MEMORANDUM FOR GOVERNOR SUNUNU

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT

SUBJECT: Appointment With our Ambassador to Turkey, Mort
Abramowitz

Ambassador Abramowitz will be returning from Ankara next week to discuss the Armenian Genocide Resolution issue. I agreed to meet with him on Thursday, October 12 at 11:00. Abramowitz also requested a meeting with you. As you can see from the attached cable which Abramowitz sent to the President, this issue has the potential for unraveling our relationship with Turkey. If you can find the time, I think a meeting with Abramowitz would be useful.

SUBJECT: VISIT OF LECH WALESA TO THE UNITED STATES

I have scheduled a brief meeting with you at 1:00 pm Wednesday, October 10, 1989 to discuss our options on the upcoming visit of Lech Walesa to the United States in November.

We should consider having the President host Walesa as an overnight guest at the White House and then take him on a trip to the mid-west. Possible venues include a return to Hamtramack or other areas in Michigan, Chicago and or Philadelphia.

I would like to have the Advance Office start their research so we can develop a schedule proposal for Governor Sununu. It is my understanding that Walesa's hosts, the AFL-CIO, are starting to develop a schedule for him. We should move quickly before their schedule becomes inflexible.

MALCOLM MACKINTOSH, CMG.

Malcolm Mackintosh was born on December 25, 1921 in Sherborne, England. He was educated at the Edinburgh Academy and Glasgow University, where he graduated in History and Russian studies in 1948. He served in the British Army from 1941 to 1946, in the UK, the Middle East, Italy and the Balkans. He was commissioned in the Middle East in May 1944, and served thereafter in Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria - latterly as a liaison officer with the Soviet Army in the Allied Control Commission in Bulgaria, until demobilisation from the Army in September, 1946.

After University graduation in 1948 he joined the BBC's Overseas Service and worked as Head of its Bulgarian and Albanian Sections from 1948 to 1960. He also served as a Russian interpreter to British Ministers and Government officials during visits to Britain by Soviet leaders, including Khrushchev, Bulganin and Kosygin. In 1960 he joined the Foreign Office to undertake research on Soviet and East European affairs. He was transferred to the Cabinet Office in 1968 as an Assistant Secretary working on Soviet affairs, and in 1982 became Special Consultant on Soviet and East European matters in the same office. He retired from British Government service in March 1987. He is currently Consultant and Senior Fellow on Soviet affairs to the International Institute for Strategic Studies, and an Honorary Senior Fellow at the Department of War Studies at King's College in the University of London.

Malcolm Mackintosh is the author of "Strategy and Tactics of Soviet Foreign Policy" (Oxford University Press, 1963), "Juggernaut: A History of the Soviet Armed Forces" (Secher and Warberg, London, 1967), "The Evolution of the Warsaw Pact" (I.I.S.S. Adelphi Paper No 58), and a number of chapters on Soviet and East European affairs in recent books. These include: "The Warsaw Pact: Alliance in Transition" (Cornell University, 1984), and the "Soviet State: Domestic Roots of Soviet Foreign Policy" (Chatham House, London, 1985). He has also lectured frequently at NATO Headquarters, Staff Colleges in Britain and Western Europe, as well as at Universities and other centers of study on Soviet policies. In the last few years these have included - in North America - Cornell University, the Russian Research Center, Harvard University, the Center for Science and International Affairs at the Kennedy School, The Hoover Institution on War,

SUBJECT: Request for An Appointment with an Indian Businessman and Advisor to Prime Minister Gandhi

Mr. Srichand P. Hinduja, a wealthy Indian businessman and private advisor to Prime Minister Gandhi, has asked for a meeting with you on Wednesday, October 4. He also is seeing the Vice President that day at 3:30 p.m. You may recall meeting Mr. Hinduja briefly when he accompanied Mr. Deshmukh, Principal Secretary to PM Gandhi, to your office on June 22. (He presented you with a Hermes silk tie.)

Mr. Hinduja indicated to me that he has a couple of items to raise with you at the Prime Minister's instruction, but was not more informative than that. My State colleagues advise that, in the past, he has been helpful to us in working issues through his private channels to the Prime Minister when the Indian bureaucracy bogged down. Since he is seeing the Vice President, a meeting with you or Bob Gates as a courtesy call would be appropriate, at which time he should be encouraged to continue to work through this office in the future.

MEMORANDUM FOR BRENT SCOWCROFT

FROM: KARL D. JACKSON KDJ
SUBJECT: Lunch with Foreign Minister Wong Kan Seng

Singapore has played a strong role throughout the Cambodia difficulties. They have been clear and hardheaded in dealing with Vietnam, and the Singaporeans, unlike some in our own foreign policy making bureaucracy, know that now is not the time to throw in the towel on support for Sihanouk and the NCR just because Vietnam and the PRK refused to compromise in Paris. However, Singapore at this point in time could use and deserves a high level expression of our support on the Cambodian endeavor.

