the Senate Subcommittee on Science, Technology and Space, said that the testimony he had submitted specifically stated that the conclusions represented his own scientific opinion, not Government policy or a scientific consensus.

He said he had been forced by the budget office to make changes that raised questions about the reliability of scientific evidence on expected climate changes. Another change imposed by the budget office made it seem as if there was some doubt that human activity was chiefly responsible for the pollution that, it is now widely agreed, will cause a global warming trend. This would occur as carbon dioxide and other manmade pollutants trap and retain heat from the sun in a process similar to what happens in a greenhouse.

"I don't think the science should be altered," he said in response to a question by Senator Albert Gore, the Tennessee Democrat who is chairman of the subcommittee. "As a Government employee, I can and certainly do support Government policy. My only objection is changing the science."

Similar Complaint Reported

Another Government scientist testified at today's hearing that the budget office had tried to change his testimony on scientific issues earlier this year.

The scientist, Dr. Jerry D. Mahlman, director of the Geophysical Fluid Dynamics Laboratory of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, said that the changes proposed for his testimony on issues related to global warming were "objectionable and unscientific" and that the testimony would have been "embarrassing."

Dr. Mahlman said that he had refused to accept the changes in his testimony. "We in the scientific community demand the right to be wrong," he said. Dr. Mahlman said he prevailed in his effort to prevent the budget office from changing his testimony. Dr. Hansen said, however, that the budget office insisted on editing his testimony despite his strong objections.

Gore Assails Administration

Senator Gore said Dr. Hansen's testimony was changed because the Bush Administration did not want to take action to cope with the expected global warming trend.

He said United States officials now meeting in Geneva with delegations from other countries were arguing that more study was needed before beginning work on an international treaty aimed at reducing the impact and mitigating the effects of climate change.

"President Bush, only months ago, told us he was an environmentalist," Mr. Gore said. "Yet, in the past few days alone, we've seen his Administration back away from a critical diplomatic initiative on global warming."

Mr. Fitzwater said President Bush's "personal view is that this is a serious problem that America needs to show and take leadership."

"But the science is something that still has to be sorted out," he said. "Obviously, the President hasn't made a judgment about scientific assessments."

The White House spokesman said that Dr. Hansen had a right to voice his opinion and that no punitive action would be taken against him for objecting to the changing of his testimony.

Mr. Gore said that if there was any retribution against Dr. Hansen, the Bush Administration would face "the equivalent of World War III" with Congress.

British Urge Rapid Action

By PAUL LEWIS

Special to The New York Times

UNITED NATIONS, May 8 — Britain today called for the rapid drafting of a new international convention to deal with the problem of global warming, saying rising temperatures could lead to disruption of normal life, political tension and war.

The British Government suggested in a statement to the United Nations that countries should agree as soon as possible on a convention that would set out broad "guidelines for good climatic behavior."

More specific binding protocols dealing with the global warming problem could then be approved as scientific understanding advances and a consensus develops on what action is needed.

Britain's position was outlined by its Permanent Representative at the United Nations, Sir Cripin Tickell, in a speech to the United Nations Economic and Social Council. He said his Government decided to press for rapid action on global warming after a daylong seminar organized on April 26 by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher at her official residence and attended by ministers, scientists and industrialists.

Sir Cripin said that even though great uncertainties still exist about global warming, the Downing Street meeting concluded that there was no time to waste in planning international action to cope with a problem of such scale and complexity which could disrupt "the intricate web of life on a scale now hard to imagine."

At a news conference, Sir Cripin warned that rising world temperatures and climatic change threaten world peace because they could lead to disputes and wars over fresh water and arable land and create a whole new class of "environmental refugees" fleeing land that could no longer sustain them.

General Brent Scowcroft

Dear Brent,

I seek your advice. Earlier this week, I was told by the Bush Transition Personnel Office that I had 1) passed the "litmus test" of loyalty to President Elect George Bush, 2) that I was considered highly qualified in the field of international affairs, and 3) that I was on the list of people being considered for U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of Turkey.

