SUBJECT: Meeting with Industry

General Scowcroft brokered, at Sen. Garn's request, a dispute between the software industry and NSA related to export control procedures for encryption technology. Part of the final agreement, confirmed in a letter from the General to Garn, was that General Scowcroft would chair a meeting of industry and cognizant US agencies to review the effectiveness of the new export control procedures. This is to request a time on General Scowcroft's calendar for a one hour meeting, presumably in Room 208, to fulfill this commitment. I have informed the industry group that with the election schedule constantly changing, there may be a last minute cancellation or Adm. Howe may substitute. They accept that risk.

Could you let me know of a convenient time for this meeting on October 20, 21 or 22???

Thanks!

SUBJECT: Request by Eliasson to see Gen. Scowcroft

Ambassador Jan Eliasson, Under Secretary of the UN for Humanitarian Affairs will be in Washington Wednesday, December 9 and wishes to meet briefly with General Scowcroft. The suggested time is sometime between 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. If such a meeting is feasible, I will get a specific topic/topics. The two most likely are Somalia and Iraq. General Scowcroft met with Eliasson once before. I recommend the meeting.

Would Wednesday, Dec. 9 in the 2:30-3:30 time frame be okay?

General --

Amos Jordan is going to be coming in from Hawaii to attend a meeting of the IOB on December 8-9. Hopes to be able to see you for a few minutes late on the 7th or sometime on the 8th to talk about a breakthrough on Asian Security Studies in the Pacific Rim. Please advise if this is something you wish to do if the schedule will permit.

Doug Paal is aware of this breakthrough and recommends you see Jordan for 15 minutes IF your schedule will allow.

Go ahead and schedule him or 15 minutes BP

Rollwagon meeting

I am responding on behalf of Eric Melby and Doug Paal to your question on whether to schedule a meeting with John Rollwagon. The decision whether to license the Cray computer to China has not been made as yet, but we hope that a decision will be made in the next two weeks. Our recommendation, therefore, is to set up the meeting with the caveat (for us) that if the computer is denied, the meeting be canceled so that the General will not have to deliver the bad news. I will keep you informed about the decision.

National Opinion Ballot Report

October 1992

RESULTS OF NATIONAL OPINION SURVEY ON U.S. FOREIGN POLICY

SUPPORT for Administration policy on

- Israeli settlements in occupied territories
- forcible return of Haitian refugees
- restricted entry to U.S. for those infected with HIV

OPPOSITION to Administration policy on

- environmental issues, specifically biodiversity and natural habitats
- AIDS, terming the fight inadequate

CONDITIONAL SUPPORT for

- North American free-trade agreement with Mexico

These are some of the views expressed by participants in the Foreign Policy Association's 1992 Great Decisions discussion and study program. Participants this year cast over 40,000 opinion ballots on the eight Great Decisions topics.

OTHER HIGHLIGHTS

DOMESTIC PRIORITIES. 40% of those surveyed put social problems (education, health, crime) at the top of the U.S. agenda. By contrast, stimulating the economy is ranked no. 1 by only 22%; reducing the budget deficit, by 20%.

GLOBAL PRIORITY. Neither go-it-alone nor stay-at-home is the choice of a majority of participants; 81% favor working through organizations such as the United Nations to solve international problems.

AIDS. Individual responsibility rather than government action is the key to controlling the AIDS epidemic, an overwhelming majority (71%) believes.

ECONOMIC AID AND THE ENVIRONMENT. Give economic aid only to developing countries that implement sound environmental policies is the position of a large majority: 53% agree outright and another 31% with reservations.

FORMER SOVIET UNION. A multilateral "Marshall Plan" for Russia and the other republics is supported by 59% of the participants.

What are Foreign Policy Association opinion ballots? Opinion ballots are included in each annual Great Decisions briefing book, prepared by the editors of the national nonpartisan Foreign Policy Association. The ballots reflect the views of some of the 250,000 people who take part in study and discussion of the eight topics. The subjects this year covered American priorities, Mideast peace prospects, the refugee crisis, Latin America, Planet Earth, Africa's second liberation, AIDS and the Soviet breakup

CHARACTERISTICS OF PARTICIPANTS

All in all, 40,401 ballots were received this year, a 13% increase over last year and the largest number in four years. Slightly over 5,000 participants, on the average, sent in ballots for a given topic. For one of every three participants, this was a first-time experience. The background of participants differs considerably from the general population. Women outnumber men by a three-to-two margin. The majority is over 60 years of age. The top ten states, ranked by ballot participation, are: California, Florida, Oregon, Illinois, North Carolina, Ohio, Washington, Virginia, New York and Colorado. Three of every four participants are college graduates, with many holding advanced degrees. Over half indicated that they were asked about their opinions on foreign policy matters at least sometimes. Also more than half reported they had been abroad in the last four years.

■ How many years have you participated in the Great Decisions program?

This is the first year I have participated.	33%
I participated in one previous year.	14%
I participated in more than one previous years.	53%

■ Sex

Female	65%
Male	35%

■ Have you been abroad during the last four years?

Yes	55%
No	45%

■ Highest level of formal education

Some high school	3%
High school degree	9%
Some college	16%
College graduate	40%
Advanced degree	32%

■ How often are you asked for your opinion on foreign policy matters?

Often	17%
Sometimes	54%
Hardly ever	29%

■ Would you say that you have or have not changed your opinion in a fairly significant way as a result of taking part in the Great Decisions program?

Have changed	44%
Have not changed	31%
Uncertain	25%

Opinion ballots have been included in the Foreign Policy Association's annual Great Decisions briefing book since 1955 to enable participants to make their views known to their representatives in Washington and to the news media. Again this year, tabulation of ballots received by June 30 was performed by Calculogic Corporation, 2929 Broadway, New York, N.Y., which furnished the printouts on which this report is based. FPA is indebted to Joseph Lopatin, president of Calculogic, for his contribution which helped make this report possible.

The National Opinion Ballot Report was prepared by Helmut Norpoth, professor of political science at the State University of New York at Stony Brook and a former consultant to the New York Times/CBS News Poll. The report contains illustrative comments from Great Decisions participants. The views expressed are those of the participants, not those of FPA, which is a nonpartisan educational organization and takes no position on issues of U.S. foreign policy.

Additional copies of the report may be obtained free from the Foreign Policy Association.

The Great Decisions program is the largest public education series of its kind. Using the briefing book, participants meet in homes, classrooms, offices, civic and senior citizen centers, places of worship and libraries to discuss the eight topics for the year. You can join an existing group or start your own. For information, call FPA at (800) 628-5754 or (212) 764-4050. Groups are sponsored locally by civic and community groups across the United States.

Topics for Great Decisions 1993:

1. U.S. in a New World: What Goals? What Priorities?
2. United Nations: What Role in the New World?
3. Germany's Role: In Europe? In the North Atlantic?
4. China: New Reforms, Old Politics
5. Trade and the Global Economy: Projecting U.S. Interests
6. Russia and the Central Asian Republics: After Independence, New Directions?
7. India and Pakistan: Collision or Compromise?
8. Children at Risk: Abroad and at Home

Dear Brent,

Sorry to even occupy you with reading this letter. Life must be tough there with the world hot spots ablaze.

But we still keep thinking here at the University of Utah that someday -- and I hope it is very far away -- you will decide Utah might be a good place to continue your great career.

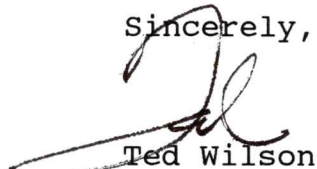

The thought I have been asked to extend is the founding of the Brent Scowcroft Global Studies Center at the University of Utah. Sounds great to me and it could come together with some skillful fundraising and focus.

If things ever slow a little for you, I am in D.C. during the fall, could schedule my trip around your convenience and would be delighted to see you.

This is the idea of my colleague on the Political Science faculty, Slava Lubomudrov. Slava is a scholar of the former Soviet empire and is delightful to work with.