As you know we are moving forward on developing a rotational basing option in which we might increase our air and naval presence in Singapore. This would increase our proximity to the Straits of Malacca and give substance to our negotiating position that there are alternatives, albeit less attractive alternatives, to Clark and Subic that do not necessarily involve total reliance on falling back 1,500 miles to Guam.

Because of these two important issues it would make sense for you to attend a working lunch with Wong. I assume I will be traveling with Quayle on that date but Doug Paal or Peter Watson could go with you.

RECOMMENDATION:

That you participate in the working lunch with Wong Kan Seng on September 28 at 12:30.

SUBJECT: Appointment Request for Pertti Paasio, Foreign Minister of Finland

Pertti Paasio, Finland's Foreign Minister, will be in Washington September 20-23 for consultations, and to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations with the United States. He requested a meeting with you to discuss arms control, the state of U.S.-Soviet relations, and recent developments within Europe. We think such a meeting would be useful to convey our views on these issues. Should you agree to meet with Minister Paasio, we will forward to you a briefing memorandum along with the Minister's biographic information.

Scowcroft Meeting Today with Peace Corps Director

I spoke to Paul Coverdell, Director of the Peace Corps, who has three subjects to cover with Brent today:

1. Report on where we are with establishing Peace Corps in Hungary.

2. Report on "what's about to happen in Poland."

3. Raise the question about Peace Corps programs in Laos and Vietnam. He said the issue has been bubbling around the Peace Corps, and he wants to get a feel for whether he should explore it on his upcoming trip to Bangkok and Manila.

-- Doug Paal and Peter Watson say that of course doing anything with Vietnam is inappropriate, but it might be conceivable to work with Peace Corps later to identify specific programs in Laos that are consistent with our humanitarian approach.

The $10 million budget issue may be a subset of Poland.

MEMORANDUM FOR BRENT SCOWCROFT
THE WHITE HOUSE

Subject: Request for a Meeting with Belgian Defense Minister
Guy Coeme

Belgian Defense Minister Guy Coeme is coming to the U.S. for meetings at DOD on September 18, including with Secretary Cheney, and will later visit military facilities.

Under the present center-left coalition government, Belgium has been less than supportive on issues of importance to us, especially last fall on SNF. We have been encouraging Coeme to come to the U.S. to meet with Americans responsible for developing our security and policies and to obtain a first-hand view of the U.S. military establishment. In the past few months, Coeme has fought hard to maintain a credible Belgian defense budget; the Belgian position on SNF has softened, and Belgium recently accepted basing the Tactical Leadership Program (TLP) at Florennes. However, the Flemish Socialist coalition partners and the left-wing of Prime Minister Martens' own Flemish Social Christian party remain strongly anti-nuclear and continue to influence Belgian decisions on security issues.

We believe personal contacts and high level briefings about U.S. positions on arms control, nuclear issues and burdensharing will effectively reinforce Coeme's recent moves in the right direction and help counter domestic pressures on the government.

We realize these dates conflict with the scheduled meetings in Wyoming. However, if you will be in Washington at that time, we request that you meet with Coeme for 20 - 30 minutes on September 19 after 2:30 or in the morning of September 20.

Dear Brent,

Enjoyed talking to you the other day. Harry didn't make the meeting and is considering bailing out. I don't know why.

Ran across the enclosed recently. Don't know whether Herrington ever saw it or whether Watkins is aware of it.

I still think that something is amiss when the U.S. decides to build an inherently safe power producing nuclear reactor for the new production reactor in Idaho, an isolated area where they don't need power and plans to build a relatively unsafe nonpower producing system at Savannah River a populous area where power is in short supply.

I also have never understood why one would ever build a reactor that couldn't be kept operating if and when peace breaks out or our requirement for tritium is reduced.

Hope to be able to see you one of these days.

Sincerely,

Safe Nuclear Reactors of the 21st Century

- Proposal for an International Project

The regime of safe nuclear power operation and development is one of the major scientific and technological issues that significantly influences the world social and political situation. The world community understands the necessity of continuing to increase power availability for humankind as well as of improving the ecological situation, ensuring the minimum risk of large-scale utilization of energy-generating technologies. Though nuclear power has no true alternative, it is confronted with a concerned and sometimes negative attitude among the population in a number of countries, especially after the Chernobyl tragedy. Although scientists and specialists understand that nuclear power has large potential, in the mind of people its future depends on its capacity to really demonstrate at least a part of this potential, especially in the area of substantial reduction of the risk of severe accidents.

Nuclear power safety, as well as nuclear power itself, by its nature should become a truly international activity. In fact, the safety problem goes beyond the limits of national frontiers since, according to many distinguished scientists and politicians, another core disruptive accident in any country (even an accident smaller than Chernobyl) could result in slowing down world nuclear power development as well as further progress of humankind.