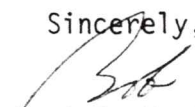

This is, of course, good news. My work in the World Bank has given me considerable knowledge of the economy of Turkey, as well as close associations with key Turkish officials (e.g., the State Minister for Economic Affairs). Moreover, my contacts on the Hill, in the Executive Branch, and particularly in the private sector would stand me in good stead in promoting U.S. diplomatic and business interests in Turkey.

You know of my interest in assisting you in your work. I believe that my detailed knowledge of developing countries, and of American business and international competition, could be of immediate use to you. Therefore I would be most appreciate if I might meet with you soon to discuss these possibilities.

Barber Conable and I hope to have breakfast or lunch with you whenever there's an opening in your calendar.

With many thanks,

Sincerely,

Robert B. Keating

Dear Dad:

I'm uncertain to whom to direct this letter, so I'm counting on Patty to vector it off to the proper place.

The Columbus Group, an organization of business leaders in Latin America, has expressed an interest in meeting with you. The group members goal is to help their respective governments promote economic and social development. It is a non-profit group not identified with any particular political party or movement.

I have always beleived it is in our interests to promote Latin America's private sector institutions and encourage their involvement in development issues. This group may be one of several vehicles that can be used to promote free market policies in the region.

Enclosed your staff will find some information on the Columbus Group and its directors. If your staff believes that this meeting is appropriate, please have them contact, Mr. Victor E. Garcia Laredo at Locma, Av. E. Madero 940-T.15, 1106 Buenos Aires Argentina. The telephone is 313-0878/9601.

Yale Nuclear Physicist Picked as Bush Adviser

By Michael Specter
Washington Post Staff Writer

President Bush has selected a nationally renowned nuclear physicist from Yale University, D. Allan Bromley, as White House science adviser, senior administration officials said yesterday.

"This is a great appointment," said Leon Lederman, director of the Fermilab accelerator near Chicago and a Nobel laureate who has known Bromley for decades. "He has the respect of the scientific community. He is vigorous and lively and he will be a wise voice on difficult issues. Of course, a lot depends upon the chemistry between him and the president."

Bush faces an unusually large array of major technical decisions requiring scientific expertise. Among them are the development of a space station, the construction of the superconducting supercollider, the issue of possible global warming, the escalating battle against AIDS, major decisions on the Strategic Defense Initiative and how to pursue a project to map the entire complement of human genes.

Bush has repeatedly asserted that the position of science adviser, currently called director of the Office of Science and Technology Policy, would hold great prominence in his administration. Bromley, who has been active in federal science policy issues for years, would almost certainly command more respect in the scientific community than any adviser since the Carter administration.

Bromley, 62, is a past president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the director of the A.W. Wright Nuclear Structure Laboratory at Yale.

He is considered one of the world's leading nuclear physicists, having carried out pioneering studies on the structure and dynamics of atomic nuclei. He has also played major roles in the development of accelerators, of the detection systems they use and in computer-based data and analysis systems.

Bromley served as chairman of the National Academy of Science's physics survey in the 1970s, which helped plan for the future of the science. In addition, he has served on many national and international science policy boards and committees.

Bromley said yesterday he had no knowledge of his selection.

"Nobody has told me that I have been given this job," he said from his home in New Haven. "So at this point I think it would be quite inappropriate for me to comment."

Scientific groups have urged Bush to return the role of White House science adviser to significance after years in which its political clout and scientific independence have been severely diminished. George A. Keyworth II, science adviser during most of the Reagan administration, for example, was a little-known scientist who devoted most of his time to advocating SDI, the missile defense program that much of the scientific community regarded as scientifically ill founded.

Earlier this year, the Carnegie Commission released a major report urging that the president give his science adviser the clout to play a prominent role in making the major scientific and technical decisions the administration will confront.

Scientific and industrial leaders—alarmed by the United States' declining scientific literacy and faltering competitiveness in the global technology market—have argued that only a strong adviser with the president's ear can help strengthen science policy in the nation.

The Carnegie report asserted that because there has been no serious attempt in the past decade to appoint strong science advisers, the quality of many key technical appointments has declined.