Best personal regards. We feel so much better with you there.

Please pass the following to the General for his meeting today with Congressman Solarz:

Humanitarian Relief. In addition to the aid we have ongoing and our offer to establish a relief hub in Belgrade, we have also offered to do an assessment of the Split-Ploce area to establish a hub there. We're also going to explore using other airports -- such as Tuzla -- for aid deliveries.

No-Fly Zone. We are evaluating the information on Serbian air activity, engaging in consultations with our allies, and talking with the UN to see whether we should move ahead now with an enforcement resolution.

Sanctions. The enforcement provisions of UNSCR 787 are having an effect both in the Adriatic and Danube. Ships have been stopped and turned around. We are exploring ways to give Romania and Hungary the technical assistance they need to keep the Serbs cut off.

Political situation in the "FRY". Elections are scheduled for Dec 20 and we have only a limited ability to help ensure a 'democratic' outcome. We are encouraging the Albanians to vote (so that the opposition to Milosevic has some chance), and are exploring ways to improve information dissemination.

SUBJECT: BS Meeting with Sen Levin

Please pass the following to the General:

A brief update on Yugoslav issues (you also just wrote to Levin on this October 26):

Bosnia. The violence continues. We have continued to push for an expanded relief effort, but UNHCR and UNPROFOR are not in perfect harmony. We've offered to do central organization for a Belgrade-Sarajevo route, but there are practical problems with this link (we would need to rely on the continuous cooperation of the Serbs, routes are dangerous once you hit Bosnia, etc.)

We, along with others, have been sustaining the airlift into Sarajevo, and may consider ways to enhance this means of delivery. But our emphasis is on making maximum use of the over-land routes to get aid in. We continually review the situation to see how we can do more.

Everyone is aware of the looming catastrophe that winter and a lack of aid represents.

[You may want to add the results of the Principals' meeting -- a thorough-going review with a report due back to the President of our options?]

No-Fly Zone. Yes, violations have been detected. The UNSYG issued a report of some two dozen incidences. We are concerned. We're watching the situation closely and have been consulting with our allies. We intend to see that the ban is respected and will move to recommend an enforcement resolution if the pattern of violations continues. [the British and French want to move cautiously because they believe any enforcement will result in retaliation against their troops on the ground.]

Kosovo. General unanimity in the international community that the situation is extremely tense. Violence could provoke a wider conflict involving, potentially, Albania, Macedonia, Bulgaria, and others. We are currently reviewing how we and others in the international community can defuse the tensions.

Lifting the Arms Embargo. We are opposed to lifting the embargo because we believe the short and medium term effects would be increased violence and a major interruption in humanitarian aid deliveries.

Sanctions. We have argued for weeks [months!] that the sanctions needed strengthening. However, not all of the members of the international community have agreed with us.

But the passage of the recent UN resolution [UNSCR 787] does two key things regarding sanctions: it authorizes the enforcement of sanctions in the Adriatic and along the Danube to prevent violations, and it bans certain key commodities -- most notably petroleum products -- from transshipping Serbia and Montenegro. Transshipping has been a major source of violations.

POINTS TO BE MADE
TELEPHONE CONVERSATION WITH PRESIDENT YELTSIN

Congress of People's Deputies Meeting

- Boris, I wanted to wish you good luck as you begin the Congress of People's Deputies session tomorrow.
- I understand this is a difficult test for you and the reform process. You should know that the United States stands behind you and the others promoting economic and political reform.
- We are ready to help in any way if you think it appropriate.
- What approach will you take and how do you expect the Congress to unfold this week?
- If you agree, I would like to issue a written statement today emphasizing our strong support for you and reform.

Additional Issues (If Asked)

START II Treaty

- I have sent you a letter today proposing that you and I conclude the START II treaty before I leave office in January.
- We do not need to discuss the details now, but I would like to compare notes with you when you are ready.

Kosovo

- I wrote to you two weeks ago about our strategy on Kosovo.
- I know this is a tough issue because of Russia's historic relationship with the Serbs, but the international community needs to take firm action to prevent a widening of the war.

Somalia

- I have also written to you on Somalia. We are waiting to hear what the UN is prepared to do.
- There is a clear need for international action to avoid further starvation. I hope Russia will support this effort.

Paris Club Debt Rescheduling

- The G-7 remains ready to conclude a generous rescheduling.

MEMORANDUM FOR LARRY EAGLEBURGER
BRENT SCOWCROFT ✓
ED MADIGAN
BOB ZOELLICK

FROM: Carla Hills Carla
SUBJECT: U.S./EC Oilseeds Dispute

The attached memorandum is for discussion at our meeting this afternoon.

Attachment

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

October 22, 1992

U.S./EC Oilseeds Dispute

Issue

Proposed retaliatory action against the European Community for its failure to reopen its oilseeds market.

Discussion

Over the past six years, two GATT panels have found that the EC's subsidies on oilseeds production impair U.S. rights to tariff-free access to the EC market. After the first GATT panel ruled in 1989, Clayton Yeutter and Carla Hills were personally assured that the EC would fulfill its GATT obligations before the 1991 growing season. That has not occurred.

This past June, after a second GATT panel confirmed that the EC's CAP reform did not fix the problem, we began to prepare for possible retaliation by soliciting public comment on a list of food and beverage items to redress trade damage estimated at $1 billion. As expected, the public comment documented that retaliation will impose costs on U.S. firms who depend on the listed imports for their livelihood.

Our oilseeds industry has argued for action since August 18, when a GATT-imposed consultation period expired. Despite criticism from the industry and the Congress (including the Republican leadership) we have continued to negotiate with the EC with the hope of finding a solution.

Over the past several weeks, Ed Madigan and Carla Hills have held extensive consultations with EC officials on the oilseeds dispute and the issues dividing us in the Uruguay Round. Last week, the President told EC leaders by letter that we have stretched as far as we can on both fronts. It now seems apparent that the EC is:

- Incapable of coming to an internal consensus on the Round in the foreseeable future; and
- Unwilling to take action to redress our oilseeds rights.

The EC's intransigence on the oilseeds dispute leaves us with no further options. Failure to respond calls into question the credibility and resolve of the U.S. Government. It also calls into question the credibility of the GATT system, which after nearly 7 years cannot provide a remedy, notwithstanding repeated findings of clear violation.

DECLASSIFIED
PER NSC WAIVER, 1500 2021-02
By SS NARA, Date 3/6/24

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Proposed Action

In an effort to minimize the risk of a trade war and to demonstrate to the EC our resolve to enforce our rights, we should initiate the following three-part strategy as soon as possible.

- Limited retaliation. Effective in 30 days, the U.S. will impose prohibitive duties on about $300 million of the $1 billion in estimated trade damage, targeting primarily European white wine (see list at Tab I). The 30-day delay will allow time for any additional consultation, should the EC be willing to move. By raising duties on less than a third of the damage, we signal limited forbearance and willingness to take additional steps if needed. We also provide a deterrent to counter-retaliation by the EC by making clear that such action would trigger our full retaliation.
- Renew offer of binding arbitration. The EC estimates trade damage to the U.S. at $200 million, only 20 percent of our $1 billion estimate. In September, the EC rejected our offer of submitting the damage issue to binding GATT arbitration. Other GATT members considered our offer to be fair. We would renew the offer.
- Consider additional items for possible later stages of retaliation. In June, the President decided to limit retaliation to food and beverages. However, partly because of comments received from the public, it is clear that we cannot exert the most effective leverage on the EC (and targeted member countries) without adding industrial items for retaliation. At the same time that we announce the initial tranche of retaliation, we should publish for public comment a new list adding industrial items (see the list at Tab II). These items will create pressure on the Germans, whose constructive participation is necessary to resolve this dispute.

