Just back from Moscow and Kiev etc where he met with some of the leaders, both in the Ukraine and Soviet Union. Wondering if you are available to meet with him if he would fly down on Monday (HOLIDAY). He plans to leave for Prague on Tuesday -- he offered that he could leave from Washington.

He has just received a communication from Chinghiz Aitmatov * of Kirghizstan, a very famous and prominent writer; his works are well-known in Europe -- published in two languages.

Also wanted you to know that the President of Kirghizstan is coming to the UN at Perez de Cuellar's invitation. (Said he could send a bio on him to you.)

SUBJECT: A GENERAL VESSEY MEETING?

WILMA,

GOT A NOTE FROM GENERAL SCOWCROFT ON THE SCHEDULE PROPOSAL FOR GENERAL VESSEY TO BRIEF THE PRESIDENT ON HIS TRIP TO HANOI LAST WEEK WHICH ASKED IF IT COULD BE POSTPONED TO THE FOLLOWING WEEK.

CHECKING WITH VESSEY UNCOVERED THAT THE TIMING OF THE BRIEFING ON THE PRESIDENT IS DRIVEN BY VESSEY'S NEED TO GIVE AN ASSESSMENT TO THE HILL WHERE POW/MIA MATTERS ARE OF CONCERN RANGING FROM URGENT TO INCANDESCENT. VESSEY WOULD IDEALLY LIKE TO SEE THE PRESIDENT THIS WEEK EVEN BRIEFLY, OR, [SEE GENERAL SCOWCROFT THIS WEEK AND BRIEF THE PRESIDENT NEXT WEEK AFTER HIS VARIOUS MEETINGS ON THE HILL.]

THIS GIVES RISE TO OPTIONS THAT MIGHT BETTER SERVE THE INTERESTS OF INFORMING THE PRESIDENT AND PRESERVING GENERAL SCOWCROFT'S SCHEDULE. GENERAL VESSEY:

-- COULD TELEPHONE THE PRESIDENT WITH HIS ASSESSMENT AND MAYBE MEET WITH GENERAL AFTER HE SEES THE HILL; OR

-- COULD TELEPHONE THE GENERAL WITH HIS ASSESSMENT AND MEET WITH THE PRESIDENT AFTER HE SEES THE HILL.

Dear Brent,

I think the record shows that I've never lobbied you in behalf of a client. I never will. Instead, on the two occasions I have come to you it has been to provide a "heads up" for a potential vulnerability facing the administration. The POW/MIA issue is such an issue. Since I saw you, it's gotten worse. From all reports the trip last week to Hanoi was quite harmful.

It is still avoidable by tasking the IAG to harmonize State, DOD and League positions on numbers and policy. But left alone, there will be chaos as reflected in the attached draft letter which I am trying to head off. If you want a second opinion, you may want to talk to Rich Armitage.

Best regards,

Sincerely,

DRAFT #2

October 10, 1991

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

As I promised you during your 1988 campaign, I would inform you if I ever saw a situation develop on POW/MIA which could cause the families to disconnect from your Administration. Having just returned from the latest Vessey Mission, I feel compelled to write this letter to express my serious and increasing concerns about the direction now being taken.

During the October 1-2 talks in Hanoi, senior Vietnamese officials likely gained the impression that at your direction, the U.S. Government desires to move rapidly now to normalize diplomatic and trade relations. Discussed as an "impediment" was the POW/MIA issue; however, agreements hailed as new merely reaffirmed cooperation agreed to during the Reagan/Bush Administration, with one non-substantive exception. I perceive a softening of current POW/MIA policy requirements, and U.S. expectations on SRV accountability are consistently being downplayed.

The League supports the approved policy outlined in the "roadmap" on normalization of relations between the U.S. and Vietnam. Domestically and regionally, crucial timing requires that official policy and commitment not be viewed as empty rhetoric, especially by Hanoi.

Despite a high level of joint US/SRV activity in 1991, it has been THE worst year since 1982 in terms of accounting - the families of only 3 Americans missing in Vietnam received answers. Yet, momentum toward a Cambodia settlement could prompt working level responsiveness to Vietnam without their first having met specific POW/MIA requirements.

The League cannot support this current approach. We urgently need your personal assurance that existing criteria for re-establishing normal diplomatic and trade relations with Vietnam will be maintained. I look forward to receiving your response and, as always, my thoughts and prayers are with you as you continue to guide our nation.

Respectfully,

Ann Mills Griffiths

You are going to see Tim Towell today at 4:30 for a few minutes. We tried to schedule him earlier but since it was during the war we had to scrub him a few times. He was also scheduled to have coffee with the President but it, too, was scrubbed. He tried to get to Kathy Super to set something up this week to see President for 5 minutes. She couldn't work it out. He has now asked you, through me, to see if there was any chance he could have his farewell call with the President. He said he was going back to Paraguay on Sunday but would change that if he thought he could see the President. I explained the President was travelling on Sunday and Monday. I asked when he was departing his post and he said not until August I haven't the foggiest idea why he needs to say good-bye now other than to ask for another job Just thought I would give you a heads up!!!