Apparently, the world community is ready to accept the benefits of nuclear power if that power is capable of reaching a new safety goal - to reduce radically the risk of severe accidents, including possible human errors and external events, and to improve its ecological and other aspects in accordance with modern requirements. In other words, in future humankind will need nuclear power of a new quality level based on the advanced countries' latest science and technology and corresponding to international norms and standards.

The problem of nuclear power as a whole can be solved either by improving the current type of power facilities, or (and it is a better way) by developing and introducing nuclear power plant designs of new generations. At present, world nuclear power is based on light water reactors. The main approaches to improve significantly this reactor type have already been identified - maximum simplification of the structures, wide use of reliable passive safety systems, diagnostic systems improvement, etc.

Science and technology have already created the basis for nuclear power plants using principally new reactor technologies with inherently safe features against internally originating accidents, capable of self-terminating the nuclear fission reaction in case of loss of heat removal. In such reactors, fast power excursion (similar to the Chernobyl one) is impossible since there is no excess reactivity. Passive reactor cooling systems that do not require operator actions and external power supply are capable of ensuring safe reactor conditions after these reactor self-shutdowns. Moreover, it is possible to improve significantly the ecological nature of nuclear power plants - to decrease the thermal pollution of the environment, cooling water consumption, etc.

A number of countries (USA, USSR, FRG, Japan, etc.) have developed perspective designs that enable a further step toward the new goals. For example, they include:

a) new types of liquid metal fast breeder reactor that enable solution of the fuel problem of nuclear power. Big prospects are opened up by the possibility to use a non-traditional liquid-metal non-combustible coolant that largely increases the temperature safety margins.

b) high-temperature gas-cooled reactors can offer humankind new opportunities in high temperature heat supply for such industries as metallurgy, chemistry, etc., as well as in highly effective electricity generation.

c) molten salt reactors are attractive since using a continuous fuel clean-up it is possible to prevent the reactor from becoming a long-term repository of radioactive wastes, and thus greatly to improve its safety. Having a number of other attractive features, this reactor based on a non-traditional technology is useful to nuclear power as an alternative element. To speed up the practical development of these reactors of international level and make them cheaper, the primary attention should be focused on reactors of modular type. These reactors may also become main elements of future nuclear power, since they lead to the smallest investment risk, enable improvement of the quality of nuclear power unit construction and to decreasing construction time. To ensure the required diversity of nuclear power facilities that is especially important from the point of view of backing up new technologies development, it will be useful to carry out parallel work simultaneously in a number of directions (for example, directions listed above).

Thus at present it seems urgent to organize a "Safe Nuclear Reactor of the 21st Century" International Project along the lines of the International Thermonuclear Experimental Reactor (ITER) project. For this purpose it is advisable to form an International Scientific and Technical Committee (Board) for the Project under the auspices of the IAEA with the following aims:

- development of international requirements for 21st century reactors, development of safety concept and criteria;

- systems analysis of the place and role of new generations of reactors in the world power industry;

- development of concept and technical proposals on prospective reactor trends with subsequent prototype design and construction.

National nuclear societies, the European Nuclear Society, IAEA, NEA/OECD as well as interested industrial firms might become sponsors of the International Committee.

The International Project will enable uniting of the efforts of many countries in uses of nuclear science & technology's potential, to restore confidence in nuclear power safety. It might serve also as a leading light for national nuclear power programs. Nuclear power can and should become a large enterprise that unites people of the world. In fact it is a precondition both of its safe development and stable energy generation necessary for the progress of humankind.

DUKE POWER

July 29, 1988

The Honorable John S Herrington
Secretary
U S Department of Energy
Forrestal Building
Washington, D C 20585

Dear Mr Secretary:

Our nation has a singular opportunity to couple its need for tritium with a giant step forward in energy preparedness. Under your leadership, we can equip the U S with a nuclear option not now available, all without compromise to defense needs.

Since first mentioning this to you, I have become increasingly convinced that growing public concern over the greenhouse effect will accelerate our need to return to the atom for electricity. And there's no question that we need both more conservation and more electricity to be a competitive nation. An energy policy that simply adds more CO₂ to the atmosphere (and increases demand for Persian Gulf oil) probably will not be acceptable.

We can be ready with an alternative nuclear technology at least a dozen years earlier than otherwise if you choose the modular HTGR for the NPR. Before it can be commercially deployed for electricity, the MHTGR needs full scale demonstration. In view of shocks to investors from Shoreham, Diablo Canyon, WPPSS, et al, private capital is not forthcoming for such a demonstration plant. If used for NPR, the electricity that can be produced with the HTGR steam will eventually return the taxpayer's defense investment - a real plus in fighting deficits. And most importantly, the MHTGR offers safety and efficiency advantages that are both real and credible to the public.