The history of science advice to presidents has been uneven, according to science policy experts. Science advisers to Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson were extremely influential. But President Richard M. Nixon, fearing that the job had become too autonomous and powerful, eliminated it. It was later restored along with an Office of Science and Technology Policy, but the post never regained the power it once held.

Staff writer Ann Devroy contributed to this report.

President Nixon plans to come to Washington, D. C., May 10-12, 1989 and would like to meet with you. He suggested that it might cause less of a stir for the Washington Press Corps if you came to his hotel for a private meeting.

He will be staying at One Washington Circle.

MEMORANDUM FOR BRENT SCOWCROFT

THROUGH: ROBERT D. BLACKWILL RB
FROM: ADRIAN BASORA AAB
SUBJECT: Request that You Meet with Jacques Chaban-Delmas

In the note attached at Tab A, Charles Mathias informs you that Chaban-Delmas will be in Washington May 10-13. He says that the President would find it interesting to speak with him and by implication suggests that you see him as well.

Although Chaban-Delmas is one of the grand old men of politics and genuinely pro-American, he is a declining political figure in France. He is currently Major of Bordeaux, but no longer a realistic candidate for Prime Minister. Given the other pressures on the President, I would not recommend a Presidential appointment. A few minutes of your time would be a very elegant gesture. It is not essential, however, and one important criterion is whether you already have a personal relationship with him.

RECOMMENDATION

That you agree to a brief courtesy call from Jacques Chaban-Delmas during the period May 10-13.

Don Green, Mercator, received a telex from Mr. Giffen:

The signing is going to take place at 9am tomorrow in the Kremlin.

The Soviet side has received a statement from Gorbachev to be read but it will only be used if there is one from the President.

A press conference will be held 6 hours later that afternoon. The press conference will be part of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs weekly briefing.

There will be a reception hosted by Mishkov. Charge Joyce has been invited to the signing. If there is a statement from the President they would like to ask Mr. Joyce to read it.

Mr. Giffen needs to know as soon as possible whether there will be a letter from the President. Mr. Green leaves for Moscow today at 3p.m.

MEMORANDUM

MARCH 24, 1989

TO: MR. L.S. EAGLEBERGER
DEPUTY SECRETARY OF STATE

FROM: J.H. GIFFEN

RE: AMERICAN TRADE CONSORTIUM

Mr. Secretary,

The American Trade Consortium (ATC) is a not-for-profit corporation consisting of six member companies including Archer Daniels Midland of Decatur, IL; Chevron Corporation of San Francisco, CA; Eastman Kodak Company of Rochester, NY; Johnson & Johnson of New Brunswick, NJ; RJR Nabisco of Atlanta, GA; and The Mercator Corporation of New York, NY.

The American Trade Consortium was formed in April 1988 for the purpose of facilitating substantial and profitable joint ventures with appropriate organizations with the Soviet Union.

The Soviets formed a similar organization at the same time the ATC was formed called the Soviet Foreign Economic Consortium (SFEC). The board of directors of the SFEC includes most key Soviet organizations which are involved in foreign economic relations including the State Foreign Economic Commission, Ministry of Foreign Economic Relations, Vnesheconombank, Ministry of Finance and GOSPLAN. It also includes representatives from seven key industrial ministries and 22 production enterprises and associations of those ministries.

On April 13, 1988, the ATC and SFEC entered into a Protocol of Intentions expressing their desire to negotiate and conclude a "General Trade Agreement" (GTA) between the two consortia which would establish the administrative and financial framework for all joint ventures entered into between members of the ATC and SFEC -- addressing such issues as currency exchange, financing, taxes, accounting and human resources. Over the last twelve months, representatives of the ATC and SFEC negotiated the provisions of the GTA and will conclude that agreement on March 30, 1989 at 10:00 am in the Kremlin.

At the same time that the ATC and SFEC were negotiating the GTA, the member organizations of the two consortia were identifying and analyzing projects for potential joint ventures. Approximately 25 individual ventures have been identified and are under negotiation including ventures in the areas of food and agribusiness oil and gas exploration and development, health, medical and pharmaceutical products, and consumer products. Once the feasibility studies for these ventures are complete and 15-year projections for the projects have been prepared, the projections will be combined in an "Aggregate Business Plan" and attached to the GTA. This is anticipated to occur in 1989.