REPORT ON CONVERSATIONS WITH SERGEI ROGOV ON POST START AND POST CFE
ARMS REDUCTION ON OCTOBER 24 AND 25, 1991 -- PAUL DOTY

BACKGROUND - An American group met with Russian counterparts in a Dartmouth Conference meeting on Cooperation in Security October 21-23, 1991 in Moscow. At the end we had a one hour meeting with Marshall Sheposhnikov. This went very well and at the end he apparently told Rogov to discuss their plans for further arms reduction with some of us in order to convey their thinking to the US administration. Rogov talked with Ted Warner and me separately and we have not been together to compare notes. I had two half hour sessions with him. He said that the post START material was well developed, that Sheposhnikov had told him this is the way I want to go, and on the 25th he read to me the brief that he had prepared for delivery to Gorbachev that day. He also said that they wanted this material kept within the administration for the time being but that it should be taken into consideration for possible discussion at Madrid. In addition he discussed how they would like to see the Western position develop with regard to CFE quotas in the republics and, more tentatively and not yet having any official status, changes that they hope would be agreeable with respect to troop and tank movements in fulfilling CFE.

Rogov is a newly appointed deputy director at the Institute for USA and Canada and was the co-chairman, along with me, of the three day meeting that preceded these discussions. As co-chairman he upset the American group to varying degrees by his arrogance, talkativeness and lateness at arriving at meetings. This behavior has caused Blackwill to doubt his having a high role in these matters, although he had not heard most of this story before he left Moscow. But Horelick, Warner and I do not share most of this doubt. Hal Saunders was present at the second meeting that Horelick and I had with Rogov and may have an independent opinion. Georgyi and Alexei Arbatov are well acquainted with this material (some of it may have originated with Alexei) and support Rogov's leading role.

FURTHER POST-START STRATEGIC REDUCTIONS - The briefing paper to Gorbachev states that the Soviets did not respond properly to that part of the Bush proposals that dealt with deMIRVing. They were still caught up in the parity framework and did not they yet appreciate the opportunity that deMIRVing provided for dealing with the strategic forces in the Ukraine and Kazakhstan. For this purpose we should seek elimination of nuclear weapons by class so that such eliminations would remove all strategic weapons of each class no matter where they were located. To accomplish this we should seek the complete or nearly complete deMIRVing of land based ICBMs. The counter move for the US since the MM III will go to single warheads, would be to limit D-5 production and deployment and limit the B-2 purchase. On Oct. 24 Rogov had spoken of eliminating 75% of the remaining SS-18s (i.e. to 38) and retiring all SS-19s within 5 years. On the 25th he spoke of "nearly complete" elimination. Discussion with some US officials (Nunn, Lichorn, Powell's assistant) have led them to think that this is possible. But all this is very sensitive. They want to discuss the elements of the package deal before it can become widely known and hope that this could begin in Madrid. The urgency they attach to getting this underway seems to come from sudden near panic on continuing to control the Ukraine weapons and the fragility of the Yeltsin-Gorbachev duo.

In the Oct. 24 talk Rogov gave as an example trade-off the following. The USSR would reduce its land based MIRVed ICBM force by 75-100% (relative to START quotas). In return the US would deMIRV its land based force. (DeMIRVing Peacekeeper may have been related to choosing 100% over 75% for the SS-18 reduction). At sea, the US would deploy D-5 only on the first 5 Trident II boats. C-4 missiles with W-78 warheads would be used on the 8 existing Trident I's and on the 5 Trident II's yet to come. In addition the US would limit its buy of B-2's to about 30. Some down-loading would be required or, perhaps the last Trident II could be changed to 16 tubes. For the Soviets, the SS-19's would be retired, the SS-24's limited to silo basing or eliminated altogether depending on what we do with MX. They prefer elimination of all SS-24's and MX's. SS-25 would continue in production going to perhaps 700 total and these may go to silo basing as it is much cheaper than mobile.

According to Rogov, the Soviets would hope that Bush would make a further deMIRVing proposal (at least in principle) at Madrid. The Soviets would be ready to discuss but they do not want to introduce it, presumably because it would be seen as their solution to the strategic weapons in the republics.

After Madrid, the Soviets would hope that the US acting thru NATO could develop a position vis-a-vis the republics that would say - we seek no interference in your affairs, but CFE limits 5 types of armament and no one comes has the right to change this. With the Soviets required to reduce 70,000 Treaty controlled items in the next 3 years, the CFE participants would not accept additions in republics and therefore the republics should not accept any weapons of this kind until the designated items are all destroyed. Therefore, until the USSR implements the required reductions, the distribution of the Soviet quota cannot be changed. After the reductions are complete, reassignment of quota must be approved by all CFE participants.

There followed a summary of unofficial discussions of some changes that they would like to reach agreement on regarding the drawdown of tanks and armed forces in CFE to reach their required quota in a manner that eliminated planned relocations in the republics. That will be described in a subsequent memorandum.

These notes are, of course, subject to errors of understanding and recall. They probably represent a bias toward Rogov's own views but are judged to represent fairly well current thinking at the Shaposhnikov level and are probably under discussion at the Yeltsin-Gorbachev level.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

October 8, 1991

I am delighted to extend a warm welcome to participants in the 37th General Assembly of the Atlantic Treaty Association.

It is fitting that you meet in Washington, D.C., as we mark the 30th anniversary of the Atlantic Council of the United States, your host for this event. The Atlantic Council has been in the forefront of efforts to promote public understanding of and support for an effective partnership between North America and Europe. NATO is at the heart of that partnership, and we are duly proud of its success over the past four decades. That success is rooted in the shared values that give strength to the Alliance and make it the vital institution that it is.

Your meeting comes at a historic moment. In less than a month, I will join with my Alliance colleagues in Rome to chart a course for the future of NATO. Since the London Summit 15 months ago, NATO has undertaken dramatic changes. The upcoming summit will allow us to build on those changes, thus ensuring a strong and vigorous Alliance in the years to come.