John, under your leadership the Department has brought the MHTGR design to maturity and the ERAB panel has given you the technical support for its NPR selection. On the other hand, the gas-cooled technology is not as familiar to some who were brought up on HWR and are understandably more comfortable with that. But, in my view, you have a marvelous opportunity to seize a sword that helps plow shares.

With my respect and regards,

W S Lee

Dear Eugene,

Sometime ago Tihiro and I sent you the attached letter. I never heard from you but I did receive a note from Arbatov who said he would speak to you about it. In view of what I read in our newspaper I believe we should seriously consider discussing this issue. The public is afraid of nuclear power. If we develop an absolutely safe system then I believe we can regain their confidence. Nuclear power will be a necessity in the next century. If we don't develop safe systems both of our nations will have severe economic problems. I urge you to take up the suggestion in my previous letter that we meet to cooperate on the development of safe nuclear power stations.

Dear Eugene,

Tihiro and I have been involved in developing a new nuclear reactor technology which we are certain would make available an absolutely safe nuclear reactor design. Needless to say, we were very upset when the Chernobyl incident occurred.

We believe Secretary Gorbachev had reason to be upset with the U.S. press and the misinformation which they spread and continue to spread. They have been completely irresponsible in covering your incident. If it makes you feel any better, when we had our incident at Three Mile Island where there was no release of radiation and no evacuation the press did the same thing and almost caused mass hysteria among the populace surrounding the reactor site. I should add that our Nuclear Regulatory Commission representatives weren't much better than the press and have behaved almost as badly with regard to your recent incident. It's interesting that at the same time as our Three Mile Island incident where there was no evacuation, there was a train derailment near the Canadian border and poisonous gases were released and over 20,000 people were evacuated. The press devoted less than a couple of columns to that real potential disaster and only mentioned it once. Yet they carried the Three Mile Island incident for weeks and still have articles on it today.

We are aware that one potential item for the summit between our nation's leaders will be fusion and that is great. However, we believe it could be extremely beneficial forum for bringing into being a second generation completely safe nuclear fission reactor system. We have a design at GA which is "walk away" safe at 100 MW electric. We could probably even raise that by a factor of two but there is no question that it can be done at 100 MWe. It uses ceramic clad fuel in a graphite moderator and uses helium as the heat transfer medium for steam generation. I also believe we could use the helium directly in a turbine thereby eliminating all water if desired and increasing the thermodynamic efficiency to over 50%. Needless to say, our press with the prodding of the light water mafia is laying the blame on your incident on the fact that graphite was present. I believe this to be utter nonsense. The problem was that inherent in all metal clad fuel systems which are water cooled, the fuel rods are very intolerant of loss of coolant and the zirconium when hot enough will react with whatever water is present to generate hydrogen and one can have an explosion.

A reactor with ceramic clad fuel which can tolerate temperatures much higher than normal operating temperatures, closely coupled to a graphite moderator heat sink with the whole system below ground level so that in case of an incident the heat capacity of the surrounding earth can provide an absolutely safe system should be attractive to your people as well as to ours. Tihiro and I would urge that if possible you raise this suggestion for a summit topic to your appropriate officials. If we could individually or jointly bring such systems into being we would be providing a real service to mankind. We could also help show how irresponsible the U.S. press is on such technical issues.

We eagerly await your reaction to our suggestion that not only fusion be on the summit agenda but that the potential for developing an absolutely safe fission system for the world be considered. We have made this suggestion to our Secretary of Energy.

Please let us know what you think about this as soon as possible.

Sincerely,

Harold M. Agnew

Soviet Scraps a New Atomic Plant In Face of Protest Over Chernobyl

Bitter Local Opposition to Functioning Stations Is Also Cited by Paper

By BILL KELLER

Special to The New York Times

MOSCOW, Jan. 27 — The Soviet authorities have abandoned construction of a nuclear power plant near the Black Sea in the face of public opposition generated by the 1986 accident at the Chernobyl atomic power station, a Soviet newspaper reported today.

The newspaper, Komsomolskaya Pravda, also disclosed that all of the 20 operating nuclear power plants in the country and most of those under construction were now "bitterly opposed" by local residents.

The report on the abandoned project near the city of Krasnodar was the strongest official acknowledgment that since the Chernobyl accident public opinion here had turned sharply against nuclear power and posed a serious threat to the country's ambitious nuclear energy program.

Protests Reported Unofficially

"The Krasnodar nuclear power plant is perhaps the first to witness this, but it is not the only one," the newspaper said.

Public protests against the siting of nuclear power plants have been described in underground publications, but the controversy has only been hinted at in the official press.

In late November the head of a Soviet commission investigating the Chernobyl disaster told a Frankfurt environmental magazine during a visit to West Germany that public protests had blocked plans for new nuclear plants near Minsk, the capital of the Byelorussian Republic, and near the Black Sea port of Odessa.

If that is so, it has not been officially announced here.