This measured approach allows sufficient leeway for the EC to resume discussions and find a solution, should they genuinely want to take advantage. It also demonstrates firmness of purpose that will strengthen support for our trade policies, at home and abroad. There is no basis for delaying action out of concern for the impact on the Uruguay Round negotiations. The EC by its actions has made clear that it is unwilling to move on the Round until after the French election in March.

MEMORANDUM FOR: SEE BELOW

FROM: Deborah M. Lehr
(LEHR)

SUBJECT: C-130s and Taiwan

I have some additional information after conversations with DOD, State and the Taiwanese.

The Taiwanese are set on the purchase of C-130s; they do not want the commercial version of the C-130 (the L-100). They have stated that they are willing to buy the C-130s within the limits of the "bucket". What the Taiwanese are considering is to space out the purchases, perhaps 4 per year for 4 years, so they will have additional money in the "bucket" for other military purchases. As mentioned in an early paper on this issue, the Taiwanese already have 13 C-130s.

State and DOD would not object to the sale, as long as it is made clear to the Taiwanese that it would be within the "bucket".

Lockheed may be "lobbying" on behalf of the Taiwanese to try and convince the Administration that the sale should be considered outside of the "bucket". They should be told that the Administration will consider that sale, but within the confines of the "bucket". As an option, Lockheed can sell the Taiwanese the L-100, the sale of which would be outside the "bucket".

General --

Powell Moore called to say that he and Dick Cook would like to come in to see you tomorrow afternoon to talk about C-130 aircraft sale to Taiwan -- 28 of them. Said this might have some useful political aspects. I have gone to Susan Koch and she will check with our China experts. Powell said this is the first time since he has been out of the Government that he has asked us for an appointment You can do it around 2:00 or after tomorrow if you wish. I will add the info from Staff as soon as I get it.

No conflict of interest - Deborah Lehr will do a paper for you as she has been following this.

INFORMATION

MEMORANDUM FOR BRENT SCOWCROFT

THROUGH: TORHEL PATTERSON, ACTING

FROM: DEBORAH LEHR

SUBJECT: Lockheed Request for Meeting to discuss sale of C-130s to Taiwan

Lockheed would like to meet with you to discuss a potential sale of 10-12 C-130 aircraft to Taiwan. The Taiwanese are pushing for this sale because they believe that they are weak in the military support area. They have already purchased 13 C-130s.

As you are aware, Taiwan is given a set dollar figure for purchases of U.S. military goods annually called "the bucket". The purchase of these C-130s would account for a large share of their set figure for 1993, which stands at $632 million. State's view is that these purchase would not be a wise use of Taiwan's funds; there are other military items, in States' view, of which they are in more need.

Taiwan would like these sales to occur outside the "bucket", however, this could start a bad precedent. The F-16 sale is an exception and was exempted from the bucket.

The sale of additional aircraft to Taiwan at this time when relations are already strained with China will only intensify the tensions.

SUBJECT: Appt. with Algerian ForMin

Algeria's Foreign Minister Lakhdar Ibrahimi will be in Washington Oct. 5-7 and would like to meet with General Scowcroft. We recommend that the General agree. Ibrahimi is one of the premier diplomats in the Arab world and was instrumental in negotiating the Ta'if agreement. His views on Algeria's domestic stability will also be worthwhile; security problems are increasing there, and there has been some recent backsliding on the government's commitment to economic reform. Let us know if the General is able to see him.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Brent Scowcroft
FROM: Fred Zeder
SUBJECT: Foreign Assistance and Job Flight

The Democrats have been cooking this issue for two years. That's why a year ago we made the enclosed film. The President has seen it and sent me a note of thanks and congratulations. His introductory remarks in the film and his sign off have a lot of good stuff that could be used in debate sound bites. Please take nine minutes and look at it.

For months I have been urging anyone who would listen to do an update of this film for the President. We need to show people in the workplace saying "thanks, Mr. President, for opening up markets for the goods I make. You are putting bread on my table, keep it up America and we will grow out of this recession ." We have a lot of people saying just that in the film.

For the debates, Clinton/Gore will pursue the line in Clinton's 9/29 Louisville speech and Gore's 9/30 ABC Nightline appearance. We need to portray A.I.D. for what it is, a creation of the U.S. Congress -- an outdated relic of the cold war -- a pork barrel for Congress. The President said that, and more, in New York at the U.N.

When Clinton/Gore say the Bush Administration is using tax dollars to export jobs through A.I.D., we need to say that those tax dollars were programmed by the appropriation bills Al Gore voted into law. Second, Gore has made some strong statements against the CBI program in his efforts to draw blood on this issue. We should consider -- especially in South Florida -- defending the policy of helping our Caribbean neighbors as good business and focus criticism on Congress' failure join the President in reforming foreign assistance.

The fact is there is a proper role for the government in promoting sound overseas investment that does not export jobs. When I see you tomorrow at 3 p.m., I'll bring along some talking points on this.

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

September 30, 1992

Dear Fred:

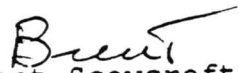

Thank you very much for the comprehensive report of your trip to Russia and several of the other new states of the former Soviet Union. I very much appreciate your tremendous efforts to move OPIC quickly into the new states of the former Soviet Union. We made clear early on that our goal was to encourage private trade and investment with Russia, and that OPIC was one of the cornerstones of our policy. Thanks to you we have acted quickly to make OPIC guarantees a reality.

I know the President is aware of OPIC's quick action in the former Soviet Union, and he is grateful for what you and your colleagues have accomplished in a short time. We know this could not have happened so quickly without your personal commitment to the task.

As you move ahead to expand OPIC's activities in the new states of the former Soviet Union, please feel free to call on me if there is a way that I can be helpful.

Once again, congratulations on a job well-done.

Sincerely,

Brent Scowcroft

MEMORANDUM FOR BRENT SCOWCROFT

FROM: ED A. HEWITT

SUBJECT: Draft Response to Fred Zeder's Report to You on His Trip to Russia and Other States of the FSU

Fred Zeder has written you (Tab II) reporting on Russia and other states of the FSU to sign agreements allowing OPIC to operate in those states. He is also writing to thank you for your help and support in this effort.

With the results of this trip, we have OPIC agreements with all FSU states except Uzbekistan and Azerbaijan, both of whom will be coming here to sign agreements. In your proposed response at Tab I, you thank Mr. Zeder for his report, and commend him for his very effective efforts in carrying out the President's policy.

RECOMMENDATION

That you sign the letter at Tab I.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

July 16, 1992

The Honorable Brent Scowcroft
Assistant to the President for National Security Affairs
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Brent:

Here is a short travelogue on my recent NIS odyssey along with a report on our OPIC mission to Russia. It was OPIC's largest and most successful mission ever.

In Moscow and St. Petersburg, we set up joint venture meetings with over 500 companies for the 50 American companies that went with us. Over $100 million of new private investment was identified in this opening salvo.

We also managed, thanks to the C-120 you, Brent, provided for us, to sign new bilaterals with Belarus, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, and Georgia and a revised bilateral with Bulgaria. We have now signed up all the NIS except Uzbekistan and Azerbaijan -- these two will come here for the ceremony. In total, this makes 133 countries in which OPIC is now authorized to do business.

We arrived in Georgia a day after a failed coup d'etat. A small band of diehard Ghamshakurdia supporters tried to capture the television station. In the fire fight that broke out, three dissidents and two guards were killed. Later we learned that quite a number of people were injured. During the night, we heard sporadic automatic rifle fire. There was evidence of the heavy fighting throughout the city during the time Ghamshakurdia was being removed from power.

Last Thursday we heard on CNN that Deputy Minister Sada Kausade had been kidnapped and his driver killed in Tbilisi, Georgia. We met Kausade when we were there. We have since heard that he is alive and being held captive in Chechen.

The signing ceremony with Shevardnadze and my private discussions with him later were impressive and informative. His greatest strength, we were told, comes from his close, personal ties to the "outside world" -- through "President Bush and Secretary Baker."