During the past 37 years, the Atlantic Treaty Association has played an important role in NATO's success. Like NATO, the Association has been undergoing major changes. Your decision to invite Soviet and Central and East European observers to your conference reflects NATO's own determination to establish greater cooperation with nations that had been oppressed and isolated by the division of Europe. In your deliberations over the next few days, you will address the challenges of change in Europe and in the entire Atlantic Community. With my colleagues in NATO capitals and, indeed, the entire region, I wish you much success.

SUBJECT: Breakfast with the Brits

Betty, this subject is getting a little confusing -- I have package #6759 dated September 13 which requests a breakfast hosted by Sir Robin Renwick for David Gilmore with the General and David Gompert. Then I get a note from you saying a breakfast has been scheduled at 8:00 a.m. at the Ambassador's residence but you don't give which date -- the 28th or 29th. Then I get a note saying the Brits are willing to do lunch on the 28th at 12:30 but the guest list has grown -- Renwick/Gilmore/Scowcroft/Gompert/Eagleburger and Thomas Niles. From your note that David had instructed you to set up the breakfast, I got the impression he had already discussed it with the General, especially since we had a formal package on which the General had not acted as yet. After checking with the General he tells me David did not discuss it with him and he would like to know more about it. The memo indicates it is to talk about preparations for NATO but since the group has expanded, the General wanted me to double check. FYI -- he normally doesn't like to do breakfasts BUT if he does a lunch it requires more time -- it's like being between the devil and the deep blue sea! Please get back with me. Thanks. Oh, yes, you can wring his neck!

I told Carol it would be tough to do a meeting Monday morning but I would be back in touch with her. I couldn't locate anything here in Florence's pending schedule folder so believe she must have passed whatever information she received along to Mike.

MEETING WITH ARKADY VOLSKY

- Member of the Silayev Commission who has worked closely with Yavlinsky and other radical economists

Key Points for the Meeting

- The President regrets he could not meet with you.
- I understand you have messages from Gorbachev. Please give me whatever messages you have.
- Know you play a critical role as a member of the Silayev Committee.
- Jim Baker was sorry to miss you when he was in Moscow and met with Prime Minister Silayev.
- I want to hear your views on the current situation. I have a few points of importance to raise.
- Particularly interested in your views on defense conversion.
 - Undersecretary Atwood wants to take a delegation of private sector representatives to Soviet Union to discuss.
 - I understand you are willing to host.
 - A vitally important topic. Conversion will be critical as defense expenditures fall.
- We want to help you find ways to encourage foreign investment in the energy sector.
 - I know (EXIM Chairman) John Macomber talked to you about creative ways to finance new energy investment.
 - Urge you to work with him so that investments can flow even before everything is sorted out between all-union and republican banks.

I will be forwarding separately a formal request for a meeting with General Scowcraft and the Italian FM on either October 4 or 5. It will be an excellent opportunity to give him the right message on the Rome NATO summit, plus Baker wont be in town and the Italians really want a White House meeting. The Italians also would like a very brief meeting with the President, if possible -- either a Presidential drop by to the General's meeting or the Genreal walking the FM over to the Oval office. This is not a necessity but would bear frut, if possible. De Michelis and the President will both be attending the Italian-American Gala Saturday October 5, and the FM will be receiving an award for public service. Cheers.

This will be a good opportunity to underline that we very much want the NATO summit, which Italy is hosting, to be a success. SUBJECT: Meeting with Amb. Renwick: Mack Amendment

Florence/Wilma: Please pass the following message to the General before his meeting tomorrow with British Ambassador Renwick.

The British Embassy informed us today that Ambassador Renwick intends to raise with you the Mack Amendment to the Export Administration Act. The Mack amendment would take away the executive branch's discretionary authority to license foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies to participate in third country trade with Cuba. Such discretionary authority is essential to avoid extraterritorial disputes with other governments and to avoid forcing U.S. firms to choose between conflicting legal obligations or divesting their holdings. Canada has already invoked its blocking statute to prevent the application of this amendment to U.S. subsidiaries based in Canada.

Amb. Renwick will inform you that the British Government will take similar action under its blocking statute if the Mack amendment becomes law. The British are especially concerned about the possible impact of this amendment on the London sugar futures market.

The Administration is on record as opposing the Mack amendment, which was in the Omnibus Export Amendments Act that the President vetoed last fall. We have worked this year to strip the most egregious provisions from the new Export Administration Act (EAA), but Mack has proved unwilling to compromise. The view within the Administration is that if Congress deletes the contentious CBW provisions of the 1990 bill, most agencies will recommend reluctantly that the President sign it. Thus, if there is a new EAA, the Mack amendment will likely be in it.

In response to Renwick, you might:

-- Point out that the Administration continues to oppose the Mack amendment.

-- Indicate that we are still trying to persuade Mack to drop this provision in light of its negative impact on U.S. firms.

-- Invite him to make UK views known on Capitol Hill.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

MEETING WITH SENATORS DAVID BOREN AND FRANK MURKOWSKI

DATE: September 10, 1991
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 7:30 a.m. (30 minutes)
FROM: Frederick D. McClure fm

I. PURPOSE

To discuss the nomination of Robert Gates to be Director of the Central Intelligence Agency with Intelligence Committee Chairman David Boren (D-OK) and Ranking Republican Frank Murkowski (R-AK).

II. BACKGROUND

Robert Gates's hearings are scheduled to begin in the Senate Intelligence Committee on September 16, 1991. The purpose of this meeting is to encourage Chairman Boren and Ranking Republican Murkowski to hold to their commitment to complete the hearings, report the nomination from committee, and bring the nomination to the Senate floor for a vote as soon as possible.