'Unprecedented' Action

Komsomolskaya Pravda said the abandonment of the Krasnodar project was "unprecedented" and had caused nuclear power officials to fear "a chain reaction" that would threaten other projects.

Since the Chernobyl accident, Soviet officials have repeatedly declared their intention of pushing ahead with a construction program that is meant to double nuclear power output by the year 2000. At that point, according to the official timetable, nuclear power is scheduled to account for more than 20 percent of the country's electricity.

The Komsomolskaya Pravda report said $41 million had already been spent on the new Krasnodar plant before local officials bowed to a flood of letters end of last year to cancel it.

The New York Times/Jan. 28, 1988

$41 million had been spent on the new plant near Krasnodar.

The newspaper did not provide the precise location of the plant, the state of construction or details of its planned output and type. The plant is not mentioned in recent Soviet reports on energy development, indicating that it must be a very recent project.

Like officials in many Soviet localities, the newspaper said, leaders in the Krasnodar region had pleaded with Moscow two years ago for financing to build a nuclear plant to meet an expected shortage of electricity in the northern Caucasus Mountains.

"Before Chernobyl, to have a nuclear power plant was profitable — and also prestigious," the newspaper said. "In addition to providing self-dependency in energy, a nuclear power plant guaranteed increased attention toward the region, including jobs, housing and social and cultural amenities.

"But then the entire world started talking about Chernobyl."

Thirty-one people died when the No. 4 reactor at Chernobyl exploded and burned as the reactor raged out of control during an experimental shutdown of the cooling system. The explosion rained radioactive particles on surrounding Ukrainian towns and farmland, and contaminated farmlands as far away as Poland and Sweden.

The accident forced the evacuation of more than 100,000 residents.

Until today's report, the explosion seemed, in the view of Western analysts, to have set back Western nuclear power programs more severely than the Soviet program.

The shock of Chernobyl brought new determination to anti-nuclear groups in the United States and Europe.

"I think the situation today is not surprising," the Komsomolskaya Pravda reporter wrote. "We have read about the anti-nuclear demonstrations in other countries, and about the referendum in Austria in which it was decided not to build nuclear power plants at all, and about the fears connected with this in the United States."

The Soviet authorities have worked intensively since the Chernobyl accident to assure the public that nuclear power is safe and that their program would stay on course.

The three remaining Chernobyl reactors have been brought back on line, and new safety measures have been adopted at other nuclear power plants, including installation of more safety equipment and intensive training courses for plant employees.

No More Graphite Models

Soviet officials have announced that they would not build any more reactors of the type that failed at Chernobyl. The reactor model uses graphite to "moderate" or help sustain the fission of its nuclear fuel. Most nuclear power plants in the United States are of a different design in which water moderates the nuclear reaction.

Swedish officials visiting Moscow this week were reportedly told that plans for seven graphite-moderated reactors had been scrapped, including the fifth and sixth reactors scheduled for the Chernobyl site.

Komsomolskaya Pravda, the newspaper of the Young Communists' League, argued that critics of nuclear power were misguided.

The paper that said the northern Caucasus would face a shortage of eight million kilowatts of electricity by the year 2000, and that building coal-burning power plants instead, as residents propose, would bring pollution to the fertile Kuban Valley.

"It was only the letter-writers' elementary ignorance about nuclear power that was the cause of their purely instinctive fear, which in the present situation has to be reckoned with," Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

SUBJECT: Meeting with Jordanian Crown Prince Hassan

Jordanian Crown Prince Hassan will be here September 11-13. He has asked to see you during his visit (Tab I).

We have an excellent relationship with the Jordanian royal family, and we would like to make the Crown Prince's visit a success. As you will recall, you have recommended that the President agree to meet with Hassan. Princess Sarvath would also like to pay a courtesy call on Mrs. Bush sometime during the visit. Once we have word on the meeting with the President, we will recommend that Mrs. Bush agree to a courtesy call. The Vice President and Mrs. Quayle will be hosting the Crown Prince and Princess Sarvath for lunch on the 11th.

You could see Hassan before or after his meeting with the President, if that is scheduled; alternatively, he has suggested "tea" in his hotel room at the Watergate.

The State Department has recommended that you meet with Hassan. We concur.

RECOMMENDATION

That you agree to a meeting with Crown Prince Hassan, either in your office or in his hotel, depending on timing of the meeting with the President.

In case the President cannot agree to a courtesy call, the Crown Prince has suggested "tea" in his hotel room at the Watergate.

Also related to the Crown Prince's visit, Princess Sarvath, his wife, has requested a courtesy call on Mrs. Bush on either September 11 or 12. The Princess's only obligation thus far is the Vice President's luncheon on the 11th. We hope Mrs. Bush's schedule permits a call by the Princess.

On July 6 - 7 a very close personal friend of mine, Mr. Issam Fares, will be in Washington for a series of meetings. I am wondering if we might have fifteen minutes with you during that time for a brief discussion.