Just before we left Washington for this trip, I signed a bilateral agreement at the State Department with Moldovan Minister Andrei Cheptine in a meeting presided over by Secretary Baker and Prime Minister Muravski. In a subsequent meeting in my office with Muravski, I told him that I would try to visit during the upcoming mission, which we did. Incidentally, on the day we got there, the car of our Charge, Howard Steers, was fired on. He was not injured.

Prime Minister Muravski did not meet us at the airport but his deputy and other dignitaries did. Muravski was appearing before Parliament announcing to the assembled members that if they chose not to support his reform program, they should appoint a new government because he was resigning. This was a real showdown between the old guard communists and President Snegur's new team.

During my meeting with Moldovan President Mircea Snegur, after formal exchanges, he requested to see me for a private talk. With tears in his eyes, he pleaded with me to, in his words, "have your good friend George Bush talk to Yeltsin -- when they are together in Helsinki." He asked me to have President Bush appeal to Yeltsin to move the Russian 14th Army troops from Moldova. He said these soldiers were vandalizing, raping and terrorizing his people. He cited a number of incidents of serious atrocities. He told me that there are 6,000 heavily armed military personnel wandering around unsupervised and undisciplined. In the last two months, he said they had killed 500 Moldovan citizens.

President Snegur concluded our meeting with a moving expression of his gratitude for our visit. He said our presence at such a troubled time and our show of American support was helpful beyond measure as he fought to hold his country together.

Brent, this is the message I passed to you by phone from London.

During our travels through the former Soviet Union, we quickly identified a few traits in common among the leadership. For example, they all had a profound lack of sophistication regarding business transactions and deep ambivalence about giving up control of economic decision-making. Those officials who support the reform process are courageously forging ahead with conviction. The current economic crisis, in their view, is the result of the failure of communism. There are many, however, who long for the "good old days". We found them at all levels. They resent the "hardships" they personally endure -- like being denied the many perks the Communist bureaucracy once enjoyed.

A brief comment on the support we received from our U.S. Embassies and the Charges and Commercial Attaches: Bob Strauss and his staff were magnificent -- especially Edgar Fulton, Acting Commercial Counselor. On a scale of 1 to 10, I would rate the rest of them from a 7+ to a 0-. In most cases, the second and third-level personnel were more engaged, helpful and dedicated -- less jaded and world weary than the old pros.

At every stop and during the mission sessions in Moscow and St. Petersburg, I reminded our foreign service officers of State Department's instructions to them to make economic development their number one priority. I told them the success of our programs, or the lack of it, in their posts will be in direct relation to their individual effort and abilities.

In speeches and press conferences, I developed the following themes in order to urge NIS government officials pursue the transition to market economics:

1. They have vast untapped natural resources. They also have great suppressed human resources. The talent and expertise they have in science, medicine, and the arts are the solid foundation on which they can now build true economic independence.
2. Recovery from 70 years of totalitarian collectivism will require that the rule of law and limited government be paramount. The role of government in the marketplace must become predictable. Government measures to protect the environment, raise revenues, or promote other public interests are fine, but once the ground rules are established the government should get out of the way and let the private sector do what no government can do -- produce wealth.
3. The Marshall Plan was successful not because of the cash it provided, but rather because it brought American management, manufacturing and marketing know-how to war-torn Europe. Above all, it brought the concept of Democracy. Now we will bring American know-how to the Russians and the other NIS. They are now dedicated to democratic concepts. They have more material and human resources than Japan or Germany had. They can become a great industrial power.
4. U.S. support and assistance for reform and recovery is not just a case of the U.S. helping them, but of us working together to rid the world of continuing threats to security and democracy.

I frequently made this last point in response to the gratitude my hosts expressed for U.S. aid. To dispel the uneasy sense that the U.S. assistance was only an act of charity, I told them the challenge of assisting the new republics in restoring market economics and establishing democracy had helped us to more clearly appreciate liberty, free enterprise and democracy.

I also made the point that while they are moving from collectivist, command systems to societies based on the productivity of free people, there remain those in the U.S. who continue to advocate big government and the redistribution of wealth. I thanked them for warning us not to take our freedom and democracy for granted.

Here are a few vignettes which illustrate the mood and outlook we found:

-- In Dushanbe, the Foreign Minister and I exchanged toasts extolling the individual, noting that individuals and their private businesses produce wealth, while governments consume wealth and that governments should be limited to protecting individual liberty and the freedom to compete. The Minister of Economics, on the other hand, grew more gloomy all evening and finally observed that the "concept of the individual is an abstraction ... economic decisions must be made objectively and based on the needs of society as a whole."

-- In Moscow, Prime Minister Gaidar told our group that he sometimes is falsely accused of promoting investment policies that amount to "selling out Russia to foreigners." We told Gaidar that some liberal American politicians characterize OPIC as an exporter of U.S. capital and jobs to Russia. We agreed that neither of us will allow domestic politics to distract us from our goal of private sector growth through trade and investment.

-- One of the real highlights of the trip for me was Mayor Sobchak's address to us in St. Petersburg. He is a very shrewd politician. He assembled a group of the old hard-liners and the reformers in the same room with U.S. investors. His message was then aimed at both groups, albeit for very different reasons. Sobchak said the collapse of the Soviet "Empire" has created an imbalance in the world, and that to restore balance Russia must become a world power again in its own right. But, he said, the lesson of the last 70 years is that Russia will only take its place as a superpower if it achieves that status through democracy and market economics rather than through totalitarianism and command economics. The objective Sobchak seeks is strengthening Russia by doing business with American and other foreign investors. Russia, he said, will then become an effective competitor, and ultimately restore geopolitical balance in the world.

Again, thanks for your help and support in making our formal entry into the former Soviet Union so successful, interesting and exciting. We will keep you posted on our progress.

Sincerely,

MEMORANDUM FOR THE ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR NATIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS

FROM: FRED M. ZEDER FZ
SUBJECT: Nuclear and Conventional Energy Safety Business
Opportunities in the Former Soviet Union

Last June 3rd when I called you from London on my way back from our OPIC mission in Russia, you suggested we get together. I think we should do that now as soon as possible. There are a number of urgent issues that represent significant political as well as business opportunities. I'll call you on Monday.

A strong and diversified team of U.S. companies is forming to take on business projects in Ukraine and Russia. With OPIC and EXIM support, several are already involved in nuclear power plant training, remediation, and simulator-based safety projects at Kozloduy in Bulgaria and in Russia.

These business projects can be supported out of existing resources. If undertaken by American firms, they will have extremely positive economic and employment benefits here in the U.S. We would demonstrate the ability of our private sector to act decisively in accordance with Secretary Baker's Lisbon nuclear power plant initiative. Early action by our companies will position them in front of European competition.

The projects, which would probably be structured as interlocking businesses in joint ventures with Russian/Ukrainian companies or state-owned enterprises, would accomplish the following:

- prevent additional problems at Chernobyl by dealing with structural integrity issues in the sarcophagus and reactor head; begin ground water radiation assessment and remediation.
- address and repair methane leakage from Russian gas pipelines, eliminating the current approximately 20% loss and increasing hard currency generation for Russia.

-- enhance safety practices and training at Ukrainian and Russian nuclear power plants, and begin the transformation of their NPP's to users of U.S. parts and engineering services; introduce and integrate non-nuclear American source private power production business into these countries.

The potential for environmental disaster presented by the NPP's in Russia, Ukraine, Lithuania and Bulgaria is staggering, but so are the opportunities for remediation. If American companies get this business, the economic benefit here in terms of jobs will be substantial and sustained. I believe the President can move now to energize OPIC and EXIM to move out in these areas, thus demonstrating leadership on both the economic and environmental front.

Please pass the following to the General:

SUBJECT: Your Meeting with Archbishop Iakovos and Andy Athens.

The principal subject on their agenda is Cyprus, although we can expect them to raise Macedonia as well.