III. PARTICIPANTS

The President

Senator David Boren (D-OK), Chairman, Senate Intelligence Committee

Senator Frank Murkowski (R-AK), Ranking Republican, Senate Intelligence Committee

John Sununu, Chief of Staff

Brent Scowcroft, Assistant to the President for National Security

Fred McClure, Assistant to the President for Legislative Affairs

James W. Dyer, Deputy Assistant to the President for Legislative Affairs (Senate)

IV. PRESS PLAN

White House photographer only.

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

Members will enter through the Southwest Gate and be escorted to the Oval Office for the meeting with you.

Attachment: Talking Points

MEETING WITH SENATORS DAVID BOREN AND FRANK MURKOWSKI

-- Many thanks to both of you for coming down so early this morning.

-- I wanted to express to both of you my strong support for Bob Gates. The events of the past month have brought home to me again his value as a member of my national security team.

-- I remain convinced Bob is an outstanding nominee and I need him confirmed and on the job at the CIA as soon as possible.

Card Two

-- David, I hope we are on schedule to begin the hearings next week and have your committee vote the nomination out to the floor shortly thereafter. I hope we can then get a favorable final vote.

-- The Clair George indictment should not affect your consideration of Bob Gates. The charges against George have nothing to do with Gates. He has flatly denied them and is entitled to be presumed innocent like anybody else.

-- I also want to offer any and all support we can muster for Bob Gates.

Card Three

-- If there are any Democrats, especially committee members, or Senators with strong national security interests I need to contact, let me know. I want to get them on board as soon as possible.

-- Frank, I think we are in good shape with our side but I would like to get your thoughts on where we are and what else we can do.

Florence, I thought it would be easier for you if I sent this note, rather than calling you.

Mr. Rockefeller said that his meeting with the President a couple of weeks ago went very well, and he thanks you for arranging it. He has spoken to several key people since that meeting about his proposal of holding a Hemispheric Forum next year and would like to follow up on all this with General Scowcroft before going any further.

Mr. Rockefeller will be coming to Washington on Thursday, July 25th, for a luncheon. As this will be his last trip there this summer, he is hoping very much that there might be a minute on General Scowcroft's schedule any time that day - or even dinner that evening, or the previous evening.

Many thanks in advance - I'll wait to hear from you. Just to save you looking them up, my numbers are:

SUBJECT:

YOUR AUGUST 12 MEETING WITH RON LEHMAN

Florence:

Please give the following message to Brent. Thanks.

-- Arnie

Brent:

For your sins, you evidently have agreed to see Ron Lehman on Monday. (For my sins, I will be on the beach in North Carolina.)

One never can be sure what specifically Ron will raise, but based on past experience you probably can expect some combination of the following on substance and process (where the latter means the place of ACDA and Ron in the interagency scheme of things).

1. The End of Arms Control. Ron is concerned that as a result of a combination of interagency exhaustion and changes in the international order (notably the U.S.-Soviet relationship), we not only will want to do our arms control business differently, but also do less arms control. He thinks that is bad, both strategically and politically. Lurking behind these stated concerns are his anxieties that as we move to less formal and more "political" forms of arms control, the action will shift increasingly to State, and the role played by him and ACDA will be (further) downgraded.

2. ACDA's/Ron's Future. Ron has played second banana to State, especially Reg, in the major negotiating interactions with the Soviets (e.g., on START and CFE). He wasn't happy, bitched a lot, but grudgingly went along. But now Ron is looking ahead to a continuation of that pattern as we work through the future arms control agenda. Specifically, Reg has been designated the lead on both the U.S.-Soviet working group on non-proliferation, and the U.S.-Soviet working group on the future START/strategic stability talks. (Reg already has the lead working with the Five to implement the President's Mideast Arms Control Initiative.)

Put simply, Ron is wondering what is left for him and ACDA to do. NSC chairs the PCC on arms control. State chairs the PCC on non-proliferation. Reg does all of the negotiating/talking with foreigners about both.

Ron probably will complain about his plight and seek your reassurance that he and ACDA still are important. That part is easy. But he also may push you to be specific about what ACDA's role and responsibilities should be in the future so that he can try to use your comments on Reg, if not Baker.

Ron regularly threatens to resign. Given what he has to put up with, one day he may actually mean it. A departure during the START end game would have been messy. Now that START is signed, a departure would be politically more manageable, but it would mean foregoing Ron's relatively effective role in selling arms control--especially START--on the Hill, particularly to conservatives.

Have fun. I'll be thinking of you.

-- Arnie

Dear General Scowcroft:

As a followup to our discussions on Wednesday, I agreed to pass on any additional information on the status of Chevron's negotiations in the Soviet Union.

On Wednesday, July 24, Dick Matzke, President of Chevron Overseas, met with Kazakhstan President Nazarbaev, following the initialing of the articles of the union agreement the previous night. President Nazarbaev presented a number of proposed changes to the financial arrangements previously agreed to by all parties, in effect completely reopening the negotiations. These proposed changes would be extremely onerous to Chevron's economics and would make it impossible for us to proceed with the joint venture. Chevron's response was one of dismay and disappointment at this turn of events.

In a further three-hour meeting with President Nazarbaev and staff on Thursday, July 25, Chevron reaffirmed the above response. The ball now appears to be in the Soviet court. Matzke's impression is that the Soviet side will give further thought to the whole matter.

Sincerely,

SUBJECT: Appointment Request from Peter Goldmark

Peter Goldmark, the President of the Rockefeller Foundation, and Lewis B. Kaden have written to you to seek an appointment to discuss their proposal for a "South African Equity Bank." David Aaron has added a supporting note.