Issam is an international businessman whom I have known for almost twenty years. He is a citizen of Lebanon, and has a great personal concern about what is happening in his country. He has no political agenda whatsoever, other than a sincere desire to do what he can to raise the awareness level of this issue.

FROM: JOHN GORDON, Acting

SUBJECT: Meeting with Dan Pinick

You have agreed to meet with Dan Pinick, Senior Vice President, The Boeing Company. We do not know the details of what he is looking for, but understand that he wants your "advice" on the future of the E-3/E-6 (AWACS) line at Seattle.

We have been able to pull together the following facts:

- The line at Seattle is now at the long-lead termination point: long-lead items need to be ordered now if the line is to remain open when the current orders for French and UK AWACS are completed.
- Boeing almost certainly wants to close the line -- orders are scarce for this old 707-based airframe; they need the floor space for more profitable endeavors; their commercial backlog is on the order of $65 billion.
- The only orders on the horizon are for 22 USAF aircraft which could be the platform for the JSTARS radar. The Air Force has yet to decide if this is the right platform for the radar. They probably would have selected it already if Boeing's price were not so high -- $250 million per copy.
- Air Force does not want to get tied up in a big procurement problem or they will not be able to meet the IOC for the Army's use of JSTARS.
- Boeing would like to see the Air Force move to the 767 airframe. Air Force may resist because they would have to maintain another aircraft in their inventory and would have to deal with the 767 backlog. They argue if they are to look at the 767, then they need to look at competitors as well.
- DRB has so far dictated a very uneconomical production rate of one JSTARS the first year and two each year thereafter. That clearly is not an efficient rate for Boeing if there are no other aircraft on the line. One option the Air Force might find attractive would be to get approval for the most economical production rate and then outfit the aircraft with JSTARS when ready.

-- These complex issues have not yet been fully vetted in the Air Force or in OSD.

We recommend that you stay in the listening mode for this meeting. The Air Force would probably like you to pressure Boeing to come up with a more reasonable price and to remember the business the government gave them when the company was in some financial difficulty not so many years ago. But the Air Force does not yet have their ducks lined up. Boeing would like you to understand their predicament and possibly urge movement to another airframe -- or at least to hurry the Air Force/OSD decision along. This is an issue with little upside potential.

SCOWCROFT MEETING WITH HANK COOPER

DECLASSIFIED
PER NSC WAIVER, August 6, 2010
By CAF NARA, Date 9/19/10

Florence:

Please pass the following message to Gen. Scowcroft in time for his 5:00 meeting today with Hank Cooper.

Thanks.

-- Arnie

Brent:

Your session with Hank this afternoon is as much to signal that you take the Defense and Space Talks (and SDI) seriously as it is to hear from Hank on the substance of the last round. Put differently, it would not have been worth your time and aggravation to have to engage speculation about why Hank had trouble getting on your calendar. He hasn't, he is coming in, and thereby your major objective for the meeting already has been accomplished.

Hank has been giving a several on-the-record interviews in which he claims he sees something between clear indications and a glimmer of hope that the Soviets are ready to engage in substantive discussions on D & S. Most other members of the delegation and most observers have not detected these signs, but Hank undoubtedly will make his case and you can judge for yourself.

Rick reports that the Soviets this round seem to have given priority to their SLCM preoccupations over their SDI preoccupations. You also will have seen some intelligence reporting to the effect that they are less and less concerned about SDI, as they become increasingly confident that the U.S. political process and budgetary problems will take care of many of their SDI problems for them. This may mean that the arm they are giving Hank is not quite so stiff as in the past, but not necessarily that they are becoming serious about doing business on Defense and Space.

Hank also may complain mildly that we have been mishandling the public diplomacy aspects of D&S, specifically, that we are not doing enough to rebut the press play that defines SDI as the "obstacle" to a START agreement and the D&S talks as the place where we are trying to resolve this "problem," nor to making our positive case for the D&S talks. As a practical matter, however, there hasn't been much press attention of any kind lately to D&S, beyond that which Hank has drummed up himself in his round of interviews.

We understand through the grapevine that the Dave Smith nomination is back on track to replace Hank in Geneva, but you may have more current and/or accurate information. In any event, it is unlikely that Smith will be confirmed in time to go back when the next round begins (in late September). I don't know what the thinking is (either on your part or Hank's), about him going back until such time as Smith can get over there. An equally satisfactory alternative would be to have Bill Courtney (the deputy D&S negotiator) lead the U.S. team until Smith is in place if you and your colleagues--or Hank himself--aren't very interested in sending him back.

I likewise don't know what, if anything, people have in mind for Hank to do in government next.

Both questions undoubtedly will be on his mind, and--depending on your information and inclination--you may want to raise them even if Hank does not.