On Cyprus:

-- The US continues to support the UNSYG's efforts. The talks will resume on October 26; we anticipate no problems with Denktash attending.

-- We are asking the Turks to pressure Denktash to make concessions on land and refugees. In return, however, Denktash will need some concessions on constitutional issues.

-- If there is no movement, and it is clear the Denktash is again the cause, the US will support a strong resolution that will come down hard on the Turkish Cypriots.

(If they press you for US support on specific issues)

-- We support the UNSYG set of ideas and believe they represent a fair basis from which negotiations should proceed.

On Macedonia:

-- Our position on this issue has not changed: we have not recognized Macedonia under that name and can support any solution to which both parties can agree. In fact, we held this view even before the EC issued its Lisbon delcaration.

-- The EC has responsibility for brokering the disagreement toward resolution and we stand ready to support EC efforts.

-- Gligorov maintains that he cannot change the name or uncontrollable instability would result. A destabilized Macedonia leaves Gligorov nothing and threatens Greece, and that is in no one's interest. We have stressed the need for a rapid solution.

FYI: Andy Manatos, the lobbyist for Greece here in DC, and Secretary Derwinski will also attend.

Please pass the following to the General:

SUBJECT: Your meeting with Austrian Foreign Minister Alois Mock

Mock is in the US to attend the opening of the UNGA in New York where he met with Arnie Kanter. We do not have any pressing issues with the Austrians and the likely subject to dominate your conversation will be Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia

-- You may want to express our appreciation for Austria's supportive efforts to achieve a solution to the problem in Bosnia. Mock has been personally working for a more aggressive international response.

-- You may also want to reiterate the importance and appreciation we attach to Austria's continued support for the Serbian sanctions. Austrian willingness to participate in monitoring is particularly important.

-- The Austrians have also been helpful in facilitating our access to Bosnians taking refuge in Austria to learn more about the situation in Bosnia and alleged camps.

EC Membership and Neutrality

-- Having just ratified the EEA, Austria hopes to conclude EC negotiations by 1993-4, early enough to be in the first tranche of new EC members, along with Sweden, Finland, and perhaps Norway.

-- The Austrians believe that their membership will consequently require a new and 'creative' interpretation of neutrality that will allow it to fulfil all the requirements of EC membership. Their reaction to the French vote would be interesting to learn.

-- The Austrian government has stated that Austria will participate in the common security and defense policy of the European Union. We think this is a positive sign of Austria's willingness to shoulder new responsibilities despite its neutral tradition. You may want to ask Mock about the direction of their current thinking on this point.

Note for the General

To follow up on your phone call, the french franc did come under heavy pressure today. However, heavy intervention by the French and German Central banks, coupled with a rise in the French short-term bank lending rate from 10.5% to 13%, enabled the franc to remain above its floor with the mark (FF3.43/DM). There may be renewed speculative pressures tomorrow. The Brits are peeved the Bundesbank did not do as much to protect the pound last week.

THROUGH: EDWARD A. HEWETT NB

FROM: NICHOLAS BURNS NB

SUBJECT: Request for a Meeting with Russian First Deputy Premier Shumeyko

*Nat'l Sec Advisor

First Deputy Premier Vladimir Shumeyko, the new number-two official in the Russian cabinet below Premier Gaydar, requested an appointment to see you during his September 21-24 visit. Shumeyko will meet with IMF and World Bank officials, and he is the guest of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. While he has generally supported reform efforts since his appointment in June, some of his policies are not consistent with IMF's guidelines and Gaydar's more ambitious program. We feel it is important to make clear to him our strong interest in continued economic reform in Russia.

We thus recommend that you meet with him for 30 minutes, at a time convenient to you between September 21-24.

RECOMMENDATION

That you meet with Russian First Deputy Premier Shumeyko at your convenience during the period of September 21-24.

SUBJECT: Request for Meeting with OECD Secretary General on September 21

OECD Secretary General Jean Claude Paye is visiting Washington later this month to attend the IMF/World Bank meetings. He has requested a courtesy call on you for September 22. (His schedule at present is open in the morning and in the afternoon until 3:00 p.m.) He will also be seeing Michael Boskin, Alan Greenspan, Lynn Martin and, if available, Rich Armitage.

Our Ambassador to the OECD, Al Larson, believes that it would be useful for you to see him. We agree. Of particular interest, your meeting would provide an opportunity to discuss the current economic scene in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. At our urging, the OECD developed an active program to provide economic advice to these countries. Paye may also have some helpful insights into how Europeans will react to the French referendum on Maastricht and how this will affect our efforts to conclude the Uruguay Round.

SUBJECT: Visit of Czech Republic PM Klaus

Klaus is coming here on a private visit to attend a conference on September 17-24. He requested a meeting with the President, but State and this directorate agreed that a meeting was not appropriate at this time. The Czech ambassador is apparently trying to by-pass that decision with the call to Zoellick.

There are several Czechoslovak reasons for declining a meeting: 1) Klaus only represents the Czech republic, not a government with which we have relations; 2) if the President sees him, then the Slovak PM would need to be treated equally; 3) we should not get dragged into the negotiation and tugging between the two republics; specifically Klaus hopes to have the Czech republic treated as the successor state to Czechoslovakia and has been seeking meetings with foreign leaders to bolster that position.

State/EUR is trying to arrange a meeting with Eagleburger for Klaus and still recommends that Klaus not see the President even for a photo op.

Hon. Brent Scowcroft
Assistant to the President
National Security Council
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Brent:

I have asked your staff for a September 16 meeting with me and Minoru B. Makiyara, president of Mitsubishi Corporation (MC). We would like to invite you for breakfast but any time would be fine. Here is some background.

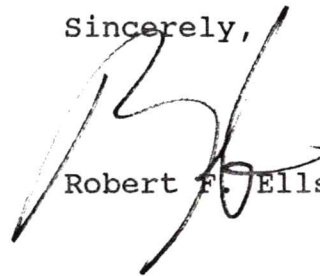

1. Makiyara is quite familiar with American culture. He was born in England, graduated from St. Paul's School in Concord, NH, earned a Harvard B.A. and has spent much of his Mitsubishi career in the U.S. Most recently (until his June 1992 accession to the presidency of MC), he was in New York for six years in charge of MC's North American operations. Attached are "Business Week" and "New York Times" pieces.
2. MC itself is the trading company of the Mitsubishi Group. For 1991 MC's (not the Group) gross trading transactions were $139.9 billion -- greater than the GDP of Turkey or Denmark and about the same as the GDP of Austria or Poland. They operate worldwide in fuels, vehicles, machinery, foods, chemicals, textiles and general merchandise, and information systems and services.
3. MC is basically Japanese, of course, but they are one of several dozen supranational corporations -- like IBM, Texas Instruments, Pechiney, Siemens, etc. -- whose global orientation tends to make them a new geopolitical force that transcends the nation state system. Production, marketing, financing, tax exposure -- all are located (and relocated) with small regard for traditional local considerations.
4. Mitsubishi has a geopolitical point of view: They need a politically non-violent world, an economically prosperous and growing world full of customers interested in buying Mitsubishi stuff (wherever produced) and able to pay for it. On Japan, Mitsubishi's view is that Japan must not become a regional military power. Sub-regional, OK. Regional, not. Mitsubishi has the capability and the interest to limit Japan in this way. In these senses, Mitsubishi is our geopolitical ally and could be looked at, and to some extent treated, accordingly.

5. Makihara therefore has an interest in your view of the evolution of the international system.

Sincerely,

Robert F. Ellsworth

JAPAN

THE HARVARD MAN IN MITSUBISHI'S CORNER OFFICE

Does Makihara's promotion signal the rise of a new breed of executive?

Born in England and christened Bernard, but has since gone by "Ben." Alumnus of St. Paul's School and Harvard. Spent two years as a counselor at summer camp in Vermont. Assignments totaling 22 years in Seattle, Washington, New York, and London. Good friends include CEO James D. Robinson III of American Express and CEO Gerald Grinstein of Burlington Northern. Son works for Goldman Sachs, daughter for Time magazine.