Goldmark's Bank idea is designed to inject badly needed capital into South Africa in the post-sanctions era. It would also be a sign of our continuing interest in South Africa.

David Miller and I discussed the proposal with Goldmark last year and subsequently raised it with the State Department. State is wary of the proposal because it would depend upon a major USG financial contribution. Treasury raises additional concerns about how such an initiative would mesh with the World Bank and Africa Development Bank. Nonetheless, there may be aspects of the idea meriting further consideration. I would urge you to see Goldmark, perhaps early in July, and then I could reexplore the issue with State and Treasury.

As you can see, these are serious people with an important project. They are briefing Jim Baker and Nick Brady, but because South Africa will continue to be of strategic significance to the United States, I suggested that they also touch base with you. I hope you can find time to see them.

Exile in New York continues to be satisfying and rewarding. Good thing too. You all are doing such an outstanding job that it may well be the next millenium before a Democrat again sees the inside of the Oval Office.

Dear General Scowcroft:

Peter Goldmark, the President of the Rockefeller Foundation, and I would appreciate the opportunity to discuss with you a proposal for a new multilateral organization tentatively named "The South African Equity Bank".

The Bank is designed to facilitate the economic restructuring which will have to accompany the political transition to a post-apartheid South Africa. The idea of the Bank originated last year in New York when Nelson Mandela met with a group of U.S. business and civic leaders. Since then consultations in South Africa, Europe and the U.S. have led to discussion drafts of a charter and working paper, which are enclosed.

This proposal has been reviewed with officials in the State and Treasury Departments, as well as with David Miller when he was a member of your staff.

Mr. Goldmark and I would like to discuss with you the Bank proposal, its prospects for support from the northern democracies and the process by which the Administration will consider this initiative. We will be accompanied by Sally Bowles, Executive Director of the Committee for South African Development, an entity formed for the purpose of exploring the Bank initiative.

Very truly yours,

Lewis B. Kaden

THE SOUTH AFRICA EQUITY BANK

(DRAFT WORKING PAPER)

The purpose of this draft working paper is to stimulate discussion about the role and structure of a proposed new multi-lateral organization, tentatively named the South Africa Equity Bank (the "Bank") (1). The working paper first sets forth the premises on which the Bank is based and proposes its general mission. It then puts forward, as a basis for discussion, certain working hypotheses on the Bank's structure, capital and program components. Finally, the paper ends with suggestions concerning the steps that should be taken next for the Bank's development.

Premises

The proposed South Africa Equity Bank is based on these premises:

- * South Africa would not today be engaged in dialogue about a transition to democracy were it not for the outside pressure with which northern democracies

(1) The idea for the Bank originated at a June 1990 breakfast in New York City during which Nelson Mandela met with U.S. business and civic leaders. On that occasion, Rockefeller Foundation President, Peter Goldmark, informally suggested that such an initiative might warrant exploration. Mr. Mandela welcomed the suggestion and invited Mr. Goldmark to meet with him again on July 3, 1990 for further discussions. Mr. Mandela asked at that time that a working group including strong representation from South Africa (now the Committee for South African Development) pursue the concept and develop options for its scope and structure. A Rockefeller Foundation grant to the Phelps-Stokes Fund supports the Committee's activities.

P R E L I M I N A R Y D R A F T

- formally supported the cause. If timely progress in the transition is to continue, concrete and constructive steps are important now to signal continued clear international support for the cause of democracy.
- * A new initiative tied to the achievement in South Africa of political reform is needed to serve as a bridge in mobilizing international investment toward achieving substantial improvements in the equity of economic opportunity.
 - * The economic perversions of the apartheid system, increasing economic disparity, slow economic growth, and rapid population growth combine to require urgent action; Any political settlement reached under a new constitution will be inherently unstable unless the South African majority quickly develops confidence that there will be tangible economic progress in the future.
 - * While the post-apartheid South African government, private capital, and existing national, regional and international organizations will all have crucial responsibilities in the development of the post-apartheid economy, a new multilateral organization could play a significant role in addressing a set of urgent development needs unlikely to be met by other sources.
 - * The initial work and research to structure the Bank should be pursued now in order that the Bank's resources can become immediately available once certain triggering events take place.

The Bank's Mission

The Bank's proposed mission, very broadly defined, is to serve as a credible and competent vehicle through which the OECD countries can contribute to South Africa's democratic future by direct assistance in achieving a stable transition to a fair and prosperous economy. Through the program components described below, the Bank would focus its limited resources on projects and investments aimed directly at reducing inequity and poverty. It would also aim to make clear by its actions and its policies that private investment and entrepreneurial initiative can increase equity and opportunity in a previously repressive society so that every citizen, regardless of race, can have a stake in South Africa's future.

Structure

In order to achieve its mission, the Bank must be designed to be a state-of-the-art development vehicle. As a working hypothesis it is proposed that it draw from the model recently established by the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development ("BERD") for its emphasis on the private sector and for certain elements of its structure. For the purposes of this working document, it is initially proposed that the Bank would:

- * Have a strong private sector emphasis, with a charter clause that requires the Bank to invest at least 60% of its capital in the private sector.
- * Limit its investments to South Africa rather than investing in the region as a whole. (2)
- * Be financed through subscriptions, primarily from OECD countries with an agreed-upon ratio of paid-in and callable capital. (3)

(2) It may be appropriate that the Bank's charter contain a provision allowing the option regional investment after several years.

(3) Although it might be appropriate at some point in the future to admit privately held corporations to membership in the bank along with sovereign states, the practical and legal issues involved in such an arrangement appear to require difficult research and negotiation inconsistent with a timely start-up.