As you well know, Hank can be long-winded. If you don't already have an unbreakable appointment/obligation around 5:30, you may want to ask Florence to create one for you.

AUGUST 15 MEETING WITH RON LEHMAN

~~UNCLASSIFIED UPON

Florence:

Please pass the following note to Gen. Scowcroft and Bob Gates.
Thanks.

-- Arnie

Brent:

Ron is coming in this afternoon to pick up on your invitation a few weeks ago to come by to see you for a chat from time to time. I don't know of any specific business or issues he wants to cover.

As you know better than I, Ron is very sensitive about his status and about being a full player at the senior level. He is constantly expressing concern that he is not being invited nor allowed to participate with the big boys on the big issues. He still smarts about the lateness of his involvement in the CFE initiative, and probably is unhappy that he did not get into the brief, informal Friday meeting with the President on CW. He may raise or otherwise display these sensitivities today.

On the whole, I regard this as Ron's problem, not yours. He is not a Cabinet level official, and I assume that his involvement will be largely a function of people's estimates of his ability to contribute: performance is what counts.

In this connection, Ron should be encouraged to attend the Deputies Committee meetings where he probably can play a larger role than he does in NSC meetings. He could still attend the NSC meetings (i.e., go to both the DC and the NSC meetings) so that he doesn't feel as though he is being "downgraded."

I have a stake in such an arrangement. If Ron were agreeable to representing ACDA at the Deputies Committee, then Read Hanmer (his deputy) could attend my arms control PCC meetings. That would result in ACDA being represented by someone who is competent and helpful, in sharp contrast to the current situation.

You may want to solicit Ron's substantive views on CW, both for their own sake and to provide him a channel for his input if and as a possible initiative gets revisited at senior levels.

You also may want to hear from Ron about his interactions with the Senate and House arms control observers groups. You will recall that Ron is the Administration's point man for these groups and meets with them weekly to update them on developments in the wonderful world of arms control.

SUBJECT: Appointment Request for Ambassador Maresca

Ambassador Maresca, who heads our delegation to the CSBM talks in Vienna, is back in Washington between rounds and would like to meet with General Scowcroft. Although the CSBM negotiation has been obscured by the attention given to CFE, these talks may grow in importance. These talks will go on until 1992, when the next CSCE review meeting takes place and, as the thin Western package comes under increasing assault, we will face challenges both from the East and from other Allies to adopt more and more unsavory measures unless we come up with a bolder package of our own. In addition, the security environment after a CFE agreement may enhance the need for a good CSBM package.

Maresca has some ideas about the future, and Bob Blackwill suggests that you give him a hearing. He will be in the area during most of the month of August.

Dear Brent:

The Japanese Minister of International Trade and Industry, Seiroku Kajiyama, will be in Paris for the Economic Summit Meeting, July 13th to the 17th, with the Japanese delegation. Since Minister Kajiyama is not the Prime Minister, Foreign Minister or Finance Minister, his official role is limited. However, Mr. Kajiyama very much would like to meet you, even if briefly.

The MITI Minister is 63 years old and has served in the Diet for twenty years. He is in the Takeshita LDP faction and has served in several ministries over the years.

I hope you'll be able to find a few minutes to meet and greet Kajiyama. US-Japan trade relations are, of course, critically important, and the MITI Minister may be helpful to our national goals.

Thanks.

SUBJECT: Thurs, July 27 - Scowcroft Address Defense Policy Bd

General Scowcroft has agreed to address the Defense Policy Board from 11:00 am - Noon, Thursday, July 27 at The Pentagon.

They have asked General Scowcroft to talk with them about US NATO relations including US/FRG problems and the President's conventional arms control initiative.

Others who are scheduled to come by for discussions will be: General Herres (Vice Chairman, JCS), Paul Wolfowitz (DOD), General Galvin (?), Reg Bartholomew, and DepSecState Larry Eagleburger.

General Scowcroft has asked that the staff prepare something for him to use to address this group. It would be helpful if he could have it COB tomorrow so that he can review.

Many thanks.

Defense Policy Board Information Sheet

The Defense Policy Board was established to provide the Secretary of Defense independent, informed advice on questions of Defense policy. Members are primarily private persons with distinguished backgrounds in national security affairs.

The Board's focus is on long-term issues of defense policy, including NATO strategy, U.S. Defense policy for the Pacific, and the defense industrial base. The Board meets quarterly and reports the results of its deliberations to the Secretary of Defense.

The Board is chaired by Ambassador Seymour Weiss, who served as Director, Political-Military affairs and in other senior positions at the Department of State.

The Board's membership includes:

Dr. Graham T. Allison Jr., Dean of the John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University.

Mr. Chapman B. Cox, a lawyer in private practice in Colorado Springs, Colorado, has served as Assistant Secretary of Defense for Force Management and Personnel.

Dr. John M. Deutch, Provost of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Deutch was Under Secretary of Energy; a member of the Scowcroft Commission, he headed the Defense Science Board task group which studied U.S. ICBM modernization.