Met Minoru "Ben" Makihara, the newly named president and CEO of $123 billion Mitsubishi Corp., Japan's powerful trading firm and flagship of the country's largest keiretsu, or corporate grouping. Never before has a major Japanese company been run by someone as cosmopolitan as the 62-year-old Makihara. So although internationalization gets lots of lip service in Japan these days, Makihara's ascent to the pinnacle of Japan's business Establishment has set local business circles buzzing.

As a rule, an executive can't reach the top without the proper Japanese university credentials and much time spent at the home office. After all, he would lack the network of high-level contacts essential to success in the Japanese business world. He might also "stink of butter," the Japanese put-down for colleagues who have spent too much time abroad.

But with U.S.-Japan relations at a postwar low, Mitsubishi decided in late February that Makihara's U.S. experience mattered more. That positions him eventually to succeed Akio Morita, Sony Corp.'s 71-year-old chairman, as Japan's business ambassador to the world. "He'll be an enormously important bridge between Japan and the U.S. business-wise," says Frank A. Weil, former Commerce Under Secretary and Makihara's longtime acquaintance.

NEW DIRECTIONS. Makihara is already signaling that Mitsubishi must alter its ways. "The expectations of employees, shareholders, and the outside world are changing," he says. "So new directions have to be sought." That means making jobs more satisfying, paying the environment more heed, and giving shareholders a bigger share of profits, he says.

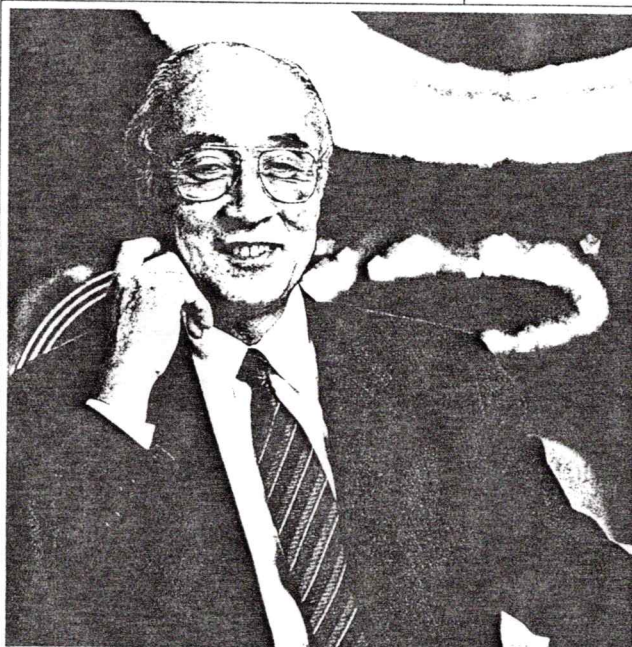

Makihara made his latest mark in

New York, while running the big U.S. subsidiary Mitsubishi International Corp. from 1987 to 1990. His main contribution was to help guide the trading company into new investments and technologies. It was on his watch that Mitsubishi bought control of Aristech Chemical Corp. for $877 million and took half-ownership of UCAR Carbon Europe, an $850 million-a-year business. "It is novel for a trading company to invest in manufacturing," notes Robert D. Kennedy, chairman and CEO of Union Carbide Corp. When he officially takes over in him as an aggressive businessman," she says. "He's soft-spoken, quiet, and serious. At home he never talks about work at all." She says he likes to curl up with English-language spy novels to relax.

Makihara's climb up the ladder wasn't hurt by his blue-blood Mitsubishi pedigree. His father was a Mitsubishi man who served in London and the U.S., and his wife is the great-granddaughter of Mitsubishi founder Yataro Iwasaki. Others note that Makihara, a veteran of Mitsubishi's marine products division, came from the company's "soft" side. Traditionally, the presidency has alternated between that and the "hard" side, which includes machinery and steel. This time it was the soft's turn. But company insiders insist Makihara got where he is by merit, not luck.

He steps in at a time when Mitsubishi is rolling in dough. The company is now Japan's most profitable major trader, thanks to its early shift from depen-

June, Makihara is likely to make such acquisitions on a much larger scale.

What's more, he is a symbol of a new type of Japanese corporate leader who is "extremely comfortable in two cultures," says Kennedy. A Japanese colleague who has worked closely with Makihara says his long U.S. experience has made Makihara more informal than most top Japanese executives. "He's very open-minded," says this colleague. "The door to his office is usually open for everybody. He likes a good joke."

Yet Makihara, who rarely gets angry, is no American-style mover and shaker. "Beneath his business suit is a Japanese gown," says Weil. Makihara's daughter, Kumiko, describes her father as an intellectual. "It's difficult for me to imagine dence on mere transaction fees to investments in such businesses as manufacturing plants and liquefied natural gas projects in Southeast Asia. "Mitsubishi has been a leader in moving into that region," says Patricia Jennings, an analyst at Baring Securities (Japan) Ltd.

Given his U.S. expertise, Makihara says he'll probably speak out more on bilateral issues than his predecessor. In particular, Makihara is rankled by the perception that Japan's keiretsu are out not only to exclude foreigners but to take over the world. "I think that's totally off the mark," he says. If anyone can convince Americans that Japan's companies aren't hostile, Makihara can.

Unusual Path To the Top At Mitsubishi

By DAVID E. SANGER

Special to The New York Times

TOKYO, April 12 — By the unwritten rules that dictate who rises to the top of Japan's corporate elite, Minoru Makiyama should have long ago been scratched off the list of candidates to head the Mitsubishi Corporation, the crown jewel of Japan's most powerful business group.

In the years after World War II, when most of Tokyo's children were picking their way through the ruins of the city on the way to school, Mr. Makiyama was not in Japan at all; instead, he received his education at an elite prep school in New England.

When anyone with ambition to become a future leader was battling for a scarce slot at the University of Tokyo, Mr. Makiyama was enrolled as one of the few Japanese at Harvard, graduating in the 1954 class that included Edward M. Kennedy, the future Senator, and John Updike, the author. And while his colleagues at Mitsubishi climbed the ladder at headquarters and kept foreign forays brief, Mr. Makiyama spent more than two decades in London, Seattle and New York.

Surprise Appointment

So, many people in the company were taken by surprise when Mitsubishi announced recently that Mr. Makiyama would take over in June as president of the most famous of Japan's trading companies, which deal in everything from oil to dam-building and precious art to agricultural imports. The appointment was widely interpreted here as an effort by Japan's most politically powerful business group to project a gentler English-speaking image to the world.

By his very presence, the polished, cosmopolitan Mr. Makiyama reinforces the message that the biggest problem facing Japanese business today is not profits but politics.

Since he returned to Japan several months ago, however, the man known outside Japan as Ben Makiyama finds himself in the odd position of reassuring nervous employees and the Japanese press that he is, in fact, as Japanese as he looks.

"My background is very nontraditional," the 62-year old Mr. Makiyama said the other day. "But I am a very traditional person, fairly Japanese in my thinking. Some people go abroad a short time and come back very different. Others go abroad a long time and come back unchanged. I think that I am one of the latter."

Without question, Mitsubishi runs in Mr. Makiyama's blood. His father was a Mitsubishi executive, and his wife, Kikuko, is the great-grandchild of the autocratic Yataro Iwasaki, the founder of the Mitsubishi empire a century ago.

Tokyo-Style Capitalism

Even without that background, though, his colleagues and friends say Mr. Makiyama offers the best chance that Mitsubishi has of facing down critics who maintain that as Japan's largest keiretsu — the inter-linked corporate groups that distinguish Tokyo-style capitalism — Mitsubishi epitomizes the exclusive, impenetrable nature of Japanese business.