PRELIMINARY DRAFT

- * Be initially capitalized at around $5 billion. (4)
- * Have a two-tiered governance structure with a board of directors (led by South Africans) primarily responsible for day-to-day management, and with a board of governors comprised of subscribers responsible for allocation of capital among the basic program components described below, strong overall investment standards and the choice of a chief executive.
- * Be structured to facilitate cooperative arrangements with existing development institutions such as the World Bank and Development Bank of Southern Africa.
- * Be professionally but leanly staffed by managers trained in both private and public sector lending and investments.
- * Be structured to facilitate coordination with but to maintain independence from the South African government.

The Bank's Investments

The Bank's investments would:

- * Be limited to economically sound projects designed to promote equitable economic opportunity and stimulate economic growth.
- * Pass strict economic tests for feasibility and soundness, and
- * Meet mandated standards applicable to environmental protection and human rights.

(4) Assuming an initial five year capitalization of $5 billion and assuming that the U.S. subscribed 10% of the initial capital with 70% callable and 30% paid-in, the U.S. cash obligation would be $30 million annually for five years.

P R E L I M I N A R Y D R A F T

As a working hypothesis, the Bank would invest in some or all of the following discrete program areas:

- * Restructuring The Bank would make equity investments in and loans to promising new (or expanding) small and medium-scale businesses, in order to supplement or stimulate private capital -- with the objectives of creating employment opportunities, stimulating rapid economic growth and supporting commitments to skill development and equitable hiring practices.

The Bank would provide the financial base for purchases by low-income South Africans of unit ownership in established companies -- with the objective of broadening the base of South African society which has a stake in the private sector economy, of increasing productivity, and of establishing collateral for such purposes as the purchase of homes, higher education and entrepreneurial initiatives. (5)

- * Micro-lending for small enterprise development The Bank would provide the financial base for micro credit and saving programs that would lend to individual entrepreneurs at the local level -- with the objective of encouraging individual initiative, creating collateral and savings, strengthening local economies and widening participation in the private sector. (6)

(5) Analysis of the applicability to South Africa of experience in Malaysia with related voluntary restructuring plans and of experience with Employee Stock Option Plans (ESOPs) in the United States and elsewhere will assist the further development of this proposed area of Bank investment.

(6) Analysis of the experience of such micro-lending models as the Grameen Bank in Bangladesh, the Bank Rakyat Indonesia (BRI) Unit Desa System, and the initiatives of Accion, Inc. (e.g. the Prodem in Bolivia) will assist in developing this proposed area of Bank activity within the context of such existing and emerging initiatives in South Africa. (Loans in those three models range in size from $10 to $13,500; the average loan is approximately $200.)

- * Infrastructure development The Bank would finance carefully targeted infrastructure projects that are designed to have a direct impact on the economic life of South Africa's poor, including relatively small human and capital development projects which serve to unify previously neglected communities with existing systems. (7)

As noted earlier, it is a hypothesis of this paper that no more than 40% of the Bank's capital should be used for public-sector investment. The specific allocation of capital between the Bank's private-and-public-sector investments and among the areas identified above must be based on further analysis of the priority needs and capacities of the South African economy, resources likely to be otherwise available and on a detailed financial analysis of the balance of investment activities and policies required for the Bank's overall financial viability.

Next Steps

In view of the importance of timely action to structure the Bank as discussed at the outset of this paper, it is proposed that the following next steps be taken concurrently:

- * Initiation of high level meetings with government officials in OECD countries.
- * Early completion of a set of detailed financial analyses on which to base the Bank's capital structure and to inform its further definition and development.

(7) The Bank will not have the resources (nor is it proposed that it have the depth and range of engineering and related technical expertise) normally associated with multiple large-scale infrastructure development.

P R E L I M I N A R Y D R A F T

- * Initiation of working sessions to test the fore-going hypotheses with the benefit of expert assistance in relating international experience to the specific opportunities and challenges in South Africa.

It is intended that this paper serve as an agenda for those purposes. It is also intended to stimulate other consultations and comment.

Comments about the paper and requests for consultation or further information may be directed to Sally Bowles, Executive Director, the Committee for South African Development at:

- formally supported the cause. If timely progress in the transition is to continue, concrete and constructive steps are important now to signal continued clear international support for the cause of democracy.
- * A new initiative tied to the achievement in South Africa of political reform is needed to serve as a bridge in mobilizing international investment toward achieving substantial improvements in the equity of economic opportunity.
 - * The economic perversions of the apartheid system, increasing economic disparity, slow economic growth, and rapid population growth combine to require urgent action; Any political settlement reached under a new constitution will be inherently unstable unless the South African majority quickly develops confidence that there will be tangible economic progress in the future.
 - * While the post-apartheid South African government, private capital, and existing national, regional and international organizations will all have crucial responsibilities in the development of the post-apartheid economy, a new multilateral organization could play a significant role in addressing a set of urgent development needs unlikely to be met by other sources.
 - * The initial work and research to structure the Bank should be pursued now in order that the Bank's resources can become immediately available once certain triggering events take place.

The Bank's Mission

The Bank's proposed mission, very broadly defined, is to serve as a credible and competent vehicle through which the OECD countries can contribute to South Africa's democratic future by direct assistance in achieving a stable transition to a fair and prosperous economy. Through the program components described below, the Bank would focus its limited resources on projects and investments aimed directly at reducing inequity and poverty. It would also aim to make clear by its actions and its policies that private investment and entrepreneurial initiative can increase equity and opportunity in a previously repressive society so that every citizen, regardless of race, can have a stake in South Africa's future.