Dr. Charles M. Herzfeld, Vice-Chairman of Aetna, Peterson, Jacobs, Ramo and Company, former Director of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA), and former Vice President of ITT Corporation.

Mr. Fred S. Hoffman, Director, Pan Heuristics, former Assistant Director of the Office of Management and the Budget, and former Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense. He chaired the "Hoffman Study" of the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Mr. Eli S. Jacobs, is the Senior Partner of E.S. Jacobs Company, a private investment firm in New York City.

Ambassador Jeanne J. Kirkpatrick, Leavey University Professor of Government at Georgetown University and a Senior Fellow at the American Enterprise Institute. Ambassador Kirkpatrick was formerly the U.S. delegate to the United Nations.

Admiral Robert L.J. Long, USN (Ret.), served as Commander-in-Chief, United States Pacific Command prior to his retirement from active duty.

Message/Appt Request from Trammell Crow

Another message from Trammell Crow for General Scowcroft:

I am going to see Mr. Jiang on July 30th. Also the Chinese government significance of the project which we are talking about with them is probably going to be in partnership with the government. They are going to make my visit a prime television event and put me on national TV and national press: American businessman coming back to do business in China.

I am coming to Washington on Friday and would like to see the President and General Scowcroft -- probably just General Scowcroft. I want to get guidance on what I should do and what I should not do. I think it would be very important if I could take a letter from the President: "My friend, Trammell Crow's visit gives me a chance to send my greetings and express hope for the future." If I could take it with me, I am sure I would bring back a response. Something like this would be a one-time thing -- couldn't conduct a relationship having intermediaries like myself.

I talked to the President and mentioned getting a brief one-liner. He didn't make a commitment but said "Well, that wouldn't be hard to do."

I really want General Scowcroft to know I'm not trying to inject myself into this affair, I just want to be helpful.

End of message.

Mr. Crow's secretary called back to say that Trammell Crow would arrive in Washington at 2:00 pm and would be in General Scowcroft's office at 3:00 p.m. I said that I would "pencil that time in but would need to run it by General Scowcroft and would get back to her."

Just wanted to send this note in event General Scowcroft wished to discuss with the President enroute home. . . . he may prefer to sleep!

Msg from Trammell Crow

Message for General Scowcroft:

Trammel Crow called -- said he had talked with the President and had also talked with you and that you had asked if he knew anyone who knew/knows Jiang Zemin, new General Secretary in China. Mr. Crow will be going to see Jiang in a few days -- departs on 25th.

Mr. Crow said "the President called me and wanted to know all I knew about Jiang; that he was trying to understand and get a line on him from someone who knows Jiang." Mr. Crow said there is a man in his company (Trammell Crow Company) who knows Jiang casually well; he lives in Dallas. He knows of and about him pretty well. He is Steve Lo; he is Chinese (Taiwan-Chinese); his family lived in Taiwan before Chinese took over from the mainland; he goes to China often and has met with Jiang often.

Mr. Crow said he is not really good at passing on information; not something he is accustomed to doing so he doesn't know what is trivia and what is important but wanted to pass along Steve's comment: "Jiang is more liberal than Zhao, the man he replaced." Don't know whether it's true or not but Steve said that.

In an effort to be helpful to you and to the President, Mr. Crow thought you or perhaps one of your "intelligence men" might want to call Steve Lo and talk with him. He could share with you all that he knows about Jiang or perhaps answer questions.

I told Mr. Crow that I would pass this along to you and seek your guidance as to whether you personally would want to call him (Steve Lo) or perhaps ask Mr. Gates, your Deputy to call in your absence.

ACTION

THROUGH: TIMOTHY E. DEAL DEAL

FROM: ERIC MELBY W

SUBJECT: Appointment Request from MITI Minister Kajiyama

The Japanese Embassy contacted me to request separate 20 minute appointments for MITI Minister Seiroku Kajiyama with you and Governor Sununu July 13 in Paris. Minister Kajiyama is available between 1:30 and 6:00 P.M.

If there is time, we believe it would be desirable that you and Governor Sununu meet with Kajiyama.

Karl Jackson concurs.

RECOMMENDATION

That you agree to meet briefly with Minister Kajiyama July 13 and encourage Governor Sununu to do the same.

SUBJECT:

Keel

Any word on whether Bob will be able to meet with Ambassador Keel? To remind, he has just returned from Brussels, where he was U.S. Permanent Representative at NATO. He is seeking separately a photo op with the President and an office meeting with General Scowcroft, but he would also like to meet with Bob. (Keel's schedule is pretty much open.)

General --

Barry Lowenkron wants to talk with you about something personal -- a position he is considering. Doesn't want to discuss it with Blackwill et al. Is hoping to keep it between you and he. Shall I schedule him for a few minutes either today or tomorrow.