Long gone are the days when the Mitsubishi Corporation exercised direct control over the other companies with the Mitsubishi name. (Among them are Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, Mitsubishi Electric Mitsubishi Motors, Mitsubishi Bank and some Mitsubishi companies that do not even have the name, like the Nikon Corporation and the Kirin Brewery.)

The trading company holds a small stake in most of the Mitsubishi group members and still coordinates their talents, much as Mr. Makiyama did when, as head of Mitsubishi's American operations, he engineered the purchase of ArisTech Chemical. It was a classic Mitsubishi deal: while Mitsubishi Corporation took the lead, other Mitsubishi companies were called in to take a stake or share technology with it.

In a talk the other day, Mr. Makiyama argued that keiretsu are still widely misunderstood in the United States and far less monolithic or exclusive than trade negotiators contend. "The sense of strength of the keiretsu is exaggerated," he said. Companies within the group, he contends, buy parts and enter ventures with nongroup members.

"We do business with Toshiba, and it isn't one of the Mitsubishi group, and we do business with other non-Mitsubishi companies," he said. "In an economy as competitive as Japan's, you have to."

But Mr. Makiyama readily acknowledges that the historical bonds among the companies run deep. The relationships are cemented at events like Mitsubishi's famous Friday lunches, held in the Mitsubishi Club just above Mr. Makiyama's office. There, the chairmen and presidents of the Mitsubishi companies — no one else can join — discuss the political scene and talk about the direction of the group. It is the kind of event that gives indignation to antitrust experts.

The chief purpose of the lunch, like most rituals in Japan, is to create relationships rather than get any specific item of business done. But Mr. Makiyama says that the lunches have a "mystique that needs to be changed," adding: "Why not make it more accessible? I would suggest that it be more transparent."

Mr. Makiyama's colleagues say one of his first challenges will be to broaden the group's international alliances.

At a time when the Japanese auto industry is trying to promote cooperative arrangements with the American Big Three, the most prominent of those deals, Mitsubishi Motors' relationship with the Chrysler Corporation, is tearing apart. Strapped for cash, Chrysler is liquidating most of its stake in the Japanese car maker, and Mitsubishi executives say that after repeated conflicts with Lee A.

Iacocca, Chrysler's chairman, they are hardly sad to see the partnership end.

"The personal chemistry wasn't there," Mr. Makiyama said. Mr. Iacocca, he said, "is not really interested in forging an alliance."

For a while, it seemed that Mitsubishi's alternative to Chrysler would be Daimler-Benz, Europe's biggest manufacturer and one of the few enterprises with Mitsubishi's scope. Two years ago, at the initiative of Edzard Reuter, Daimler's chairman, the two groups signed a broad but vague statement of their intent to join forces in a range of areas.

But the discussions have barely inched along, and no one, Mr. Makiyama included, has yet described a vision of ways the two groups can cooperate.

"Over time, something will come out of it," he said. "I don't know what."

While Mr. Makiyama's tenure may be measured by how he handles such high-profile international ventures, his toughest challenges may come from within Japan and within Mitsubishi. He has, for example, cautiously sided with Akio Morita, the chairman of the Sony Corporation, who opened a debate on whether Japanese companies must give up their incessant drive for more market share.

"I think he is partly reflecting some new thinking which is going on among Japanese companies, that predatory practices, that the constant expansion of market share, must now change," Mr. Makiyama said. "But it is easier said than done. Among the trading companies, no individual company can be the only one to stop — or we will lose our share. Mitsui, Sumitomo, they must change also."

The huge Japanese trading companies, however, are hardly known for their flexibility and willingness to change with the times. That was evident when Mr. Makiyama welcomed new Mitsubishi employees at an annual induction ceremony the other day: of 219 "career track" entrants, none were women. Even by Japan's standards, that figure stood out.

"In due course, I don't know how quickly, trading companies must bring women into line positions, managerial positions," he said.

Fitting Into the Culture

It is difficult to tell if Mr. Makiyama's caution on such topics is innate, or whether it reflects the fact that he is now back in Japan, and must tow the Japanese line. In the past, Mr. Makiyama excelled at fitting into the country where he was working. His daughter, Kuniko, said recently that "when we were living in Japan, we didn't see him much; he was away from the house all the time like a real 'salaryman,'" the Japanese phrase for a white-collar worker. "When we lived abroad," she added, "he was always home for dinner."

MEMORANDUM FOR: SEE BELOW

FROM: Jane E. Holl
(HOLL)

SUBJECT: Meeting with Coratian Americans

Please pass the following on to the General:

Public Liaison has arranged this meeting as another in the effort to keep the Croatian-American community "in touch" with the Administration's policies toward Croatia.

I understand from Public Liaison that the group has no particular item on their agenda that they will focus on, but one that may come up is the appointment of our ambassador. Croatia has nominated Mr. Sarcevic (from their New York delegation), but the President has not yet forwarded to Congress the name sent over by State (Paula Dobrianski). The Croatian Americans want one of their own, but we think that this post should have an experienced hand.

You may also want to draw on the same points used for your meeting with Kasemir Cocis regarding our continuing concerns regarding domestic progress toward democracy (particularly with respect to a free press) and some indications that Croatia is up to do good in Bosnia as well.

On the positive side, we're pleased that we're moving forward with full relations in order to develop a stronger relationship with Zagreb to deal with not only the crisis, but also other issues of mutual concern. We're not interested in establishing Croatia as a client, but rather in working with Zagreb to strengthen the Croatian economy and promoting democratic values to help Croatia assume a positive role in the region.

MEMORANDUM FOR DAVID DEMAREST

THROUGH: CLAYTON FONG Clayton
FROM: JIM SCHAEFER Jim
SUBJECT: CROATIAN-AMERICAN ACTION PLAN

The following is a proposed action plan for activities through September 21, 1992:

Thursday, September 3rd:

- David Demarest calls Zdenka Gast and invites her to a meeting with General Scowcroft.

Tuesday, September 8th (tentative):

- Zdenka Gast meets with General Scowcroft and is briefed on current U.S. initiatives in the Balkans. Ms. Gast is requested to contact senior Croatian-American leaders (please see attached sheet) for a second meeting with General Scowcroft.
- The President announces his intention to appoint the U.S. Ambassador to Croatia. Key Croatian-American leaders are notified of the appointment by OPL.

Wednesday, September 9th (tentative):

- The President places a phone call to President Tudjman. The White House issues a press release of that phone call; OPL faxes press releases on the phone call to Croatian-American leaders and media organizations.

Tuesday, September 15th (tentative):

- General Scowcroft meets with senior Croatian-American leaders to review current U.S. aid initiatives in the Balkans.

Wednesday, September 17th (tentative):

- David Demarest, General Scowcroft, and other senior White House staff review plans for possible meeting between Presidents Bush and Tudjman during the U.N. General Assembly.

SUBJECT: Commission on China Broadcasting

FOR GENERAL SCOWCROFT AND ADMIRAL HOWE

The Commission on Broadcasting to China will complete its report in mid September. The chairman, John Hughes, informed me (and it is widespread knowledge) that the commission members split 6-4 in favor of a new surrogate Radio Free Asia under the Board for International Broadcasting. The minority four strongly believe VOA should do the mission of expanded broadcasting to China and other Asian countries.

John Hughes asked me if we would like to have the report presented over here as was done with the Presidential Task Force on US International Broadcasting (which was a Presidential task force whereas this one was created by Congress.) Doug and I do not see any requirement to formally receive the report, but you may wish to do so. The majority and minority are both adamant about their positions and would want to make their cases.

Timing: The Commission plans a National Press Club unveiling on September 14 or 15, and Senator Biden is holding hearings September 15. A meeting with you would need to be either September 11 or early the 14th.

Doug and I recommend against a meeting. What should I tell Hughes?