Structure

In order to achieve its mission, the Bank must be designed to be a state-of-the-art development vehicle. As a working hypothesis it is proposed that it draw from the model recently established by the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development ("BERD") for its emphasis on the private sector and for certain elements of its structure. For the purposes of this working document, it is initially proposed that the Bank would:

- * Have a strong private sector emphasis, with a charter clause that requires the Bank to invest at least 60% of its capital in the private sector.
- * Limit its investments to South Africa rather than investing in the region as a whole.(2)
- * Be financed through subscriptions, primarily from OECD countries with an agreed-upon ratio of paid-in and callable capital.(3)

(2) It may be appropriate that the Bank's charter contain a provision allowing the option regional investment after several years.

(3) Although it might be appropriate at some point in the future to admit privately held corporations to membership in the bank along with sovereign states, the practical and legal issues involved in such an arrangement appear to require difficult research and negotiation inconsistent with a timely start-up.

P R E L I M I N A R Y D R A F T

- * Be initially capitalized at around $5 billion. (4)
- * Have a two-tiered governance structure with a board of directors (led by South Africans) primarily responsible for day-to-day management, and with a board of governors comprised of subscribers responsible for allocation of capital among the basic program components described below, strong overall investment standards and the choice of a chief executive.
- * Be structured to facilitate cooperative arrangements with existing development institutions such as the World Bank and Development Bank of Southern Africa.
- * Be professionally but leanly staffed by managers trained in both private and public sector lending and investments.
- * Be structured to facilitate coordination with but to maintain independence from the South African government.

The Bank's Investments

The Bank's investments would:

- * Be limited to economically sound projects designed to promote equitable economic opportunity and stimulate economic growth.
- * Pass strict economic tests for feasibility and soundness, and
- * Meet mandated standards applicable to environmental protection and human rights.

(4) Assuming an initial five year capitalization of $5 billion and assuming that the U.S. subscribed 10% of the initial capital with 70% callable and 30% paid-in, the U.S. cash obligation would be $30 million annually for five years.

P R E L I M I N A R Y D R A F T

As a working hypothesis, the Bank would invest in some or all of the following discrete program areas:

- * Restructuring The Bank would make equity investments in and loans to promising new (or expanding) small and medium-scale businesses, in order to supplement or stimulate private capital -- with the objectives of creating employment opportunities, stimulating rapid economic growth and supporting commitments to skill development and equitable hiring practices.

The Bank would provide the financial base for purchases by low-income South Africans of unit ownership in established companies -- with the objective of broadening the base of South African society which has a stake in the private sector economy, of increasing productivity, and of establishing collateral for such purposes as the purchase of homes, higher education and entrepreneurial initiatives. (5)

- * Micro-lending for small enterprise development The Bank would provide the financial base for micro credit and saving programs that would lend to individual entrepreneurs at the local level -- with the objective of encouraging individual initiative, creating collateral and savings, strengthening local economies and widening participation in the private sector. (6)

(5) Analysis of the applicability to South Africa of experience in Malaysia with related voluntary restructuring plans and of experience with Employee Stock Option Plans (ESOPs) in the United States and elsewhere will assist the further development of this proposed area of Bank investment.

(6) Analysis of the experience of such micro-lending models as the Grameen Bank in Bangladesh, the Bank Rakyat Indonesia (BRI) Unit Desa System, and the initiatives of Accion, Inc. (e.g. the Prodem in Bolivia) will assist in developing this proposed area of Bank activity within the context of such existing and emerging initiatives in South Africa. (Loans in those three models range in size from $10 to $13,500; the average loan is approximately $200.)

- * Infrastructure development The Bank would finance carefully targeted infrastructure projects that are designed to have a direct impact on the economic life of South Africa's poor, including relatively small human and capital development projects which serve to unify previously neglected communities with existing systems. (7)

As noted earlier, it is a hypothesis of this paper that no more than 40% of the Bank's capital should be used for public-sector investment. The specific allocation of capital between the Bank's private-and-public-sector investments and among the areas identified above must be based on further analysis of the priority needs and capacities of the South African economy, resources likely to be otherwise available and on a detailed financial analysis of the balance of investment activities and policies required for the Bank's overall financial viability.

Next Steps

In view of the importance of timely action to structure the Bank as discussed at the outset of this paper, it is proposed that the following next steps be taken concurrently:

- * Initiation of high level meetings with government officials in OECD countries.
- * Early completion of a set of detailed financial analyses on which to base the Bank's capital structure and to inform its further definition and development.

(7) The Bank will not have the resources (nor is it proposed that it have the depth and range of engineering and related technical expertise) normally associated with multiple large-scale infrastructure development.

P R E L I M I N A R Y D R A F T

- * Initiation of working sessions to test the fore-going hypotheses with the benefit of expert assistance in relating international experience to the specific opportunities and challenges in South Africa.

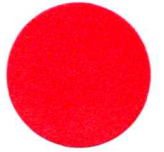

It is intended that this paper serve as an agenda for those purposes. It is also intended to stimulate other consultations and comment.

Comments about the paper and requests for consultation or further information may be directed to Sally Bowles, Executive Director, the Committee for South African Development at:

SUBJECT: Visit of Australian opposition leader

Australian opposition leader John Hewson will visit Washington July 8-10. Given the fluid state of Australian politics and the growing possibility that Hewson will be PM when the President visits Australia, I recommend a meeting with General Scowcroft with a drop-by with the President. PM Hawke's office is aware of this recommendation and understands the reasoning; he asks only that Hewson not be too warmly received, something that the drop-by format accomplishes.