The execution of the GTA is significant because it provides a framework under which substantial, non-strategic, mutually beneficial trade and economic relations can be established between some of America's finest corporations and their Soviet counterparts. A Decree of the Council of Ministers of the USSR was signed by Prime Minister Ryzhkov into law on March 21, 1989 not only authorizing the signing of the GTA but changing Soviet law in many ways to 1) guarantee that the financial mechanism developed within the GTA will allow for the repatriation of profits in hard currency, 2) insure against devaluation risk, 3) provide for a convertible ruble within the Consortium, 4) grant tax benefits such as tax loss carryforwards and 5) bestow other benefits which will help to promote the profitability of Soviet-American joint ventures.

President Gorbachev has supported the project personally since the first proposal was delivered to the Soviet side in August of 1987. In December of 1987, during the Washington Summit Meeting, he stated that "he supported the Consortium concept". In April of 1988, after the signing of the Protocol of Intentions for the development of the GTA, he stated "We regard the formation of the American Trade Consortium and of its partner in the USSR, the Soviet Foreign Economic Consortium, as a major event in our relations. A Protocol of Intent on the creation of joint ventures was signed today. For our part, we shall render all-around support to the Soviet participants in the Consortium and we hope for a similar approach from the US Administration."

The signing ceremony in Moscow next week will be an important one. It will recognize a positive and new development in US-Soviet relations in general and US-Soviet trade and economic relations in particular.

We believe that President Gorbachev and/or Prime Minister Ryzhkov will meet with the group of some 50-100 representatives from the members of the ATC including either the chairman or vice chairman from each ATC member and will extend best wishes to the success of the venture. We believe that it would be in the best interest of the United States if President Bush could send a short letter to the members of the ATC and SFEC briefly stating American policy toward an expansion of US-Soviet trade and economic relations and wishing them success in their endeavors. The letter could be read to the Soviets at the signing ceremony. Attached is a proposed draft of a letter President Bush might consider sending.

DRAFT

March --, 1989

Mr. James H. Giffen.
President
American Trade Consortium
375 Park Avenue
New York, NY 10152

Dear Mr. Giffen,

The United States Government supports an expansion of mutually beneficial trade and economic relations with the Soviet Union. We believe that commercially viable joint ventures complying with the laws and regulations of both countries can play a role in the further development of commercial relations.

We encourage American companies to seek profitable opportunities in the Soviet market and we congratulate members of the ATC and their Soviet partners on the successful conclusion of the General Trade Agreement which hopefully will lead to the conclusion of profitable Soviet American joint ventures.

Very truly yours,

Per our conversation this A.M., Fred McClure had already put in a schedule proposal for a meeting tomorrow at 0915 hrs with both the congressional and private sector. Rationale is that there were only 5 from the private sector and they did go at the President's request. WH/LA is preparing talking points, we will coordinate and assist.

Dear Brent:

Sir Dennis Walters, the Chairman of the Conservative Party's Middle East Council, will be in Washington May 8, 9, and 10. He is an M.P. and has been involved with the region and its problems for many years. I met him at dinner in London with Peter Carrington just before the latter took over at NATO. He impressed me as a sensible, intelligent political voice in Britain. The British Embassy will obviously call for an appointment, but I wanted to add my opinion that your time or that of Bob Gates would be usefully spent.

All the best,

SUBJECT: Max Van Der Stoel

Shirin Tahir-Kheli is working an appt request she rec'd from Tom Curtis (US Institute of Peace) for Max Van Der Stoel. Shirin spoke with Florence last week about possibility of holding some time. Florence agreed to "HOLD" 3:00 pm, Wed, May 3 pending getting a memo from Shirin for Gen Scowcroft on the appt request for General's review and decision.

We have gotten swamped with calls in this office, each time referring them to Shirin. First thing this morning, the calls started again so I called and spoke Shirin and asked about memo, requesting that she coordinate with you on your recommendation as to whether General Scowcroft should make the time to see this fellow.

Another call has just come in. I am ignoring any further calls on this request until paperwork is before the General for decision.