1. Due to the hectic schedule, it is better to send the report, or

2. Yes, we can try to schedule a meeting.

Also, FYI, the VOA's new China Focus program begins this Sunday, September 6. It is 1/2 hour per day and will work up to 3 hours per day.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE PRESIDENT

Counsel's Office has approved

FROM: BRENT SCOWCROFT (B)

SUBJECT: Reply to Former Prime Minister Shamir on Pollard

Purpose

To explain to former Prime Minister Shamir the status of the Jonathan Pollard case and to compliment him on his contributions.

Background

Just prior to leaving office, Former Israeli Prime Minister Shamir made a personal appeal to you to commute the sentence of Jonathan Pollard (Tab B). Although there were reports at the time that current Prime Minister Rabin intended to make a similar appeal, he has not done so.

We suggest that you respond to Shamir along the lines of your earlier response to Chief Rabbi Shapiro and have prepared such a response (Tab A). We also take advantage of this opportunity to cite Shamir for his decision to go to Madrid and our collaboration on Soviet and Ethiopian immigration. As a member of the Knesset, we now address him simply as Mr. Shamir.

RECOMMENDATION

That you respond to Shamir regarding Pollard by signing the letter at Tab A.

SUBJECT: Meeting with Amb. Bill Courtney

Please pass to General Scowcroft

You will see our Ambassador to Kazakhstan, Bill Courtney, for a brief meeting at 4:00 p.m. today.

Courtney asked for an appointment to brief you mainly on our nuclear/security dialogue with the Kazakhs before he returns to Alma Ata. Courtney deserves very high marks for his performance as Ambassador since early this year--many believe he has been our most effective Chief of Mission in Central Asia.

Courtney will want to discuss the following with you:

- 1) Nuclear/Security: Our focus should continue to be in moving Nazarbaev toward NPT adherence as a non-nuclear weapons state, and to assure withdrawal of all strategic weapons.
- 2) Nazarbaev Visit: Nazarbaev will probably speak at the UNGA and has requested an appointment with the President in New York or Washington. While we are still unsure of how many other CIS leaders will be at the UNGA, Nazarbaev will most probably be one of our top priorities if the President has time for bilats.
- 3) U.S. Investment: You might ask Courtney for an up-date on the Chevron deal, and other U.S. investment opportunities.

SUBJECT: Addendum for Meeting with Ambassador Renwick 8/24 at

Please pass the following to the General in addition to my earlier paper for the 3:30 meeting:

Aircraft Sales to Argentina

In addition to Iraq and Yugoslavia, Renwick might raise our proposed sale of A-4 aircraft to Argentina. The British have a Deputy Under Secretary visiting State today to try to dissuade us from proceeding with the sale. The British say they are opposed to the inclusion of an Emerson radar with the aircraft because it expands Argentine capabilities too much. We disagree. But we believe their real concern is our policy change last year from allowing the UK a de facto veto over all military sales to Argentina to only allowing London a de facto veto over sales of major new systems. Under our new policy, we still inform the British of sales and continue to take their views seriously, but we reserve the right to proceed over British objections.

The A-4 offer to Argentina is based on our desire to maintain a regional military balance and to prevent the introduction of more advanced military aircraft into the area (e.g. Mirage). This is in the UK's interest. The sale should also boost Menem's credibility with the military, while a reversal of our offer would undermine him. If pressed, you can tell Renwick that unless the British produce convincing new arguments at State today, we intend to move ahead with approval for the sale of the aircraft.

(Morley and Gillespie provided the substantive input for this addition.)

SUBJECT: Meeting with Ambassador Teeley Monday 8/24 at 2:30pm

The following note is for the background of the General and the Admiral in preparation for their meeting with Ambassador Teeley at 2:30pm today:

The main item on Ambassador Teeley's agenda is the proposed NSC-charied group on U.S.-Canadian relations. Teeley is a big supporter of the idea and will be explaining its importance to Treasury, Customs and others while he is here. He wants to know your thoughts on how it will operate and when it will move into action. As you know, State is enthusiastic about the idea, but the other agencies are reticent about the added oversight. As I understand, the Canadian government has plans to establish a similar group but has not yet done so.

Teeley can give you an update on the state of play of specific trade issues as a USTR team was in Canada last week for a review discussion. They and the Canadians apparently identified a number of problems ripe for solution in the near term.

You might also want to ask Teeley for his assessment of the agreement on constitutional reform announced by PM Mulroney on Saturday. The agreement has to be confirmed later this week in another meeting between Mulroney and provincial leaders and then to be ratified by provincial legislatures and by referenda in several provinces.

BRENT:

NICK ROSTOW AND I WOULD LIKE TO GET ON YOUR CALENDAR FOR 20+ MINUTES THIS WEEK TO DISCUSS:

-- ADEQUACY OF PROCEDURES ON "EXTRAORDINARY RENDITIONS" IN THE WAKE OF THE ALVAREZ-MACHAIN CASE;

-- SITUATIONS NOT COVERED BY THESE PROCEDURES;

-- THE GENERAL QUESTION OF POLICY REVIEW OF LAW ENFORCEMENT OPERATIONS OUTSIDE THE U.S.

YOU WILL RECALL WE DISCUSSED THIS LAST ITEM LAST YEAR, BUT NOTHING (TO MY KNOWLEDGE) WAS DONE TO SOLVE THE PROBLEM. THE SNATCH IN VENEZUELA THAT HIT THE LATIN AMERICAN PRESS LAST MONTH HAS RAISED IT AGAIN.

request for meeting

Henry Siegman of the American Jewish Congress just called to ask that Brent meet with a group of 5 or 6 people representing the 3 groups that placed an ad in today's NYT (p. A14) re Yugoslavia, ie, the American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Committee, and the ADL. My guess is we are probably talking about Henry, Al Moses, Bob Lifton, Mel Salberg, and Abe Foxman. They would like to come asap, if possible before Brent leaves for Kennebunkport, if not then soon after.

I think Brent should do it. He could discuss Yugoslav policy, the Rabin visit and Iraq with a key constituency. If you agree, pls give me a time (I'd say 45 minutes) and I'll get back to Henry. thanks.

SUBJECT: Ambassador Sembler's Request for a Meeting with the Ambassador to Australia Mel Sembler will be in Washington in early August. He has asked for fifteen minutes with General Scowcroft. State has told us that he wants to brief the General on a number of bilateral issues. Ambassador Sembler is also requesting appointments with Connie Horner and Ron Kaufman. It is likely that the issues on Sembler's mind for these meetings may arise in discussions with General Scowcroft.

We think the General should meet with Sembler, time permitting. Sembler's suggested times for a meeting with the General are Thursday, August 6 between 10:00 am and noon or at 4:30 pm or later. He also suggested Tuesday, August 4 at 4:30 pm or later.

By SS NARA, Date 3/6/24

SUBJECT: Ekeus call

Please pass following to Brent:

UNSCOM chairman Ekeus saw Ambassador Perkins today and would like to debrief you on the results of his trip to Baghdad. We recommend that you call him via Perkins office in New York.

We would suggest making the following points:

- o We are standing firm behind UNSCOM, as the President noted last Sunday to the press.

- o We want to quickly make clear that the groundrules for inspections have not been compromised and support UNSCOM in continuing its mission as outlined in UNSCR 687.

- o If there has been any miscommunication between UNSCOM and the coalition, we are ready to set the problem straight.

SUBJECT:

Appointment Request

I would like an appointment to meet with General Scowcroft. The purpose of the meeting would be to solicit General Scowcroft's advice and support in securing an appropriate position after my scheduled departure from the NSC next summer.

I have talked to the appropriate people in State at the Assistant Secretary/Deputy Assistant Secretary level about being considered for the following positions, all of which are expected to become available next summer:

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for South America;

Ambassador to Venezuela;

Ambassador to Uruguay;

Principal Officer in Havana;

Ambassador to Namibia.

The final decision on most of these positions will be made by a committee chaired by Deputy Secretary Eagleburger. He doesn't know me well, and is likely to decide on other alternatives unless someone with influence vouches for me. I would like to ask General Scowcroft to intervene with Mr. Eagleburger on my behalf.

Thank you.