Request to know whether meeting is possible. Thanks.

Florence--

About an hour ago someone from Commerce told me that Commerce is being sued on an export licensing matter and will lose the case if the revised nonproliferation regs are not issued soon. That argues for scheduling the meeting as soon as possible, since the idea is not to issue the regs until after the industry reps have had a chance to air their views here.

I have explained the genesis of this meeting to Nancy in Roger Porter's office so she will not be surprised by your call.

OFFICE OF THE
Under Secretary of State for Economic Affairs

Washington, D.C. 20520

May 15, 1991

Dear Brent:

Please keep me in mind as you think about selection of a new deputy.

I believe that I have the skills and broad experience to be both an effective and, hopefully, wise NSC manager and adviser for you and the President. In an era when economic and political issues are increasingly interlinked, I have the added benefit of both private and public sector experience in blending the two together. As they say, "I know the territory".

- Senior positions on the NSC Staff in three administrations (Nixon, Ford and Carter) as well as at State and CIA.
- Economic, political and regional (Middle East) policymaking and negotiating experience.
- Established working relationships at senior levels in several departments/agencies and with other White House offices.
- Personally known to the President since he served as DCI.
- Congressional experience with especially strong ties to Senate Republican leadership.
- Favorably known to the news media and a broad range of contacts with other Washington opinion-makers.
- Private sector experience in international business (Bechtel).

The Honorable
Brent Scowcroft,
Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs,
The White House.

I feel certain that the people I have worked closest with over the years would tell you that I am loyal, dedicated to excellence and a flexible team player without an exaggerated sense of self-importance. Specifically, I would refer you to men of accomplishment such as Jim Schlesinger, Dick Helms, George Shultz, Bill Colby, Zbig Brzezinski, Bob Ellsworth and Fred Malek. Bob Kimmitt has known me for years and, of course, my good friend Dick McCormack can tell you more than you may ever want to know. I doubt that Jim Baker would have any problems with my appointment.

Brent, I know that many different factors go into a decision like this and that there will be several strong candidates. All I ask for is "serious consideration" and then whatever you and the President decide will be fine with me.

With warm regards,

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in blue ink that reads "Sam". The signature is stylized with a cursive 'S' and a simple 'am'.

Dear Brent:

I have tried a number of times to reach you by phone or secure an appointment over the last couple of weeks. The subject of the request for a meeting is GATSS, a consortium of companies led by Westinghouse, AT&T, IBM, Hughes, C.Itoh of Japan, and Daimler-Benz of Germany. This consortium is currently finalizing negotiations with the Soviet Government to modernize their civil air traffic control system. I have attached a backgrounder for your information.

We have completed a full set of detailed briefings throughout the US, Japanese and German governments on this $100 billion investment initiative. There are several specific issues which I would like to address with you prior to my departure for Moscow this Saturday (June 14).

If feasible, I would like to arrange a brief meeting on Friday, June 13 or a phone call. I know you must be extremely pressed for time, but rest assured I would not bother you unless I felt it was important.

Your doing a great job and hope your keeping your sanity.

Sincerely,

GATSS: BACKGROUND

The Global Air Transportation Systems and Services (GATSS) is a consortium of six leading high technology manufacturers which was formed to modernize the air traffic system of the Soviet Union. The six companies are:

- * American Telephone & Telegraph (AT&T),
- * C. Itoh, of Japan
- * Deutsche Aerospace, a subsidiary of Daimler-Benz,
- * Hughes Aircraft Company,
- * International Business Machines (IBM), and
- * Westinghouse Electric Corporation.

The main objective of GATSS is to work jointly with the Aeronavigatsia State Research and Development Institute of the Ministry of Civil Aviation of the USSR to develop a long-term plan to upgrade the Soviet air traffic system and enhance the commercial utilization of Soviet air space.

Since this program will be long-term and implemented through several phases, it is critical that we jointly establish a facility that will provide the necessary funds on a timely basis to accomplish our objectives.

We are developing a two-pronged approach:

1. Initial Phase -- opening of air corridors for through flights between Europe and the Far East, Europe and South/Southeast Asia, and the U.S. and the Far East.

This phase will be funded through the participation of the export credit agencies of the GATSS members. Due to the current financial situation of the Soviet Union, this is currently the only viable source of financing. It will require full Soviet support, including a sovereign guarantee through Vneshekonombank.

The Initial Phase will generate substantial amounts of hard currency for the long-term as a result of overflight fees charged to non-Soviet airlines benefiting from routing optimization.

2. Subsequent Phases -- continued modernization of the air traffic system including international stop-over flights, domestic flights, etc.

The revenue proceeds from the implementation of Initial Phase are to be captured in an Air Navigation System Fund (ANSF). These proceeds will be used directly and indirectly, i.e. as collateral, to fund subsequent phases.

A critical element of the ANSF is that the fund is established in a neutral country, e.g. Austria, and in a bank that is acceptable to all parties and the financial community, e.g. Donau Bank which is partially-owned by Vneshekonombank.

Admiral Dan Murphy called -- he had talked with Dona and gave her the background info but hopes to get 20 mins with BS this week. Any chance to do today? I did tell him that BS has a full schedule but that you would be in touch with him re his request. (BS overheard my end of conversation -- said he thought he "had checked an answer.")

General

Admiral Murphy would like a 20-minute appointment with you to discuss GATSS (Global Air Traffic System in the Soviet Union). It is something he is involved in and wants you to know what he is doing. He also said it involves Westinghouse, AT&T IBM, Hughes, CITOH (Japanese) & Daimler-Benz.

OK to schedule brief appointment ✓
